Irish Catholics Bomb and Strike

BELFAST (AP) — The British government sought to calm Irish Roman Catholics today by setting up a court of inquiry into the killings Sunday of 13 civilians in a battle with British paratroops in Londonderry, Northern Ireland.

Barricades made of hijacked vehicles blazed in Belfast, and clouds of smoke rose from a burning brewery and saloon.

Mobs tried unsuccessfully three times to burn down the British embassy in Dublin, capital of the Irish Republic.

Maintenance men at Shannon, Ireland's major international airport, refused to service any British aircraft.

Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain announced he will ask Parliament to establish a special tribunal with judicial powers to investigate Londonderry's Bloody Sunday. But spokesmen for Northern Ireland's Catholic minority threatened not to co-operate with any commission set up by a government which they believe is out to bolster Protestant rule in Ulster.

No action was expected against Bernadette Devlin for her assault on Home Secretary Reginald Maudling in the House of Commons Monday, although normally she would have to apologize or face suspension. It unfolded because Speaker Selwyn Lloyd would not let her question Maudling about the killings, the 24-year-old Catholic MP from Northern Ireland called the 54-year-old home secretary a "murdering hypocrite," then charged across the floor of the House, hit him in the face, pulled his hair and clawed him.

PCs Vote For Close U. S. Ties

OTTAWA (CP) — Lower taxes, lower tariffs and closer economic ties with the United States have been supported by the Conservative party's membership in the results of a wide-ranging policy ballot released Monday.

The party has begun to publish the results of the balloting carried out at its national policy convention held Dec. 1-7.

Delegates voted on 298 resolutions at the convention, but the results are not binding on Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield. He is expected to lay down official party policy at the campaign for the federal election—expected this year—gets under way.

In the field of taxation, a majority of the delegates supported tax incentives to industry to improve productivity and general tax reductions as anti-inflation measures, rather than higher taxes.

Half the voters said Canadians should be willing to pay higher taxes for increased old age pensions.

But only a minority supported increased taxes for environmental protection, improved defence, expanded health care and welfare programs or "preservation of Canadian economic independence."

Sketch Plans Sought

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville city council has voted to accept a special federal government loan of $258,000 to build the proposed addition to the Corby Public Library and will ask the library board to proceed immediately with the preparation of sketch plans.

Of the total loan, the sum of $45,000 would be "forgivable" if the work has progressed sufficiently by June 1 of this year.

The recommendation to accept the federal loan for the library addition came from Mayor J. Russell Scott and Alderman Robin Gurney.

Mayor Scott said a decision must be made now whether or not to accept the loan and noted that council would have another opportunity to call a halt if costs were higher than the preliminary estimates.

But the decision to accept the loan and proceed with sketch plans did not get unanimous support.

Alderman Donald Soutter, who originally opposed the downtown site, was critical of the estimated $258,000 cost for the addition when council had provided only $125,000 in its capital works budget.

He noted the proposed addition included space, at a cost of $50,000 to $60,000, for an art gallery, which he did not feel was needed at that cost.

The alderman said the whole matter of the library addition had not been handled properly by council in that the library board was encouraged to feel that council approval would be given even before all the facts had been ascertained.

Alderman Soutter doubted that construction could be far enough advanced by June to qualify for much of the forgivable $45,000 in labor costs.

Two MPs Back Liberals

PCs in Newfoundland Now Minority Regime

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The whims of the members of the next Newfoundland legislature will decide the fate of the province's first Progressive Conservative government since Confederation in 1949.

Premier Frank Moores told a news conference Monday a switch in allegiance by two members earlier in the day gave the Liberals a numerical advantage, but there was "reason to believe there may be people of principle" who might say out of the house or cross the floor to "preserve stability."

Court decisions confirmed in January the election night outcome of 21 PCs and 20 Liberals in the 42-seat house. The only standing seat was held by the other major player in the game — Tom Burgess, leader of the New Labrador Party.

Mr. Burgess switched his allegiance several times in the long battle for control of the government before announcing Monday he would join the Liberals and seek the party's leadership at a convention here this weekend.

Mr. Burgess was joined in the move by Hugh Shea, who quit the Conservative caucus a week ago to sit as an independent PC for St. John's South. He announced his intention Monday to join the Liberals.

If the Liberals accepted the defection by Mr. Shea and the switch by Mr. Burgess, the standing in the house would show 21 Liberals, 20 Progressive Conservatives and one vacancy.

The premier said it was unusual that Mr. Burgess and Mr. Shea decided to change labels at a time when his government's investigation of a liner board mill project at Stephenville was reaching a critical stage.

"To me, John C. Doyle is very much involved," Mr. Moores said of an industrial promoter who entered into an agreement with the previous Liberal government in 1967 to build the mill.

Mr. Burgess said Monday night he would take Mr. Moores to court if the premier made any further instigations about a deal with Mr. Doyle. Mr. Shea denied any meeting or any approach from Mr. Doyle.

Swiss Issue Warrants For Author and Wife

ZURICH (AP) — The Swiss government has issued arrest warrants for author Clifford Irving and his wife but says it has not decided whether to seek their extradition.

District Attorney Peter Veleff revealed Monday night that the warrants were issued Friday on suspicion of falsification of documents and on "urgent grounds of suspicion" that the couple was involved in a scheme to pocket $650,000 in McGraw-Hill cheques meant to pay billionaire Howard Hughes for his purported autobiography.

Veleff said Swiss authorities have impounded $422,707 in a Zurich bank account in the name of Hannah Rosenkranz and that this probably was a pseudonym for Mrs. Irving.

He said $291,240 was deposited in the account shortly after it was opened May 27 and that the money was "partly used by the alleged Hannah Rosenkranz for the purchase of securities." He said the rest of the $422,707 was deposited later.

McGraw-Hill Book Co. gave the three cheques totalling $650,000 to Irving for delivery to Hughes, and Mrs. Irving has admitted that she deposited them in a bank account in another Zurich bank and then withdrew the money.

Irving, who convinced McGraw-Hill and Life magazine that his Hughes autobiography was based on exclusive interviews with the reclusive industrialist, is in New York for appearances before state and federal grand juries also investigating the case.

Don't Stop the Carnival

Synopsis: Flurries are expected to gradually taper off near the lower lakes today and some sunny intervals can be expected with temperatures rising into the mid 20s. A major weather disturbance is expected to begin to move northward today, increasing cloud ahead of this low will spread rapidly northward across Ontario tonight and Wednesday. Snow associated with the system should begin before morning in the Windsor area and spread across most of the south on Wednesday. It is too early to estimate snowfall amounts but cold easterly winds will make the weather unpleasant through the day Wednesday.

Council Balks At Gas Bill

Belleville users of natural gas will benefit from the action of the Northeastern Ontario Municipal Association which successfully campaign-ed against increased rates, but the city will not contribute toward the Association's legal expenses.

This was the decision of city council yesterday when payment of a bill for $4,372 was refused.

Some months ago the association invited the city's financial support in its fight against increased gas rates.

The city gave its moral support but balked at a financial contribution to help pay legal costs.

By reason of the association's action a gas rate increase of approximately $1,200,000 was avoided across the province.

Alderman Enos Davis suggested that it may only be fair for the city to contribute if residents were going to benefit.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said the city had established it would not contribute, but at the same time admitted there may be a certain moral responsibility.

Alderman E. A. Orr was fearful of a precedent being established if the city contributed.

"This group of municipalities went ahead on its own (to fight the increase)" he said. "What would be the city's action if the association's action had not been successful?"

Alderman Robin Jeffrey felt that as the principle of integrity the city should contribute.

She moved an amendment to Alderman David's motion calling for payment of a reduced amount.

But Alderman Paul Russell demurred. He wondered if council had the right to impose the charge on taxpayers.

"Not all people use gas," he pointed out.

Council carried the amendment, but when the original motion was placed it was defeated.

William Ireland Tops PE Snowmobile Races

PICTON- (Staff) — High point winners in the snowmobile races held here last weekend were William Ireland, Belleville, and Robert McKenzie, Picton. The races, sponsored by the Picton Rotary Club as part of a winter carnival program, drew 109 entries for 18 heats.

Mr. Ireland won the highest score, 18 points, following a first in the open division and in the D modified class. Robert McKenzie was the E-stock class and was in second place in the B and C modified earning a total of 132 points.

Winners in other classes were:

B-stock: A. Parsons, Belleville, D. Weese, Redeersville, David Coy, Sydenham. B-modified: D. Dempsey, Belleville, R. McKenzie, Picton, V. Murray, Belleville.

D-stock: Eric Caley, Picton, A. Holmes, J. C. Vermilyea, Belleville. D-modified: W. Ireland, Belleville, Hugh Davies, Picton, Brebeuf, Kingston.

E-stock: R. McKenzie, Picton; Eric Caley, Picton, J. C. Vermilyea, Belleville.

Open - W. Ireland, Belleville, Hugh Davies, Picton, Gary Nugent, Picton, R. McKenzie, Picton.

Juniors— Elaine Way, Milford, V. Weese, Redeersville.

Archie Kingma, chairman for the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce carnival committee said the event had proven "most successful" this year owing to a lack of snow. A juvenile hockey tournament also was cancelled last Saturday when hockey teams were unable to travel to Picton.

Although no financial report for the snowmobile races was available yesterday Mr. Kingma said that this event seemed to break even.

Woman Injured In One-car Crash

A single car motor vehicle accident east of Bayside on Highway 2 resulted in a Belleville woman being admitted to Belleville General Hospital.

Ontario Provincial Police report Mrs. Doreen Labadie, 28, of 343 Bridge Street East, was driving her 1971 MG Midget sports car when the accident occurred.

She is listed in serious condition in the intensive care unit, with head injuries and facial lacerations.

Faires' Fare Well Looked After

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Good luck omens are sometimes hard to believe but one Stirling couple will never have doubts again.

Charles Faires and his wife Flo were dining with friends Saturday evening when their friends announced they were going to England for their summer holiday. This news drew a sigh from Mrs. Faires who has travelled over most of North America but has never left the continent.

Last summer, in fact, the Faires decided to try something they hadn't done before: go back to a spot they had already visited. The home visit cheer boredom and they vowed that in future, they would stick to new horizons. The only problem was that there was no place left to go.

Hearing her friends make their announcement was all Mrs. Faires needed to persuade her. Her reaction was: "We'll stay at home this year if we don't go to England."

It was with some disbelief that Mr. Faires answered his phone Monday morning to hear Myles Morton, general manager of The Intelligencer, inform him that he and his wife had won a two-week trip to London, England. The couple leaves March 9 from Toronto on a BOAC jet with first-class hotel accommodations, tickets to seven shows and $300 spending money with them out and I decided to make the last one special," she said. That particular term she crushed in her hand and it was the distinctive feeling of it which, she feels, won the trip for her and her husband.

Although neither of the Faires has been on a plane before, they do not anticipate any first-time flurries.

They have lived in Stirling all their married life. Mr. Faires works at Steadman's Dealer Store while his wife is employed by Alton - Hadley Distributors. They have a son and daughter in addition to six grandchildren.

The nation - wide contest was jointly sponsored by BOAC and the Thomson Newspaper group. Twelve grand prize winners won trips to London while 18 other persons were awarded $50 merchandise certificates at places of business taking part in the promotion.

The other London winners are as follows: Mrs. M. Cherewick, Peterborough; Mr. J. McCutcheon, Guelph; Theresa Bertie; Mrs. Watson, Barrie: R. J. Auble, Bathurst, N.B.; Greg Parrell, Ardtigonish; N.S.; Mrs. Connie Fleming, Moose Jaw; Roger Gardner, Yorkton, Sask.; Anne Douglas, Vernon, B.C.; Mrs. William Fahrer, Hanover, Ont. and Bernice Georgetown, Ont.

Consolation winners were: Gerta Robinson, Collingwood, Ont.; Michael Luckenhaus, Preston, Ont.; J. C. Lamothe, Sudbury, George C. Green, Dunnville, Ont; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kolinyk, Thunder Bay, Jean Dunbar, Sarnia; Mrs. Dale Moore, Pembroke; Mrs. May Millins, Chatham, Gertie Treshan, Welland, Mrs. T. Beatty, Kirkland Lake, Adam Roth, Kamloops, B.C.; J. Dryburgh, Nanaimo, B.C.; Mrs. Dan Pavelick, Swift Current, Sask.; Mrs. Yvonne Marin, Meadow Lake, Sask.; Colleen Fraser, Arngrior; Florence Watson, Orangeville; Arleen Wallace, Midland, Betty Campbell, Leamington.

IN MEMORIAM

ARES — In loving memory of Ralph Ares, who passed away Feb. 1st, 1969.
Sadly missed, resting at last
Free from pain and suffered, no patience
The call sounded him home to suffer
No longer
Always remembered by wife Ethel, daughter and grandchildren.

DEAN — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, who passed away Feb. 1, 1969.
Time has sped to yesterday,
An hour of joy and pain,
Days of sorrow and nights of weeping,
And always in our thinking,
Of memories dear to us.
Of cherished book to closed him,
Of one we loved so much.
Sadly missed, remembered and loved by wife Ethel, daughter, son-in-law.

GALBERRY — In loving memory of our dear father, who passed away February 1st, 1970.
Oh how sweet was my suffering,
Oh how blessed was my pain,
God the keeper of the helpless,
Took my father home again.
Sadly missed by wife Mary, son Ronald, daughter-in-law Evelyn, grandchildren Bob, Kathy and Debbie.

Library Addition Favored

If this was the case, and no time extension could be obtained, he said the municipality would have to pay the labor costs on its own.

Even if the $45,000 "windfall" fund looked nice, the city should not be spending this kind of money for a library, he said.

Mayor Scott pointed out that the architect had still not been hired to draw plans and said the loan offer should be accepted before this was done.

"What if we find after final plans are drawn that the estimated cost is $300,000?" asked Alderman Jean Smith.

The mayor replied that council could call a halt any time before construction commenced.

Alderman E. A. Orr also had misgivings and although he said he favored the library addition, questioned the timing.

He said council was assuming that a good portion of the $45,000 in labor costs would be spent by June.

"I have reservations," he said.

Alderman Gerald Joyce charged the library board "had visions of grandeur" in its plans for the library addition.

He said he would support the project if the library board came up with plans which could be altered to reduce costs if necessary.

"Do we have the opportunity to examine the plans?" he asked. "I think we could get along with less."

Here Alderman Jeffrey moved an amendment to Mayor Scott's motion which had called for the loan to be accepted and for construction to be proceeded with. The amendment, calling for the acceptance and withdrawing of sketch plans only, was carried.

Catholics Show Ire

Dragged out of the Commons chamber, she told reporters, "I'm sorry I didn't get at his throat." She added: "I think the Provisional and Official wings of the IRA have said they will each kill 13 paratroops in vengeance for those who died on Sunday. That is 26 coffins coming home to England—and I won't shed a tear for any one of them."

Miss Devlin was in the crowd of Londonderry when the firing broke out.

The army insisted the paratroops opened fire only after snipers fired on them. But Catholic leaders accused them of wilful murder by firing indiscriminately at the crowd protesting the interment of IRA suspects without trial.

Prime Minister Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic charged the soldiers with "a deliberate and calculated assault on civilians who were taking part in a demonstration for civil rights." He recalled his ambassador from London for an indefinite period, proclaimed a national day of mourning Wednesday, when the Londonderry dead will be buried, and said he was sending Foreign Minister Patrick Hillery abroad to ask other nations to help Catholics in Ulster achieve their "legitimate aspirations."

Lynch said his government will meanwhile provide funds for "five political and peaceful action by the minority in Northern Ireland designed to obtain their freedom" from Protestant domination.

Ulster's Civil Rights Association, which organized the fatal Londonderry march, announced that it plans to hold another march Sunday in the Catholic town of Newry, in County Down.

All such parades are banned, but a spokesman for the Civil Rights Association said he expects 30,000 people to march.

Winning Smiles

Emotions at Cause Of Many Accidents

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Attitude, termed "the grand-daddy" of road problems, confronting motorists can be influenced by business problems or a family quarrel.

Robert Newell, a representative for the department of highways transport safety association last night reminded Picton Kiwanians that "hot tongue and cold coffee" has prompted more than one husband to drive carelessly.

He said that driving is a full time job offering no time for "haphazard action" caused by concentration on personal problems when the motorist is at the wheel. Mr. Newell commented that drivers should not "grumble too loudly" about tickets received for infractions. These tickets are issued as warnings and the motorist ought to be grateful that he has not been involved in a serious traffic accident.

Statistics compiled by experts show that no matter how well today's motorists are driving they could double their efficiency.

One of every two persons has been or will be involved in an accident causing a disabling injury in his lifetime.

Newspapers and other media frequently report 30 to 40 accidental deaths across Canada during a weekend.

Often 60 to 70 per cent of these are traffic deaths. Approximately 6,000 persons are killed on Canada's roads and highways each year. The two most common types of accidents are the head-on two-car collision and the one-car accident.

Two-car collisions account for 42 per cent of all traffic fatalities while one-vehicle non-collision accidents cause 30 per cent of these deaths.

Mr. Newell noted that the "every day driver" can act to reduce these figures by learning and obeying the rules of the road.

Motorists should avoid reckless passing or turning without use of signals.

On long trips driver fatigue should be averted through periodic rests. Travellers should examine their routes in advance of trips, learning their exit numbers to avoid last minute braking or backing up on the highway.

Seat belts should be fastened since it has been proven they can save motorists from serious injuries.

Drivers should not "tailgate" when on the roads and can improve their skill by taking driver extension courses when they are offered.

"The biggest secret is to take it easy," said Mr. Newell as he discussed winter driving.

The safety spokesman commented that it is important for motorists to use their lights when visibility is poor.

Cars should be equipped with good tires and brakes should be tested cautiously on ice to "get the feel of the road" in winter driving conditions.

Drivers should brake before curves and when braking is necessary in the winter months pumping of the brakes provides the safest stop.

Car heaters, windshield wipers and defrosters should be in good working order and windows properly cleaned before driving.

"Drive as if your life depends on it, because it does," concluded Mr. Newell.

Legion News

F. E. Johnston Drilling Co. of Ottawa began drilling a well Tuesday morning for Royal Canadian Legion Branch 99's long-awaited elevator at the Pinnacle Street premises. The company has also been to assemble the elevator machinery.

Eight members of the branch travelled to Port Hope recently for the district council meeting. A date was established for the district convention which, this year, will be held here in Belleville. The convention, to be held April 1 and 2, will bring as far as 300 legion members into town from points as far away as Ajax, Bancroft and Deseronto.

Branch 99 would like to take this opportunity to express to the people of Belleville its appreciation for the way they turned out for the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic. We are vilty proud to be a part of this very worthwhile cause.

A very successful day was held in the club rooms Saturday when the Zone Shuffleboard tournament was held. Three teams from branch 99 will travel to Peterborough this Saturday to compete in the district tournament.

Branch 99 is sponsoring two teams in local minor hockey. These young boys are doing very well so it would be good to turn out Saturday mornings to give them much needed support. This is a good way to show the boys that you are interested in their welfare. Times of games are in the paper.

The boys at Warkworth Penal Institute have asked us to send a group of sportsmen over for another sports day. This idea seems very popular and if it helps one of the inmates one little bit, then it is worthwhile.

Council Wants Land To Remain As Park

The Belleville Parks Board and city council want Moira River Conservation Authority property on the promontory at the north end of North Park Street to remain as parkland and not be sold to the Hastings County Board of Education as a site for an administration building.

This was made clear yesterday when council approved a recommendation from the parks board asking that the parkland property be retained by the authority.

The property in question is part of approximately 76 acres on the west bank of the Moira purchased last year by the authority for park and greenbelt use.

The land is leased to the city parks board whose plans for development include the construction of a garden centre just south of the acreage, in which the school board has shown interest.

Some weeks ago board members unofficially approached the authority to discuss purchasing a narrow strip of land adjoining a school site property further south along the street.

The parks board had no objection to sale of the first piece of property but now the board of education has shown interest in property north of the garden centre site.

Council support in the parks board recommendation that the property be retained as parkland was asked by parks chairman Paul Russell.

"We are not trying to stymie the board of education," he said. "We are not against the education administration building — we just don't want it in that particular area."

After the council meeting, Ald. Russell said that it was only after assurance that the particular property was wanted for park land that the Moira authority received provincial grant on its purchase.

Historical Building Survey Under Way in PE County

PICTON (Staff) — Three recording teams are at work in Prince Edward this month participating in a nation-wide survey conducted by the national historic sites service, a branch of the department historic parks, Indian affairs and northern development Ottawa.

The survey, a five-year-plan begun in 1970, includes homes, buildings and churches dating to the early 20th Century. It is the first comprehensive interest system to be implemented anywhere in the world on such a large scale according to a press release issued by Picton survey-team member R. V. Lord.

The Canadian inventory of historical buildings entails a computerized technique for recording information which permits analysis of compiled data to be stored easily and retrieved expeditiously. The federal data bank will be of great assistance to planners and officials at every level of government in planning for future towns and cities through out Canada.

It is also expected to prove invaluable to students and historians in the architectural field since it will show ethnic influences and development patterns. Construction methods and types of materials involved also will be recorded.

Mr. Lord said many residents in this area have met and talked with some of the recording teams now working in this survey program. In Prince Edward three teams are at work gathering data. Other teams are at work in Belleville and Kingston.

Each team includes one photographer and one recorder. More than 70 characteristics are listed for each building.

Active in Prince Edward at present are J. Patterson of Welland, L. Lewis of Belleville, Miss D. Kenlan of Kingstonians, R. Linn of Cobourg, J. Jenter of Penhill and E. V. Lord of Picton.

Mr. Lord said "As an amateur historian, I cannot help but feel a sense of nostalgia on viewing hewn timber in construction that is 25 to 30 feet in length and 12 inches thick or square, all shaped with an adz. They stand today as memorials to our industrious handworking forebearers. When one sees the destruction of our trees to make way for a cement forest, the tearing down of buildings for parking lots, soon all the handiwork of bygone years will disappear."

Mr. Lord added it would be impossible to preserve all structures but said some should be saved in their original settings.

He urged all persons with any information concerning the historical events of any buildings in their area to contact one of the recording teams now at work here.

ONTARIO HOUSING CORPORATION
REQUIRES SERVICED LAND FOR SENIOR CITIZEN HOUSING
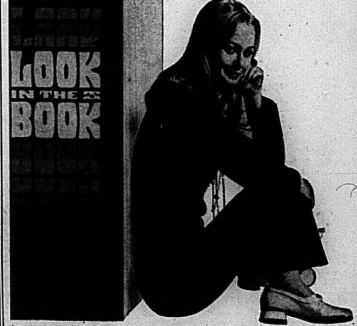
IN THE
CITY OF BELLEVILLE

The Corporation is seeking serviced sites for the development of Senior Citizen Apartments. The sites should be properly zoned and should, preferably, be of a size to permit the development of approximately 80 units. Preference will be given to sites located in the downtown area. Consideration will also be given to sites located elsewhere which are close to shopping, public transportation and other amenities.



Submission should be sent to the Managing Director, Ontario Housing Corporation, 101 Bloor Street West, Toronto 181, Ontario, not later than February 15, 1972. Submissions must include the asking price, a plan showing the dimensions of the parcel or parcels offered, a location map, the zoning applicable and evidence that the land is owned or under option. Further information may be obtained from the Development Manager, Eastern Region, Ontario Housing Corporation at (416) 968-3000, Ext. 311.

Cabinet Shuffle

Prime Minister Trudeau's cabinet shuffle is another indication that the nation is on the glide-path to another election. Justice Minister John Turner's switch to Finance Minister has raised eyebrows, for Mr. Turner is known as the cabinet's "Mr. Clean" and this new job will catapult him swiftly into a much hotter seat than he has known thus far.

Energy, Mines and Resources Minister J. J. Greene meanwhile has stepped down due to illness. Recently he had been talking of staying on; he still had something to offer the country, he said, but it is clear he must have had second thoughts. Mr. Greene was one of the most able men in the cabinet, and one of its most forceful spokesmen. Just a man must be in top health to cope with the pressures and demands of politics, and Mr. Greene is still under treatment for the aftermath of a stroke he suffered while in Japan last September.

The government naturally is hoping the cabinet changes — moving Finance Minister Benson for example to Defence — will take some of the heat off controversial past decisions. Still a pre-election climate prevails, as the weekend Conservative party strategy meeting in Belleville indicated. The opposition has helped create that climate by laying the blame for the country's ills at the feet of the government. However, it is not enough just to accuse the Trudeau government of arrogance, incompetence, lack of compassion, that sort of thing — and we hear it often enough from the lips of Mr. Stanfield and Mr. Lewis — we need to know also just what are the cures — if any — for unemployment, inflation and all the rest of it.

Ireland's Woes

Whatever the precise reasons for troops opening fire in the wake of the Catholic demonstration in Londonderry, the death of a dozen people and wounding of as many more cannot help but exacerbate an already grave situation in Northern Ireland generally.

It would have been more politic if the military, even when they came under attack from stone-throwing youths, had stayed in the background, and avoided a direct confrontation with the IRA. After all, what's another parade in Ulster?

However, it is too late now. The damage has been done. As it is, the full details are not known; certainly there were the stone-throwing youths, not yet to be proven one way or another is whether the troops came under fire as they claim. Even at that, most of the dead civilians would appear not to have been in the category of armed snipers.

But then this Londonderry eruption must be seen against the background of other terrible events in Northern Ireland since the civil rights movement came into being in 1969, to be followed by the re-establishment of the Irish Republican Army's terrorist campaign. Some 200 civilians and businessmen, not to mention police and military have been indiscriminately murdered by terrorists. Business houses and private homes have been bombed and scores killed and injured as a result. Behind it all is the objective of unifying Ireland — but remember too that ultimately the aim is a leftist, all-Ireland socialist republic comparable say with Cuba.

Fares Up

It looks as if the bonanza afforded the railways and bus companies by the air controllers' strike was not enough to get the railways out of the red. CP rail has announced it is increasing fares and sleeping accommodation charges by 10 per cent on its transcontinental passenger train service beginning today. The constant inroads of inflation are always apparent. You see it in the supermarket, as this or that item goes up by three or four cents. Or the price of a new car is raised. All through the economy in fact.

Lending A Hand

If you can't tick 'em join 'em. This seems to be the philosophy of Los Angeles area law enforcement authorities in enlisting the aid of former convicts. They have taken this step in an effort to reduce the incidence of crime. The ex cons tip off the police on the methods of their still active brethren and the word is that in San Diego, to name one city involved in the plan, the number of break-ins has been curbed.

This Time It Is Party Workers

P. M. Does Some More Pre-election Handshaking

By RICHARD JACKSON

At the same time, as if he were two different people entirely, he insists he is a private person, while, when it pleases, he Diefenbakers extremely public.

In veering from private to public and back again, he is the most accomplished switch-hitter in the prime ministerial league.

The other night he went so public he might have been competing with former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker in his most public of days.

There he was, this most private of public men who has called the press "crummy" for monitoring his comings as Prime Minister, at the head of a reception line, methodically shaking every one of 500 and some hands.

Smiling his shy smile and all a twinkle with those eyes, murmuring what a pleasure it was — when, for an inward-turning man who so treasures his privacy, it must have been something of an ordeal.

But it was purely politics.

It had to be.

For it was staged by the five National Capital area Liberal Members of Parliament headed by Justice Minister John Turner, the ailing Mr. Greene of Ontario Carleton.

And the guests were 500 handpicked Liberal party workers, supporters and sympathizers.

About the only thing "social" about it was the one drink — gallons maybe and two cups at what the five hosts described as "a short bar open for a little while," coffee and cakes.

Why did there have to be a night to "meet the Prime Minister" when the Prime Ministers, works and often plays here and is on view in the flesh for all who care to look and see?

Well, it was explained, it was "traditional" that the Prime Minister not actively engage in politics locally — except, of course, for his daily political activities on and around Parliament Hill and his ministerializing through the National Capital constituencies with the Liberal candidates come election time.

If you could not buy that explanation out and who could? — the hosts had another, perhaps a bit more convincing.

It was the "peculiar characteristic" of the people in the National Capital.

They just do not bother to come to Parliament Hill to see the Commons, the Senate, or even the PM.

Even on the street they regard him as a member of the community and there is no crowding around to shake hands or collect autographs.

That is for the kids and some of the tourists.

Maybe it is respect for the office, or perhaps it is familiarity breeds, well, more familiarity to the point of who cares and why bother.

Other prime ministers have been accorded the same distant treatment. Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent often used to walk part way home from Parliament Hill, tipping his hat in surprised and delighted fashion he passed. Prime Minister Diefenbaker went for casual strolls with nobody stopping him unless he stopped them first. And Prime Minister Pearson strolled around the city just like an ordinary taxpayer.

So if you are an Ottawa area Liberal MP how are you going to get the troops all fired up when they just do not seem to give a hoot about the PM?

You throw a party and issue "command" invitations to 100 key workers who answer the summons to "hear the word" and shake the hand.

And there he was, with his hand stuck bravely out to be squeezed 500 and some times. A bit of a bind, but nothing like the record once set by John Diefenbaker when he was campaigning as Prime Minister in the 1958 election and spent a full afternoon and part of an evening shaking more than 2,500 hands in a never-ending line of supporters at a rally in the Queen Elizabeth Hall at Toronto's Canadian National Exhibition grounds.

University the Year-Round MP Suggests

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Ottawa Bureau of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — Should our universities and other seats of higher learning be operated on a 12-month basis?

One member of Parliament who firmly believes they should is a highly respected MP—Dr. P. B. Rynard of Orillia, Ont. In fact, so firmly does Dr. Rynard believe this, that he has been carrying on a one-man campaign in Parliament for many months.

As the Progressive Conservative party's critic on health matters, he is a constant questioner of Health Minister John Munro. And many of his questions deal with the shortage of doctors in Canada and the need to build new medical schools and to operate them on a year-round basis.

Dr. Rynard's persistence seems to be paying off, to some extent, as seems to be getting under Mr. Munro's skin. His latest question to the health minister elicited a fairly lengthy reply which ended up with Mr. Munro suggesting, rather testily: "If there is anything more the honorable member would like to do he can take it up with his own political sympathizers who are in power in the province of Ontario."

Dr. Rynard bases his stand chiefly on what he regards as a critical shortage of medical manpower in Canada. One statistic he mentions is that there is one doctor for every 800 people in Canada and his ratio is rapidly Canada, as one of the most enlightened Western nations, ranks only 20th in the world in doctor-population ratio.

What compounds the difficulty, he believes, is that such figures do not give any consideration to the fact that only half of the doctors in practice are general practitioners, many of them who show up as a statistical unit, are not practicing medicine and are in administrative posts in hospitals, in government service, and elsewhere.

He contends that it was a Liberal government which brought in medicare over the objections of many people. Most people now accept the national health service and little is heard from those who were opposed. But, even the present Liberal government does have a responsibility to "build the necessary medical schools, to supply teachers and equipment and to educate all those who want to pursue a career in medicine, so that medicare can operate efficiently."

Dr. Rynard also makes a good point when he notes that one of the reasons medicare has worked in Canada as well as it has, is because Canada has been guilty of bleeding other nations of many of their medical personnel.

"It is criminal that underdeveloped countries—poorer by every standard—who struggle to educate their young people to be doctors, find them enticed away by rich countries such as the United States and Canada," he points out.

Some countries, India, Iran and Turkey, have tried to put a stop to this drain of their precious skills and he believes that others will follow. If this supply of foreign doctors was cut, the condition of medical manpower would become much more critical in Canada.

The Orillia doctor claims that hundreds of qualified young people are refused entrance to medical schools each year for lack of space—so why not operate these expensive medical institutions full time, instead of for only three quarters of each year? Such a step would gradually provide enough doctors to give a high level of preventive medical care and thus cut down on the need for so much hospital care and also prevent and delay the onset of many chronic illnesses.

In response, Mr. Munro says the federal government is already doing a great deal to assist the provinces to provide more medical and dental teaching facilities. He refers to the millions of dollars made available for new medical schools; the encouragement of more part-time medical persons to believe doctors of some of the routine work which does not require a sophisticated education and the health research fund and post-secondary education fund to aid in building new medical facilities and in equipping them.

But he makes it clear that any move toward operating medical school 12 months of the year must originate with the provinces and they would have to negotiate such agreements with the medical profession and the medical educators.

The suggestion of year-round operation of universities is not confined to medical schools here, but to all university courses. On the one hand, the advocates claim such a move would help to relieve the student summer unemployment problem, while critics claim the opposite effect would result, students would be turned out in a shorter time and thus a greater number would be forced into the labor market at a time when jobs, even in the best of times, are not plentiful and are sometimes difficult to find.

Dr. Rynard's proposal may be as serious as Dr. Rynard suggests, perhaps it is in this field of experimental start should be made. With many small communities crying out for doctors, and with people having difficulty getting adequate care with doctors and dentists, there does not appear to be any immediate danger that people graduating in these fields will be on the street looking for work.

B. C. Leads Increase in Crime

Kingston Whig - Standard

The latest figures on crime in Canada, as revealed by a report from Ottawa on offences against the Criminal Code, show a consistent and alarming rise. The rate of offences per 100,000 citizens rose 9.1 per cent to 3,964.4. The actual number of these offences was 1,109,988 in 1970, the first time the million mark has been reached in Canada.

Among the provinces British Columbia had the highest crime rate — 8,362.9 per 100,000; Prince Edward Island had the lowest rate, given by Statistics Canada as 3,478.8 Alberta, Manitoba and Ontario were above average in their crime rates.

Interestingly, among the 12 largest cities Edmonton had the highest crime rate — 8,868.4 offences per 100,000. Quebec City had the lowest rate — 4,197.7. Most people would expect that Montreal with its large very mixed population, and its reputation for sophisticated corruption, would have been very high on the list. Quite the contrary, however: Montreal had the second-lowest crime rate — 4,902.8. And Toronto, another area with an expectation of heavy crime, was not far behind in serious crime then Montreal. However, Toronto did have the highest number of offences — 122,560 — of the 12 cities.

In "hard crimes" Montreal surpassed all the other cities in murders and 69 attempted murders and 3,756 robberies. Toronto had only 1,398 [illegible] third place in murders with 14. Vancouver had 22 murders. In Montreal there were 23,406 breaking and entering cases, the highest number, 14,092. Montreal also had the most motor vehicle thefts — 9,422 — with Toronto next, showing 7,675. On the other hand Toronto led in shoplifting, ten times as many as Montreal.

It is interesting to note that the Northwest Territories rates of attempted murder, sexual offences, wounding, assault and robbery were far higher than in any of the provinces.

No doubt there will be expert study of the Canadian crime rate and the other figures presented by the Statistics Bureau, however, that some references will be made to the possible effects of the advent of the drug LSD, widely for murder, and the much lessened pressure on detection and potential criminals due to changes and reforms in our system of justice. It is probable, however that it is yet too early for all these factors to be accurately assessed. In the meantime the average citizen can only ponder these depressing figures and wonder about the kind of society which, like with a falling standard of living, still provides the reasons for such a dismal spate of wrong doing.

Saints and Sinners!

Montreal Star

No doubt this will offend certain pious sensibilities and provoke low snorts of disapproval from coarser spirits. But the Trinitarians are merely following a classic line in their advertising campaign, whether it be a matter of selling razor blades or saving souls. You appeal to the biggest audience. The appeal has always a worldly wisdom not inconsistent with the ideals of charity and service. If the siren song of the centrefold accidentally sends some readers marching to a different drummer, not even the circulation manager can be unhappy about that. Saint Augustine would have understood perfectly.

Holiness is where you find it. The odor of sanctity has been known to lurk beneath rank and nauseous places. It is conceivable, then, that somewhere in the deodorized pages of Playboy an invitation to a life of poverty, celibacy and obedience will be heard, and not only heard but answered? A small Roman Catholic order in the United States — the Trinitarians of Pitsville, Maryland — is counting on just that: They have spent $10,000 on a full-page black-and-white ad in the January issue of Mr. Hefner's glossy publication to recruit "affluent, sophisticated men" to a nobler calling.

Coyotes Help to Destroy Rodents and Other Pests

(E. P. Edson in the weekly review of the Department of Lands and Forests, Tweed.

Who is afraid of the big bad coyotes?

The ones who are not are the prospective wardens in the Kente (Quinte) land and in the Kingston area. They know that the coyotes are our friends, or friends of the majority of our friends, in that they help to keep the rodents' population under control without them the mice and rabbits would destroy even much more of our crops and food products and ask the farmers and tree planters in Prefferard and Hope Island what these pests did to their land two years ago.

It is true, not everyone, particularly not the sheep raising farmers love the coyotes. They believe they eat the odd lambs. But do they really? Observation observations show that the stomachs of the killed coyotes usually indicate that mice and rabbits are the principal victims diet. We believe that the coyotes are better than dogs, and mongrels bred in the bush by free running dogs. That it would seem that everything dog out of the woods and field would do more good than the killing of coyotes.

The balance of nature is such that any one-sided extermination of a certain animal species is harmful, often very harmful

Keeping Warm in Winter

Windsor Star

No more important progress has been made in Canada than in the ability to keep warm in winter. Nothing has been done more for creature comfort and enjoyment of life.

Most all urban homes now have central heat. The majority of houses in the more prosperous parts of rural Ontario also are equipped with it.

An ever increasing proportion of Canadians live in urban areas. They work in offices, factories, or commercial premises as well as live in homes. There are ever fewer in proportion, who get outdoors vocations, such as woodsmen.

Gradually we do get chilled while walking down the street, waiting for a bus, etc. But these periods usually are short and occupy only a few minutes of a winter day. Cars, buses and other forms of transportation are warm and comfortable.

This is a long way from the days when people had to try to heat drafty old houses by wood or coal stoves in each room, a situation, consisted of a horse and buggy, or a team of smelly steeds and a sleigh.

Even if well bundled up in clothing and covered with rugs one would get chilled to the bone on a sleigh ride.

Modern homes are not only more comfortably heated. They are more safely heated. The winter tragedies of homes burned by overheated coupants trapped in them almost invariably are old houses with defective heating arrangements.

Man's ingenuity, plus nature's bounty in the way of fuels, has given us creature comforts our ancestors could never have imagined. A slum home now is centrally heated, is much more comfortable than a palace a century ago.

A Time to Reminisce

Fire Bomber Meets Old Friends

Nostalgia abounded at the Belleville 418 Wing RCAF Association general meeting as guest speaker Howard Rose became reacquainted with both former schoolmates and friends from his Air Force days.

A wartime pilot, who rejoined the RCAF to serve until 1951, Howard was raised in Campbellford. Here, he had attended school with the Wood brothers. Stewart Hoard and his wife Chris, whom he had not seen since enlisting in 1942, Vi Lindgren and Mac MacLennan, were on hand to reminisce about the days they had spent in wartime England.

However the topic of Mr. Rose's talk was not pressure occupation, fire bombing, updated the tone of the meeting.

While still in the service, Howard spent summer leaves working with the British Columbia Department of Forestry controlling forest fires, from the air.

Now as a civilian pilot, Irving in Belleville, he is employed by a private company that owns 14 aircraft and on instructions from B.C. forestry officials, fly at treetop level to encircle a fire with a spray. The spray, composed of clay, water, chemicals, fertilizer and a coloring material, prevents the fire spreading. The water is required to show the area sprayed as four aircraft fly at 4 minute intervals to contain the blaze.

Mr. Rose leaves Belleville in May, meeting fellow workers, at Castlegar, B.C., to fly their aircraft to New Brunswick, where they spray the forests for budworm. Then return to take up the duties for the remainder of the fire season in British Columbia.

Describing the major cause of forest fires, noted Mr. Rose, not careless campers.

The speaker was introduced by Captain John Lindgren, 418 Wing liaison officer.

Prior to the speaker, 16 new members were initiated to the Club in a ceremony conducted by Wilf Lewis assisted by Ed Karlsbeck, president.

Regional vice-president, Jim O'Bryan welcomed the new comers and announced the dates for the next regional and provincial conventions. Executive and general meetings will be held February 5, as the new national general manager of the Air Force Association, Ron Butcher will be in Belleville.

British Real Estate Prices Soar

LONDON (CP) — An English estate agent, they say, is born, not at the rate real-estate prices are rocketing, soon he doesn't even, be able to afford the drawbridge.

House prices in the south-east parts of the country have risen in 1971 by an unprecedented 28 to 29 per cent, as a result of a shortage of new homes and massive funds in Britain's building societies—combined mortgage trust companies and credit lives—which released a flood of new loans.

While prices may flatten out during the winter, real-estate agents see nothing short of a serious economic slump halting the dizzy upward trend. Builders in the London area are forecasting price increases of up to 30 per cent in 1972.

One London agent said his office was getting 40 would-be purchasers for every one wanting to sell. Another agent said he had only 15 houses on his books where in 1970 he had nearly 200.

Britain's biggest building society has said the property market is in a dramatic almost unnerving to panic buying.

House purchasers fear that if they leave their search for even a few weeks longer, they may have to pay hundreds, perhaps thousands of pounds more. Many agents no longer bother to advertise newly available properties or to mail their clients details—a few telephone calls bring an exterwave of potential buyers and frequently the house will be sold within a few hours.

One prospective customer on the waiting list of a big London agent, seeing an advertised property exactly matching her requirements, called the agent to ask why he had not mailed details. The house, it emerged, had already been sold.

"It's mind the agent smugly, "the demand is so great that we don't mail out. we prefer our clients to phone us each week and see if we have anything new."

Another novelty on the British real-estate scene is a widespread abandoning of the time-honored custom of "making an offer." Before the present boom, it required a year or so ago, sellers and their agents expected buyers to do some bargaining and would set the asking price accordingly—perhaps at £10,750 or £9,950, hoping to receive £10,250.

In the new sellers' market, however, buyers don't step to haggle but offer the full purchase price—sometimes even more than the full price in a sealed bid.

Naturally, it is tempting in this situation for sellers to seek the highest possible offer, occasionally bending the unwritten ethics which are supposed to govern dealings between buyer and seller in the complicated British system of house-purchase.

Complaints have recently been flowing in to lawyers, agents and newspaper correspondents' columns about a growing tendency of sellers to raise the price after first agreeing on one with the buyer "subject to contract," by the time he goes here. On some occasions, agents say, sellers have conducted a virtual auction in their living-room.

One man in the Surrey commuter belt recently found that a house he had agreed to buy had gone up by £3,500 in the two weeks since he first saw it. A Hertfordshire purchaser complained that his new house had risen in price by £1,000 over three months, while couples in Essex found theirs had gone up by £1,000 between February and September.

The developers explained they had undervalued the houses when originally putting them on the market. Likewise the owner of a dozen apartment in Hendon, north London suburb saw values rocketing nearby and found an agent who valued his property at £3,750 more than the agent who had first taken it on a month earlier.

Movers soon are afoot to stop the practice of sellers pushing up prices after agreement has been reached with buyers.

Technically, the practice is known by the curious name of "gazumping" and the Law Commission and a private member's bill in Parliament are both setting out to abolish it because it can involve a purchaser in unrecoverable expenses such as the cost of a professional survey and legal fees. Some unlucky buyers have had the rug pulled from under them several times in this fashion.

All this is squeezing out many young couples who now are forced to rent accommodation instead of buying their own homes.

The average price of an ordinary new home in Britain—not in London, which commands far higher levels—now is about £5,500 and to obtain a mortgage you would need to earn £11 a week. The average British working man gets about £29.

Peace Trip Declined By U. S. Says Hanoi

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Vietnam officially indicate Hanoi offered to send Minister Xuan Thuy to a secret Paris meeting with Henry A. Kissinger last Nov. 20, but the United States declined, holding out for a higher-ranking Communist representative.

"No point would be served by a meeting," Washington is said to have replied after a scheduled session between Kissinger and Hanoi's special adviser, Le Duc Tho, fell through because Thuy was taken ill.

The North Vietnamese account of the cancelled session differs markedly from one offered by President Nixon in a national-broadcast address on the Paris peace talks Jan. 25.

Nixon used the address to unveil an eight-point peace offer made to Hanoi in December, and to disclose that Kissinger, his foreign-affairs adviser, had met in secret 12 times in Paris with Thuy or Tho, or both, in an attempt to break the deadlock in the Vietnam war talks.

Nixon said:

"On Oct. 11, I sent a private communication to the North Vietnamese that contained new elements that could move negotiations forward, and arranged a meeting on Nov. 1 between Dr. Kissinger and Special Adviser Le Duc Tho at some mutually appropriate official from Hanoi.

"On Oct. 23, the North Vietnamese agreed to meet and suggested Nov. 20. On Nov. 17, just three days before the scheduled meeting, they said Le Duc Tho was ill. We offered to meet, as soon as Le Duc Tho recovered, with him, or immediately with any other authorized leader who could come from Hanoi.

"Two months have passed since they called off that meeting. The only reply to our plan has been an increase in the infiltration from North Vietnam and Communist military operations in Laos and Cambodia."

The documents released in Paris Monday said a U.S. message of Nov. 29 said Washington was ready to meet with Thuy, who is a member of the politburo, "or any other representative of the North Vietnamese political leadership, together with Minister Xuan Thuy in order to bring a rapid end to the war."

It was at this point that the whole secret negotiating story in Paris broke down. The North Vietnamese have yet to name an alternative date for Tho to meet with Kissinger.

Thuy is Hanoi's chief negotiator in Paris.

State Secretary William P. Rogers was asked last week why North Vietnam failed to respond to the eight-point U.S. peace plan offered last October. Rogers' title as foreign policy conference he thought Hanoi was trying to drive a wedge between Americans and their government.

But Rogers did not explain why the United States would not negotiate with Thuy Nov 20. The White House indicated it would be necessary to talk to Tho to get recommendations adopted by the political leadership in Hanoi.

Your TV Could Be Spy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spies armed with sophisticated listening devices could in the not-too-distant future have a telephone set if it's hooked to a two-way cable.

Without the viewer's knowledge, they could listen to and record the sounds in his living-room conversations.

The new dimension in electronic eavesdropping would be made possible with installation of two-way cable television, a development now being tested in some communities and likely to come into limited use within five years.

Devices to prevent such spying are technically possible and specialists interviewed said the technology for converting television sets into pervasive bugs is the deliberate development of legal safeguards.

Both public-service cable-TV agencies have virtually ignored the possibility, explaining that other developments demand more-immediate attention.

Jerrold N. Oppenheim, staff counsel of the Illinois American Civil Liberties Union, wrote in a recent issue of the national organization's newsletter, that cable TV "could be a serious threat to personal privacy."

"Cable-tapping is no less of a threat than wiretapping," Oppenheim wrote. "Imagine a TV camera in your home controlled by the FBI."

Farmers Lack One Strong Voice

EDMONTON (CP) — On any given day there may be as many different views as there are individual farmers in Western Canada and the problem of speaking with a united voice remains a thorn in the industry's side.

Faced with declining revenue from production during the coming year, farmers all agree that the major problem is getting enough return to cover the costs of production. But how to achieve this goal evokes many different replies.

Each farmer has his own motivations and economic interests and while individuals may be well informed and resourceful, collectively they have problems.

The problems are compounded by the actions of partisan politicians and political parties and some of the so-called leaders of farm organizations, says Dr. A. W. Platt, executive director of the United Farmers of Alberta Co-Operative Ltd.

Partisan politics played a major role in the proposal's eventual withdrawing the legislation but pressure also was felt from farm organizations. But the various farm interest groups were not unanimous in their reasons for not supporting the act.

The federal report on the future of agriculture in the 1970s said there are more than 10,000 identifiable local, provincial and national farmer organizations, a situation which, it said, made it impossible for farmers to speak with one voice.

During the last few years the number of farm organizations has grown in some areas and been reduced in others.

In Alberta, Uniform emerged after a merger of the Alberta Federation of Agriculture and the Farmers' Union of Alberta and in Saskatchewan, the Federation of Agriculture is considering a similar organization.

At the same time there has been a growing tendency for special-interest and commodity groups to establish their own organizations—such as the Palliser Wheat Growers in Saskatchewan and the Rapeseed Association of Canada.

The large prairie wheat pools in Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Alberta, all owned and operated by farmer-members-owners, and United Grain Growers Ltd., have for the most part led farmer opinion on agricultural and social issues.

The federal report, released early in 1970, said: "The existence of large number of organizations dissipates leadership and organizations' resources is too many directions."

Both the report and Dr Platt, who has studied farm organizations and how farm ers participate in policy-making, suggested the National Farmers Union concept will not work and that, while the final answer lies with the farmers themselves, a federation-type of organization may be the solution.

Nearly all farm organizations now are affiliated with the Canadian Federation of Agriculture which, Dr. Platt said, represents the "convenient" area of farm thinking as best it can be determined at this time."

However, because the CFA's policies emerge as a compromise of what its member organizations think they can live with, "the best leaves a lot to be desired."

The NFU, a militant group which advocates collective bargaining for producers, is a direct-membership organization of individual farmers which, as such, cannot speak for commodity groups as the CFA can.

"Only a body like the present Federation of Agriculture can claim to represent all farmers," the federal report said.

"Whether all farmers want to be so represented is another question and one to which the answer is not clear."

Dr. Platt said the NFU appears to have set itself up as permanent opposition to government and "indeed to everyone else."

"It gains the attention of governments by blocking roads or throwing wheat on the prime minister and saying: 'I have a problem, you solve it.'" Dr. Platt said.

"To many farm people going broke and frustrated by events they don't understand, this sort of approach makes some sense."

Roy Atkinson of Saskatoon, NFU president, told the recent annual meeting of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool he was prepared to recommend dissolution of his group if the agriculture federations did the same.

He said the new structure proposed in Saskatchewan would merely be a new attempt to involve farmers in policy-making under an old system and nothing would really change.

"Farmers are trying to work with obsolete tools and the new farm organization is perpetuate this."

Mr. Atkinson said farmers require a modern organization structurally capable of bringing about useful policies for the industry.

Patient Under Anaesthetic May Still Hear Comments

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver psychiatrist says a cutting remark by a doctor during surgery may be more painful to the patient than his operation.

"There is evidence that while a patient is unconscious under the influence of an anesthetic his subconscious picks up, records and sometimes distorts remarks made by doctors in the operating room," says Dr. Frederick Hanley.

"Under hypnosis, patients have been able to recall a particular comment made in surgery. "Later, contact was made with the doctors and it was learned that these comments had indeed been made."

Dr. Hanley, who uses hypnotherapy in 90 per cent of his cases, says it shortens therapy and "opens avenues to treatment which couldn't be reached by other more conventional methods."

In an interview, he recalled the case of a patient who became disturbed following an operation.

Several sessions of hypnosis failed to settle her. She insisted that something more than pain and distress was troubling her but she didn't know what it was."

She was taken back in the hypnotic state to the actual operation and it was suggested she recall anything significant that had happened.

"An unfortunate, rather derogatory remark of the surgeon came to her consciousness—I was later confirmed that the remark had been made—and following the release of some anger associated with it, the pain became quite settled again."

Another case involved a psychiatric student who had an appendectomy and later under hypnosis was able to recall "derogatory remarks made by a doctor during his operation.

"While I was attending some courses in hypnotics in San Francisco, Dr. Hanley said, "several of the class members who had undergone surgery at that time were hypnotized and asked to remember their experiences in the operating room.

Dr. Hanley said remarks need not necessarily be of a harmful nature and if favorable might even benefit the patient in the future.

"This sort of evidence is an indication of how important it is that all persons nurses, doctors, to do with sick people, even those unconscious from an anesthetic, to maintain a calm, reassuring manner. In fact, it may be that some of the comments intended made by the surgeon during an operation will materially aid recovery.

He says studies in this area are still "scientific" and much more experimentation will have to be carried out before definite conclusions are drawn.

Approval Sought For Apartment

Construction of an 82-unit, eight-storey low rental apartment structure north of the Bell Telephone tracks and west of Frank Street is proposed by United Realty Services Ltd. of Belleville.

Company president George W. Prue, in outlining the proposal to city council yesterday, said that before construction could take place, the closing of an unopened roadway, Railroad Street — would be necessary.

He said his firm was prepared to purchase the unopened road allowance from the city. No change in zoning would be necessary, it was stated.

United Realty Services has been associated with subdivision plans for Mannasseh Point and Amherst Island.

Council referred Mr. Prue's proposal to the city manager, who will obtain comment from the planning director, the traffic committee, parks board and recreation committee.

What we mean by "Together we're both stronger."

First, let's set the stage. And, let's start with you. You grow up. You set certain goals for yourself. And, then, at some time, along come the little you's. And with them, a whole new set of goals. A home, a car, maybe a cottage. You want the good things. And, seeing that you work hard for your money, why not?

But, where do we fit in? Well, we feel two heads are better than one. We figure if two people set out to achieve the same goals, they might come a little sooner. And offer.

You see, we're in the money business. We invest money to make money, so that we can lend you money. But all of it is not enough if you don't. If somebody doesn't use their our services, or our facilities.

No, we're not trying to talk you into a loan or a deposit. It's not like that. We feel these things will come naturally with what we have to offer.

And that offer is this: a working partnership in achieving goals. Your goals, and our goals. And it all comes down to this. Us, You & Sous. We know you work hard for your money. We understand things don't come easy. So say of us.

And that's what we mean by, "Together we're both stronger." Because together, we are.

A.N. and A.F. Ladies' Auxiliaries Meet for Provincial Quarterly

Early Friday afternoon delegates to the provincial quarterly meeting began arriving in Belleville and were met by president Gladys Fitzgerald and the executive who warmly welcomed them to the city. Friendships were renewed and a time of fellowship was enjoyed.

In the evening, a dance had been arranged with Cam Walsh and his orchestra supplying the entertainment and dance music which all thoroughly enjoyed.

On Saturday morning the presidents of the 18 area auxiliaries joined with provincial president Wilma Smith to draw up the agenda for the regular meeting held in the afternoon when president Fitzgerald called the meeting to order and the sgt.-at-arms led the invited guests who were escorted by two pipers of the unit band. These included Mayor J. Russell Scott, unit president, H. G. Ford and Dominion secretary J. McArthur. The mayor extended greetings from the city, while president Ford extended the Unit's best wishes for a successful meeting. J. McArthur brought greetings from the Dominion Command on behalf of Dominion president C. C. Lansdberg and from the Provincial Command on behalf of provincial president Mrs. Murphy, both of whom were attending the British Columbia Command convention in Vancouver. Comrade McArthur also sat in on the questions and answer period of the meeting when the auxiliary reached the subject of the constitution.

Two trophies for double darts tournaments were promised, one by provincial president Wilma Smith and the other by president Freda Vian of Ottawa. At the close of the meeting a draw was made and the winner of name was Lucy Schenkel of Parkdale No. 62, Toronto.

It was decided to hold the next quarterly meeting on May 29 with the hosts, the Coronation Unit in Toronto.

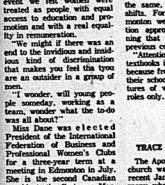
The host auxiliary served a tasty roast beef dinner and the floor was cleared for the evening activities. A fine program had been arranged and Anna Fenney dressed as Phyllis Diller was master of ceremonies and her coterie of weirdly dressed followers in a Mardi Gras, the first of three skits. In the second skit, Elita Bobbish impersonated Harry Marr, and accompanied by the Four-some Foursome, a quartet of singers and soft shoe dancers which proved to be wildly hilarious. The humorous Jack Fitzgerald gave an imitation of Pearl Bailey in song and immediately changed clothes and reappeared as a ballet dancer. A ballroom dance by the group was also great entertainment. The grand finale number wound up in the downstairs lounge.

Appreciation of the Ladies Auxiliary was extended to Alan Storms for assistance as stage manager; also to his artistic touches and skill with signs.

The meeting adjourned with all looking forward to the next meeting in May.

Outlooks, Attitudes Have Changed Says B and P International Head

TORONTO (CP) — The Business and Professional Women's Clubs are not feminist organizations in the current, militant sense. They were formed when business and professional women were a rarer breed, so members could meet and encourage one another. Over the years they have made steady efforts to better the lot of their kind.



Nasla Dane of Toronto, the current international president, says she applauds the results the young militants are getting, and she believes the network she heads still has much to do.

"We might disband in the event we felt women were treated as people with equal access to education and promotion and with a real equality in remuneration.

"We might if there was an end to the invidious and insidious kind of discrimination that makes you feel tha tyou are an outsider in a group of men.

"I wonder, will young people someday, working as a team, wonder what the to-do was all about?"

Miss Dane was elected President of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs for a three-year term at a meeting in Edmonton in July. She is the second Canadian president, the first was Margaret Hyndman of Toronto, elected in 1956.

HEADS WOMEN'S BUSINESS CLUBS — Nasla Dane of Toronto is the current international president of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs, which have members in 49 countries. The clubs were formed when business and professional women were a rarer breed so members could meet and encourage one another. Referring to the current wave of feminist militancy, Miss Dane says she applauds the results the young militants are getting, but believes the network she heads still has much to do (CP Photo)

Miss Dane retired this year as director of the educational and women's divisions of the Canadian Life Insurance Association. She now free-lances as a public-relations consultant.

She says she believes friendship is one of the important things an international group offers.

"It may sound sentimental, but the more you understand people and know them, the more likely you are to have trouble."

She says feminism and environmental concerns are of interest to women in almost all the federation's 49 member countries.

"The aims and objects stay the same, but the emphasis shifts. For instance, in Edmonton we passed a resolution approving family planning that was defeated at a previous convention.

"Attention is being paid to textbooks in various countries because from the beginning of their school life girls see pictures of women in domestic roles only.

"In the 21 years since I first attended an international convention, outlooks and attitudes have changed."

Miss Dane says the federation would like to encourage new groups in developing countries, if they can find an acceptable way to do so.

"The trouble is, to get the people, women going to business who have the time.

"Women are drastically neglected in some countries. They don't always know how to get together to do things for themselves."

This trip I'll visit Central American countries, then Europe in the spring for annual meetings and then a UN conference on the human environment. In July I visit the Mexican and Canadian federations.

The Middle East and Far East. I'll do that hemisphere in 1972."

Miss Dane says she has an answer to people who object to the presence of clubs from totalitarian states in the group.

Social And Personal

Mr. and Mrs. John McMullen quietly celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary at their home, Frankford RR1, on Monday, Jan. 31, 1972.

Previous to her recent marriage Mrs. Bruce A. Freeborn (nee Elizabeth Faith Carson) was honored at showers given by Mrs. Donald Secord and Miss Lynda Johnson and at another by her fellow workers of the office staff of Bell Northern Research.

Given in marriage by her brother - in - law, Thomas Mullin, the bride wore a full length bridal gown of nylon organza over taffeta enhanced with French alencon lace. The fitted bodice was highlighted with a scoop neckline. The back of the gown featured a full length train of matching material edged with alencon lace. A waist bouffant illusion veil flowed in three tiers from a flowered headpiece with tear drop pearls. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white gardenias.

Janice Tracz, sister of the bridegroom, and Dorothy Gagnon, sister of the bride, were dressed identically to the maid of honor. Tammy Mullin, niece of the bride, was flower girl dressed in a full length gown of pink satin and carried a basket of green and white tinted 'mums and baby pink roses.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Robert Tracz, and the ushers were Joe Masterson and Louis Rivers, brother and cousin of the bride. The ring bearer was Terry Mullin, nephew of the bride.

A wedding reception was held in St. Philips hall where the bridegroom's mother received the guests wearing a turquoise dress enscm'ble, silver accessories with a corsage of white gardenias.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Tracz will reside in Toronto.

FREEBORN — CARSON

Elizabeth Faith Carson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M.K. Carson of Ottawa (formerly of Belleville) was recently married to Bruce Andrew Freeborn, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Freeborn of Ottawa in St. Martin's Anglican Church, Ottawa. Rev. R. Molson officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of frost white peau de soie in princess lines and featuring long sleeves trimmed with lace. A floor length veil was trimmed with matching lace. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white 'mums.

The maid of honor, Miss Connie Lu Carson, sister of the bride wore a green sheer over matching taffeta dress accented with lace and highlighted with a matched hood. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white 'mums. Bridesmaid Mrs. Sherry Meldrum, cousin of the bride wore a red sheer over matching taffeta styled identically to the maid of honor's and carried a similar bouquet.

Richard Bachaund attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were Neal Freeborn, brother of the bridegroom, Roger Charlain and David Little, cousin of the bride. Steven Meldrum was ring bearer.

The reception was held in the church hall where guests were received by the bride and bridegroom and their parents. The bride's mother wore a winter white brocade gown with a corsage of pink roses, while the bridegroom's mother wore a green velvet dress with attached hood, and a corsage of yellow roses.

BETA SIGMA PHI
GAMMA MU CHAPTER

Mrs. C. Fulton presented a program, the theme of which was "communication" at the first meeting of the Beta Sigma Phi Gamma Mu Chapter in 1972 held January 4 at the home of Mrs. A. Gray.

Mrs. Fulton showed a film on "Instant French" demonstrating how one is able to master a language in six weeks. After the film, short French paragraphs and jokes were translated by the group.

Mrs. Fulton was thanked by Mrs. Gray for an interesting and unique program.

There will be an auction sale on February 1 for members with Mrs. J. Ellis as auctioneer. Members were reminded to bring one or more handmade items.

Following the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Gray and the co-hostess, Mrs. Ellis.

Members were reminded to bring one or more handmade items.

Following the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Gray and the co-hostess, Mrs. Ellis.

Mr. Beeston showed the various broadcasting rooms and explained how some of the technical apparatus functioned.

Thanks was expressed by Mrs. Luck.

The business portion of the meeting took place at Mrs. L. Smith's home. The vice-president announced that meetings for the "pledges" would soon begin. The chapter voted in favor of having a formal dinner on March 7 for the ritual of jewels. Mrs. A. Mott, chairman of the ways and means committee discussed plans for a bake sale to be held at the "Quinte Mall".

After the business meeting, two rituals were performed. Mrs. Pauline Bishop was officially appointed as this Chapter's Collect Sponsor and Mrs. Pauline Gay, a transferee from Ottawa, became an active member of Gamma Mu. Both received corsages of yellow roses.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Smith and Mrs. J. Dolan.

Guest Speaker at All Times Should Receive Hospitable Attention

By DORIS CLARK

"Our guest speaker will be ..." at this point the club is delighted to let everybody know who's coming. They give the speaker a build-up, free-ego attendance, plus a good dinner.

But do they look after the speaker? No, worse luck, in a great many cases. The guest speaker manages to get to the place of meeting himself, may or may not be greeted at the door, may or may not be introduced, early, to the president.

He (or she) may even find his own way to the dais room to hang up his coat. There is more than an even chance that he will spend a certain amount of time alone and waiting for somebody to happen. If he has been invited to bring his wife along, she may share the same fate.

There are other things. When it is done properly, he sits on the chairman's right, and should be engaged in conversation. His wants (a lectern? some special dietary needs?) should be asked about. A good chairman will chat with him about his work and the club's work; perhaps acquainting him during dinner with the work of certain of the key persons and giving him some notions about the spirit of the club, what it is there for, and the philosophy it has in common with his own.

The person who is appointed to thank him in a formal fashion should be told in advance if he (or she) merely stands up and says something else about the appreciation of the club for his address and his efforts. He (or she) should be noting every word of the speech, jotting down highlights on which to comment. And making it concise. Every speaker's expenses should be taken care of, with something left over for an appropriate gift and not necessarily expensive gift.

Speakers are sometimes left wondering whether anything they said actually reached any listening ears. If members of the audience will come up to him, shake his hand, refer to ideas of his which they have particularly enjoyed, it will make him feel that all the preparation, all the time and effort he has put into his talk, has been worthwhile.

Dear Doris: My father's estate would probably involve $30,000 to be divided three ways. He is 81, and would like to see this settlement arranged before his government department, without the appointing of a lawyer. He has made a will with a trust company and they, along with my sister and I are co-executors. — Beta.

Dear Beta: Unless their are disputes and complicated details, you are not likely to need lawyers or courts at all.

The trust company will handle all transactions necessary, for a small fee from the estate to pay for their services. This is often one per cent, which in your father's case would amount to about $300.

What's wrong with discussing it all right now with your man at the trust company? That's what he's there for. And he can put your father's mind at ease.

Confidential to Fred: I am sorry, but we do not keep such letters indefinitely, and could not give out the lady's address to you if we did. Aside from the fact that she probably lives hundreds of miles from you.

If you are lonely, you will just have to take the plunge — even if it is a risk at first — into a community activity where you can lend a hand. It is the only way you will have made a new friend or two.

(Talk it over with Doris. This Canadian social worker can shed new light on your problem.)

Sex Discrimination Laws Now Put to Test

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

Almost everywhere in Canada there are laws prohibiting discrimination on the basis of sex; some of them new.

How effective they are is open to question. In most cases they have not been tested until the last year. Then, in a few areas of the country, women began to challenge employers, unions and associations to obtain the equality of treatment the laws say they should have. Results have had varying degrees of success.

Ontario has the most comprehensive legislation, in effect since December, 1970. The Women's Equal Opportunity Act prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status. It also bans refusal to hire, train, promote or transfer an employee on that basis. It prohibits the classification of jobs by sex and dismissal for that reason.

The act is administered by the women's bureau of the department of labor, directed by Dr. Lita-Rose Betcherman.

"We've had almost 2,500 inquiries since we began and 274 complaints, both formal and informal," she said.

Most complaints had been about job classification, with hiring and dismissal and promotion ranking second and third.

She said the male-female distinctions are sometimes written into union contracts, sometimes tacitly accepted by employers and employees. She said the bureau's inspectors have usually had co-operation when they've tried through an industry to have such distinctions erased.

"We do accept patterns of discrimination as evidence, otherwise we would never get anywhere. And we advise companies to do this kind of occupation survey themselves before there is action.

"Our officers report a dramatic change in attitude, and it's not always easy to revise attitudes. It makes me think public opinion had been moving in this direction before we had the legislation, though the legislation gave a good push to attitudes."

Ontario's equal-pay law is administered by the labor standards branch. Under it, since 1969, the responsibility for equal-pay standards has been the government's, so that the heat has been taken off an employee making a complaint.

Working women have made use of Manitoba's Human Rights Commission since it began in March, 1971. Gerald Fogel, one of its officers, said 70 to 80 per cent of the complaints brought before it have dealt with sex discrimination in employment. Fewer than 20 per cent of the complaints have been made by men. Most are at present about 50-50 cases on the active list.

One was a job-classification complaint against a bakery in which the union involved was also charged with tacit support of the company's ruling.

Alberta's present government has promised a new bill of rights to go beyond existing laws.

Irene MacGregor, women's bureau director, said Alberta's present equal-pay law requires the employee to lay a complaint, which most are reluctant to do. There have been six complaints since January, 1971, two of them ruled as justified.

Keith Henders, director of the human rights branch, said they have investigated 10 complaints of sex discrimination since July. He said he would like to see research done on the subject of discrimination against women in industry.

A current situation in Alberta rules questions asked of how to deal with sex discrimination in trade and professional organizations that can affect members' employment.

Trudy Kerr has applied for membership in the all-male Canadian Association of Petroleum Landmen. She said it is as natural a move as a woman doctor wanting to join the Canadian Medical Association.

Jim O'Byrne, association president, said she isn't qualified, but then added that the membership isn't ready to admit women.

In a situation apart from job discrimination, a 22-year-old Montreal girl complained to the Quebec Civil Liberties Union that she had had trouble getting an apartment. Landlords told her she would have parties and entertain men. The union said the law cannot help.

A spokesman said the union is trying to get a provincial civil rights bill, which he said they were promised two years ago.

Prince Edward Island has a human rights code that includes sex discrimination, but Arthur McGuigan, deputy justice minister, said he knows of no case of anyone trying to claim use of it.

In Nova Scotia, Innis MacLeod, deputy attorney-general, said no discrimination is covered by the Human Rights Act at present about 50 and he knew of no pressure for changes.

Gail Mason, the provincial human rights commissioner, said the commission is studying the issue and intends to submit proposals for legislation in the next few months.

She said the Provincial Council of Women has asked for changes, and there have been individual complaints to her office about work practices and the minimum wage law.

Newfoundland. Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia all have provincial minimum wages that are higher for men than for women. Nova Scotia's will change and become the same in July.

Newfoundland and New Brunswick have both recently passed human rights legislation that prohibits sex discrimination.

The British Columbia, John Sherlock, director under the human rights act, said they have had no problems with job discrimination there and no real pressure to change the legislation.

Joan Wallace recently told a B.C. Women's Liberal Association meeting that women must press for legislation to include penalties and allow for investigation of complaints without compromising the complainant.

Mrs. Wallace is president of the Status of Women Action and Co-ordinating Council of B.C.

Only in Saskatchewan does the deputy attorney-general say there are no laws to cover sex discrimination.

Ann Landers

Room for Dogs Recently Closed

Dear Ann Landers: Are we a nation of screwballs? I'm beginning to think so. Either he or somebody is trying to make us look like decadent lunatics.

I heard from a very reliable source yesterday that a restaurant in New York has a special dining room for dogs. The animals are provided with satin pillows and their food is served on silver plates.

Please check this out and let me know. I'd like to pin that party's ears back. Thanks for your help.—Huntington Station.

Dear Hunt: The party who made that statement is half right. The restaurant was closed recently. It was the Colony in New York. They did indeed have a private dining room for dogs—complete with satin cushions and silver plates.

Dear Ann Landers: Several years ago you printed a letter signed Starr Wilmens. It was a list of rules that you guaranteed would break up a marriage. When I read the letter I never thought it was amusing. I didn't realize that my own marriage would one day be destroyed by in-laws. I wonder if you'd be receptive if you'd reprint that column—this time with a notation that all parents who have sons and daughters of near-marriageable age will take heed and keep it for future reference. Thank you.—Corvallis, Oregon Sadness.

Dear Corvallis: Several others have requested it. Here it is:

1. When a son or daughter lets you know they plan to be married, show open hostility to the person of his choice. After the marriage means less love and attention for parents and they have a right to resent it.

2. Expect your married children to spend every Sunday and holiday at your home. Act hurt if they have other plans.

3. If your married children have problems with their mates, encourage them to come home to you. Let them know your home is still their home, no matter what. Listen attentively to all complaints and point out additional faults which may have gone unobserved. Remember, a drop of water can wear away a rock—if you keep at it long enough.

4. If your married children are having financial problems, rush in with the cheque book. If you are having financial problems yourself, borrow, if necessary, but let them know they never have to do without anything so long as you have it.

5. If a married child has a drinking problem, keep telling him his main problem is it. It will make him feel better. Everyone needs someone to blame.

6. If your married child gets an opportunity for advancement which takes him to another city, tell him family ties are more important than money and if he leaves, God will punish him for not obeying the commandment: honor thy father and thy mother.

7. If there are grandchildren, smother them with love. If their parents object, tell them to keep out of it. After all, grandchildren are so special, and only entrusted to the kids secretly, if you have to. They'll love you for it.

8. If your married child has a difference of opinion with his mate, get into the act and fan the flame. Family loyalty is a beautiful thing. Maybe you can turn a minor argument into a major hassle and break up the marriage. Sign me—Sot Witness Who Saw It Happen.

Dear Starr: Beautiful. Beautiful.

One's Credit Rating Judged By Husband's

WINNIPEG (CP) — The credit rating of a married woman is largely determined by her husband, even if she happens to be paying all the bills.

Married women in Winnipeg have been discovering the situation and a spokesman for the Credit Bureau of Winnipeg Ltd. said the credit agency has had a few calls from very irate ladies.

The bureau, a privately-owned clearing house for credit information, keeps a joint file on spouses. If a husband has a poor credit record, it reflects on his wife when she attempts to open a charge account.

The company spokesman said the joint file is kept because the husband is considered responsible for his wife's debt, while "the reverse is not necessarily true."

The bureau receives numerous calls from women who have been told credit ratings because of their husbands. Some of the women have been working for 20 years and would be considered good credit risks themselves.

The spokesman said giving the wife a choice of being responsible for her own debts "could mean further break-ups of the family unit."

"Each person would have a separate account and would be responsible for just himself or herself. I suppose it's a women's liberation idea and I'm sure they would like it that way."

He said legally separated or divorced women can have their own file, simply by informing the bureau of their status.

Two of the three major department stores in Winnipeg said they judge a married woman on her own ability to pay.

But the women can take heart in the fact there's at least one category "Thirteen men are as individuals in all respects. Three banks in Winnipeg agreed that women are treated the same as men when applying for a loan. There are cases where her husband's signature is required and there are cases where the wife's signature is required on a husband's loan.

Grand Master of Lodge Pays Official Visit

TWEED — Approximately 120 persons attended a dinner and reception held at the Thomasburg I.O.O.F. Hall, Thursday, January 20, in honor of George H. Vanstone, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, on the occasion of his official visit to Madoc District No 45, with Frank Foster D. D. G. M. acting as chairman and official host.

Grace was said by Rev. Leicester Bigby, and official welcome was extended by George Carlisle, head of the guests were introduced by Burton Coulter, while the Noble Grands and installing team were introduced by Joe Poulton. A toast to the Lodge was proposed by Kelvin Morrison, Grand Master G. H. Vanstone was then toasted by Robert Courtney.

Following the Grand Master's address, Ruth Jardine extended greetings from Rebekah District No 4. Shirley Preston presented a gift to Mrs. G. H. Vanstone, and Elizabeth Reid presented Mr. Vanstone with ten pounds of Hastings County Cheese.

Sixty-year-jewels were presented to Matt English and Winfield Harrison of the Thomasburg Lodge. They are the remaining two of 13 members who received the initiatory degree on January 12, 1911. And that time, W. Turner Sine of Stirling Lodge came to Madoc the area for members and as a result of his efforts 13 candidates were brought into the Lodge.

Presentation of the Dr. S. R. Beatty shield was made to Tweed Lodge by Leo Coveny. The John Bristol shield was presented to Jack Robinson, of Tweed Lodge by Carl Fitzburg.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Can a 'wronged' husband forgive?

CERTAINLY, and in many cases, a husband who finds out that his wife has been unfaithful will be quicker to forgive than would a wife in similar circumstances. This is generally because a "wronged" wife will more than likely react as if her husband could prefer another woman to her. A husband, on the other hand —and this probably is an ego-saving play—will probably believe his wife was seduced in some emotional problem.

Is humor a shield for most people?

NOT for the great majority of individuals. Yet quite a few people do try desperately hard to keep themselves or others close to everyone and everything in a light-hearted manner. In their constant search for humor, many of these men and women deprive themselves and others of the satisfaction of being able to appreciate reality, but they also eventually find themselves unable to enjoy genuine humor in anything.

Are children natural actors?

YES, although only children of special talent could be professional actors in order to play a part assigned to them. Yet nearly every child is quite skilled at playing the role he creates for himself. A little girl, for instance, who is trying to fit in with the rest of her family and others she comes into contact with, very often has to "act" a part she invents for herself or else feel overwhelmed by everyone around her.

Duke Says People Call Tune

SINGAPORE (AP) — For five decades millions have swayed and stomped to the music of Duke Ellington. But the Duke says it's a waste of time trying to figure out how tastes will change.

"Do you think it's some kind of crap game?" he asked an interviewer Monday during a stopover en route to Jakarta.

"Trends in music depend entirely on people. I can't foretell. Don't worry about what it's going to be next week. That's bad investment."

Ellington, 70 last April, said his music is "an accumulation of recall."

"I've been writing music as a matter of brain inter-sound," the veteran composer and recording artist told reporters.

Following rave performances in Thailand and Malaysia, Ellington and his 20-man band is giving two concerts in Jakarta and then will perform in Singapore.

FRANCES BIBLE

Mezzo Here Thursday

Belleville's latest Community Concert presentation — at Belleville Collegiate auditorium Thursday night—will feature mezzo-soprano Frances Bible.

Her career has been highlighted by operatic roles, in which talent as an actress has been wedded to her vocal qualities in interpretations of many stellar roles.

Her operatic roles have taken her across the United States and abroad to Britain's Glyndebourne Festival and Mexico's Festival de Puebla.

Her concert tours have taken her afar as Australia and her recitals with orchestras have been under Bernstein, Stokowski, Dorati and Paray, as conductors.

Her records include the Paray Mass with the Detroit Symphony and the complete rendition of Ballad of Baby Doe.

Cutter's A Good One

NEW YORK (AP) — If NBC is in the market for a tough, tense and violent detective series, it has found one in Cutter, the 90-minute pilot film that had a test run Wednesday night on Mystery Movie.

The framework was strong enough to support the familiar action and the hero, private eye Frank Cutter—played by Peter DeAnda—is a handsome young black man. The show was reminiscent of Mannix.

The story centred around the disappearance of a pro football star and a psychotic francnise holder who wanted his team to lose, but the plot was almost incidental to the judo chops, roundhouse rights to the midriffs and a wild chase involving two ambulances careening through city streets. The program was given a mighty lift by the location shots in Chicago. Just about every street, public building and estate in the vicinity of Los Angeles has been filmed so often they are becoming recognizable.

During the next two days CBS and NBC will have some actuality programs of special interest to students of history and politics.

Thursday, CBS will broadcast the fourth of Walter Cronkite's interviews with former president Lyndon Johnson—on politics.

Chronolog, NBC's monthly magazine-format program on Friday, will show some home movies of Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt, some shot before and more after he was elected president.

They were made by Miss Marion Dickerman and the late Miss Nancy Cook, friends of the Roosevelts who were partners with Mrs. Roosevelt in a depression-time furniture factory at the Hyde Park estate of the president.

"It is written in beautiful elaborate English, polished to a high literary sheen, which recalls the prose of another American mandarin, Henry James," writes Herbert Kretzmer in The Daily Express.

But The Daily Telegraph's John Barber says: "Every Edward Albee play seems slower and more portentous than the last. In the latest, All Over, only the tatters of his former talent survive."

Irving Wardle of The Times calls the play "a funeral piece," but The Daily Mirror's Arthur Thirkell says: "Every one of Albee's characters has the ring of truth."

George Looked Phony

NEW YORK (AP) — George Plimpton, who makes his living peddling at the innocent amateur in area of professionals, on Monday night was trying to be a magazine photographer on the trail of the biggest elephant in Africa.

This time, in the jungles of Kenya, Plimpton seemed more tentative than usual about his assignment. At one point, unexpectedly confronted with a huge python, he became so upset he never did get a shot of the big snake.

This Plimpton adventure probably was the most interesting in the ABC series—provided the viewer was considered to wild life. A powerful amount of incidental information about the ways of the elephant was packed into the hour. Plimpton's strong-as-Walter Mitty-type exploits have never conveyed much more than his own anxieties about being a football player, western actor, circus performer or nightclub comedian.

This time, Plimpton finally got his quarry in his camera sights. He was turned out by the magazine in a rather self-conscious bit, but may now move on to another field.

The viewer, however, was left with nagging doubts about the validity of the show. If Plimpton was so busily escaping with his life from a trumpeting elephant and was in peril, how come they mancged to get so many, many feet of well-focused color film, complete with excellent sound tracks, of these critical moments: Perhaps the real Walter Mittys of the Plimpton series are the members of the TV camera crew.

Well, Archie Bunker did it: The hijinks of television's beloved bigot attracted a bigger audience than Bob Hope's Christmas show. In the most recent Nielsen ratings, CBS's All in the Family was the winner, tuned in by more than 38 per cent of the sets in the U.S. Hope's report on his entertainment tour attracted slightly more than 31 per cent.

Patulski May Consider Montreal Bid If NFL Price Isn't Right

Patulski, 6-foot-4, 265-pounder rated by most athlete available in a lean college crop, has been quoted in the weeks leading up to the draft as saying:

"I don't care where I play. I don't like the cold at all. But if it's true some of the things I've heard about what the pros paid top choices last year, I'm going to have to think things over."

There is the suggestion that Patulski feels the contracts offered No. 1 draft choices last year were low and that he might be forced to consider Montreal Alouettes, who hold the rights to him in the Canadian Football League.

But Bill Polian considered likely the Bills will let money stand in the way of signing Patulski. Just three days ago they laid out a $300,000 contract for O. J. Simpson.

Patulski, of course, doesn't figure to command that much as a defensive player, but he is such an outstanding talent that he figured to be the first defender selected No. 1 since Baltimore Colts took Bubba Smith in 1967.

The Bills, however, have been in contact with many clubs trying to pry the No. 1 choice loose in a trade and the Buffalo club was expected to be on the phone talking up to the moment they have to announce their pick.

Other trades also are expected to occur during the first of the two days of drafting. Players rumored to be available include wide receiver Al Dennis and quarterback Gary Cuozzo of Minnesota Vikings, defensive end Fred Dryer of New York Giants and tight end Alvin Reed of Houston Oilers.

Because of what the pro scouts indicate is a lean crop, the pre-draft guessing was far more involved than it was last year when quarterbacks Jim Plunkett, Archie Manning and Dan Pastorinifi went 1-2-3 as expected.

But there were indications that the draft might go this way through the first seven teams:

Buffalo—Patulski.

Chicago Bears — Lionel Antoine, Southern Illinois tackle, or John Reaves, Florida quarterback.

St. Louis Cardinals — Mike Kadish, Notre Dame defensive tackle.

Houston—Barkum or Riley Odoms, Houston tight end.

Buchanan is the younger brother of Ed Buchanan, Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the CFL.

8. New Orleans Saints: 9. New York Jets; 10. Minnesota Vikings; 11. Chicago; 12. Pittsburgh Steelers; 13. Philadelphia Eagles; 15. Atlanta Falcons; 16. Detroit Lions; 17. New England, on choice acquired from Los Angeles Rams; 18. Cleveland Browns; 19. San Francisco 49'ers; 29. Oakland Raiders; 21. Jets, on choice acquired from Washington Redskins; 22. Baltimore; 23. Kansas City Chiefs; 24. Giants, on choice acquired from Minnesota; 25. Miami Dolphins; 26. Dallas Cowboys.

The Bears, Packers and Jets, with two first round choices, were in good shape considering the supposedly sparse talent available at this draft. Los Angeles and Washington were on the outside looking in without a first-round pick.

The Redskins did not have a draft choice coming in the first round, and have only a total of 10 selections. The 17-round selection process expected to last two days.

Less Scoring Doesn't Hinder Boston Record

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite the fact they have scored 40 fewer goals so far this season, Boston Bruins show as much success today in the National Hockey League's East Division standings as they did one year ago.

The Bruins, led by centre Phil Esposito and defenceman Bobby Orr, are on a 10-game winning streak and after 49 games have 76 points on 34 wins and eight ties and have lost only seven games.

They hold a six-point edge over second-place New York, although the Rangers have one game in hand.

Last season after 49 games the Bruins also had 76 points and wound up winning the East Division title with a record 121.

Last season the Bruins scored 399 goals and had 136 counted against them. One year ago they had scored 330 goals in their first 49 games, but had allowed 126.

Esposito scored four goals and added two assists last week and led all leading scorers with his six points. That is the margin he now holds over runner-up Jean Ratelle of New York, who was stalled with two points and who now has his highest total of his career.

Sharing third place are Rod Gilbert of New York and Orr, each with 71 points, two more than Ratelle in fifth place for the Rangers.

Esposito and Orr combined for 12 points in the Bruins' three games last week, one point more than Gilbert, Ratelle and Hadfield collected.

Ratelle's assist lead dropped to one as Orr moved up to 50.

Esposito's 36 goals are two short of his record pace of last season when he scored 76. But last season the Boston centre scored only three goals between his 30th and 40th games, so he stands a chance to go ahead of his last season pace in the next seven games.

Meanwhile, in the goaltending departments, Chicago Black Hawks and Minnesota North Stars continue to dominate.

Tony Esposito matched his 5.52 North Stars grab three of four possible points from Detroit in weekend engagements. Gump Worsley, second-oldest player in the NHL at 42, has a 3.00 goals-against average of 1.69, the best in four years.

Worsley's mark, combined with team-mate Cesare Maniago's average of 2.50, leaves the Minnesota veterans in second place, behind Chicago's pair of Tony Esposito and Gary Smith.

The Chicago pair have a combined average of 1.81, while the Minnesota team mark is 2.16.

Riders Expand Program

TORONTO (CP) — The gold medal successes of Canada's equestrian team in 1971 have resulted in an expanded training program this year, team chairman Denis Whittaker announced Monday.

The team last year received $150,000 from Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd. for a cross-country programs of jumping, dressage and three-day-event competition. Whittaker said the company's sponsorship this year is being increased to $185,000.

Last year was the first time the cross-country competition schedule was tried and the experience riders gained paid off with team gold medals in all three disciplines at the Pan-American Games last August in Colombia.

The sponsor's grant this year includes $10,000 for the scholarship plan which will bring seven rookie riders from across the country to Toronto to participate in the Olympic selection series in June.

Grey Cup In Acton?

TORONTO (CP) — The town of Acton, population of about 5,000, has entered a bid to hold the 1974 Canadian Football League Grey Cup championship game on what it calls "virgin soil."

The application from the town about 25 miles west of here was grounded in the CFL office Friday, and league secretary Greg Fulton said Monday the bid will be considered along with another from Toronto.

Toronto is planning to install artificial turf in the Canadian National Exhibition Stadium in time for the Grey Cup game but Acton's presentation points out that its town park has never had a professional game, therefore the "virgin sod" label.

Athree-man committee from Acton presented a brief last Friday which read in part:

"The league will have to give serious consideration to the request to come to the centre of the leather industry and will manufacture and hold the special footballs made for the Grey Cup game."

Russians Ready

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — The Russians today they would welcome Montreal Canadiens specifically and all National Hockey League players generally to the Soviet Union for matches with their Olympic champion team.

"We would like to see the best players of all countries compete," said Arcadi Chernyshev, coach of the Russian hockey team. "We invite the Montreal Canadiens and the best teams of all nations to come to the Soviet Union."

He said the Russians also would be willing to play NHL teams on visits to Canada and the United States.

High Flying Squirt

Daryn Barry, 6, may be young, but ne doesn't let that stop him from tough hockey; In only 16 games he has scored 58 goals, nine of them in the first game. Needless to say, the toothless tyke's team, which participates in the Westdale Minor Hockey League in Toronto, has a 16-0 record.

Olympic Women Athletes Under Lock and Key

SAPPORO (AP) — The women's Olympic village is about as easy to invade, and as inviting, as a secret government installation.

The men are allowed to tread the hallowed halls of the two forbidding brown structures that tower 11 stories over the Olympic village. But the girls, in an age-of-coeducational college dormitories and free love, profess no anger.

"It's like this wherever we go," said Jojo Starbuck, 22-year-old distaff member of the U.S. national figure skating champion pair from Downey, Calif.

"We can go into the men's quarters but they can't come in here. I guess that means we're the ones, who can be shelter," she said laughing.

Past the green barbed wire is another warning to outsiders. A huge sign on the outer door pro claims in Japanese, English and French:

"To all pressmen: You are not allowed to enter the dormitory without the permission by the chief of mission, because it is off limits."

But once inside, the warmth of international friendship the winter Games are meant to foster pervades and the girls, three to a suite, live and laugh, cooing and going between practice sessions and sightseeing trips.

Each of the girls' rooms contains a single bed and night table, a small wardrobe and the usual clutter of a college dorm. Three girls share a single bath and a kitchen-sitting room.

Although the girls' quarters are off-limits to the men, the dining room across the road is international and co-ed and is open from dawn until nearly midnight.

And for those with nothing better to do, there is a movie a day. But the Olympic committee must have selected the films with the same protective mind that conceived the "women's compound. The most scandalous fare, other than The Four Seasons of Japan, was 101 Dalmatians.

Bart Starr Retires?

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Green Bay Packers quarterback Bart Starr said Monday he has intended to retire after the Packers won the 1968 Super Bowl.

Starr, here to address sales and marketing executives, said he changed his mind when the late Vince Lombardi retired as coach of the Packers.

"The club has been so great to me and there was no young quarterback ready to step in when coach Lombardi left us so I felt I should continue," Starr, 38, said.

He said this coming season definitely will be his final year, assuming a shoulder injury heals and permits him to play.

Schranz Still Out Of Olympic Skiing Picture

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Officials of the Austrian Ski Federation said today that the executive board of the International Olympic Committee had rejected an appeal to reinstate Austrian skier Karl Schranz in the Winter Olympic Games.

Schranz was disqualified Monday because he sold his name and photograph for commercial advertising.

Dr. Rudolf Nemetschke, Austrian member of the IOC, proposed today that the decision be rescinded.

A spokesman for the Austrian Ski Federation told reporters that the IOC executive board has rejected the appeal.

The spokesman added that the Austrian federation had not yet decided what step to take next.

Before the IOC ruled on the Schranz case, the Austrian federation had threatened that all its skiers would withdraw from the Winter Games if any one of them was disqualified.

Schranz was one of about 49 skiers from different European countries who were being investigated by the IOC for alleged commercialism.

Austrian sources had said earlier that the IOC suspected the Schranz case after accepting a motion by Nemetschke for such action.

The full committee referred the case back to the IOC executive board, which ended its discussion at 3:30 p.m., Japan time (1:30 a.m. EST). There was no announcement of any decision and the IOC members returned to full session at 6 p.m.

The IOC announced Monday that Schranz had been expelled from the Olympic Games because he had taken pay for appearing in advertisements of ski equipment.

Schranz has said nothing to the press regarding the decision to come of his case.

Avery Brundage, president of the IOC, was scheduled to hold a news conference at the end of the afternoon session of the organization, expected at about 7 p.m. (5 a.m., EST). A decision on Schranz was expected by then.

Nemetschke told the IOC in the morning session that the ban on Schranz caused great agitation in Austria. He asked to be allowed to read a letter drafted during the night by the Austrian National Committee.

This was granted.

The letter said the accusations against Schranz included a photo in an Austrian magazine which showed Schranz wearing a jersey with the name of a ski firm on it.

The letter added that Schranz was then playing soccer as a hobby and that even artists and politicians in Austria were doing this without being in any way linked with the company, which donates jerseys and shorts for such hobby teams.

Austrians May Withdraw Team

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Austrian officials prepared tonight to withdraw their whole ski team—Nordic as well as Alpine—because the executive body of the International Olympic Committee refused to reinstate ace Karl Schranz.

They played only on the remote possibility that the full IOC might overrule its executive committee.

Austrian sources said all their top ski officials have left a proposal to withdraw all skiers from the Games. In addition to eight men and six girls in the Alpine division, Austria has entries in the three cross country skiers and one Nordic combined skier here.

Among the Alpine stars is Annemarie Proell, the present World Cup leader.

Schranz was disqualified by the IOC Monday because he sold his name and photograph for commercial advertising.

Dr. Rudolf Nemetschke, Austrian member of the IOC, proposed today that the decision be rescinded.

A spokesman for the Austrian Ski Federation told newsmen "the IOC executive body has rejected the appeal. That means that Schranz must leave the Olympic Village."

However, the Austrian officials still followed protocol.

The chance that the IOC would reverse its executive committee appeared as remote as the prospects of a thaw this month in the big-deep snow in Olympic Village.

Nevertheless, Dr. Karl Heinrich, president of the Austrian Ski Federation, told reporters in Sapporo tonight that Austria's Alpine skiers be withdrawn from the Sapporo Games—if the IOC committee accepted the executive committee's decision.

The decision could be made by the International Ski Federation (FIS) that it still regards Schranz as an amateur and that he could compete in FIS-sponsored world championships to be held in Europe later this winter.

Russians Chide Brundage

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — The Russian press making a final decision on withdrawal, the Austrians stayed off the practice slopes Tuesday.

Schranz has said nothing to the press regarding the decision to come of his case.

Avery Brundage, president of the IOC, was scheduled to hold a news conference at the end of the afternoon session of the organization, expected at about 7 p.m. (5 a.m., EST). A decision on Schranz was expected by then.

Nemetschke told the IOC in the morning session that the ban on Schranz caused great agitation in Austria. He asked to be allowed to read a letter drafted during the night by the Austrian National Committee.

This was granted.

The letter said the accusations against Schranz included a photo in an Austrian magazine which showed Schranz wearing a jersey with the name of a ski firm on it.

The letter added that Schranz was then playing soccer as a hobby and that even artists and politicians in Austria were doing this without being in any way linked with the company, which donates jerseys and shorts for such hobby teams.

"We felt that the action was taken on the basis of notice without proper investigation, as well as too close to opening of the Games."

The IOC announced the decision of Schranz, former world Alpine skiing champion ineligible for Olympic competition, would be used for advertising purposes.

Pravlov said it was unfair to single out one man when many may have been guilty.

Austrians Announce Total Olympic Skiing Withdrawal

SAPPORO, Japan—(AP) — The top athletes of the Austrian Olympic ski team announced today they were withdrawing the Alpine and Nordic ski teams from the 1972 Sapporo Games—but they hoped and trusted that ace skier Karl Schranz would urge his team-mates to stay.

This appeared to be a device that would permit all the Austrians to live up to their earlier threat to withdraw their skiers if one were banned from the Winter Games and at the same time permit them to stay and compete.

Dr. Heinz Pruckner, president of the Austrian Olympic Committee, said Dr. Karl Heinz Klee, president of the Austrian Ski Federation, said they would make a formal announcement at 9 a.m., Japan time, Wednesday. They said Schranz also would be there.

Schranz was ordered banished from the Winter Games Monday by the International Olympic Committee because he has sold his name and picture to advertise ski equipment.

The Austrians appealed the expulsion today but reported that the executive committee of the IOC had turned them down. The full IOC was still in session tonight but the Austrians held out no hope that it would reverse its own executive body.

Klee said the decision to forcially withdraw the 14 Alpine skiers and seven Nordic competitors was unanimous among officials. But he indicated there were some reservations among the athletes.

"This is understandable," Klee said. "They all want to participate in the Olympic Games. But in the end, we all had the view that we could not stay on under these circumstances."

Heini Messner, a top downhiller and good friend of Schranz, told a reporter, "I am convinced that Karl will do it—ask us to stay on—but I must stress I have not discussed this with him."

Klee again called the ban of Schranz "unjustified and made on no valid grounds." He said the trouble was all due "to the rigid mind of one man"—Avery Brundage, president of the IOC.

Klee and Pruckner described in detail efforts they have made to get Brundage to change his mind about Schranz' professionalism. They said a Japanese representative in the IOC, Tokuhenyoshi Takeda, also had tried to persuade Brundage.

"Under these circumstances," said Klee, "there was just one on it and that he understood. road left for us—the road home."

Pruckner said, "We hope that there will be a peaceful ending after all—that we return home on the same charter flight on which we came here."

Their statements were taped, to be telecast in Austria at a later date.

Pruckner was asked if he had any support from other ski federations during the fight to save Schranz. He indicated he had not, saying he had not counted

While Austria waged its losing battle over Schranz, it got a promise from the International ski federation (FIS) to withhold the customary recognition of the Winter Olympics as the Alpine World Championship and to schedule separate championships in Europe later this winter.

Dr. Roskoi Nemetschike, Austrian member of the IOC, had raised the appeal that Schranz' expulsion be rescinded.

Howe Tops U.S. Team

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — "Young Mark Howe plays just like his old man," commented an Olympic team-mate of the 15-year-old from Detroit. "He's always doing something right at the right time."

Tim Regan, a goalie hailing from Boston College, added: "Mark's probably is the best shot on the team, a good passer and very smooth."

The son of Gordie Howe, long-time National Hockey League ace, Mark was one of the late additions to the United States team. He scored his first goal in international competition and the first for the Americans in Japan when the Yanks beat Poland 7-5 in an exhibition at Tokyo.

Mark admits: "That first goal felt good. I'd been missing a lot of chances and we have to connect on all chances to get a medal in these Winter Olympics. That goal made me feel more secure."

In the four games he has played with the U.S. team, young Howe, a left winger, has scored four goals. His first Olympic action will be against Switzerland Feb. 4 in a match to determine which of those teams goes into Class A and which must fall into Class B.

Asked if he'd like the youngest ever on a U.S. Olympics hockey team and one of the youngest competing in this 13th Winter Games bothered him, Mark replied:

"I don't feel age matters. I'm almost as big as most of the guys. The coach and trainer have taken me in and I just hope I can do well."

Cross Check

John Smith reaches across the stick of Teachers' Paul Brown in a foreshecking attempt during Gas House Hockey League action Monday. Smith and his Mustang teammates were in turn checked by opposing netminder Casey Soden who recorded a 2-0 shutout to move his team into a third place tie in the league standings. The Mustangs are currently holding down the eighth and final play position in the 11-team grouping.

Intell, Teachers Top Gas House Haberdashers

Pentiman's hat trick paced The Intelligencer to a 6-1 victory over Mead Johnson, while the Teachers' Casey Soden was pinning a 2-0 collar on the Mustangs.

Dennis Saragge opened the scoring for The Intell with an unassisted marker before Pentiman was able to tip two shots past Vern Whalen to up the count to 3-0.

Loe McBrien ruined Warren Hay's shutout bid with a hard shot from close to the line in the third period. Pentiman's third goal of the night rounded out the scoring and gave The Intell a share of first place. The Printers are tied with Rollins Lumber for the league lead.

Soden came up with some spectacular stops for the Teachers in more than ample time for third place in the league standings.

Bobcats Get Chance To Crush Crushmen

The Oshawa Crushmen are beginning to get a taste of the crush themselves, and the Belleville Bobcats are hoping that the situation gets even more pressing for the Motor City pucksters.

The Crushmen are being pressed for second place in the Eastern Ontario standings by the red hot Bobcats who are 11-2-3 in their last 16 outings. The Cornwall currently trail by three points in the battle for second spot, but could slice the margin to one with a win in Oshawa tonight.

The locals will be bolstered by the return of winger Tim Yohn, who was also fill in on the defensive corps, but will be minus the services of blueliner Jim Cahu who can make only weekend games as an Oakville commuter.

A strong point of late for the Bobcats has been goaltending where Bill Cormier has come up with several fine showings of late and Bob Harrison managed a superb showing in Sunday's 3-2 win over Peterborough.

Cormier will get the nod tonight when the team travels to Oshawa for an 8 p.m. showdown.

CFL Gets American Exposure

NEW YORK (CP) — A campaign to put Canadian Football League games on United States television screens every Wednesday night for 21 weeks in 1972 was kicked off here Monday.

Ralph Kiner, former baseball star and now a broadcaster, told a news conference a CFL game might be played in Yankee Stadium in New York.

Kiner is president of Ralmar Sports Productions Inc., which has U.S. rights to TV presentation of CFL games.

An ambitious program was described including CFL games live every Wednesday night across the U.S. starting in mid-summer.

Backing the play of Kiner and his associates were CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur, Toronto Argonaut quarterback Joe Theismann and Jerry Eisaman, former Green Bay Packer star, another ex-Ottawa color broadcaster for the CFL games. All spoke briefly at the news conference.

Kiner said a start will be made with television or lining up TV outlets across the U.S. Already a score of stations had written to Kiner about the proposal, mentioned briefly in a trade magazine 10 days ago. It was hoped that 150 stations could be signed up.

CFL games have not been televised regularly in the U.S. since 1956.

Meanwhile, a decision on whether to grant New York a CFL franchise may come at the CFL meeting in Montreal Feb. 10. An expansion committee had had the matter under advancement since an executive meeting Nov. 26 in Vancouver.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
is LONGFELLOW
One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three X's, for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Proposed Rules for Appeals

TORONTO (CP) — An independent medical board to give doctors a more stringent review of appeal was proposed Monday in a report on hospital privileges in Ontario.

The report of a ministerial committee, headed by Samuel Grange, a Toronto lawyer, said there has been a tendency among boards of directors of hospitals to act on the advice of their medical advisory committees in the granting of hospital privileges to doctors.

A five-member appeal board of three doctors, a lawyer, and a layman, would permit doctors to appeal a decision of the trustees, providing a second avenue of redress.

Mr. Grange told a news conference called to unveil the report that trustees currently do not have to question a doctor in person and all the evidence he wanted to submit.

"All I'm saying is that if they (trustees) haven't been just, they should be overruled. If they haven't been, they should be confirmed."

To avoid what the report termed "trivial matters," the inquiry team set out areas where the appeal board could be summoned.

The board should be established with jurisdiction to hear appeals of:

—Rejected first applications and renewals;

—Overrulings by medical advisory committees;

—Doctors whose applications for substantial new privileges are denied;

—Doctors already on staff who have had their privileges to active staff;

—Doctors whose privileges have been entirely suspended or cancelled from the rulings of other boards.

Mr. Grange told reporters a civil court of appeal was not qualified to deal with the problem.

"It should be dealt with by a medical court of appeal, certainly with some medical competence."

To achieve this, the report said boards should be the boards of governors" to the board was essential.

Hospitals Will Share Abortions

TORONTO (CP) — All Ontario hospitals will participate in therapeutic abortions in the next two or three years, Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence predicted Monday.

"Time is on our side," he told a news conference called to discuss the report of the committee on hospital privileges in Ontario.

The committee declined to make a decision on the subject of abortions but recommended that each hospital in the province make up its own mind on its policy and make that policy known to the general public.

"Within two or three years, public opinion will be such that all hospitals will share in the obstetrics procedure," Mr. Lawrence said.

He said the government "encourages" hospitals not only to establish policy in relation to abortions but to make that policy known."

Mr. Lawrence said he would like to see hospitals in the province "take their fair share" of the medical procedure.

"If they do, I'm advised that Ontario hospitals would be capable of handling the demand (for legal abortions)."

CHICKEN WEATHER

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. (CP) — Herbert Simmons of nearby St. Eleanors has been predicting the Island province's winter weather for the last 25 years by observing the behavior of his chickens. Simmons says the autumn coloration of the chicken's breast bone can indicate whether or not there will be a severe winter and how long. This year, the chicken told Simmons a tale of a mild December, giving in January and February and very little therefore. There will be numerous thaws.

Appeal Court For Doctors Recommended

TORONTO (CP) — A medical court with "decisive powers" to which doctors can appeal to overrule hospital trustees has the major recommendation of an Ontario government report made public Monday.

The 36-page report of a seven-month inquiry also alleged a discrimination in the granting of medical privileges in Ontario hospitals found the problem "small," considering the vast number of hospitals and the staff who service them.

But there was an admission by the study team, headed by Toronto lawyer Samuel G. M. Grange, that "certain circumstances, some based in hierarchies and medical solidarity prevented us from hearing more."

Mr. Grange told a news conference: "I think we know how many dissatisfied doctors there are who don't make a complaint or how many were turned away when applying to hospitals."

"I'm pleased with the acceptance the report places on the responsibilities and powers of the boards of hospitals themselves," he said.

The report said hospital boards of trustees should continue to have over-riding authority to appoint and discipline doctors.

Mr. Lawrence said the proposals, if accepted by the government, would require only minor statutory amendments to become law.

An appeal procedure was necessary to allow for leadway of trustees to act on the advice of their own medical advisory committee without interference, the doctor involved in a decision on granting privileges, the report said.

In addition to the appeal board, the report also proposed that trustees be made to grant their applicants a hearing before any decision on privileges is made, a procedure currently not followed.

Other members of the committee were Dr. Hugo Ewart Hamilton, president of the Ontario Hospital Association; Dr. John Dickies, Toronto; Gwen Pemberton, Bayfield; and Dr. Arthur D. Kelly of Toronto.

The boards, the report said, should not consider an adverse recommendation on a doctor seeking privileges until the doctor in question is able to plead his own cause.

It also said all recommendations of the medical advisory committee should be reported to the applicant doctor within 60 days.

Other recommendations:

1. Provincial records of the privileges granted doctors should be kept, preferably by the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

2. Legislative protection should be available against defamation suits for doctors, administrators, trustees and others who provide hospitals with information on the competence of another doctor.

The college should be informed when a doctor's application is rejected by a hospital for incompetence, negligence or misconduct, or when privileges are withdrawn, reduced or resigns while his competence is under investigation by a hospital.

It said any applicant against whom "anything but a favorable report" is to be made should be entitled to full hearings, with reasons for any decision against him, before the board of trustees.

The committee said it heard complaints of discrimination in limits placed against doctors who specialize and in the allocation of beds and operating facilities.

An often-raised criticism was that the medical advisory committee practised a system of electing their own members by excluding "others from hospital privileges." It did not elaborate.

But the committee said the problem of discrimination in the granting of hospital privileges "is very small indeed" in proportion to the vast number of hospitals in the province and staff who serve them.

Of 10,000 questionnaires sent to "surveyed physicians" asking for their complaints, only 154 replied, the report said.

On the other hand, we have been told that what we have said is only the tip of the iceberg, and that circums ances such as hospital hierarchies and medical solidarity prevented us from hearing more."

A "surveyed physician" was envisaged for the college which, by statute, cannot interfere in the affairs of hospitals.

While recognizing the statutory limitations, the inquiry said the hospital appeal board should have the right to call on the colleges for assistance in medical care and should also be able to refer matters to the board of the college for consideration and report.

In the past, the college frequently sent study groups into hospitals to assist in med cal staff problems.

The inquiry also called for a code of ethics for the boards of trustees, where ultimate control of hospitals rests. Trustees should be encouraged "to act more decisively in the administration of their duties" and indirect criticism that they haven't come up to the mark.

While control lies with the boards, the committee found that there was "considerable doubt" that they have authority to appoint a doctor to staff against the recommendations of the medical advisory committee.

BREEDING GOAL

British Tory Favors Discrimination

LONDON (CP) — A Tory MP scuttled a parliamentary bill to improve the status of women by outlawing sex discrimination says he sees nothing wrong in discriminating on city ground—sex, color or national origin.

Ronald Bell, 57-year-old MP for South Buckinghamshire and father of four—including two daughters—dashed off in a newspaper columnist-as-a-candidate for "male chauvinist pig of the week" on account of his parliamentary tactics and remarks about women.

Bell filibustered an anti-discrimination bill into oblivion Friday before it could be moved to its second reading. The bill's author, Labor MP William Hamilton—famous for his attacks on Lord Hill, the man-archy—filed quoted Bell during the debate as saying women were "inferior, second-class citizens and ought to be treated as such."

Bell maintains he said it in a lighthearted way—and his wife Audrey backs him up. But in an interview published Monday, the crusty Conservative, a barrister by profession, said he wants to be able to discriminate "there is nothing wrong in that."

Noting that he once wrote a letter to The Times saying he personally discriminated against everyone he met on grounds of age, race, color and national origin, Bell added:

"If I want a secretary I want a girl, not a man. It would be a silly relationship for a man to have.

"My wife does the cooking and the household duties, unless she is ill, when any man would be help. It is not only natural, it is an inherent biological function."

He claims he does not really think women inferior, but he views them as having a "dissimilness of approach—it makes them good at fashion, things like that."

Meanwhile, the bill's sponsors, battered but unbowed, remain confident the uproar over the parliamentary defeat will strengthen their case by arousing public opinion.

The bill itself, which sought to make sex discrimination illegal in jobs and education on the same basis as racial discrimination, now goes to the bottom of the parliamentary heap and is unlikely to surface again this session.

Women MPs on both sides of the Commons shouted "Shame" and "Disgraceful" Friday when Bell insisted on speaking as the last seconds of debating time ran out, leaving Hamilton unable to move a second reading. The bill has the support of every British women's organization and spokesman on the parliamentary fate will cut step them pressing for its speedy reintroduction.

Finance Heads Discuss Problems of Inflation, Unemployment

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — Inflation and unemployment stole the spotlight during the opening session Monday of the two-day meeting of federal and provincial finance ministers.

There was even a prediction, from Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan, that the two economic evils could join forces during 1972.

However, John Turner, newly-appointed federal finance minister, told reporters Monday night that current economy-expanding policies would reduce unemployment while maintaining reasonably stable prices.

Mr. Turner, who took over from Edgar Benson in a major cabinet shuffle Friday, said he would like to direct a priority study on inflation and unemployment. No North American country had been able to find a balance between the two.

He also said the priorities facing Canadians are economic in nature and his aim was to find a job for every willing and able Canadian, without increasing inflation.

He felt the ministers generally were agreed that the economy was expanding at a rate that would produce employment.

Mr. Blakeney, who also is Saskatchewan's provincial treasurer, and Finance Minister Basil Cherniak of Manitoba didn't see it that way. Mr. Cherniak accused the federal government of ignoring unemployment while Mr. Blakeney said unemployment could remain at a high level for another 12 months.

Provincial Treasurer W. Darcy McKeough of Ontario said his province's economic prospects for 1972 are moderately bright.

If Ottawa didn't apply premature economic restraints, Ontario's unemployment level could drop below 4.5 per cent of the labor force by the end of the year.

Mr. McKeough was concerned, however, that the basic problems which hurt the economy could return within two years if the provinces were not given a say in formulating policies for economic stabilization.

He suggested that the ministers set aside time at their next meeting for a full-scale discussion on improving economic stabilization.

Quebec Minister Raymond Garneau of Quebec also favored maintaining supplementary fiscal budgetary policies. He said this type of policies would reduce pressure which could be brought to bear on the Canadian dollar.

Both Quebec and Manitoba opposed a federal plan to link Ottawa's contribution to health care costs to the gross national product.

Mr. Garneau said experience shows health care costs levels and times figure more than the GNP. Mr. Cherniak said the federal government's plan for health care standards and fewer provincial attempts to introduce innovative methods and less costly health programs.

The ministers also discussed proposed federal tax-sharing agreements.

Mr. Blakeney told reporters that the provinces desperately need money and if they can't get it from the federal government local income tax must be forced to raise income and corporation taxes or drastically cut public services.

Mr. McKeough told the meeting that now that new tax laws are in effect, Ottawa must sit down with the provinces and work out an adequate tax-sharing scheme.

He suggested that by 1976 the provinces should be taking 40.5 per cent of income taxes.

Today, the ministers were expected to discuss the more technical issues in federal-provincial fiscal arrangements. Mr. Turner was to return to Ottawa, leaving Treasury Board President C. M. Drury to act as the chairman of the meeting which was to end sometime this afternoon.

Economist Flays Federal Agricultural Department

OTTAWA (CP) — The head of a government research agency says the federal agriculture department, struggling under inadequate leaders to control the farm industry, has become confused, dying bureaucracy.

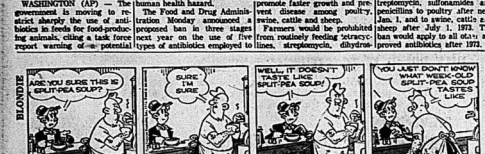
Dr. Gordon MacEacher, head of the agriculture economic research council, says the federal department has taken the wrong approach to the farm industry for the last 20 years.

It has aimed at "contracting the industry"—encouraging poorer, small farmers to get off the land to make way for bigger operations in order to improve the income of those remaining.

This approach has failed, Dr. MacEachern said in an interview. Income per farm has continued to drop despite fewer farmers. The department has been unable to "control the contraction."

Realizing its failure, the department now was attempting to get back on to the farm front by forming national farm policies such as its recently approved farm marketing legislation.

Such efforts, however, missed the point. The department should be planning policies that would create improvements on all farms rather than attempting to control production and the number of farms.



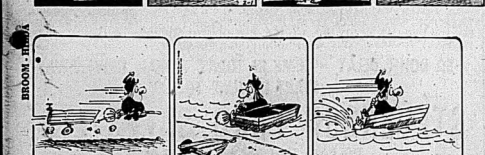
With classification, there was a plenty of room for more production and many export markets that had not been fully exploited.

Use of Anti-biotics to Be Limited in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is moving to restrict sharply the use of anti-biotics in feeds for food-producing animals, citing a task force report warning of potential human health hazard.

The Food and Drug Administration Monday announced a proposed ban in three stages next year on the use of five types of antibiotics employed to promote faster growth and prevent disease among poultry, swine, cattle and sheep.

Farmers would be prohibited from routinely feeding tetracycline, streptomycin, dihydrostreptomycin, sulfonamides and penicillins to poultry after next Jan. 1, and to swine, cattle and sheep after July 1, 1973. The ban would apply to all drugs approved antibiotics after 1972.



Probe Told Police Wouldn't Aid Girl

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police used obscene language and refused to call an ambulance as a girl lay injured during a demonstration last Oct. 25 in front of the Ontario Science Centre, a university professor told a provincial inquiry Monday.

Danylo Struk, who took part in the demonstration protesting the visit of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, said the girl had been hit on the head.

"I didn't see any blood, but she was crying," said the Ukrainian-born lecturer at the University of Toronto.

Mr. Struk said lawyer Y. K. Botiuk, who has been attending the inquiry as deputy counsel for the Allen Lawrence Grandin committee which organized the demonstration, ran to police lines and asked a policeman to call an ambulance for the girl.

He said the officers used obscene language and told Mr. Botiuk to get his own ambulance. He said he and Mr. Botiuk tried to get a woman in a nearby apartment building to call one.

Mr. Struk, who lectures in German and Russian literature, language and literature, identified the girl injured when police approached the crowd as Zirka Radj, 19, a student at the Ontario College of Art.

Miss Radj has not yet testified at the inquiry, but she said in an affidavit sworn a few days after the incident that she and her 16-year-old sister were run down and trampled by police horses.

Mr. Struk said lawyer Y. K. Botiuk, who has been attending the inquiry as deputy counsel for the Allen Lawrence Grandin committee which organized the demonstration, ran to police lines and asked a policeman to call an ambulance for the girl.

She said in the affidavit—part of a brief submitted to Attorney-General Allan Lawrence by the committee late last fall—that she eventually was taken to hospital in a police cruiser after waiting almost 45 minutes.

To Your Good Health

Child That Stares A Lot May Be Epilepsy Sufferer

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you tell me about the problem of staring in my child? He sits and stares almost to the point of unawareness of things about him for the space of a few seconds or a few minutes.

Is it true that this is a mild form of epilepsy? What is the cause and is there a cure?—Mrs. P.I.

It could be a seizure of the petit mal type of epilepsy. I'm not saying it is: I just say this sort of thing does occur with petit mal. In that form a person may have many quite brief episodes in a day—the patient may, for example, stop in the middle of saying something, and after a brief pause continue the sentence as though nothing had happened.

It is important to find out for certain whether that is the boy's trouble. An EEG (electroencephalogram or brain wave test) is necessary to find out. If it is petit mal epilepsy, modern medications to control the seizures are quite successful.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Do men have menopause? My husband has become so depressed.—Mrs. G.V.

No, men don't have menopause, because menopause by means the cessation of monthly periods, or menstruation.

That does not mean that men may not have various problems and changes in hormone production in their bodies.

By the same token, it does not mean that men necessarily will have any such troubles. After all, some, although probably not many, women sail through menopause with a minimum of trouble.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like information and your evaluation of a pessary being used by women. Is this sometimes preferable to "having" surgery?—Mrs. K.M.

A pessary is a device, made of various materials and in various shapes, for a number of purposes. It usually placed in the vagina for the purpose of supporting uterus or rectum in case of a prolapse. Sagging of these organs very often pushes the bladder out of normal position, causing urinary troubles.

As you evidently surmise, a more permanent correction of such sagging is ordinarily done surgically, but sometimes surgery is not advisable because of the patient's age, general physical condition, or whatever.

In such cases a pessary may be used. It doesn't always do the job, but in most cases it gives sufficient support and makes the woman more comfortable.

A pessary should be removed regularly by the physician, and cleaned, which serves to prevent irritation, which is likely if left in place too long without cleaning.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A young relative who lives in a dormitory keeps a rabbit (which was raised for research purposes) in a cage in her bedroom. Will this present an unhealthy condition?—Mrs. K.D.

If there are no dormitory rules against it, and if she keeps the cage clean, the only problem I see is that it must be boring for the rabbit.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1NT	Pass	3NT

The opening lead is often the most decisive play of a hand, and many contracts stand or fall depending upon the leader's choice.

This is one department of bridge that doesn't lend itself to flat rules that can be faithfully followed. Circumstances differ widely when it comes to selecting an opening lead, but the fundamental principle that governs everything is that you must try to lead what is best for your side rather than what is best for your hand.

Take the deal where West can lead the four of diamonds because it is the fourth best card of his longest and strongest suit.

Alternatively, he can lead a spade on the basis that he is more apt to find partner with spade than diamond length —because the opponents made no effort to find a major suit contract.

But both these leads stress the development of West's own hand rather than the development of dummy's potential assets. The lead most likely to hit pay dirt is the queen of hearts, and if an actual hand South goes down if West selects that lead.

There are compelling reasons for a heart lead. First is the likelihood of East's having heart length on the bidding, and second is the rapidity with which East's hearts can be established if he has either the jack or the ace.

East needs far more in high cards to support a spade or diamond than he does the need to support a heart lead.

As it happens, only the heart lead results in declarer's going down one, which merely decreases and does not prove the underlying principle, but note what happens if West leads a spade or a diamond, in the former case, South makes five notrump; in the latter case, South makes six notrump.

Tomorrow: It pays to worry.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Clear up delayed details in your work and housekeeping chores. Get rid of outdated materials, plan replacements, renovations.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): You must withstand a little irritation or badgering at others from the moods and insecurities afflicting others.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Belated news may shake you up a little as you start the day. Correspondence, budgets, shopping lists and the like require review and conference.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Uphill career effort brings better opinions than you had expected. Good news among relatives can be passed along cheerfully.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You are apt to come out ahead of a rival momentarily, perhaps for longer if you keep up the struggle to excel.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Everybody turns out to be in a highly excited mood. You can get together better earnings or greater capacity in most situations.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Search for more resources, strive to gather and consolidate what you have. Career news isn't quite to your liking, needs further checking.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pleasure impingings on business, may require definite self-discipline on your part.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't surly go-getter pitch them up and onward. When you've done a reasonable day's work go on with sprucing up your home.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Orderly information well presented makes for an achievement. Your mate, close associates have divergent ideas.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Now is a time when things you've done in the past bring belated results. A winning combination can be put together for the near future.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Material benefits may come in dribbles but there promise to be enough of them to fill all real needs.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

This Special Hemorrhoid Remedy Contains a Unique Healing Substance That Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles". It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief —here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of relief. Sufferers telling their experiences also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained over a period of months! Among these sufferers were a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions — even cases of long standing.

The substance used by a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a well-known research institution. For Preparation H. Ointment is conveniently in easy-to-use form (no hose) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator, available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Arctic Oil Brings Strife

OTTAWA (CP) — The recent conflict between Eskimo trappers and two oil companies on Banks Island has left Eskimo bitterness about the federal government's handling of the situation, says a report made public by the northern affairs department.

"The Banksianders, particularly the older members of the community, feel that the government has let them down," says the report prepared by social scientist Peter Usher, employed by the department's northern science research group.

His report was prepared after several visits to Banks Island, about 1,350 miles due north of Vancouver. It gives few marks to Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien and his departmental officials for siding with Elf Oil Exploration, a French company, and Dominion (Canada) Ltd., of West Germany.

The trappers, fearing that mineral exploration threatened their thriving trapping industry, had asked the government to order the companies from the island.

In 1970, company representatives arrived at Sachs Harbor, a community of 103 Eskimos, to announce plans for a $5 million exploration program.

The disrespect expressed by the villagers came as a surprise to both the oil exploration companies and to the federal government, although it need not have done so," says Mr. Usher.

Time Near For Postal Contact

OTTAWA (CP) — The time is drawing near for a new contract for 27,000 postal workers.

Remember the last time? The "talks"—negotiations, conciliation and mediations—lasted almost a year before agreement was reached in September, 1970.

In the last three months or the dispute, the striking strife was unveiled as a refined instrument of public torture. The post office claimed this went pon cost $35 million in lost business and revenue.

The postes emerged with a 15-per-cent wage increase over a two-year period—almost halfway between their bargaining demands and the original offer of the federal treasury board.

Talks are about to start again but spokesmen for both sides are indicating that a new agreement can be reached without old one expires March 27.

The post office has been hit with three major strikes since 1965, the first of them before the postal workers' union had its strike legally. Rotating strikes in Ontario last November curtailed from a dispute over the use of casual labor to fill in for absent letter carriers.

The skeptic also will note the tough stand on wage restraint taken by the treasury board and the cabinet in the 11-day strike this month by air traffic controllers.

One hope is that treasury board and Council of Postal Unions negotiators will have less to disagree about this time.

The negotiations will be the third since collective bargaining was introduced in the public service in 1967 and it is felt that many essential contract clauses now have been hammered into

Wholesale Prices Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — A trend towards higher prices seems to have been set in wholesale markets, federal statistics show.

Statistics Canada reported Monday that the general wholesale price index rose in December to 253.9 from 252.2 in November. In December, 1970, the index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, was 253.9.

Inco Major Layoff Story

By BUD JORGENSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A production cut by International Nickel Co. that will affect almost 7,000 workers was the major layoff story during January as resource industries continued to be the hardest hit by shutdowns.

Pulp and paper companies in Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick cut staff levels as that industry continued in a severe slump.

A strike by air traffic controllers caused temporary dislocations across the country last month as airlines and some tourist industry employers laid workers off during the period of the strike.

A Cross-Canada Survey by the Canadian Press showed that during January Ontario had most of the production cuts involving large groups of workers.

Announcements from pulp and paper companies during January affected more than 2,000 workers. The industry is passing through a period of world oversupply and price competition.

Election Organizing Underway

OTTAWA (CP) — Only Prime Minister Trudeau knows whether he has dealt a campaign cabinet with his recent reshuffling of ministers, but the Liberal organization beneath the cabinet now is intensely preparing for the coming election.

Party sources say the campaign organizing is formally underway, with provincial Liberal machines now meshing with the carefully built national headquarters staff. They will shortly name the provincial campaign directors.

The campaign itself—expected this year, likely in the spring—will be fought with the best prepared Liberal organization in the history of the party, organizers contend.

While both Liberal and Conservative leaders have suggested their campaigns will center drifting toward the Conservative war chests, insiders believe the Liberals already have retained their traditional broad appeal, and will command the biggest campaign fund in the country.

The party spokesmen say their biggest advantage is the organization that has been going on since May, Trudeau assumed leadership in 1968.

The party has been building permanent riding and provincial bureaucracies ever since, they say. Even election - time Liberals into year-round party supporters.

Swamp Land Being Sold Americans

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says American are buying lots in northwestern Ontario swamp land at $1,000 each in time for the market value.

One company in Toronto, the paper said, is sending out about 1,000 envelopes of brochures a month to the United States in response to requests from readers of advertisement's. It says the company offers one parcel in the middle of swamps at Atwood Township for $1,000 an acre.

The Globe says the land is described by brochures as "a rare find, located just four miles from the world-famous Lake of the Woods. It has road access yards to the south which connects with highway No. 17 to the east of the acreage. . . .

The Globe says the land is swamp, three to four feet in depth.

Separatist School Plan Praised

QUEBEC (CP) — While critical of a Parti Quebecois filibuster which temporarily defeated a key anglophone schools bill late last year, Education Minister Guy Saint-Pierre says that the party's proposal to place all non-English-speaking children in French schools is not without "some merit."

He is not convinced that Quebec's English cultural character can be preserved without legislation that would compel immigrants to integrate in the French-Quebec community.

Mr. Saint-Pierre, expected to be moved to another department soon in a shuffle of the Quebec Liberal cabinet, spoke in an interview after more than 18 months in the sensitive education portfolio.

The Parti Quebecois filibuster forced the government to shelve a bill aimed at unifying Catholic and Protestant school boards on the island of Montreal. The party sought to have Montreal Island freed from provisions of a 1969 act which gave parents the right to choose the language of education of their children.

Party spokesmen argued allimmigrants, French schools should be compulsory for all children except those already enrolled in English schools and those whose mothers tongue is English.

Mr. Saint-Pierre said during the interview the proposal would solve the problem of immigrants assimilating into the English community in this province. In Montreal, with 40 per cent of Quebec's population, nine out of 10 immigrants join the English community.

However he did not want to "deny that it had some merit", he questioned whether the proposal was the best solution.

Potter Appointed Minister of Health

Wells Is Given Education Post

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — Richard Potter has attained the goal that first prompted him into provincial politics from a Belleville doctor's office less than five years ago.

Today he is Ontario's Minister of Health.

Dr. Potter's appointment is part of a major realignment of the Ontario cabinet involving 19 of 21 ministries.

The 57-year-old Quinte MPP, who quit medical practice in in 1967 to start a political career vowed to restructuring Ontario health programs, hinted at this in his first response to his appointment.

"I've never concealed it. This (health affairs) is where my interests and political involvement have always been primarily concentrated," said Dr. Potter.

"It's happened at last. What can I say. I'm grateful to the premier. Now — well let's face up to the job. There's much I want to do — and hope to accomplish.

"Priorities? Let's talk about them later," he added. "First I've got to get down to work."

The other major shifts saw Thomas Wells, 40, of Toronto become education minister and George A. Kerr, 47, of Burlington, abandon his job of environment minister to take over the colleges and universities portfolio.

There was no provision in the changes, the first of a major nature since the re-election of Mr. Davis's government last Oct. 21, for a woman cabinet minister, Mr. Davis promised during his election campaign to appoint one.

Other changes:

—Allan Grossman, 60, minister of trade and development, becomes minister of revenue with additional responsibility for the Ontario Housing Corp.

—Charles McNaughton, 59, minister of transportation and communication, becomes chairman of the management board of cabinet, a new portfolio created as the result of the government's massive new restructuring.

—James Auld, 49, minister of public works, becomes energy and water minister.

Minister Under Fire

Education Minister Robert Welch (left) suddenly found himself under fire at the Ontario School for the Deaf yesterday, while meeting students after opening new sports complex. Student John Abietti, 6, had brought his toy shotgun along to the official ceremonies and pulled a sudden draw on the minister, after being introduced by OSD superintendent Joseph Demeza (rear), after whom the project was named. For details, see Pages 2 and 3.

Agreement or Stalemate ?

Russia and U.S. Adjourn Nuclear Missiles Talks

VIENNA (Reuter) — The Soviet Union and the United States adjourn their efforts for a curb on nuclear missile arsenals this week, without indicating whether this means imminent agreement or merely another pause in the two-year-old arms negotiations.

The sixth round of the strategic arms limitation talks which opened in Vienna Nov. 15, last year will adjourn Friday, the two sides announced Tuesday.

In the absence so far of an official statement it is assumed they will reopen in Helsinki, Finland, perhaps in the spring.

Over the U.S. negotiating team at SALT now, looms the date in late May when President Nixon is to visit Moscow for talks with the Soviet leadership on world affairs, including strategic arms.

The president is likely to feel some compulsion, especially in an electoral year, to achieve a partial SALT agreement on or around the time of his Moscow summit, many observers believe.

This being so, the resumption of SALT—perhaps in Helsinki—would bring the arms talks to a climax.

American conference sources have assured reporters that the secret talks—described as potentially the most important arms negotiations in history—will go on and firmly rejected enquiries concerning a breakdown.

Plan May Report On Winter Jobs

JASPER, Alta. (CP)—Provincial finance ministers appeared generally satisfied that they had taken an important step Tuesday in the battle against future winter unemployment.

The ministers, wrapping up a two-day meeting with federal finance officials, agreed to set up a contingency plan to deal with unemployment next winter.

The plan calls for a special federal-provincial committee to review current federal winter works programs and to submit a report by the beginning of May. The idea is to allow time for governments would be prepared "in a more coherent way than this winter."

The chief purpose of the meeting was for Ottawa and the provinces to exchange notes on the economic outlook for 1972. From the outset, there were complaints about high unemployment and the possibility of continued inflation.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan, which with Alberta, Socialist Party governments, predicted high unemployment would continue for another 12 months or more.

Allan Blakeney, Saskatchewan's premier and provincial treasurer, and Manitoba Finance Minister Saul Cherniack accused the federal government of acting too late to stem rising unemployment this winter.

Mr. Cherniack said both levels of government should be better prepared by summer for the coming winter. Mr. Blakeney said he hoped Ottawa wasn't going to start planning its action back nine months from now.

British Columbia and Newfoundland were not represented by their ministers.

Quebec's Raymond Garneau said now there would be time to discover the good and bad points of the current program and to make provisions.

"It will give much more time for provincial governments and municipalities to prepare suitable programs," he said.

Mr. Blakeney and New Brunswick Finance Minister Jean-Maurice Simard had said processing of applications for federal

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A storm is expected to move rapidly east across the lower lakes tonight. Snow is forecast to spread across the entire province ahead of this low. During the day only intermittent snow is expected as a weak system moves out rapidly ahead of the main storm. Snowfall near the lower lakes is expected to become heavy tonight as the main low moves east. Accumulations of three to five inches are possible as a preliminary estimate, gusty easterly winds of 30 to 50 miles per hour will cause considerable drifting and driving conditions could become hazardous tonight. Temperatures will follow an abnormal trend of rising slowly into tonight before beginning to drop again late tomorrow as cold air pours south in the wake of the storm.

Montreal Man Killed As Police Watch House

MONTREAL (CP) — An unidentified, middle-aged man was killed and his east-end home set on fire Tuesday night while eight detectives surrounded the property waiting for three men they had been trailing to emerge.

The men were arrested later. Police said they had been watching the trio since Tuesday when they received an anonymous telephone call advising them to follow the men who were driving a truck and a car.

The trail took them from Montreal to a small bungalow in Pointe aux Trembles where, from a distance, the detectives saw the men enter a house.

The victim was later found lying face down on a smoulder-ing sofa. He was severely burned and had been beaten about the head.

During the surveillance, police said, one man left the house, took a package from the truck and went back inside. Ten minutes later, all three men ran out and jumped into their vehicles.

Pakistan Draws Rebuke from Smith

LONDON (CP) — Arnold Smith, the usually soft-spoken secretary-general of the Commonwealth, had some harsh words Tuesday for Pakistan's decision to quit the organization.

Terming it illogical, Smith told a news conference that "no multilateral move had been made to justify such a reaction from Pakistan."

The Canadian-born diplomat said President Bhutto of Pakistan had stressed "his annoyance over a British message to him concerning Bangladesh."

"This shows a basic misconception of the Commonwealth," said Smith, who is just back from talks with Bhutto in Pakistan.

"It seems to be a neo-colonialist view . . . to see it as a British club and to sever Commonwealth links with 30 others because you disagree with something which one member has done."

Thousands of Irish Mourn Londonderry's Bloody Sunday Dead

LONDONDERRY (CP) Thousands of grieving Irish gathered in this sombre, silent Northern Ireland city today to honor the dead of Londonderry's Bloody Sunday. It was a day of mourning for Roman Catholics throughout divided Ireland.

Threats of fresh violence prompted tight security in London, Dublin and in the embattled communities of British-ruled Northern Ireland.

Thirteen coffins, each lit by a single candle, formed a focal point of grief at St. Mary's Church in the Catholic Creggan district of Londonderry where a mass funeral was being held.

Eleven of the dead were to be buried today at the city cemetery while the body of another man was being taken across the border for burial in the Irish Republic.

The 13th victim will be buried Thursday.

St. Mary's overlooks the Bogside quarter where the 13 were killed Sunday in a battle with British paratroopers.

Revenge-seeking gunmen of the Irish Republican Army, campaigning to end British rule of Northern Ireland, struck back Tuesday night and killed an army sentry in Belfast, the Ulster capital.

The soldier's death raised the fatality toll to 233 since communal violence erupted in Ulster 2½ years ago.

Shops were shuttered, factories closed and streets were empty in Londonderry and other predominantly Catholic communities.

"We've living in ghost towns," said a local priest.

An official day of mourning was declared in the republic.

More than 2,000 demonstrators besieged the fire-blackened British embassy in Dublin late Tuesday for the second straight day. A gelignite bomb shattered its windows and partly smashed the main door. One policeman was injured.

Airport workers at Dublin, Shannon and Cork refused to service British planes. No British newspapers were distributed. Movie theatres featuring British films received telephoned warnings to stop the showings or risk being blown up.

Mailboat sailings between Dublin and the British mainland were halted.

In Ulster, a woman was shot and seriously hurt in the doorway of her own home during an exchange of fire between troops and gunmen in the Mount Pottinger area of Belfast.

An army spokesman said the woman had been struck by a bullet meant for British soldiers.

Scores of cars, buses and trucks were reported stolen or hijacked throughout Northern Ireland. Many of these were used to form barricades across city streets.

Mass for the Londonderry victims was being said in churches across the 26 counties of the republic. One will be attended by the 88-year-old president of Ireland, Eamon De Valera.

Civil rights activists, meanwhile, announced that a march will be held in the border town of Newry during the weekend in defiance of the Belfast government's ban on parades.

Heath announced that Chief Justice Lord Widgery will make a one-man independent inquiry into the Londonderry incident.

Picton Drive-in Changes Hands

Astral Communications Limited today completed, pending registration, the acquisition of 12 motion picture theatres across Ontario from the Paul Nathanson interests. Included in the $1,375,000 purchase is the 9 - acre Mustang Drive-In at Picton with a capacity of 225 cars.

Others involved are located in Goderich, Kingston, Lindsay, London, Cornwall, Port Erie, Guelph, Peterborough, Sarnia, Leamington, B. Marin Buckner, President of Astral Communications, announced plans to extend operating seasons of most of the drive-ins to permit more films to be shown. Heat may become twelve - month operations.

Robert Welch, minister of education, announced the formation of Project Canada at a secondary school teachers' meeting in Belleville Tuesday night.

Addressing the annual meeting of Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation's district 19, Mr. Welch said the project resulted from the desire of Ontario students to communicate with students in other parts of Canada. It will operate through the co-operation of the departments of education of the other provinces.

Application forms and brochures will soon be distributed to all Ontario schools and teachers and students will be able to designate a province of their choice. Each school will then be paired off with a school in the province of its choice to begin what Mr. Welch termed an "interesting personal project."

He said it would make young Canadians aware of the diversity of their country, people and add new dimensions to the social studies programs.

The Pick of the Beards

Dave Brown (with the beard) was presented the man with the best beard last night at the Yukon - Monte Carlo Night, held in the Belleville Shrine Club. With him is the carnival mascot Ookpik and Bill Kulper. Mr. Kulper and John Morton from the Hotel Quinte Barber Shop sponsored the beard-growing contest. The winner received $35 a dinner for two and a trophy to commemorate the night.

Education Minister Challenges Teachers to Become 'Idea Men'

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Ontario's education minister has no intention of lowering the school leaving age.

In Belleville last night he gently chided secondary school teachers for not "innovating alternatives to the formal, traditional school program" to hold the interest of students until they are 16.

"There are those who would like to lower the school leaving age to get rid of disciplinary problems in the schools," he told delegates at the annual meeting of district 19 of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

Ever since attendance to the age of 16 became compulsory about two years ago, educators have claimed that some students are temperamentally unsuited to remain in classrooms that long. Some have even inferred that schools are being used to hold students off the labor market for extended periods in the interests of the national economy.

The school leaving age was raised by a member of the executive of OSSTF at a question period following Mr. Welch's formal address to the teachers. Discussion was cut off by the chairman after Mr. Welch's adamant reply.

The education minister, now also provincial secretary of social services, commented that teachers would have to stop moulding all generalities on the subject of increased class size resulting in poorer quality of education.

He suggested they would have to show some proof that a lower pupil - teacher ratio makes for better teaching.

A teacher quoted a recent study that is alleged to prove that "class size does definitely affect learning", and drew a quick response from Mr. Welch.

The ceilings for 1972 and 1973 have been announced," he said. "They provide more money for education and local boards will have to make hard decisions as to priorities. If a lower ratio is desirable, then other things will have to go to maintain that ratio because the budget cannot increase."

Local boards, not the department of education, decide the size of administrative staff, he said.

"It's possible to pick out one man and his salary," said the minister. "But let's keep it in perspective and consider the percentage of the total budget that is spent on administration."

Mr. Welch was replying to a teacher who complained that in his area, with 7,000 students, administration costs have ballooned from $90,000 to $400,000 with the creation of county boards.

But, he reassured the teachers, he considered them to be professionals, not civil servants.

"This was made clear last week in my decision on a disciplinary case," he told them, in an obvious reference to the case of a North York teacher convicted of possession of marijuana.

In his prepared speech, Mr. Welch told teachers to speak up and talk simply and clearly to non-professionals.

He called for communication in a "straightforward manner" so that "even the non - professional can be informed of fundamental issues and take part in relevant discussion".

He boosted the community school concept, one in which schools serve the community to study social institutions, and the public makes use of school facilities for extended education.

OSSTF district 19 includes Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington counties and all the secondary school teachers employed by their boards of education.

ONTARIO HOUSING CORPORATION

REQUIRES SERVICED LAND FOR SENIOR CITIZEN HOUSING IN THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE

The Corporation is seeking serviced sites for the development of Senior Citizen Apartments. The sites should be properly zoned and should, preferably, be of a size to permit the development of approximately 80 units. Preference will be given to sites located in the downtown area. Consideration will also be given to sites located elsewhere which are close to shopping, public transportation and other amenities.

Submission should be sent to the Managing Director, Ontario Housing Corporation, 101 Bloor Street West, Toronto 181, Ontario, not later than February 15, 1972. Submissions must include the asking price, a plan showing the dimensions of the parcel or parcels offered, a location map, the zoning applicable and evidence that the land is free of encumbrances. Further information may be obtained from the Development Manager, Eastern Region, Ontario Housing Corporation at (416) 966-3000, Ext. 311.

United Appeal's Name Said Too Restrictive

In a report submitted to the United Community Services, Rev. Laurie Sutherland, recent United Appeal campaign chairman made five observations and proposals for future drives.

Mr. Sutherland's first recommendation was "the name Belleville appears too prominently on our appeal literature. So people may be certain the drive affects people in the surrounding areas, we should hunt for a name that would indicate this."

Mr. Sutherland also suggested the list of agencies be dropped from the appeal material, and "rather than names, services should be listed."

Secondly, Mr. Sutherland agreed it would probably not be worthwhile to reinstate the door - to - door canvass, but it might be a good idea to knock on doors to let people know the campaign is going on.

People who do not have their names listed with an employer, now have their name added to a list of "special names" so they may be privately approached. It's a term served for this year, but it is not a good one, as he suggests if you are on the special name list you should give a popularity fair gift.

Mr. Sutherland also advised that team leaders and members of participating agencies become active in the campaign as canvassers.

Mr. Sutherland finally suggested a new approach would be worthwhile.

"We aren't giving out too many 10 per cent participation certificates this year," he said.

During the UCS annual meeting last night it was announced that George Zegouras would take over as campaign chairman next year.

Mr. Zegouras said it was too early to make any kind of projection on how much the target would be for next year's drive but said, "it's foolish to simply ask for 10 per cent more all the time. Many organizations tied to the home (wages) increased by 10 per cent last year and we were asking in a way for the home to give 10 per cent. Quite apparently, Mr. Zegouras, "This doesn't make any sense."

Apart from that Mr. Zegouras was certain he, and his workers, would beat this year's figures.

The workers stopped rising when they reached $129,000 this year, at least $13,000 less than the target.

Mr. Zegouras said he would stick with Give Where You Work, but he intended to get more people involved.

UCS Financial Picture Is Solid

"For the first time in years tonight as I give the financial report, I can dispense with the doom and gloom," said Ken Leavens, UCS treasurer at the organization's annual meeting.

"The financial statement is something to be proud of this year because there is not the traditional deficit," he said.

In the past through overgenerosity in allocation of funds, the United Community Services found itself giving out more money than it could afford.

"We now have the money in the bank and we have a strong financial picture," said Mr. Leavens.

Over the past year Mr. Leavens suggested that two important things were done to the financial world of UCS that should be mentioned.

The first was the eradication of the deficit and the second was the construction of small reserve funds.

"These funds are to go to two places", said Mr. Leavens. The first could be used to compensate for uncollectable pledges through the United Appeal campaign and the second would be used for unforseen emergencies.

"For the first time this year we have been able to give 100 per cent of the approved budgets to the member agencies," said Mr. Leavens. "The last time we did it, we came up with this great deficit that had to be made up through following fund drives."

Only two agencies did not receive 100 per cent and these were the Civic Action Committee and the United Community Services itself.

Guard to Be Hired For East Crossing

A special school guard will be hired to patrol the pedestrian subway beneath Dundas Street East, near the Bel-Air Motel, until a definite policy with respect to operation of the crossing is established.

This was the decision of city council last night which approved a recommendation passed earlier yesterday at a special meeting of the city traffic and light committee.

The subway will be open only to allow school children to get to and from school but will be closed at other times.

In the past city firemen at the Dundas Street firehall have been acting as attendants at the subway but occasionally firemen have been called out on alarms and the subway gates remained locked.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said the Dundas Street subway was a matter of great concern for parents living in the Bayview Heights area.

Fast traffic of the four-lane roadway made it dangerous for children to cross at grade level and the problem was compounded by the fact that children crossed the roadway at several different places.

He said the pedestrian subway was an asset which would cost more than $30,000 to duplicate today.

"We must do something; the subway must be maintained in an open condition," he said.

Mayor Scott said new lighting for the subway would have to be installed and that the city would also have to have co-operation from the parents of older children who in the past have been guilty of vandalism at the subway crossing.

Tweed Carnival Begins Feb. 11

The highlight of the coming Tweed Winter Carnival will be the Sunday afternoon snowmobile races and the purse of $1,500.

Other Friday night activities will include a Tyke hockey match with four teams participating at 7 p.m. Immediately after the match, the CKWS No Stars will do battle with the Tweed All Stars in the Tweed Community Centre.

Highlighting the evening will be the Snow Queen Ball and the choosing of this year's queen. This will take place in the Senior Public School.

The bulk of Saturday's events will be kicked off at 1 p.m. with children's skating races to be held at the Tweed Hungerford Community Centre. Trophies will be awarded.

At the same time, Tweed's main street will be blocked off for a sports meet. Firemen's tug-of-war (four teams) a barrel rolling contest and snowshoe race will form the body of the program.

At 10 a.m. Saturday two-and one half, six and 12-mile cross country ski races will commence with the committee finish line at Stoco Lake.

The feature of Saturday night's program will be the hockey match between the BP All Kings of Tweed and CFB Trenton.

Sunday's events will begin at 9 a.m. with the traditional carnival pancake breakfast. The breakfast is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club and held in the Curling Club.

The majority of the day will then be used by the snowmobile competitions, bringing the carnival to a close.

Sports Centre Honors Principal

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Today, Joseph Demeza is still a civil servant.

That's what added the unique touch to what happened to him yesterday.

He had a building — the latest, maybe the final, facility of its kind in Ontario — named after him by his boss: Education Minister Robert Welch.

The event occurred in the building itself — a $1.3 million sports complex at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

Being superintendent of OSD is what makes him a civil servant. But that's just an official definition.

Justification for naming the project the J. G. Demeza Sports Centre, is based on recognition of achievements that have made Dr. Demeza an accomplished figure in his own right.

At least, that's the summation for what Mr. Welch had to say about him yesterday as the minister officially opened the project at the OSD.

"Throughout the years, Dr. Demeza has been an outstanding leader and administrator, whose contribution is recognized, not only in Ontario, but throughout the North American continent and abroad," said Mr. Welch.

"It's very unique," explained the minister, "for the government of Ontario to pay tribute to a civil servant by naming a building after him. However, in recognition of this man's leadership and service in a highly - specialized field of education, it is my pleasure — and distinct privilege — to break away from this usual custom . . .

Mr. Welch described Dr. Demeza as a man who has supervised OSD administration with "wisdom and compassion" for nearly two decades, innovating projects and programs while contributing generally to education of the deaf.

Dr. Demeza, his reply perfaced by a standing ovation from staff, students and VIPs, crowding the new gymnasium for the opening ceremonies, cautioned that the event was a tribute to students and staff under his administration.

On the efforts of his staff "any success that I, or this school or its students may have, must in great measure depend," he said.

He also saw the project as a "tribute to the young people who do now — and will in the future — devote themselves in this place to overcoming their handicaps a nd attaining a well-rounded education.

The hundreds of students who have attended OSD during his administration "have been worthy of the investment of interest, time, money and service by citizens, government and staff."

Dr. Demeza's career, first primed as teacher in a one-room rural school in Northern Ontario, led through a public school principalship, a posting as public school superintendent in Kirkland Lake, before his arrival as OSD assistant superintendent in the early 1950s. He became superintendent in 1953.

Before the opening ceremonies, he took the official party — which also included Works Minister James Auld and J. F. Klein, Assistant Deputy Minister of Education — on a tour of school facilities, founded in the city's west end 101 years ago.

Later at the ceremonies Mr. Welch said he was impressed by the work of "obviously dedicated staff, the keen interest of the students . . .

"No one," he said, "who is able to spend time in classrooms and observe the education and training that's taking place here can fail to recognize the outstanding learning experience offered to students in this school. Our responsibility toward the growth and development of the students at this school is great — and I'm confident our endeavors will continue . . .

"This is a time to make certain . . . that we provide the environment needed to stimulate and encourage each young person here to grow into a creative and fulfilled adult."

The new facilities, said Mr. Welch, were part of a "continued effort" by, government to ensure OSD students "will have educational advantages that rival those anywhere in the world."

New Facilities For Community Use

Placing educational facilities at community disposal received the public blessing of Education Minister Robert Welch yesterday.

"There has been tremendous emphasis in the last few years on the community use of our educational facilities — and this is as it should be," he told an audience participating in official ceremonies of the spanking new athletic complex at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

The $1,300,000 project includes a double gymnasium and swimming pool under one roof, and an athletic field and running track.

The building, said Mr. Welch, is designed not only for OSD use but for community purposes when available.

"These are public facilities," Mr. Welch reminded his audience. "And indeed, when not required for their specific use by the school, will be available to the community at large."

House Entered Change Stolen

Carol Whalen, 72 Sinclair Street, returned home from a weekend trip to find the house had been entered by a basin-cut window.

Three radios and one tape player, total value, $254, were stolen. When the thief left, a side door was left unlocked.

Did He See Shadow ?

Today, February 2, is Groundhog Day.

That's the day when tradition has it that the hibernating groundhog wakes from his long winter nap to take a look at the weather.

And, according to the tradition, if he sees his shadow, he heads back to his hole for another six weeks of winter. On the other hand if the sky is overcast, it means the winter's back is broken and the groundhog will stay out and wait for spring.

But one thing is almost certain: Winter clothes will be in vogue for still another few weeks and almost as certainly Quinte district residents will have a few more fuel bills to pay.

Arctic Defence

War games on Baffin Island — that is the intriguing situation in the Arctic as described by reporter Kenneth Smith following his visit to Frobisher Bay recently.

The key factor there is Arctic sovereignty which for a variety of reasons has come to have more significance in recent times. The defence of such a vast region is not only a formidable undertaking but one that is relatively new to the armed services. Not because of any overt threat but because it is there that Canada has decided to concentrate one of its land defensive postures.

The recent exercise involved a paratroop drop against an imagined enemy which had arrived by sea to jam NORAD communication facilities. Getting the troops to the Baffin Island maneuvers site and bringing them back has been the task of Air Transport Command aircraft at Trenton.

The war between Finland and Russia back in 1939 comes to mind as one affording a precedent for hostilities amid such far northern latitudes. The Finns were a whiz on skis. Today, the snowmobile is an integral part of our defence ring in the Arctic.

They are used by the Eskimo members of that unique group, the volunteer ranger corps trained to assist the military in the Arctic. Twenty-five Eskimos and their machines have been on hand for this exercise.

It may be difficult to imagine such an exercise becoming the real thing against a real enemy, but then anything is possible in a future that cannot be predicted but which must be anticipated as far as possible. Arctic sovereignty is all the more a reality when we can support it by the tangible actions of our military.

Market Assessment

As regional assessment commissioner for Hastings and Prince Edward counties Leighton Thompson is intimately concerned with the introduction of new province-wide market value assessment aimed at an equitable tax system for all property taxpayers.

But market value assessment does not become effective until 1974 so that in the event of an appeal between now and the end of October 1973 only the 1970 assessment can be appealed. This is because it is the only assessment existing on properties at the moment. However, as Mr. Thompson explained to the Rotary Club recently, in the majority of cases an appeal will be unnecessary since most property owners have accepted their 1970 assessment, or have been through appeal procedure.

Mr. Thompson said when the new market value assessment notices are mailed in 1974 the property owner will have 29 days in which to decide whether he wants to appeal his assessment. Notices will be mailed 15 days before the close of the roll and during this period the assessment staff will hold "open houses" for consultation on individual assessments. Corrections can be made at this stage without an appeal to the courts. Following the close of the assessment roll that will be the deadline for 14 days in which to lodge any further appeal.

Thus we have an attempt to introduce some more sweetness and light into the process of assessment, as Mr. Thompson put it, in relation to the "open house" innovation: "This approach, I believe, will enable many people to meet the assessment staff informally and have their queries handled in the most direct and simplest way possible."

Incidentally, what is a fair market value? Mr. Thompson alluded to possible anomalies in this context. For example, if a home buyer wants a particular property so desperately he is prepared to pay almost any price, then what he pays cannot be regarded a fair market value price. Conversely, Mr. Thompson said if a rich uncle sells a nephew at a bargain price to his favorite niece, the price she pays cannot be considered fair market value. Consequently, the assessor must discount such factors.

Winter Anomalies

As Belleville's extended winter carnival gets under way we have to lament the lack of that most essential ingredient, snow; but never mind, for it may be that by the time these words appear snow will be falling. At least, it has been forecast. For that much part, however, it has been more like a winter in Europe, or perhaps New Zealand, where the wind blows. But blow blow thou winter wind, as the bard says, thou art not so kind as man's ingratitude.

U. S. Peace Proposals

Hanoi And Peking Not Necessarily In Accord

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon's revelation of American peace proposals for Vietnam, after 30 months of secret diplomacy, seems designed to carry different messages to Hanoi and Peking, two of the world capitals most intimately touched by the war in Southeast Asia.

For North Vietnam, the president would probably read his message to read: Scrap any plans you have for a major offensive next spring, and begin serious negotiations, because the United States is in a better position now to respond vigorously on the battlefield.

For the Chinese, the implied message could be interpreted: Our peace proposals are further evidence of our intention to remove American forces from Asian nations on your doorstep, and thus indicate our desire for meaningful discussions and improved understanding.

What now remains to be seen is how these messages, one relatively tough and the other conciliatory, affect relations between the two key Communist neighbors.

The answer may already have been hinted at. Hanoi has promised to "continue to fight until total victory," but without rejecting the U.S. proposals out of hand. And Peking has refrained from meaningful commentary, neither supporting North Vietnam nor in any way approving Nixon's program.

The lack of unified response could well indicate that the objective fashion Communist nations have—that Peking and Hanoi remain at odds about long-range U.S. intentions in Southeast Asia.

Although China has all along supported North Vietnam with words and material, there are few historical reasons to trust the Chinese and Vietnamese to feel amity. Their long history as neighbors has generally been marked by distrust if not warfare.

Hanoi's distrust has been aroused again by Peking's agreement to receive Nixon on a visit there next month. One of the few feelings said to be shared by both North and South Vietnamese is a fear that Nixon and the Chinese will try to arrange a peace settlement for Vietnam between themselves.

That fear is regarded here as one of the motives for North Vietnam's recent truculence, its increased use of MIG aircraft and rockets against American fighter planes in Laos, and its reported bidding hard for a Soviet defensive in South Vietnam during the Lunar New Year holiday in February. All such signs seem designed to stress that Hanoi retains its options, as it now proclaims to the war, without Peking's interference.

Henry Kissinger, the Nixon aide who commuted to Paris for secret negotiations, has conceded that the president was aware of the possibility of renewed fighting when he decided to reveal the negotiations.

The U.S., Kissinger said, was trying to tell the North Vietnamese: "Another round is not necessary. We want the war over with now."

Nixon would also seem to have strengthened his hand, even if the war does continue, carry through with a major setback.

By revealing to the world that he has been talking to shape U.S. policies toward Vietnam, Nixon may have created a greater willingness on the part of domestic and foreign opinion to accept harsh American retaliation against Communist attacks.

More Than 100 Firms Taking Part

Canada Planning Trade Fair In Peking In August

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — A new bilingual problem has cropped up here.

Canada is going to stage a gigantic trade fair in Peking in August. The cost will be around $1 million and more than 100 Canadian firms will take part.

The problem is that the catalogue of exhibitors is not yet printed and it must be translated into mandarin in time for the fair.

The trade extravaganza is a solo effort by Canada, probably this country's biggest venture in such a field since the pavilion at the 1970 world's fair in Japan.

The prime minister was christened Joseph Philippe Pierre Yves Elliotte Trudeau in 1919. He uses only two names, Pierre Elliot, having dropped the letter "e" from the second.

How rich is rich?

Mr. Trudeau is reputed to be a millionaire on the strength of the fortune made by his father in the petroleum and other businesses.

But he disclaims wealth.

In a recent interview, he said: "A lot of people have a lot of money and I don't include myself among them."

Mr. Trudeau carries little cash on him. His staff often has to dig to provide him with quick loans when charitable organizations descend on him in his office.

Two federal ridings—Bonavista-Trinity-Conception in Newfoundland and York West in Ontario—have been officially vacant for nearly four months, the former since Sept. 30, the latter since Oct. 6.

Mr. Trudeau has until late March or early April to name byelection dates in those ridings.

The question on Parliament Hill now is: Will he call a general election for the 264 ridings before the necessity of naming byelection dates in two ridings?

Bonavista-Trinity-Conception was left vacant by the resignation of Conservative Frank Moores, now Newfoundland premier, and York West by the resignation of Liberal Philip Givens, now a member of the Ontario legislature.

A Conservative MP says he hopes former prime minister John Diefenbaker, now writing his memoirs, will stick to his traditional knowledge and at least until the next election.

Post-Secondary Education Under Scrutiny

By DON O'HEARN
From the Queen's Park Bureau
of The Intelligencer

TORONTO — There are still a couple of things to be talked about on the post-secondary education report before putting it aside for a while.

Top of the list is where the controversy will be over the report.

The report proposes a plan which would give much more direct control to the minister.

Every phase of secondary education in the province, including even the Niagara Parks Commission, would in time become directly under the minister for learning and colleges affairs.

The yell from the universities, and probably to a lesser extent from the community colleges, will immediately be "centralization."

And they will be right. This could be centralization.

And you, can't afford them, particularly the very costly duplication that would occur, and has already occurred.

Actually, centralization has been on its way for years and we're going to have it, no matter how loud the beefs.

Then there is the question of the proposed University of Ontario.

This would provide higher education at home, through television, radio and correspondence.

This has worked well elsewhere. In Britain, sections of the United States and other jurisdictions.

In one college along these lines in Chicago at last report there were some 10,000 students enrolled, some for credit courses and others just for learning.

This has been a neglected, or abused, field in Ontario.

The department of education has had a correspondence course program for years, dealing with primary and secondary grades.

It has been very successful, with those who have known about it.

Ten years ago there were some 50,000 students enrolled. Today there are more, but not that many more.

For the program has never been properly promoted or developed.

It has seemed the regular academic have turned down their noses at it.

Killer Strip's Continuing Toll

Ottawa Journal

The 63-mile stretch of Highway 17 between Ottawa and the Quebec border became clamped 16 lives last year, well above the one - fatal - accident-a-month average of the previous five years. In the past two months alone nine have died on that stretch of highway. It has been the site of 29 deaths in the past 73 months.

Last year a report showed that this stretch of Highway 17 had a fatality rate of 18 deaths per 100 million vehicle miles driven on it. That was the highest rate in all of Canada. Highway 401 between Toronto and Montreal has a rate of only three deaths per 100 million miles driven.

This appalling statistic has had little effect in Toronto though this newspaper has editorialized for years now, on Highway 417, to replace 17 between here and Point Fortune, is still at least three time years away.

There is no reason for not arranging construction priorities so we will not carry a real opposition to Mr. Trudeau on the more years of this "killer strip."

Montreal Le Devoir: Will 1972 see the reappearance of a minority government in Ottawa? . . .

TODAY IN HISTORY

Feb. 2, 1972

The Canadian government proclaimed western British Columbia a "protected area" in the province during 1942—and began deportation of Japanese. Even Canadian citizens of Japanese descent residence were ordered to leave, deprived of property and moved east. At the end of the Second World War all persons of Japanese were shipped to Japan and their possessions were upheld by the Supreme Court of Canada and the British Privy Council.

Napanee Benefits

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

According to the Jan. 26 issue of The Napanee Beaver, Federal initiative grants totalling $121,000 have been approved for the Napanee Mill area in Lennox. This area reaches from Napanee in the south some 100 miles to Denbigh in the north.

Is it not coincidental that $118,000 of the $121,000 approved initiative grants as of Jan. 26, 1972 have been given to Napanee in the home of Conservative MP Douglas Alkenbrack, and not a penny north of Grey 49.

Wellington Crescent Land Issue

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

It is almost a year since we, the citizens of West Belleville, presented City Hall with two petitions for re-zoning and for the purchase of the parcel of land, which has served as a playground for over 30 years. We never can understand why there has been so much dallying, tossing around to so many departments. Is this the procedure of an emergency?

The petition is to buy the ground for a playground, park and greenbelt, bordering on Wellington Crescent. The location of this land renders it very expensive to develop for dwelling purposes. All main services such as sewers, water and fire hydrants are a block away, and accessible only through the back yards on Charlotte and Parker Streets. The Crescent would be flooded for lack of storm sewers, water would be forced into basements by the blocking of the natural water course across the said undeveloped ground that serves as a storm control for the Crescent and all surrounding land.

Our only hope will be the Ontario Municipal Board on Thursday at City Hall at 2 p.m. Come one, come all, and save the destiny of the West Hill play ground.

Major Ontario Cabinet Changes Made

tion and communication.

—John White, 45, minister of colleges and universities, becomes minister of trade and development and tourism and information.

—Leo Bernier, 42, minister of mines and northern affairs, becomes minister of lands and forests. He will also be responsible for natural resources when enabling legislation is passed.

—Eric A. Winkler, 51, minister of revenue, becomes minister of financial and commercial affairs, as well as minister of public protection, a new portfolio.

—James Snow, 41, minister without portfolio, becomes minister of public works and also ministers of government services, a new portfolio.

There were no new ministers appointed.

Retaining their current portfolios under the realignment are John Yaremko, 62, provincial secretary and minister of citizenship; William Stewart, 58, agriculture and Charles Sylvannus Apps, 56, correctional services.

Mr. Yaremko will also become solicitor - general when new legislation is passed on the next session, expected to open within a month.

It has taken less than five years activity in the arena of provincial politics for Dr. Potter to rise from the rank of freshman backbencher to a Cabinet portfolio.

But, from the outset, he put his own personal stamp on provincial politics . . . swiftly marking him as a personality with a public future. Political fortune responded favorably to his attributes.

His public stances were refreshingly frank . . . probably abrasive to longtime party stalwarts . . . a hallmark of the Potter personality.

He was a personality well-known in his own ballwick of Kingston, where he grew up, to practice medicine after World War II service, where, in spare time, he engaged in local Conservative politics. It was in his home town that he first made a winning bid for political election — becoming mayor in 1951. But he remained at city hall only a term — a single year in those days, before retiring from open participation in public affairs, however, he still indulged busily in the crucial behind-the-scenes activity of local party politics.

Then, in 1967, he suddenly emerged into the hometown limelight once more, profiling himself as a candidate in that year's Ontario general election in the newly-created seat of Quinte. Wielding the broom of his outspoken personality, he swept all but 13 of the constituency's 135 polls. When the dust had settled he was ensconced on the Conservative backbenches under the leadership of Premier John Robarts.

From what, traditionally, is a second line of defence for government, he launched a telling offensive. On the backbenches he quickly made a reputation as a fearless critic, whose frank critiques were not confined by party lines.

Health-care programming, pollution, bureaucratic empire building were among prime topics of warning speeches he made in the legislature and elsewhere — to the delight of Opposition parties, and amid invariable press and public response.

As chairman of the Legislature's standing committee on health he sparked controversy for the Robarts government. In a report calling for attention in several health-care areas. The noise grew when Dr. Potter was not reappointed chairman of the committee. At the time, the government, however, emphasized such appointments were one-year terms.

But the sum total of being involved in such political dust, was publicity that labelled Dr. Potter as a party maverick, a rebel in government.

These were identities he shunned.

"At times I've been called a maverick," he admitted before television cameras. But all he had tried to accomplish were "progressive changes" in Ontario's government, he said.

Then, early last year, provincial affairs turned a new corner when Premier Robarts retired. In the rush of events leading up to choosing a successor, Dr. Potter showed the party faulty was his grand question.

Without the leadership campaign, he became a one-man flying squad, crossing Ontario to consolidate the party's leadership was no gift to be easily dismissed.

Flying between wintering major Ontario centres, he campaigned for fellow Conservatives against premature commitments by any one leadership candidate. The party membership must wait, he counselled, the party's leadership not be decided in backroom deals.

He said the appeal was devoid of self-interest, and no doubt it has been made with his political future with any of the contestants to the convention which subsequently named Education Minister William Davis — the front-runner from the start.

That was in February. In the expectant lull that followed the trend of Dr. Potter's political future was a matter of conjecture. His appointment to the health ministry after several times been prompted in the Toronto press. He himself had even publicly confessed a partiality for the port folio.

With the prestige of Cabinet membership he went into the 1971 election in his riding. He held the seat, winning by more than 2,000 votes over his 1967 landslide.

As minister without portfolio his speeches and remarks took on broader concepts; no longer was his major public preoccupation confined merely to the health field, it seemed.

But his assignments, he revealed in a recent Intelligencer interview, included working closely with Bert Lawrence, the leadership candidate who received the health post. In that discussion he also admitted to still possessing a keen interest in the health appointment: "Let's not kid ourselves. I'm very anxious about the health portfolio. Four years ago this is what got me into politics in the first place — because I felt we needed a whole restructuring of the health program in the province."

He also confessed to something else: The Potter political attitude — marked by blunt outspoken responses and frank declarations — has mellowed somewhat since his promotion to the inner court of provincial affairs as a cabinet minister.

". . . you see a helluva more of the problem than you saw before. And it makes you realize you have to change, you have to change with the times."

Committee Submission Agreed To

The city of Belleville should make an official submission to the select committee appointed to inquire into public use of educational facilities.

This is the feeling of Mayor J. Russell Scott who said it was important that a submission be made from this city.

"This is one opportunity which we will have to put our views forward," he said.

Alderman Donald Soutter said that in Hastings County there was good co-operation between the county school board and the municipalities.

Two of the board's high schools and 19 of the public schools were in regular use during types of community programs, he said.

Mayor Scott noted that this information should be included in the submission to the select committee.

Borg President Is Ambassador

The president of the parent company of one of Belleville's industries, Stephens-Adamson, has been appointed American ambassador to Japan.

Robert G. Ingersoll, president of the world - wide Borg - Warner company, will resign his position to take the diplomatic post.

Sewer Bylaw Stalled

There will be a delay of at least two weeks in the third reading by city council for the bylaw authorizing construction of the proposed $700,000 Fahey Street storm sewer.

The reason? One alderman wants more information on the project, including the names of the owners of the property to be drained.

Council has already given two readings to the construction bylaw and the project has received approval from the Ontario Municipal Board, but when the bylaw came up for third reading Monday, Alderman Jack Ireland asked that it be tabled for two weeks.

He said he had been asked several questions about the project, including whether land was to be drained and he had to admit he couldn't provide the information.

With costs of operation for the municipal transportation of almost all fronts, the alderman wondered out loud about such a rash of spending $700,000 on the storm sewer.

The Fahey Street sewer would drain the area west of North Front Street and below Tracey Street, south across College Street and down through Coleman Flats to empty into the Moira River in the Coleman Street area south of Moira.

Much of the land to be drained is low-lying undeveloped property.

The proposed Fahey Street storm sewer is one of two large systems planned to drain the area west of North Front Street between the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway and College Street.

The second large storm sewer would cross North Front Street in the area of the livestock sales barns and run east into the Moira River near the old Lazier's Dam.

loans and grants to create other works had caused serious delays.

They told the meeting that it takes as long as six weeks to get applications processed.

But Mr. Simard said after the meeting that the over-all concept of winter works programs was good and he felt that with revisions, they could be of real benefit next winter.

Although unemployment and inflation dominated discussion at the meeting, the ministers also devoted considerable time to tax- and cost-sharing.

Hospital Positions Shifted

Philip Rickard, former administrator is now executive director; John Kunetsky, former assistant administrator is now hospital administrator; Dr. R. M. Anderson has been appointed medical co-ordinator; Charles Riley will assume the new position of evening administrator; D. E. Pratt, former director of material, Miss M. R. Gaw, former director of nursing services, and H. C. Mason, former controller, have all been appointed assistant administrators.

Burke Society Group at Riot

TORONTO (CP) — Testimony that horses of Metropolitan Toronto's mounted police squad trampled demonstrators, including an elderly woman, at a protest rally last Oct. 25, was given Tuesday at a provincial inquiry.

The inquiry also heard that shortly before the crowd and the police clashed members of the right-wing Edmund Burke Society were, standing at the back of the Ukrainian Canadian Committee demonstration across the street from the Ontario Science Centre.

The horsemen were brought in after a bulge was pushed into police lines between the demonstrators and the centre, where Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin was dining as a guest of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Earlier testimony indicated the clash came after the protesters were shoved from behind into three lines of police.

Ihor Kotowycz, a graduate student in architecture at the University of Toronto, told Tuesday of the clash and of seeing the Burkers.

Mr. Kotowycz said that after mounted police came into the crowd, he saw three horses trample an elderly woman during the melee.

Another witness, Christine Romanchuk, an attractive 21-year-old blonde, said she was run down by a mounted police horse and left lying on the ground after the horse's hooves came down on her, bruising her badly, tearing her clothes and leaving a bootmark on her thigh.

Mr. Kotowycz, a marshal during the rally, told inquiry commissioner Judge Anthony Vannelli he saw Burke Society members parading with banners and placards in an area behind the thousands of demonstrators and lined 18 deep on the street.

He said the Burkers were located behind a group of Ukrainian-Canadian students who were demonstrating peacefully by shouting slogans and singing songs in a generally peaceful atmosphere.

However, he was unable to say who actually started the clashes and swung at the back of the crowd that eventually led to a six-foot-deep bulge in police lines.

Khrushchev Film Cancelled

TORONTO (CP) — Khrushchev Remembers, a 75-minute movie based on the memoirs of the late Russian premier, was to have had its world premiere on the CBC national network Tuesday night.

The show was cancelled because, it was reported, the CBC wanted to cut it to 60 minutes to fit its program Tuesday Night, which made the movie, would cut permit any deletions. The CBC, in turn, said no outside agency could dictate what it broadcast.

Matrai Sues

OTTAWA (CP) — Geza Matrai, the 27-year-old Toronto man serving a three-month sentence for assaulting Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin here in October, has initiated libel action against the French-language Ottawa daily Le Droit.

Newfound Liberals May Reject Two Party-switching MPPs

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A former Conservative Liberal cabinet minister may ask delegates to the party's leadership convention this weekend to reject two legislature members who switched sides Monday.

Clyde Wells, who quit in 1968 as minister without portfolio in the former government of Joseph R. Smallwood, said Tuesday he is considering a resolution asking delegates to refuse party membership to Tom Burgess and Hugh Shea.

Mr. Wells, who was not a candidate in the Oct. 28 provincial election, said in a telephone interview the two may "ruin the party."

Mr. Burgess, former New Labrador Party leader returned in Labrador West in the election, plans to run for the Liberal leadership.

"The switch by Mr. Shea and Mr. Burgess, who said in November 1970 they would support the PCs, give the Liberals numerical superiority in the 42-seat legislature. The standing: Liberal 21, PC 20 and vacant 1.

Mr. Wells said he hopes the party will concern itself more with the future of the province "the demonstrations we've had recently being played out by Messrs. Burgess and Shea."

A leadership contender for the Liberal leadership is Edward Roberts, who resigned in the Liberal government which resigned Jan. 18 after the Newfoundland Supreme Court confirmed a Conservative victory in a disputed seat.

Mr. Smallwood, who plans to resign the leadership, said earlier in a telephone interview from Clearwater, Fla., where he is vacationing, that he will "the unlikely event" that no one offers himself for the provincial Liberal party leadership this weekend would be after to lead it again.

Speaking to The Canadian Press from his holiday retreat here, Mr. Smallwood, who resigned as premier Jan. 18 when the Newfoundland Supreme Court confirmed a Conservative victory in a disputed seat, said he would sit as a member of the next legislature.

He would support any move to topple the Conservative government if the Liberals have a majority when the house does sit.

Joey Says He Is Out Unless Nobody Wants Party Leadership

CLEARWATER, Fla. (CP) — Former Newfoundland premier Joseph R. Smallwood said in a telephone interview Tuesday night that only in comes Mr. Shea and Mr. Burgess to the party.

But William Rowe, former community minister and the party's interim leader, said Liberal legislature members would decide today whether the two will be admitted to the caucus.

Quebec Therapists Walk Out

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec hospitals "made do" with emergency personnel and department directors Tuesday following a walkout by about 450 physiotherapists, occupational therapists and dieticians.

Members of the three unions held day-long study sessions in Montreal and Quebec City to protest the suspension of 16 physiotherapists at St. Luc Hospital last Friday and plan their next move in a contract dispute with the Quebec Hospital Association.

Jacqueline Moreau, president of the Professional Association of Physiotherapists, told a news conference that an indefinite province-wide walkout is possible.

About one third of the province's hospitals were affected by the Tuesday walkout.

Bootlegger Problem Is Acute

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — Police were seeking Tuesday a man wanted on a charge of supplying liquor to minors, a relatively minor charge under the Criminal Code, but the words on the warrant told a story of the problems this northwestern Ontario community has had in recent years with Indians and alcohol.

The wanted man did not appear in court Monday as ordered by the Crown and a warrant for his arrest was issued.

Police want to know what part, if any, the man played in the death of a 15-year-old Indian, Dennis Ross, found dead in the snow in a cemetery last Dec. 19. A coroner's inquest Jan. 18 ruled that the boy died of exposure due to excessive intoxication.

The inquest was told the boy's blood alcohol content was 1.825 parts per thousand, twice the percentage that would warrant a conviction of impaired driving.

Ontario Appealing Beach Case

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government began an appeal Tuesday against an earlier ruling that four United States owners of summer cottage property on Lake Erie own the land down to the water's edge.

John Hilton, counsel for the attorney-general, told the Ontario Court of Appeals that the appeal concerns an important matter affecting the right of the public and old grants in the Crystal Beach area, about 20 miles south of Welland.

In a judgment delivered Aug. 21, 1970, Mr. Justice Alexander Stark of the Ontario Supreme Court's trial division ruled that the public has no right to use the beaches involved.

Mr. Hilton said there is an apparent conflict in the law, so he is asking the appeal court, consisting of Mr. Justice J. B. Aylesworth, Mr. Justice G. A. McGillivray and Mr. Justice Gregory Evans, to look at the old grants and the chain of title to see what they mean.

Quebec Getting Lion's Share Of Job Grants

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec is getting "the lion's share" of grants designed to combat unemployment under the local initiatives program, a spokesman for the department of manpower and immigration said Tuesday.

The spokesman said that as of Jan. 20 the government has approved 2,091 projects presented by private organizations or individuals worth $37.4 million. Of this total, 661 projects worth $20.5 million have been granted in Quebec.

Conference for Women to be Held

The Women's Advisory Committee of the Ontario Department of Trade and Development has arranged a conference for women to be held at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall on Coleman Street commencing at 10 a.m.

The opening and introductions will be conducted by Mrs. Vera Morphy the local member of the Women's Advisory Committee and throughout the morning several known panel of speakers will address the gathering.

Following the luncheon Mrs. Lilah Lymburner, chairman of the Women's Advisory Committee will speak, with a follow-up question and answer period. At the close, a fashion show will be presented with Mrs. Norma Widgeon as commentator.

It was its inception in 1963 more than 70 conferences have been held in Ontario with an attendance of over 25,000 people, and during 1972 conferences will be held in Belleville, Peterborough and Toronto.

The program at each of these conferences is planned to give women an up to date panel of information to help make them become better consumers in their own homes. It also emphasizes the importance of women in the economy, and to this end speakers are chosen who are expert in their fields of estate law and finance, the problems of the manufacturer in meeting his market, food and nutrition, and household management. The keynote of supporting Canadian products and the advantages of buying them when quality and price are competitive, is stressed.

MRS. LILAH LYMBURNER

Deseronto Couple Wed for 50 Years

DESERONTO — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Gwydon Brummel, Thomas St. Deseronto, was appropriately decorated for the 50th Open House to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

Relatives and friends attended from Deseronto, Picton, Belleville, Napanee, Bath, Kingston, Demorestville and Deseronto.

Mrs. Brummel is the former Kathleen Patterson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Patterson, Dodne's Corners. Prince Edward County. Mr. Brummel is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Brummel, Massassaga. Prince Edward County.

They were married December 31, 1921 by Rev. Alfred Brown, in Picton United Church parsonage. Their attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Earle Denville of Picton, who were married 46 years previous, and were present at this occasion. The two brides of 50 yrs. were corsages, sprayed with gold, and the bridegrooms were carnation boutonnieres, which were presented by the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Brummel have eight children, who were present for the occasion, (except the eldest daughter Gwendolyn, Mrs. Kennedy, Crescent of Victoria, B.C.), Thornton, Bath, Geneva, Ruth, Lawrence, Kay and Joan. They have 18 grandchildren, and six great grandchildren.

The tea table was attractively decorated with a three-tier wedding cake, beautifully decorated in white and gold, and flanked with gold tapers and streamers. Pouring tea was Mrs. Guy Bugg of Bath, and Mrs. Margaret Lasher, of Shannonville, friends of the couple.

Lunch was served by two granddaughters, Kim Lasher and Sandra Montgomery. The guest book was in charge of their daughter Joan Dailey. The guests were welcomed at the door by their sons Thornton and Lawrence. Many beautiful flowers and gifts were received, among them were two rocking chairs, and a floor lamp from the family. Congratulatory messages were received from Governor General R. Michener, Prime Minister Trudeau, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, Les Grills, MP; Wm. Davis, Premier of Ontario, and Clarke Rollins MPP, presented them with a Provincial plaque. Attending in person, was Douglas Allen-Brack MP, of Napanee.

In the evening a buffet supper was enjoyed by the immediate families of the happy couple.

Mrs Frankie Patterson, a resident of the Senior Citizens' apartments, 7 Turnbull Street, entertained 45 guests on the occasion of her 82nd birthday.

Club Activities

MADOC SENIOR CITIZENS CLUB

The Madoc and district Senior Citizens Club held their regular monthly meeting in the United Church basement last week.

Special visitor was Mr. Gordon Pigden, representing Bastings Cable Vision. He spoke on the subject of the club putting on items of interest for the Sunday night show some time in the near future. He made a number of suggestions, and it was finally decided to make arrangements for a program soon.

The president, Mrs. Broadworth, opened the meeting, and presided in the chair. She spoke a word of welcome to all and gave a short humorous reading. Roll call then had an attendance of 41 members. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Johns.

Correspondence was dealt with. A number of thank you cards were read from those who had been remembered by the club at Christmastime.

Mrs. Broadworth asked each woman to bring a tea towel to the next meeting. If members hear of anyone ill or bereaved, they are to inform the sick and visiting committee. Members having birthdays in January, Mrs. Thompson and Mr. George Moorcroft, were called to the front and "Happy Birthday" was sung for them. A very special happy birthday was expressed for Mrs. O'Riordan, the oldest member, who is 85. She was also presented with a small gift.

The next social was scheduled to be held on February 2, again in the United Church basement. At that time, Grant Ketcheson will be showing slides of his recent trip overseas. The lunch committee for this meeting will be Mrs. Farrow, Mrs. Yearwood, Mrs. Warren, and Mr. and Mrs G. Moorcroft.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in playing games. A social cup of tea brought another pleasant afternoon to a close.

Woman Pilot Receives Award of Merit

EDMONTON (CP) — When Vera Dowling made her first trip to Europe in a commercial jet, her seat-mate seemed a little nervous and kept asking, "What's that?"

"That's just the wheels coming up," she'd say, takeoff, Mrs. Dowling replied.

"What's that?"

"That's just the trimming of the aircraft as we circle," she replied.

"How come you know so much about it?" asked the seat-mate.

Mrs. Dowling replied with a straight face: "Oh, I taught the pilot 15 fly."

The seat-mate was not amused. But a little later the pilot came out and invited his old teacher up to the cockpit.

That Air Canada pilot was one of many sports and professional pilots in Europe and North America who've had lessons from Vera. Stood on a platform presented with an Award of Merit by the Guild of Air Pilots and Air Navigators in London.

She is the only Canadian to hold the award and only the ninth person in aviation history to be so honored.

"To be frank, I just burst out and bawled when I heard about the award," she said in an interview.

She doesn't volunteer much information about her 36-year flying career, but once she begins to story, her eyes sparkle and she enjoys telling it.

"I'd always wanted to fly. I envied the seagulls—I used to watch them hours on end."

As a starter, she tried jumping off a roof with an umbrella as a child.

"I was so keen on flying that with the help of my brothers we built an airplane out of applebones and sacking. Of course, it didn't fly, but ..."

She started flying in 1935 with the Sunset Aero Club in England. She took lessons in the legendary Gypsy Moth, one of the first few registered Gypsy Moths in England.

She said she knew almost she took up flying that it wasn't just a hobby but a life-long career.

After a few years of being a solo-skimmer-around-the-local-pilot, she became lauded with publicity and people and flying.

So she became a lumberjack.

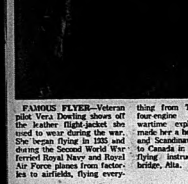
She spent three months in the woods, working with saws, bark peelers and all the tools of lumberjacking.

Well-known for her flying exploits, she was followed by a magazine photographer who did a picture story on this part of her life.

She returned to England and joined the RAF volunteer reserve, working up to pilot officer. She became an instructor of girl air cadets, the Women's Junior Air Corps, and taught RAF classes and, later, aerobatics and stunt flying.

Then she saw an ad for a flying instructor at an air school at Lethbridge, Sask.

"That's right, it said Saskatchewan."



She moved to the Alberta city in 1952 and taught flying for five years before moving to Edmonton to teach.

During these years, she did evangelical tours by plane, teaching and preaching the gospel.

"I figured I owed the Lord something," she said.

She thinks most pilots have a belief in God.

Because of a car accident in England three years ago, she's now terrified in cars, seemingly strange for a woman who has flown 21,000 hours and piloted more than 150 types of aircraft.

FAMOUS FLYER—Veteran pilot Vera Dowling shows off the leather flight jacket she used to wear during the war. She began flying in 1935 and during the Second World War ferried Royal Navy and Royal Air Force planes from factories to airfields, flying everything from Tiger Moths to four-engine bombers. Her wartime exploits in flying mark her a heroine in Britain and Scandinavia. She moved to Canada in 1952 to become flying instructor in Lethbridge, Alta. (CP Photo)

New Members Inducted By Tweed Kinette Club

TWEED — New members were inducted at the recent January Tweed kinette Club meeting at the Tweedsmuir Hotel in Tweed. President Carol Norris chaired the meeting and welcomed the 32 Kinettes and guests.

Among those attending were: district 6 co-ordinator Dianna Bones and her husband, from Picton; liaison officer Dianne Splaine and Doug Sickwood who is runner for governor of the district.

A Kinette induction ceremony was carried out for the recent new members. Past-president Eleanor Hughes carried out the induction, assisted by Kinette Dianna Bones, Kinette Dianne Splaine, Kinette Marlene Spencer and Kinsmen president Robert Bush. Kinette Carole Bleeker and president Carol Norris were in charge of lighting the candles, 32 for national Kinettes; 21 for national Kinettes and 71 for the local Kinette club. The 22 for the local Kinette club were placed on a giant anniversary cake.

Each member inducted was given a set of bylaws and congratulated by president Carol Norris.

The cake had been suitably iced and decorated in purple and gold icing, the club colors.

At the general meeting which followed, Kinette Carole Bleeker gave a report on the Christmas draw. The winners were Tony Quinn and Mrs. Shirley Ballantyne.

Woman Honored on 91st Birthday

Congratulatory messages were sent to Mrs. Maud Brownlee, Trenton, from parliamentarian dignitaries as she observed her 91st birthday, January 25 at the home of her son and daughter-in-law on Gould St.

Mrs. Brownlee received cards, flowers and gifts at the celebration party attended by her friends and relatives.

U.C.W. Meeting

COLLEGE HILL U.C.W.

The new officers of the College Hill U.C.W. were installed on Sunday, January 9 by minister Rev. R. Vessey.

The first meeting was chaired by new president Helen McLaren. Taking part in devotions were Helen McLaren, Kay Dowling and Annis Dickens. The theme of devotions was "The New Year."

The business meeting was started by reciting the U.C.W. purpose. Minutes of the last meeting were read by Annis Dickens and approved. Treasurer's report was read by Mary Byrd and approved. A report of the executive meeting was read. It was announced that the World Day of Prayer will be held on March 3. Financial Budget was read by June Moorcroft and approved. Catherine Macintosh gave an outline of how the programs, for this year, will be arranged.

Arrangements were made to have Mr. and Mrs. Jim Green, missionaries from Kenya, to show slides and talk of their time spent in Kenya. The "Africa Night" is to be held at the church on Tuesday February 15, with Mr. and Mrs. Green as guest speakers. Hostesses for this evening will be the C.G.I.T. and refreshments are to be served. It was decided not to have a regular meeting in February.

As the study project this year is on Africa, Catherine Macintosh gave a talk on "Africa", an enjoyable lunch was served to bring the meeting to a close.

Time Again to Enter Chicken Cooking Contest

By ALICE DENBOFF

Not too many years ago the big ideal for Sunday was: "fried chicken, and restaurants advertised special chicken dinners. But today, chicken is available and in great demand for the busy hostess any day, thanks to the industry's methods of transportation, production and scientific feeding. There is a fantastic variety of chicken dishes; in fact, the problem becomes modern.

FRENCH PANCAKES STUFFED WITH CHICKEN

1 cup pancake mix
1 egg
1 tablespoon salad oil
2 cups milk, divided
1 cup undiluted cream of mushroom soup, divided
2 cups diced cooked chicken
1 teaspoon curry powder
1 teaspoon minced onion
2 tablespoons toasted slivered almonds

Combine first three ingredients and ¼ cups of the milk; beat only until smooth. For each pancake, pour ¼ cup batter into a lightly greased six-inch skillet. Bake to a golden brown, turning once. Blend together ¼ cup of the soup and ¼ cup milk; stir in chicken, curry powder and onion. Spoon ¼ cup of the filling on each pancake; place pancakes in shallow casserole. Blend together remaining milk and remaining soup; pour over pancakes. Bake 20 to 25 minutes in 375 degree oven. To serve, sprinkle with toasted almonds. Makes four servings. What an elegant end for some of cooked chicken.

dia serving pieces
½ cup margarine
1 cup buttermilk
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 cup flour
1 cup ground pecans
1 tablespoon paprika
1 tablespoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup sesame seeds
¼ cup pecan halves

Melt margarine in large shallow baking dish (about 12x8x2 inches). Mix buttermilk with egg in one shallow dish, and next six ingredients in another. Dip chicken in buttermilk mixture, then in flour mixture. Place skin side down in melted margarine in baking dish, then turn chicken pieces to coat with margarine and place skin side up. Place pecan halves on each piece of chicken and bake in 350 degree oven 1¼ hours, until tender and golden brown.

Recipe will serve eight and is delicious.

CHICKEN, spectacular anytime, goes into creamy curried mushroom filling for French Pancakes, for lunch or dinner.

Successful Living

Friend Will Call If Interested

Dear Doris: From the first day of my life I have been hated intensely by my father because I am the very image of my mother's mother, to whom he owed a grudge. He has left me exceptionally emotional in matters of the heart.

Men have always seemed to show interest in me for their one personal reason, and I didn't even listen to encouragement because I think it takes away from one's character; it could ruin me. But I have so much bottled within, to give.

One evening on the bus I took pity on a blind young man and helped him aboard. We talked for 15 minutes on the way to his home. Two weeks later I made him a delicious supper. On another night we went for a long walk and he came back with me for coffee.

When he got up to leave I saw that he was trying to find my face so that he could. I realized, like me, in such darkness like he is in, I did not at all hesitate, fat loving by himself his embrace.

I agreed to go with him on a week end to a holiday spot but drew the line when he asked if we could have two twin beds in the same room for the sake of saving money.

He has often promised to phone but I always would call him when he did not keep his word. I reckoned it was difficult for him to phone.

I would gladly give an eye to this man if he would accept it, and yet I wonder if he knows I am alive. Is he afraid I am being over possessive and might take away his liberty—or is he thinking that no woman could really care for a blind man? I would hate to think he may already be quite happy going out with girls who share hotel rooms (and beds) with him.

Do I phone him or leave him alone? — Deeply In Love.

Dear Deeply: Let it ride. If he is interested he will call that phone. If he is aware of your views about no physical contact, ever, this may be putting him off — and you ought to learn more about the importance of this part of marriage. Yet you are entirely right in your refusal to share a room with him — blind as he may be!

There is, of course, the chance that he feels his handicap leaves him out of the running, when it comes to marriage, and because of this, a brief and friendly note from you to keep in contact might begin to make him feel you consider him worth your friendship.

Dear Doris: Our ladies' service club is having a special dinner and the theme is Portuguese. Unfortunately the hotel will not prepare Portuguese food so we have to serve roast beef.

I thought there might be other ways we could introduce a Portuguese theme, perhaps by printing our menus in Portuguese and giving things like tomato juice, salad, roast beef and other things a Portuguese name. What do you think? — Banquet Chairman.

Dear Chairman: You can spice it up with a nice Portuguese flavor by using suggestive decorations as well as the Portuguese menus you have dreamed up. In your library or travel office you will probably find travel posters advertising Portugal. Airlines often donate posters, perhaps even a draw prize for a trip to Lisbon.

Portuguese music, a guitarist, dancers — why not membership plea? Write to the Portuguese Embassy in Ottawa for their ideas in making the theme authentic.

Dear Doris: Consider this situation: Two friends with their wives meet at a social gathering. Neither is acquainted with the other's wife. What is the proper manner of making the introductions? — Master Canadian.

Dear M.C.: It goes like this. You introduce a man to a woman, a younger person to an older. But the man is always introduced to the woman, even if he is much older than she. Make it casual. Say to the man, "I don't believe you have met my wife, Mary, this is Bill Smith." That is the cue to say, "How do

And this is my wife, Jane."

If you'd r.

and "Mrs." go

first names have come into use a great deal, especially when two men are already good friends, and introducing their spouses.

Ann Landers

Pastor Must Remain Neutral

Dear Ann Landers: After 23 years of marriage my husband and I were divorced. He wanted a new life. That was seven months ago.

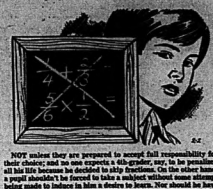
Last week I learned he is engaged to marry a girl young enough to be his daughter. I was not surprised because I knew he had been seeing some young girls. What bothers me is that they plan to be married in the same church at the same altar where we were married. Our children were christened in that church, attended Sunday school and were confirmed there. We had our first date at the youth fellowship dance in the social hall.

Some of my relatives have made a formal protest to the pastor. (He is new to the community and rather young.) The pastor has indicated that he does not feel it would be appropriate for him to take sides, and that his duty is to perform the ceremony at the place selected by the bride and groom. Please understand that I am not attempting to prevent the marriage, Ann. I object only to having it take place in the church that holds such meaningful memories for me.

Do you feel the pastor is conducting himself in a Christian manner? I do not believe he is, nor does my family.—Heartbroken Former Wife.

Dear Former Wife: Three distinguished Protestant clergymen support the new pastor. They say it is his responsibility to remain neutral and to perform his duties.

Your former husband obviously feels warmly about his church but in a strange and sick way he has blocked you out of his memory insofar as the church is concerned. This may be difficult to accept, but accept it you must. My own opinion is that he is grossly insensitive and inconsiderate but you must not condemn the pastor for your former husband's inadequacies.



Dear Ann Landers: I am having a big argument with my mother. I will be 18 in May and I want to let my girl friend pierce my ears. My mother promised me last year that I could get my ears pierced for my 18th birthday but she wants a doctor to do it. I say it is not a medical thing. It's a beauty thing. My girl friend uses ice cubes and a needle and it's as easier than making a major operation out of it. My friend has done her own ears as well as her sister's, and nobody had any trouble. Please say yes. Thank you.—New Haven.

Dear New Haven: I'm saying yes. Too many things can go wrong when ear-piercing is done by a friend. For example: infection, allergy to the metal and keloid problems. Putting a needle through a part of your anatomy is a medical thing—not a beauty thing—and it should not be done by a friend, unless that friend is a doctor.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CUNNELL

Should pupils pick their own subjects?

NOT unless they are prepared to accept full responsibility for their choice; and no one expects a 4th-grader, say, to be penalized all his life because he decided to skip geography. On the other hand, a pupil shouldn't be forced to take a subject without some attempt being made to induce in him a desire to learn. Nor should he have to study that course because it is a convenient way for authorities to control him and his classmates.

NOT if he loves his wife. Then, of course, he will do everything he can to make her happy, though he will know precisely when to give in to his wife and when to assert himself. Sometimes, however, a husband will submerge every vestige of his personality just for the sake of not disturbing up an argument. It is not that he is trying as hard to get along, he seems to be abdicating his role as an equal partner in marriage.

Does everyone benefit from a deadline?

NEARLY everyone does most of the time; but working toward a deadline can trap a person sometimes. Perhaps he feels he has always been able to put a little extra effort into his work and finish it in the allotted time. Then comes an occasion when he cannot; a-crupper. He has an important assignment, but he dilly-dallies, waiting for the pressure of a deadline to give him the push that just never comes.

PM Says Adversary System in Law, Politics May Breed Strife

OTTAWA (CP) — A star-studded national law conference began Tuesday night with Prime Minister Trudeau taking a whack at the worth of the adversary system in law and politics.

Mr. Trudeau suggested that the time-honored method of resolving issues through conflict may be "inducing widespread conflict."

"Perhaps in some instances the adversary system is a counter-productive element in the political process—in relations between various levels of government," he suggested.

Was it desirable to demand a winner and loser in every legal dispute when "in some cases the biggest loser of all—the public interest—is not even represented?"

He favored the "consensual form of political decision-making," adding that this doesn't mean he is against opposition. But persuasion, not coercion, led to change in a democratic society.

The main challenge to law and government was to overcome the "idea gap" in a society where ideas changed faster than legislatures were able to act.

His government had streamlined some parliamentary procedures two years ago to make Parliament more capable of meeting the country's needs "adequately and in time."

"Much remains to be done," he added.

Mr. Trudeau spoke to an invitation audience of about 2,000 in the Opera of the National Arts Centre.

PCs Make Ambiguous Commitment to Minimum Income

OTTAWA (CP) — Members of the Progressive Conservative Party have made an ambiguous commitment to the idea of a minimum income for all Canadians.

In results of a policy ballot released Tuesday, 63 per cent of the delegates voting at the party's national policy convention last December supported a resolution that "an assured national income floor should be established for all Canadians who have no earned income because of physical disability or for other valid reasons."

But 53 per cent voted that "the principle of a guaranteed annual income should not be accepted. Rather, an incentive society should be emphasized and employment opportunities increased."

The resolutions were among 179 voted on by the delegates. The results are not binding on Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, who is to form his own policies to take into a federal election campaign.

In other issues, the delegates approved resolutions calling for stricter laws to protect consumers against unsafe products and erroneous information held by such data banks as credit bureaus.

PCs May Not Name Individual Quebec Leader

MONTREAL (CP) — Instead of choosing the traditional Quebec leader, the Progressive Conservative party may opt for a group of people to represent the party in the province in the next federal election.

Party leader Robert Stanfield said Tuesday the party has not yet chosen a Quebec leader and may not do so before the election, legally due before June 1973. but expected to be called this year.

But another that would require MPs and senators to table their associations with private interests "which might present a conflict with their duties" won 63-per-cent approval.

On labor issues, the delegates supported a statement that "management should be required to give adequate notice all forms of industrial change which is likely to displace a significant number of workers."

Conference Conservatives and the business community have attacked a government bill designed to permit workers to strike if threatened by layoffs because of technological change.

Nearly three-quarters of the delegates agreed that there is an urgent need for a fully co-ordinated attack on pollution involving all Canadians and government.

Woman Ruled Insane Regained Children and One Was Slain

OTTAWA (CP) — A Crown attorney ordered that a woman charged with murdering her husband in 1966 would never regain custody of her six children. But she did, and later one was killed and another wounded.

John Yanplew, Crown attorney for Leeds Grenville, testified Tuesday he could not "comprehend" Carrie Mae Stobo having her children back after being found not guilty by reason of insanity in her husband's death.

But other evidence presented at the inquest in the death last August of Mrs. Stobo, apparently by her own hand, said four of the children were returned in August, 1970, more than a year after she had been discharged from mental hospital in Brockville.

Mrs. Stobo, 31, died in hospital three days after apparently climbing into a bathtub, pouring charcoal lighter fluid over herself and igniting it.

Before that her seven-year-old daughter Debbie had been bludgeoned to death and her six-year-old son Robbie had been severely wounded with a knife.

The jury also heard Mrs. Stobo's mother, Margaret Bothwell, testify that her daughter once told authorities at Royal Ottawa Hospital that "there's going to be a tragedy; I can't help it."

The inquest, under Dr. H. B. Ostrom, supervising coroner for Ontario, started Monday and was to continue today.

Tuesday's testimony told a graphic story starting from the staying of Mrs. Stobo's husband in 1966 in Brockville, attempts to keep her in the psychiatric hospital in Brockville, her brief trial where she was found not guilty by reason of insanity and her release from hospital, and coming here to live with her mother, who sought psychiatric help for her.

Mrs. Bothwell testified she could not recall her daughter going to a doctor from the time she left Brockville until she was admitted to hospital here in late 1970.

She left and then went back to hospital in 1777. The last after Mrs. Stobo left hospital in March, 1971, a Royal Ottawa view Tuesday night the sentencing judge should be consulted before a person is paroled.

Judge Bewley arrived here armed with dossiers on 60 criminals who he said had committed frequent offences yet were paroled several times. Some had committed serious crimes while on parole, yet were released again.

The emphasis Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer and the parole system were putting on rehabilitation was filling rather than emptying the prisons.

"Hard-nosed criminals are laughing all the way to the bank — the next bank they are going to rob," he said, adding that other judges share his views.

Sentences were being "emasculated and mocked" by lenient federal treatment. He cited the case of a Penticton teller given a six-year sentence for stealing $696.000 from the bank in which she worked.

The women went to prison in Kingston, but was given day parole to study at Queen's University.

She served about 18 months of the six-year sentence. Meanwhile, the bank manager was fired, lost his pension and was near the need for welfare at one point because of the theft.

Hospital psychiatrist dismissed her concern about Mrs. Stobo's ability to care for her children by advising her to let the mother make her own plans with her children.

When a psychiatrist had told her not to make an issue out of her daughter taking an apparent overdose of pills last spring, Mrs. Bothwell said she warned him that "she's tried to commit suicide with pills."

"The next thing in her mind is murder."

Mr. Yanplew said that when she was acquitted she was remanded to hospital but it was made clear then that she would be freed within a few months.

Mr. Yanplew said he informed the mental health review board

Judge Starts Crusade for Veto Over Parole Decisions

role to study at Queen's University.

She served about 18 months of the six-year sentence. Meanwhile, the bank manager was fired, lost his pension and was near the need for welfare at one point because of the theft.

of a note Mrs. Stobo had written just after killing her husband. It said she was going to destroy her husband and family.

Mr. Vanplew said he was concerned about the children because it was apparent the woman had killed her husband "because she loved him so deeply."

He said he "understood she was never to have her children. I couldn't comprehend it happening."

"I was concerned about the children if they were released to her so soon."

Haggartys Turn Father's One-truck Firm Into Thriving 118-Unit Haulage Business

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Trucking was the wheel of commercial fortune to which the Haggarty brothers lashed their collective career.

The career is still gaining momentum.

But even at this point — 20 years later — the two Belleville lads appear securely bellied in the driver's seat of success. Their vehicle: Lafferty-Smith Express Lines Ltd., that's uniquely the biggest operation of its kind in Ontario.

Unique, because it began as a tiny inheritance, and now a fleet of assets later, its still strictly within the family.

— Marshals a fleet of more than 80 trailers, 27 tractors, 11 trucks;

—Distributed an annual payroll in the Haggarty hometown area which last year amounted to $950,000.

And indications are for continued growth. Harold is talking business when he says: "We haven't reached the top yet — we hope . . . You can't stand still. You've got to go ahead."

A built-in recognition of progress is only part of the formula. Efficiency is a preoccupation with both men — and their pinpoint methods have won them publicity points in the trade. There's a strong reliance on staff initiative.

Unique, because it began as a tiny inheritance, and now a fleet of assets later, its still strictly within the family.

That was an inevitable part of the family inheritance — inevitable because their father was in the haulage business — one truck — during the Great Depression years — "the hard thirties I guess you'd call them," says Harold.

The senior Haggarty started in 1928 with a dump truck, hauling freight, municipal gravel loads just "doing whatever the heck you could in those days."

When old enough, the brothers helped out on school holidays, weekends. Illness in the late 1940s forced their father to reduce his activities, and the brothers assumed the unexpected slack.

In 1952 they formed Haggarty Transport Ltd., taking to the road with one tractor and trailer. That was the start; growth was consistent. In 10 years they had 11 tractors and 25 trailers. In 1963 they bought out Lafferty-Smith, a firm with a partner whose Belleville business dated back to the 1930s.

Because of its long established, they decided to retain the Lafferty - Smith name, adding the express lines title to signify new ownership of a familiar operation. Growth assumed new proportions with operations steadily mounting to today's large-scale operation.

Today, its fleets haul goods for companies like Mead Johnson, Domtar, Corby Distillery, Allied Chemical, Brooks-Bond and Northern Electric.

In a highly - competitive business, bidding aga'nst big names and conglomerates, the independent Haggartys, have a number of prescriptions to keep their wheels rolling.

Says Max: "We built our business on service, and service alone — making sure we had our shipments at their destinations at the appointed time, picking up shipments on the same principle."

But the brothers didn't stop at their own experience and on - the - spot appraisals to ensure efficiency. To get a strictly unbiased opinion they moved in efficiency consultants.

The results included two-way radio contact between office and vehicles, performance efficiency and maintenance charts on all operations.

The reports are on the brothers' desks weekly on paper graphs which track the problems or successes of their operation. As a result, efficiency has jumped considerably — a good 30 per cent. The result also has had a welcome side effect — a boost in the customer relationships Max Haggarty stresses.

The intricate charting system not only can reveal flaws in trucking performance. It also can involve the client. By revealing, where, when, how and why shipment delays occur, causes are easily pinpointed. Sometimes the fault may be the customers — who may be unaware of a deficiency in his own operation.

If the situation flangs on "we can always go to the client and point these things out," says Harold. "Maybe he doesn't realize what's going on in his own plant so therefore he appreciates us approaching him and telling him we've got a problem."

Efficiency is a major retort to rising costs which reflect on a firm's ability to compete.

Both are anxious to emphasize their work force's contribution.

"If we've had any success at all it's in having very competent people working with us . . . irrespective of who it is . . . all the way through . . . " say Max.

Putting the principle in practice means giving their own personnel first shot at any promotions open in the company to positions of responsibility. But personnel may also opt out after a trial period and return to their former positions if they desire.

And people must be given latitude to use their own initiative.

"You've got to give them authority . . . Everytime you're away from the office for an hour everything doesn't stand still. They (staff) have to have authority to go ahead and make decisions."

There's something else . . . also part of the family inheritance.

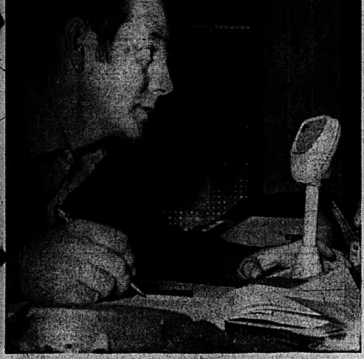
"Whenever you tell somebody you're going to do something, do it — or darn well tell them why you couldn't," advises Harold Haggarty. "You're only as good as your word — and that's one thing dad left us . . . He always did exactly what he said he'd do. It's helped in immensely, that reputation. We tried to carry on and do the same thing."

Recent industrialization spurts in the Belleville-Trenton area have also helped — producing new, big-name clients.

"We've been very fortunate that way," admits Harold Haggarty. "Of the new companies in the area we've practically got the lion's share of their business."

And the future?

A crucial move at the moment is a bid to extend operations over the Quebec border. The brothers now are seeking a licence to haul freight to and from Montreal — an application which the Ontario Highway Transport Board will view in Belleville Feb. 7. The Haggartys are hopeful of proving their case that there's a place for another carrier along the rich east-west transport route.



"It's part of our plan for expansion — acquiring more licence privileges to operate," says Max. "This means we'll have to buy more equipment, employ more people. By the way, that's one thing we've always stressed. We've tried to keep as many Belleville-Trenton area people working for us as possible. The area has been very good to us in our business so this is our small way of reciprocating."

In the beginning, did they surmise the business world, let alone their hometown area, would respond to their bid for commercial success?

"Oh — yes, and no," recalls Harold. "But we never thought we'd get this big.

"We had some pretty rough years," he confesses, reflecting on the formative years of a hometown company making good. "But we're over the roughest part now.

"The thing is it's pretty hard to stand still — no matter what it is. You either go ahead, or back. And we don't want to go back. We're still looking to expand . . . "

Safe Driving Pays Weekly Bonus

Conscientious driving carries a weekly $5 bonus for each driver — a system introduced by owners Max and Harold Haggarty in 1954.

The bonus accumulates throughout the year and is payable by December. With a completely clean slate a driver can pocket about $260 by the year's end.

The driver has to keep on his toes to earn the full total. Varying amounts are deducted for traffic or company violations — from $5 for the minimum speeding infraction up to a maximum $100 in a chargeable accident or for failing to report equipment damage.

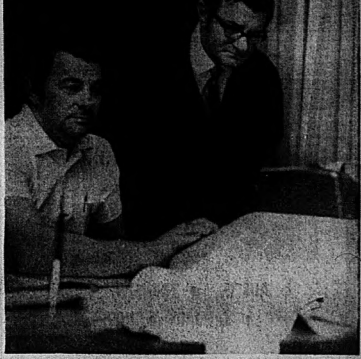
The bonus scheme has worked out well, say the Haggarty brothers — both for their drivers and themselves.

The drivers "look forward" to the bonuses.

The company has enjoyed much lower insurance premiums.

At a banquet Saturday night in honor of the firm's drivers, 20 bonus cheques were handed out. Three drivers won the maximum $260 and the roster of award winners represented 249 years of safe driving.

Economy Looks Good



This should be a sound year for economic activity in Canada, says Belleville businessman Max Haggarty.

As secretary - treasurer of the company he's astastically sensitive to the facts and figures of daily business economics.

He's optimistic for the current year for all Canadians.

"For 1972 I'm quite confident. Not only for our company but the whole community and the country as a whole," he says. "I'd say the economy looks good right now and, '73 a good year generally.

Busy Brothers: Harold, Max Haggarty

Winter Games Open Thursday in Setting Fit for an Emperor

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — The 11th Winter Olympic Games, a $750 million investment by the Japanese in their northland, opens Thursday amid pomp and splendor before an emperor.

Twelve years ago Emperor Hirohito was on the throne when Japan was awarded the Winter Games. The Second World War ended Olympic competition until the 1948 Games, but Japan as a defeated enemy power had to wait until the 1950s to have its renewed Olympic bid accepted.

Today, Hirohito as patron of the Winter Games on Japan's northernmost island of Hokkaido will open them in the modern Makomanai Skiing Park. Eight years ago, Japan staged the first Olympics in Asia, the 1964 summer Games in Tokyo.

When complexities the full Olympic circle when the Olympic flame, carried through Japan by relays involving several thousand runners, is brought into Sapporo, capital of Hokkaido, and Hirohito proclaims the Games officially open.

More than 1,500 athletes from 33 countries are preparing to parade in the 75-minute opening ceremony scheduled to start at 11 a.m. Thursday, Japan time (9 p.m. EST tonight).

Canada's 58-athlete team, young but large, entered in the Olympic competition, with contests in five of the seven sports on the venue—Alpine and Nordic skiing, figure skating, speed skating, bob sledding and the luge.

For the first time Canada is not competing in Olympic hockey. The Canadian also will be entered in the biathlon, an event combining cross-country skiing and shooting.

Five hours after the opening ceremonies, at 4 a.m. EST Thursday—the simultaneous zoning 10 countries begin in the hockey tournament, with defending champion Russia exempted. The five winners will join the Russians in the championship round-robin tournament, with the losers playing for a consolation tournament.

The absence of the Canadians from hockey was deplored by Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin Tuesday. Chernyshev, the team for its fourth Olympic title in six tries, said Tuesday:

"The difference in the Olympics this year and in other Games in which we have won is the absence of Canada."

The Canadians insist they have withdrawn from the Games only because professionals are now included at the Olympics and world hockey governing bodies refuse to agree to the use of pros.

The question of professionalism already has affected one of the Canadian skiers, Gerry Sorkoen of Austria, expelled by the International Olympic Committee for cashing in on ski advertisements.

The Austrians threatened to withdraw their entire Alpine and Nordic ski team—31 competitors in all—unless Schranz asked his team-mates to stay with Olympics.

This Schranz did Wednesday when he announced at a news conference:

"Knowing what it means to participate in the Games, I would not want to be responsible for making Austria, a great skiing nation, deprived of its opportunity in this event."

He urged the Austrian Ski Federation to rescind its decision to boycott the skiing events, and Karl-Heinz Klee, federation president, agreed the Austrians would compete.

Avery Brundage, president of the IOC, had labelled Schranz "the most blatant and most vetbose" offender of all skiers proclaiming amateurism. He was worse than all the others put together," Brundage asserted.

Schranz, who admitted he will be too old for challenge for a gold medal in the 1976 Games at Denver, Colo., answered Brundage's charges in the news conference, saying: "If the reasons for which I was disqualified are just, then every athlete should be disqualified—including the guilty as I."

Schranz still remains a member of the Austrian national team and will return home to train for the next World Cup races at Banff, Alta., Feb. 19-28. The Olympics end Feb. 13.

Canada has entered eight skiers in the Alpine events, but none has Olympic experience.

Canada has won a medal in every Winter Olympics, but without a hockey team and a skier of Nancy Greene's calibre to carry the load, the medal and point pickings are expected to be slim at Sapporo.

Nancy, now the wife of the Alpine Olympic men's team manager, Al Balmer, won gold and silver ski medals four years ago at Grenoble, France, and the hockey team captured a bronze.

Mrs. Raine and the hockey team accounted for all 19 points Canada accumulated in the unofficial team point standing based on the 10-5-4-3-2-1 scoring system for the first six placings in each final. Canada finished in a tie for 14th place with Poland.

Norway easily won the team title with 183 points, Austria second, gold medalists—six of 30 medals—and third with 132 points, and with 107 points, Austria had three golds and 48 points for second place.

Karen Magnussen of Vancouver, Canadian skating champion, given a chance for a medal in the Olympic figure skating competition, placed seventh in 1968, when she was only 12.

Emperor Hirohito will remain in Tokyo to watch several of the events, including the spectacular Alpine skiing and also the bob sled finals.

There are some eight million dollars in Japan and the huge expense Japan undertook for these Games will be repaid to base dividends in further developing the northern island as a winter sports area. Much of the $750 million spent by Japan went into public works to be used by the citizenry.

Wings Salt Leaf Wounds

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs returned home today from a disastrous seven-game National Hockey League road trip but there were more hard knocks yet to come before they could stop to lick their wounds.

The Leafs were bombed 4-9 by Detroit Red Wings Tuesday night and, as a result, dropped into fifth spot in the East Division behind the Red Wings.

Tonight, the Leafs are back on home ice but they face the rugged Minnesota North Stars who helped put the skids under the Leafs with a 4-1 victory the last time the clubs met less than two weeks ago.

In other games tonight, Boston Bruins visit New York Rangers and Vancouver Canucks are at Oakland to meet California Golden Seals.

The Leafs' defeat Tuesday gave them an eight-game losing streak that started with a home-ice loss to St. Louis Jan. 16.

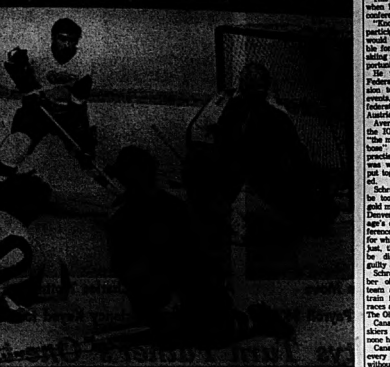
Other shutouts in Montreal, Chicago and California helped hold Toronto to an output of only six goals in the last seven games.

A sellout crowd of 15,922 saw veteran centre Alex Delvecchio beat Toronto goalie Jacques Plante for the only goal Detroit needed early in the second period. It marked the first time the Red Wings launched themselves higher than fifth place since early last season.

Mickey Redmond collected his 28th goal of the season for Detroit early in the third period and Red Berenson completed the Leafs' humiliation with two goals in the last 38 seconds.

Berenson's first goal went into an empty net with Plante off in favor of an extra attacker 38 seconds later he skated unmolested around the Leaf defence to beat the Toronto goalie with an easy backhand shot.



At St. Louis, Frank Mahovlich scored his 27th goal of the season in the first period and set up brother Pete in the third period to help Montreal to the victory.

The victory pushed the Kings' unbeaten string to four games and pulled them out of last place in the West Division for the first time since last October. They moved one point ahead of the idle Pittsburgh Penguins.

Red Wing Mickey Redmond (28) watches as Toronto's Rick Ley (2) deflects pass to teammate Nick Libett (14) in the first period of Tuesday night's game. In background are Maple Leafs' Jim McKenny (18) and goalie Jacques Plante. Wings won 4-9 to hard Ahearne Did What?

MONTREAL (CP) — Any Invitations the Russians may tender to National Hockey League teams to take part in exhibition games against the Soviet Union's Olympic champions will have to be made through the league, not the individual clubs, NHL president Clarence Campbell said Tuesday.

Campbell was commenting on reports from Sapporo, Japan, that quoted the Russians as saying they would welcome Montreal Canadiens specifically, and all NHL teams generally, to the Soviet Union for exhibition contests.

"We would like the best players of all countries to compete," Arcadi Chernyshev, coach of the Russian hockey team, said in Sapporo Monday.

Chernyshev first indicated an invitation had already been submitted to Montreal Canadiens, but later explained that Russia had not dealt directly with the NHL, or an NHL team, but rather through the International Ice Hockey Federation and its president, John (Bunny) Ahearne of London.

"Mr. Ahearne has been us permission to play against the Canadian pros," Chernyshev said.

Campbell said he had no communication from Ahearne on the subject.

Best French Bet Lost

Miss Macchi was hurt in a spectacular fall in downhill training. A sprain of ligaments in both knees required a plaster cast that will have to remain on for about 15 days, well past the Olympic competition here.

The injury also will set back Miss Macchi in the World Cup competition in which she is runner-up to Austrian Annemarie Proell. The next cup competition is in Banff, Alta., Feb. 18-20.

Miss Proell leads the women's events with 300 points while Miss Macchi has 187.

Karen Carries Flag

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Figure skater Karen Magnussen of Vancouver will carry Canada's flag at the opening ceremonies of the 11th Winter Olympic Games Thursday and Frank Shaughnessy is playing the odds.

The veteran chef de mission of Canadian Winter Olympic teams pointed out Wednesday that Bob Paul of Toronto carried the flag at Squaw Valley, Calif., in 1960 and Barbara Wagner of Toronto won a gold medal in pairs figure skating.

Nancy Ross of Rossland, B.C., carried it at Grenoble in 1968 and won gold and silver medals in skiing.

Ralf Olin of Calgary, a speed skater, carried it in 1964 at Innsbruck, Austria, and Shaughnessy noted that while he finished 15th in the 10,000 metres he was chosen because he was a veteran who had earned the right.

"My own rule of the thumb is that the flag-bearer should be a previous medal winner, a potential medal winner or a veteran," Shaughnessy said.

"Karen is one of our few real hopes for a medal."

Shaughnessy said that with the exception of Ruth Hutchison of Vancouver, who broke her left arm in an accident Sunday at the Olympic village, forcing her out of the singles figure skating, the team is free of major hurts.

South Africa in Line

SAPPORO, Japan (Reuter) — South Africa made its first move Tuesday towards regaining admittance to the Olympic Games from which it was suspended in 1970 because it practised racial segregation in sport.

A delegation of four-two whites and two non-whites—headed by Rudolf Opperman, chairman of the South African National Olympic Committee (SANOC), gave its report on the progress of integrated sport in the International Olympic Committee.

Later, an IOC spokesman said it has passed a resolution noting with pleasure the progress in participation of the whites and non-whites in international competitions and national exhibition games.

A new sports policy enables non-white athletes from overseas as well as non-white South Africans to compete in the same arena without any discrimination in the use of accommodation or other facilities.

Caged Cat

Belleville Bobcat goalie Bob Harrison shows the kind of situation he faced many times Tuesday night as he turned aside the scoring effort of Oshawa's Chris Bone, while Luc Charbonneau hovers in the background for a rebound. Despite adequate performances by Harrison and netminding partner Bill Cormier they were each victimized five times as the Bobcats dropped a 10-3 decision to Oshawa. The loss eliminated any Belleville chances of finishing second in the Eastern Ontario Junior B league.

Two Goalies Couldn't Help Listless Jr. B's

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

OSHAWA — The Belleville Bobcats stayed with their two-goalie platoon system as both Bill Cormier and Bob Harrison saw action in Tuesday's bout with Oshawa. Unfortunately for the Bobcats, however, they both couldn't play at the same time.

It would have taken two goalies, Ken Dryden or a 4 x 6 plywood board to provide much help for the Bobcats last night as they were drubbed 10-3 by the Crushmen.

Oshawa were doing all the things that Belleville weren't — hustling, hitting and playing two-way hockey. The Bobcats' listless performance was surprising since the game had a vital bearing on the Eastern Ontario league standings. By winning the match the Crushmen assured themselves of second place. They have five more points than Belleville with only two games remaining in the season.

The two teams will meet in the playoff semi-finals, with Oshawa last night earning the extra home game.

Larry Hopkins served notice that it would be a long night for the Bobcat goalies when he picked the puck away from Doug Perry at the blue line and walked in to beat Cormier with a 30-footer.

Len McAvoy applied the crusher when he scored on a two - on - one break with teammate Chuck Lackie, shortly after a two minute roughing penalty. The shorthanded goal served to drain the fight from the Bobcats, who had held their share of the play for the first 12:44 of the game.

McAvoy made it 3-0 later in the period when Hopkins chased defenceman Wally Dalzard at the blueline and centred a goalmouth pass that the winger tipped in. Despite the fact that he was incapable of playing the puck instead of the man Dalzard played fairly well on the Bobcat defence, especially considering the fact that it was only his second game of Junior B competition and the Belleville wingers were adding extra pressure with their failure to backcheck.

The Blake Kerr midget call-up helped engineer the first Belleville goal, late in the second period when Brian Constant tipped Dalzard's point shot behind Mark Logan. By that time the score was 6-0, however as the Crushmen had added two goals against Cormier and another on Bob Harrison, who took over at the 1.00 mark of the second.

The winners tallied four more times in the final frame to complete the rout. Tim Yohn scored the other Belleville goal when his drive from outside the blue line deflected off an Oshawa stick into the top right hand corner.

McAvoy paced the winners with three goals, while Hopkins and Tom Newton counted two each. Single markers went to Al Bathe, Luc Charbonneau and Gary Bone. The Crushmen drew 44 of the game's seven penalties for their aggressive style of play.

The losers were minus the services of centre Mark Woodward, who tested his injured knee on only one shift before retiring for the night.

Picton Dampened

The Esso Car Wash peewee minors dampened Picton's enthusiasm with a 4-2 OMHA exhibition win last night.

Warners Pasted by Pizza Gang

Jim's Pizzeria looked after the Gas House Hockey mixture by cooking up a 14-2 pasting of Stewart Warner.

In other Tuesday night games Wilson's Concrete kept Rollins Lumber from moving into sole possession of first with a 4-1 win, Mustangs blanked Warnamaker's 1-0 and the Hospital shaded Cassidy Electric 3-2.

Carl Thornhover supplied the fronting on the pizza, so to speak, by rumming in four goals and adding two assists for Jim's. Allan Ray managed a hat trick and four assists, while Steve White collected two of each for the winners. Other Jim's scorers included Wayne Brown Jr. with two goals and Dave Middleton, Jim McGuire and Brian Smith with a goal and three assists each. Defenceman Barry Marshall added three assists.

Vaughn Cunningham scored twice, including once on a penalty shot, to help Wilson to their 4-1 upset over the first place Lumbermen. Peter Enright had a goal and two assists for the winners with Keith Kirkham getting the other score. Murray Brydon averted a Rollins' shutout.

The Hospital came up with three unanswered goals in the last five minutes to overcome a 2-0 Cassidy deficit. George Jacklin paced the winners with a goal and two assists while Paul Knutson and Steve Lamore had one goal each. Bill Dunn and Norm Boulder replied for Cassidy Electric.

Bobcats Help Out High Schoolers

The Belleville Bobcats are helping to contribute to education in the city, at least hockey education.

The Eastern Ontario Junior B team has had their Wednesday night practice time confiscated by the opening round of the high school hockey tournament staged in conjunction with the Belleville Winter Carnival.

Games will take place tonight commencing at 5.30 and 8 p.m. The championship match for the city's secondary schools will be held Saturday night, 7.15 p.m. immediately preceding the Belleville Quinte's - Oakville Senior A contest.

Wrestling Teams Gang Up on Madoc

The two teams split a 42-42 decision, but each managed a win over Centre Hastings. Napanee defeated the Madoc entry 54-22, while Centennial came out on top of a 42-30 verdict.

John Dworznik and Ralph Adams of Centennial each had two wins, while Napanee's Ron Myers was the only other double winner.

Some Saturday Heroes Waited Long Time to Be Draft Choices

NEW YORK (AP) — A lot of guys named "Who?" are up for grabs today as the National Football League completes its 1972 collegiate draft from a field generously considered thinned by recent standards.

One of the few big names available when Monday's proceedings began was Walt Painter said, as expected. Notre Dame's enormous defensive end was the No. 1 selection, going to Buffalo Bills.

There were other stars too — Heisman Trophy-winning quarterback Pat Sullivan of Auburn and running back Ed Marinaro of Cornell, to name two.

But in a field of candidates devoid of superstars, many of Saturday's heroes had to wait a surprisingly long time before being chosen.

Atlanta Falcons finally selected Sullivan as the 14th pick in the second round after 20 other players had been called.

That, at least, followed last year's pattern when Joe Theismann of Notre Dame didn't hear his name until the fourth round, when Miami Dolphins called it out. 89 names down the list. Theismann eventually signed with Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League.

Marinaro also had to wait for the second round, being chosen 34th by Minnesota Vikings.

Marinaro expressed disappointment at not being a first-round choice, but if I have to be picked in the second round, well, I feel good to be with a contender," he said of the Vikings, Central Division champions in the National Conference the last four years.

Painter, a 6-foot-6, 308-pound ex, was happy with being No. 1 among some 442 players who will eventually be drafted.

What kind of contract would he be seeking from Buffalo? "A big one" he said. His lawyer, Bob Woolf, said he was thinking along the lines of a four-year, $300,000 pact signed four years ago by O. J. Simpson when he was the Bills' No. 1 choice.

No. 3 on Monday was another defensive end, Shaun Vibit of California, who was chosen by Cincinnati Bengals.

Another lineman, offensive tackle Lionel Antoine of Southern Illinois, was third to go as Chicago Bears grabbed him on their first-round pick acquired from New York Giants.

St. Louis was the first club to go for offensive backfield talent and the Cardinals came away with Robert Moore, a running back and wide receiver from Oregon.

The first round continued with Houston tight end Riley Odoms going to Denver Broncos, State's ford defensive end Greg Sampson to Houston Oilers, and San Diego State defensive back Willie Buchanan and Nebraska quarterback Jerry Tagge to Green Bay Packers. Buchanan is the younger brother of Ed Buchanan, halfback with Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the CFL.

Georgia guard Royce Smith went to New Orleans Saints, Jackson State wide receiver Jerome Barkum and Michigan linebacker Mike Taylor to New York Jets, Stanford linebacker Jeff Siemon to Minnesota, Iowa defensive back Craig Clemons to Chicago, Penn State running back Franco Harris to Pittsburgh Steelers, Florida quarterback John Reaves to Philadelphia Eagles and Kent State defensive back Clarence Ellis to Atlanta Falcons.

Colorado defensive end Herb Orvis went to Detroit Lions, Texas A and I defensive back Eldridge Small and Nebraska defensive end Larry Jacobson to New York Giants, Michigan defensive back Tom Darden to Cleveland. Auburn wide receiver Terry Beasley to San Francisco 49ers, Villanova wide receiver Mike Siani to Oakland Raiders, Oregon tackle Tom Drougas to Baltimore Colts, Nebraska running back Jeff Kinney to Kansas City Chiefs, Notre Dame defensive tackle Mike Kadish to Miami and Boston College running back Tom Sherman to Dallas Cowboys.

Linemen dominated the first round with nine drafted including the first seven and six combined for 1 of the 10 players chosen in Monday's seven rounds.

The biggest haul of the day was made by New Orleans, which came away with 13 players in the seven rounds. On the second of the coin was Washington. The Redskins with coach George Allen swapping selections last year for the veterans who made the club a title contender, came away with nothing.

A number of trades accompanied the draft activities, including the Cowboys' deal of wide receiver Margene Adkins to New Orleans for a second-round draft choice. Adkins is a former CFL performer with Ottawa Rough Riders.

Canadian Grand Prix Switched to Mosport

MONTREAL (CP) — Le Circuit racetrack's running feud with the governing body of Canadian automobile racing has resulted it the 1972 Canadian Grand Prix. It was learned Tuesday.

But Le Circuit officials confirmed that Canada's premier auto race, scheduled to be held at the track in the Laurentien Mountains 80 miles north of Montreal on Sept. 24, will be switched to another track because Le Circuit has refused to give a financial guarantee.

Bob Hanna, executive director of the Canadian Automobile Sports Club, said the race will probably go to Mosport, Ont., which has alternated with Le Circuit in recent years as the site of the Canadian Grand Prix.

Jacqueline Paradis, executive director of Le Circuit, said:

"We've had nothing but trouble with the CASC since the track opened. We're going without them."

Without CASC sanction the track cannot stage the Grand Prix, the Canadian or the Trans Am races nor can it run regional or international CASC events, or events by the two major United States car racing bodies.

Hanna said he considered it the end of international auto racing at Le Circuit.

"They've made it pretty clear they don't want us," he said.

Miss Paradis said "at this stage I don't know what we are going to run."

Miss Paradis and track directors decided Jan. 19 not to furnish a $50,000 guarantee required by the CASC for holding the Grand Prix, estimated to cost about $280,000.

The CASC requires the guarantee because it is responsible to the world car racing body for commitments to drivers, insurance companies and other racing associates.

"We feel the CASC should govern the rules of the sport, not the administration of a company like ours," Miss Paradis said.

"We must have a guarantee that we will make a return on our investment. Unless I am satisfied a race will make money for the track, there will be no spectator racing at Le Circuit this year."

She said "the whole structure" of car racing in Canada has to change."

"The CASC is not run by businessmen but by amateurs who want to put on racing for themselves.

"This year it would have taken $500,000 to stage the races we had scheduled, and without any guarantee that we would make money. That's not a sound investment."

Sport Briefs

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Harney's victory in the San Diego Open Sunday raised him into third place on the Professional Golfers Association money list with $33,476, according to figures released Tuesday by the Tournament Players Division.

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor Lounge

QUESTION: What date is the Mardi Gras in New Orleans this year, and what are the main events? Also, give me mileage from Belleville, a short route down and historical things to see in New Orleans while I am there.

ANSWER: The Mardi Gras is slated this year from February 12-15. This is a period of merry-making, street parades, masked costume balls and feasts. At midnight, the feasts will toll the end of Fat Tuesday and the advent of Lent.

New Orleans is an exciting, romantic city, rich in French and Spanish heritage and design. The city of the Creoles is a free wheeling, wide style separated between the Mississippi and Lake Pontchartrain. This is the setting for Mardi Gras, a three-day spree of wild, weirdly-fitting behavior, the austerity of Lent. It is called "the greatest free show on earth". There is a succession of Irish parades with bands playing, thousands of Louisianans and visitors in bandanas and masks, all celebrating a joyous festival that dates back to the old Roman times.

For night-owling, the heart of New Orleans is the French Quarter. Bourbon Street, famed for its night life, is filled with historic buildings of the early 1800's. The French Market, on Decatur Street, has its porticos of fish, vegetables and fruit from the tropics as well as local farm products. Jackson Square is the hub of the old city. Canal Street has its antique shops and many cafes of historical interest. And, for a feeling of today, relax at the Top of the Mart, a 407-foot trade building at the foot of Canal Street. Located at the top of the International Trade Mart, it gives you a panoramic view of the city and the river stretches below. Basilica of St. Louis of France, Jackson Square, is one of the oldest and most photographed churches in the country. It was built in 1794 by Don Andres Almonaster y Rojas, who spent a substantial part of his fortune rebuilding New Orleans after the second great fire. Nearby is the Cabildo where the Louisiana Purchase was signed deeding a vast French territory to the United States. A few steps away stands the Presbytere, a mansion where you can dine on Napoleon's death mask if you are so inclined. His doctor made the mask just minutes after the great dictator died, and brought it to New Orleans when he later moved there. The mileage and temperature in February is 87 degrees; average minimum is 46 degrees.

A fast route down is to take Highway 401 to Detroit, Interstate 75 to Walton, Kentucky, Interstate 71 to Louisville, Ky., Interstate 65 to Birmingham, Ala., Interstate 59 and 10 to New Orleans. Mileage from Belleville is 1,100 miles.

QUESTION: Am I doing more harm than good by placing the transmission in neutral while waiting for a traffic signal or when stopped for extended periods in heavy traffic?

ANSWER: When slipped in "drive" it is normal for automatic transmission vehicles to creep ahead to some degree, and to counter this it is necessary to apply slight brake pressure. However, this creeping - braking action causes a certain amount of friction inside a unit known as the torque converter. Filled with several quarts of fluid, the converter acts as an engine clutch as it transmits the engine power to the transmission. (The fluid in the torque converter also circulates through the automatic transmission).

When stopped in traffic for extended periods the friction build-up in the converter causes a temperature increase in the fluid. Excessive heat is one of the automatic transmission's prime enemies, and the longer the vehicle is prevented from moving by applying the brake, the hotter the fluid becomes. Also, the faster the engine idles the more the vehicle tends to creep which builds up the overheating of the fluid.

To avoid a rapid temperature rise in the fluid, I strongly advise selecting neutral when stopped for extended periods. As well, if the creep seems excessive, have the engine idle speed set by a technician who will adjust it according to factory specifications.

MRS. STAN BUTKUS, 36 Hardy Street, Smiths Falls, "I think I definitely do control my food shopping at Loblaws", says Mrs. Butkus, who shops for three. "I check the monthly paper to see all the food prices and we use Loblaw's money saver to keep the best buys. But only are Loblaws prices competitive the quality here is tops and the service is just excellent. I've tried all the stores in town—there isn't one that can compare—and prefer Loblaws to any of them. I think they've got the best selection of everything and, as I enjoy the quality in food, I'm never been disappointed with anything I've bought at Loblaws. It's a great place to shop—it really is!"

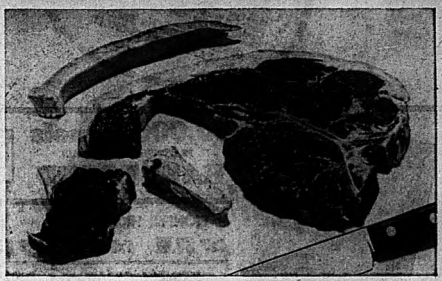
Dominion asks you to measure up with a brand new

GUARANTEE OF PERFORMANCE

Our Guarantee of Performance

Dominion's high standard of "trim" on all regular cuts of beef is not more than ¼-inch, for maximum flavour and taste. If at any time, our trim exceeds the desired ¼-inch, in either pre-packaged self-serve cuts, or at the personal service counter, simply mention it to the butcher and he'll re-trim the cut on the spot, re-weigh it and re-package it for you.

Your Meat Manager



HERE'S THE DEAL! Either we measure up to our long-famous reputation for meat quality and trim . . . or we make it good . . . on the spot! Dominion's high standards of meat quality haven't changed a bit. In fact, when you combine our NATURALLY-AGED Beef at EVERYDAY DEEP DISCOUNT PRICES, with this brand new "Guarantee of Performance" you've got to have the best meat value for your money!

Compare this week. Then switch to Dominion . . . Canada's favourite discount food store!

EXAMPLE No. 1 Dominion's famous T-Bone Steak is a classic example of the way we do it . . . everyday! Take a good look and study what comes off before we present it to you. Our specifications on beef are clear cut and they save you money. Here they are for a T-Bone Steak:

- Not more than ¾-inch overall fat
- Tail length not longer than 2 inches
- Spinal Cord must be removed
- All excess suet in channel between the tenderloin and end of T-Bone must be removed.

Tuesday TV Fare Good Escape

NEW YORK (AP) — For viewers who use their TV sets as an escape hatch, Tuesday is one of the most satisfactory nights of the week. One can start with Mod Squad and wind up three hours later with Cain and never come in contact with a day-to-day life.

The most interesting story of the day Tuesday was Hawaii Five-O. The fearless cops of Detective Jack McGarrett island to the murder of a man employed by an aromatic, recording, germ-bearing billboard.

The hour ends with the cop to the program's usual level, and it was complicated by gadgetry.

But it did indicate how a fiction writer, given his head, could come far short of a real life plot.

The show had a cool villain trying to take over the billion dollar industrial empire. He and his hunter Swiss bank account dealings.

While truth is stranger, and often more exciting, than fiction, the Howard Hughes-type character in Hawaii Five-O was a coincidence because the program was shot before the current Hughes story—probably is next season's action shows.

Mod Squad this season seemed trapped in its formula: It was the first "relevant" show and in the sole survivor of the brief Dan Too often nowadays the underdog kids of the series are the only factors that keep the big city from blowing either from racial or other tensions.

This week, another favorite theme got a working over: the war veteran, returning brutalized and embittered by his experiences, attempting to take law into his own hands. It has been worked over, but recently it has been overused and is a tired, predictable theme.

Cannon concerned some violent nonsense about a woman scientist engaged in hepatitis research in a prison and threatened by a gangster who wanted a prisoner put secluded in the program.

The series, for all its battle, usually has pretty good scripts with as many curves and twists as a mountain road. It really doesn't need all those juicy chops and automobile crashes to keep the viewers awake.

Bela Lugosi's Dracula Profitable to Family

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Universal Pictures Co. is accountable to actor Bela Lugosi's heirs for profits from marketing of his likeness as Count Dracula, a judge ruled Tuesday.

Superior Court Judge Bernard A. Jefferson's 16-page decision did not specify any amount of damages to be awarded Lugosi's son, Bela George Lugosi, a lawyer, and the actor's widow, Hope.

The court held that the actor, who died in 1956, played the Dracula role for Universal under a 1930 contract that permitted use of his likeness for the movies but no other commercial purposes.

About four years after Lugosi's death, Universal began licensing manufacturers of shifty games, Halloween masks and other items to reproduce his likeness as the vampire. Universal had contended the heirs' consent was not necessary.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Representatives of six U.S. corporations gave entertainer Danny Kaye a cheque for $135,569 Tuesday to compensate for six million product wrappers and labels collected by volunteers for the UN Children's Fund.

The money will be used for UNICEF rehabilitation work in the area of Peru struck by a massive earthquake in May 1970.

BETHEL, Conn. (AP) — Howard Barlow, the voice of Firestone on radio and television from 1943 to 1961, died Monday night, He was 80.

Barlow began his career in 1919 as the popular symphony conductor on CBS and continued in the 1920s and 1930s as the network's first musical director.

Death was apparently the result of a heart attack.

Although Barlow was well-known on radio since the 1920s, his fame dated from 1943 when he became conductor of the 45-piece Firestone Orchestra on NBC and later on ABC radio and television.

Gospel Singer's Rites Attended by 6,000

CHICAGO (Reuter) — The city she made her home, in which she slowly built her fame, paid "the queen of Gospel" its final salute Tuesday in a theatre filled with the emotion of the hymns of Black America she represented.

Red roses and ferns banked Mahalia Jackson's coffin as her peers sang the notes of the soaring melodies she sent echoing around the world to etch the soul of her people in other minds.

More than 6,000 people jammed the stark modern theatre swaying ecstatically as Archie Franklin, "Soul" songstress of this age, delivered Lord, Take My Hand, Miss Jackson's favorite hymn, at the climax of the farewell tribute.

Admirers and friends from all parts of the country came to pay homage to the woman who struggled and sang her way to the top from the poverty of New Orleans, where her body was flown down Tuesday night for a funeral service and burial Saturday.

Coretta King, widow of Dr. Martin Luther King, proudly acknowledged that Mahalia, who died five days ago of heart disease in a Chicago hospital at the age of 60, "was my friend, your friend and the friend of mankind."

"She was black, proud and beautiful."

Police Chief Lost Confidence in Morality Squad

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Boisvert took over the Montreal police morality squad in 1967 after Police Chief Jean-Paul Gilbert told him he was "losing confidence" in the squad, a rent police chief whose conduct as head of the morality section is the subject of the inquiry.

Mr. Boisvert said he refused Mr. Gilbert's initial offer of the position made in January, 1967. "A few days later he called me in again and told me he was not satisfied with the performance of the morality squad, that he was losing confidence, and asked me if my decision was final."

Quebec Police Commission inquiry was told Tuesday.

Mr. Boisvert took over the squad in January, 1967, succeeding Jacques Sandoier, the current police chief whose conduct

Mr. Boisvert said he accepted the job the next day.

Mr. Jalbert, now director of investigations for the post office, said he consulted officers and then switched 16 men.

Man Who Forecast Moon Trips Sure Dead Girl to Live Again

MONTREAL (CP) — One day, says Guy de la Peterie, he will see his dead daughter again—alive and unchanged.

That was his hope when he had eight-year-old Genevieve preserved after death by the freezing process of cryonic suspension in Los Angeles last week.

Genevieve died of a kidney cancer in a private Los Angeles hospital and then experts of the Cryonics Society of California packed her body in ice.

Her blood was replaced with dimethyl sulphoxide, a biological preservative, and her body now is being preserved in a block of dry ice at 79 degrees below zero.

Mr. de la Peterie, 36, a pharmaceuticals salesman in Montreal, said in an interview Thursday he is convinced science one day will develop a technique of reviving his daughter and curing her illness.

"It is just as brilliant as she was in school near her home in suburban St. Leonard," he said. She'll ski, run, jump, resume her piano and ballet lessons.

"I never wanted my daughter to die because I loved her and she was very, very beautiful. Now I'm living with the tiny hope that I shall see her alive if I die. Let's not kill that hope."

Cancer caused Genevieve to have one kidney removed in April, 1970, and the record removed in August, 1971. Then after she went twice weekly to St. Justine Hospital in Montreal to be placed on an artificial kidney.

Her parents knew there was little hope for her by mid-November and early in January they flew her to Los Angeles. Genevieve lived two more days.

"After that I began thinking things over. If Genevieve's illness was to be terminal, then we'd preserve her until a cure came along.

"Within 10 years, Mr. de la Peterie predicts, a cure for cancer will be found. And he's sure of his predictions, as sure as he was 20 years ago in his native France when he predicted that man would walk on the moon and his friends laughed.

"Yes, I believe they can bring Genevieve back."

Mr. Wilhelm Reich, director of cryonics research at the Institute for Advanced Study of Human Abilities in Los Angeles, said Wednesday that damage to the body cells during the freezing process is reversible.

"Yes, I believe so. There will be no brain damage when sooner or later Genevieve is thawed out and found it was in perfect condition."

Stirling

STIRLING — River Valley Developers Ltd. announced Thursday it has signed an agreement to purchase 1,000 acres of land in Stirling.

The land is just south of the village and is bounded by Highway 14 on the west and Rednersville Road on the east.

The company plans to develop a residential community on the property.

Stirling Senior Citizens recently sponsored two euchre card parties. There were prizes awarded.

Mr. Harold C. Martin received word of the death of his sister, Mrs. Ida Louise Scott, Los Angeles

Mrs. George Heasman and her daughter, Mrs. William Webber are holidaying in Mexico and other points in the South.

The couple also considered the religious aspect of their decision. Friends and relatives approved, they said, and have telephoned to say so.

"I'm a Catholic by birth," said de la Peterie explained "but not a practising one. So the soul aspect doesn't bother me at all.

"The soul is in the brain cells. And if these cells are brought back to life, the body will act as it did before."

Genevieve is the first known child to be cryonically suspended. Eventually, her father said, he hopes to have her body taken from the dry ice to liquid nitrogen and placed in a special capsule.

That should be done within two months, he said, when, to increase the child's chances of being brought back to life unharmed, he would need an initial outlay of between $4,000 and $5,000 in addition to the $15,000 to $20,000 he's committed to pay in installments over three years. Genevieve's body is being kept in liquid nitrogen.

"The truth is I haven't been able to pay anything towards the cost of Genevieve's two operations and fares to and from California, not more than $10,000. They've left us with no money and we may have to declare a cheque-" apartment."

Air Controller Says Union Violated Rules in Ending Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — The executive of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association says it has received no formal complaints from union members about a decision last week to call for an end to an 11-day strike.

The statement Tuesday followed a claim that the union leadership acted unconstitutionally when it agreed to submit its differences with the government in a contract dispute to an arbitrator.

The challenge came from Harry Thibault, past president of the Toronto branch of the union and an instructor at the air traffic control school in Ottawa.

Mr. Thibault said in an interview the union's leadership should have put its decision to a vote by the 1,600 controllers. A legal opinion, obtained at his own expense, is that any award handed down by arbitrator Noel Hall of Vancouver will not be binding on either the union or the federal treasury board.

A committee of unhappy controllers is taking up the issue, he said, and was expected to demand that a vote be held.

Mr. Thibault noted that five days before the action by the membership, technology to reject a government offer and to strike, the union had voted down almost all commercial air traffic across the coast.

He said union leaders have admitted the strike did not conform to the association constitution but they showed no intention of seeking even after-the-fact ratification.

In its reply, the union executive stated that the decision to reconsider a return to work was fully endorsed by the association's national council, its executive and by a majority vote of the membership.

Union Keeps Tight Rein on Electronic Technicians

OTTAWA (CP) — Union leaders are trying to keep a tight rein on 2,300 government electronics technicians in hopes of averting a strike and reaching a settlement with the treasury board.

Bill Andrest, president of local 2228 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said Tuesday the union executive has ordered its members to technicians to "hold tight until they hear from us."

Earlier, at a news conference, he said the union membership is "champing at the bit" and wants to strike now, but "we believe it is under control at this time.

The union was to meet with treasury board this afternoon following overwhelming rejection by the technicians of a conciliation board report which would have given a level EL-4 technician a $5.5-per-cent salary raise over 28 months.

Bargaining was based on the EL-4 category. Technicians at this level now make a maximum of $10,800 annually.

The conciliation board recommendations were unanimous, winning approval even from the union representative. But after the terms were released, hundreds of technicians walked off their jobs for 24-hour "study sessions" Jan. 13.

The transport department employs about 1,300 technicians in service radar, navigational and communications equipment for air and marine transportation.

Others work for the departments of communications, defence, environment, external affairs, manpower, Indian affairs, northern affairs, energy, mines and resources and agriculture.

Mr. Andrest told reporters Tuesday that the conciliation board report was rejected by 69 per cent of the membership. This percentage would probably rise with returns from overseas members.

He said the union does not have a strike fund but is organizing committees to deal with the welfare of members.

He acknowledged that the union executive was surprised by the 24-hour walkouts after the conciliation board report was released.

"We didn't realize our membership was that militant."

A technicians' strike would slow down movement of aircraft but not halt it. It could also affect marine traffic.

A large number of technicians would have to remain on the job. More than 300 technicians would be designated essential workers by the transport department alone.

Electronics graduates of technical schools are recruited by the government at a salary of $6,000 annually. They can reach level EL-4 within seven years. The maximum salary at level EL-5 is $16,322.

Extradition Is Sought

LA PAZ, Bolivia (Reuter) — France formally requested Tuesday the extradition from Bolivia of naturalized Bolivian citizen Klaus Barbie, alleged to be former Gestapo chief Klaus Barbie, a foreign ministry spokesman said.

Barbie, ex-Gestapo chief in Lyons, responsible for the execution and torture of hundreds of French resistance fighters, was sentenced to death in his absence by a French military tribunal after the war.

Barbie, 56, who settled in Bolivia in 1951 and became a Bolivian citizen six years later, is said to have served with the German SS but reached only the rank of lieutenant.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Get an early start to be on top of this full and busy day. It's a matter of sheer quantity rather than a range of qualities.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Being cultural, esthetic experience into sharper focus. Music and theatre are linked; note rally, and it's time to pursue them both.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): So much of what you'd thought confidential turns out to be common knowledge, some of it a merry joke at that.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Cooperation is any reasonable activity should be readily available—if not, then you're in a less-than-optimum situation.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Create a personal celebration for yourself, make the best apportion you can, take the day off.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Persuasion, negotiation, letter writing require your attention, produce those results now, not later. Young people and their concerns pose serious questions.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 22): Be brief and to the point, but let everybody hear something from you.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Home and its surroundings attract your attention—leisure activities and social amenities. Gather good friends about you.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Think, put on a different face today, self an idea. You may leave behind some old habits as you go forward.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): An amiable word in the right places opens many doors for you. Self-expression comes fluently.

NEW COURSE

QUEBEC (CP) — Schools here have included a new course at the elementary level to create a "school spirit" and promote contacts between students of different grades. Enrichment activity, as it is called, helps develop creative, imaginative and initiative potential in students, one school director said.

But when you lead the ace of trumps and West shows out, you start having second thoughts about the matter. With the trumps breaking 4-4, there is good reason to start worrying about the hand.

Then, if you proceeded to draw East's remaining trumps, you might find yourself hard pressed with a losing diamond (which you could have ruffed in dummy had the trumps broken in a more civilized fashion). This is not a healthy prospect to look forward to, so you naturally cast about for some other way of taking care of the potential diamond loser.

In accordance with this, you stop leading trumps and instead cash the K-Q of clubs. Once you've passed this hurdle you are well on the way to victory.

You trump a spade low, play the nine of hearts to the jack, then trump dummy's last spade with the king before playing the ten of hearts to the queen.

As a result of these manoeuvres you are out of trumps in your own hand, but this is no hardship as you still have the eight in dummy to take the last trick. Moreover, when you cash the eight, you are able to discard the four of diamonds on it and the easily problem of how to cope with an unfavorable diamond distribution absolutely disappears. You win the last three tricks with the A-K-Q of diamonds.

Tomorrow: Deception.

Famous Castle

The Coolichsdorf castle in East Germany is visited by tens of thousands of tourists each year. In August, 1945, the famous Potsdam Agreement was signed at the castle providing for the splitting up of Germany into zones and since that time the Castle has been an historic site.

Mackasey to Mesh Manpower and UIC

OTTAWA (CP) — Bryce Mackasey says his priority as manpower minister will be to co-ordinate the work of manpower centres and unemployment insurance offices.

The manpower centres are supposed to help the unemployed find jobs while the offices pay out benefits and handle job retraining.

Confusion and conflict have developed, however. For instance, both systems have come out as first" advertising.

Some communities have a manpower centre but no unemployment insurance office. In others it is the reverse.

Mr. Mackasey, who took over the department Tuesday, said in an interview the division of powers has created "a waste of potential."

He brings from the labor department responsibility for the Unemployment Insurance Commission. The Canada Manpower Centre system is run by the manpower department.

He left no doubt he hopes to meld them into a system that will provide "better servicing" for the unemployed.

"I've seen a lot of things I'd like to do," Mr. Mackasey, who was labor minister for four years, said of the manpower department.

Almost them is a computer inventory of what jobs are available and who is around to fill them.

He said his new portfolio offered him more satisfaction than resolving labor disputes, his main job in four years as labor minister.

"I didn't get pushed out," he said.

"There is no truth in the rumor I was put out by the business community."

Agreement on Trade Shaping Up

OTTAWA (CP) — A tentative agreement on Canada-U.S. trade issues appears to be emerging from a series of informal talks between officials of the two countries.

The agreement may include removal of Canada's so-called 'safeguards' under the Canada-U.S. auto pact and greater Canadian purchases of U.S. weapons.

A Canadian trade official said Tuesday no specific proposals were brought back from Washington talks last week by deputy trade minister James Grandy. Officials were still "trying to clear up some of the underbrush."

A spokesman for the U.S. embassy here, however, suggested that a decision, representing a consensus among the negotiators, may be taken before the end of this week and announced later this month.

Welfare Recipients Work

TORONTO (CP) — Ten welfare recipients in Owen Sound are working in a conservation area as part of a work activity project intended to teach the chronically unemployed how to work.

—Removal of safeguards under the 1965 auto pact that guarantee Canada a certain share of North American auto production. Canadian production now exceeds the guaranteed levels and their removal is—for the next few years, at least—symbolic.

—A review of Canadian duties on cars imported from the U.S. by individuals. The U.S. has sought removal of such duties.

—Raising the duty-free allowance for Canadians returning from U.S. trips.

—Lessening tariff and other impediments to U.S.-made defence material entering Canada. Canada is currently running a large surplus in defence trade despite understandings that the two countries would maintain a balance.

THE BEST OF SPORT (Dial. 192 pp.) Edited by Al Silverman

From Jim DiMaggio to Muhammad Ali, from Jackie Robinson to Lew Alcindor, from Dook Weber to Rocky P. Kennedy — the reader will be pleased to find the stuff sports giants and the humble jocks. Today Roger Kahn can write of "the myth of the desire of truth." in which the dramatic contrast of baffling competition might reveal not only a individual's unexpected strengths and weaknesses but also the unspoken rules by which a game is played and talked about. Athletics has become a multi-million dollar business and sportsmen have become tougher, more realistic and much better.

PARACHUTES AND PARACRUTING (A Modern Guide to the Sport) — Dud Sellick

Dud Sellick dispels the Wonderful World of Today's parachuting and embraces it as a sport to be enjoyed. He gives expert tips and instructions on accomplishing turns, barrel rolls, front, back, loop, and hunge with others. Here are explained all the ins and outs of competition and sport jumping style, accuracy, night jumping, flare and smoke banks, dives, and water jumping. There are appendices which offer information on winners of world parachuting championships, official rules of parachuting, and the basic safety regulations of the U.S. Parachuting Association.

A PARENT'S GUIDE TO THE PREVENTION AND CONTROL OF DRUG ABUSE — Paul M. Goldhill, M.D.

Dr. Goldhill shows conclusively that drug abuse is the result of an emotional imbalance that stems from insecure and unhealthy family relationships. He further demonstrates how healthy family relationships can be developed: or, if they are already fractured, repaired. Doctor Goldhill sets the responsibility for the treatment of drug abuse squarely on the shoulders of the abuser and on the shoulders of the parents. Dr. Goldhill offers a method of prevention and control that has had substantial success.

WHAT YOU CAN DO (Practical Suggestions for Action on Some Major Problems of the Seventies) — by the Staff of the Christian Science Monitor

The problems covered are pollution, spanning the generation gap, peace, poverty, big bones ethics, race relations, and the aged. Making no attempt to go into the subject itself in depth, each article is addressed to both young adults and their parents, telling exactly what an interested person can do about the pollution on his own level; the obstacles to living in peace; the young drug addict who needs human help; and about some of the other problems we face. Lists of active organizations and books to read in each category emphasize the practical nature of the approach.

THE ENIGMA OF MARY STUART — Jan R. Caven

Dr. Caven, lecturer in Scottish history at the University of Glasgow, has introduced each phase of Mary's life with his own commentary upon the material, and has contributed a long introductory survey of the many changes of attitude that separate the contemporaries from our own. In this most original book the many interpretations of Mary and the ever-changing attitudes towards her, are brought together by juxtaposing passages from a great variety of writings about her down the years.

JAMES V — KING OF SCOTS (1512-42) — Caroline Bingham

Caroline Bingham's portrait of James V is the more telling for the lack of sentimentality. Just as her portrayal of this age is the more vivid from the warmth of his sympathy, Murder, abduction, treachery were incidents that the young King observed at first hand. Perhaps it was this that enabled him to obtain some sort of ascendancy over his lawless and over-mighty subjects, and to maintain a fighting front against such a formidable antagonist as Henry VIII.

Mrs. Iva Burtch held a quilting bee at her Plevna home recently for the A.C.W. There was a good crowd out to assist.

At the most recent card party held in Plevna, there was a good crowd assembled, and the winners of the prizes were: Mrs. Evelyn Watkins, Bruce King, Franklin King, Dalton Sproule and the lone hand was won by Bernice Gunsinger. A dainty lunch was served at the conclusion.

Steven Tooley of Plevna, has the good fortune to catch a 4½-pound pickerel recently.

At Least Vitamin E Does No Harm

By G. C. THORTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thorteson: Women are buying vitamin E capsules like mad, claiming it contributes to beauty of the skin and practically eliminates the necessity of a plastic surgeon. There's no limit to the number of capsules they consume. Could you mention possible dangers from an overdose? — L.O.

Dear Doctor: I have carpal tunnel syndrome and the doctor told me if it wasn't better soon, it would have to be operated on. Some friends in a health store said if I took vitamin E and C, and bone meal and magnesium in large amounts, the trouble would go away in six months.— Mrs. C.S.

Just two samples of letters that are coming in on the crest of the present fad for taking vitamin E for whatever ails you.

Others "have heard" that vitamin E will cure heart disease, diabetes, varicose veins, sterility, cancer and you name it. Just about everything under the sun, it seems.

The vitamin E fad or craze, or whatever you care to call its present popularity, became so great that the Food and Drug Administration made a special review of the matter. Part of its report read:

"The medical literature contains a great number of reports on the clinical uses of vitamin E in connection with miscarriage, sterility, loss of libido (sex drive), hair loss, muscular dystrophy, muscle weakness, coronary heart disease and liver trouble—among others.

"Unfortunately, our review shows no definite, conclusive findings of success.

It points out that at least some of the claims for this vitamin come from what you might call "cruise Englich" experiments—deprive rats of vitamin E and they stop reproducing. But, you see, such an experiment does not mean that giving heaps of vitamin E will cure sterility that had developed from some other cause.

Vitamin E is present in a wide variety of foods, and I know of no evidence that any human being has suffered from a lack of it. short of actual starvation.

On the other hand, I can find no evidence that vitamin E ever hurt anybody. At the rate some people are now taking it, possibly some further answer may become apparent in time, though.

Chief danger, I should judge, would occur if somebody with diabetes starts taking vitamin E and deserting the already-proved methods of controlling that disease. That could be disastrous. The same might well apply to other diseases. If known treatments are abandoned.

But except for that, I'm not going to try to tell anybody not to take the stuff if you feel like it. And there are a few ailments in which it is supposed to be helpful. Dupuytren's contracture, for one, and Peyronie's disease, which under any circumstances is hard to treat. Maybe those will pan out well.

I'm curious to many other diseases, for hearing you from growing old? The concluding line of the Book of Ecclesiastes says:

"If you're hoping a self-medicating overdose of vitamin E will stop the aging slide—or even stop the clock from ticking—you're dreaming about a miracle that hasn't yet come to pass.

Dear Dr. Thorteson: I have one or two small red marks on my left insail (very small). My doctor says it is a normal condition. What would you say? — R.J.

You want me to disagree with a physician who has seen the spot, while I haven't?

Note to M.V.C.: Nearly all of the flu vaccine in use is designed to protect against a variety of common strains of flu virus.

Civil Rights March May Spread Strife

Sunday Crisis

Ulster Parade Ban Likely to Be Defied

BELFAST (CP) — Northern Ireland civil rights leaders were reported today ready to defy appeals to cancel an illegal parade similar to the one in which 13 persons died in Londonderry last Sunday.

As all Ireland mourned those who died in Londonderry, the executive of the Northern Ireland Civil Rights Association was Wednesday night with officials from the Newry border area where the next march is planned for Sunday.

The association was to announce its decision today.

The British government has warned the civil rights group that it will stick to its policy of banning all such parades. Until it is revoked, Britain's government's internment-without-trial policy — and if Londonderry is any indication is held, the security forces will break it up.

About 30,000 Roman Catholics assembled in Londonderry Wednesday for the funerals of the 13 killed by British soldiers last Sunday.

There have been many deaths in the Northern Ireland Wednesday as snipers and guerrillas combined their campaign of violence.

Early Belfast, a taxi driver was shot in the head and killed as he carried a battery to his car. He was apparently ill during an exchange of fire between troops and gunmen in the area of the post in the Catholic Ballymurphy area.

Just before midnight, one man was killed and seven others injured when a bomb exploded outside a bar at Stewartstown, about 30 miles west of Belfast.

People drinking inside the bar were given first-aid before the bomb went off.

Earlier a soldier was shot three times in the chest, leg and

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Snow fell in parts of Ontario overnight ahead of a low pressure system that will move into the Great Lakes. As the system continues to move northeastward into Ontario snowfall warnings are in effect for most areas expected to be in the path of the heavy flakes today. West of this system colder air is beginning to push out of the northwest. This will begin to move into southwestern Ontario today and the rain will change back to flurries this evening. Friday promises colder weather under mainly sunny skies with the exception of a few lingering areas where flurries will continue. Temperatures will begin to drop off by this evening into the 20s with Friday's values in the low teens across the south.

Visits Moscow

Sadat Seeks Okay On War

MOSCOW (AP) — President Anwar Sadat of Egypt opened talks with Soviet leaders today, and informed sources in Beirut said he will press for approval for his decision to resume limited hostilities across the Suez canal.

Sadat is also expected to ask for more military aid, particularly offensive weapons for strikes deep into Israel in view of the United States agreement to resume selling Phantom fighter-bombers to the Jewish state.

With anti-Soviet feeling rising in Egypt and the Arab world, Sadat is expected to put the Soviet-Egyptian friendship and co-operation treaty of last May to the test. He said before he left Egypt that the Moscow talks will help him determine whether to start a new war against the Israeli-occupied Sinai Desert and that a decision on six offensive will be made on his return.

Fortunes of War

$150,000 Found Cached in Cave

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former U.S. army platoon leader in Vietnam testified Wednesday his men "went into shock when an army ammunition box in a cave was found to contain $150,000 in $20 dollar bills.

"I had a hard time trying to command the people," Dan Dorsey told the U.S. court of claims.

They were definitely excited about splitting up the money for their own personal use," he said. "All I could do was to say soldiers do not use U.S. currency in Vietnam."

Dorsey, now an assistant manager of a clothing store in Minneapolis, Minn., testified for the government in opposition to the claim of Donald W. Morrison of Mooresville, Ga., who says he found the money and should get it back.

Col. Dean Schooley, a Pentagon official, said he has interviewed Morrison three times and Morrison, in mid-1968, told the expert neither he nor any of his men had attempted to find out who had owned the money.

Interest Conflicts Shunned

TORONTO (CP) — A secret memo from Premier William Davis to all cabinet ministers and government MPPs has ordered them to draw immediately any activity that could provide a conflict of interest.

The memo, obtained today at The Sun, says that "whenever a member is in doubt as to the effect of interest he should immediately disassociate himself from the matter."

"Moreover, I would appreciate it if you would review your personal responsibilities . . . and discuss with me any cases where you think a conflict exists."

Austrian Ski Head Threatened

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — The president of the Austrian Ski Federation says he received telegrams from Austria with threats to kill him because the Austrians do not allow Karl Schranz from the 11th Winter olympic Games after the ouster of coach Karl Schranz.

Dr. Karl Heinz Klee told reporters Wednesday: "I still think I was right to stay here after Schranz asked us to resign. Now I was in favor of withdrawing, but I bowed to the will of the majority."

Schranz was barred from competition for allowing his name and picture to be used in advertising, leading to his banishment as a professional.

"The decision will become more right if we win medals here," Klee said. "If we don't, it will become worse.

Public Service Head Seeking New Way to Test Bilingualism

OTTAWA (CP) — John Carson, public service commission chairman, said Wednesday night the commission is attempting to establish new testing methods to determine levels of bilingualism in the public service.

He said bilingualism tests are still "crude."

Mr. Carson made his statement at a public forum organized by public affairs program manager Irene Cliff's radio and CBOT television, local CBC stations. He was replying to a statement from the audience that the bilingual requirements of one department need not be as stringent as for another.

Mr. Carson said: "We're trying to institute passive bilingualism where public servants will be able to understand what's being said in a second language and have the capability to read it while continuing to express themselves in their first language."

He expressed satisfaction in the number of public servants taking government language courses. He said in 1964 there were 60 students and by the end of this year there will be about 10,000.

Problem of Tapping Energy of Sun Said Solved by U. S. Scientists

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two Arizona scientists say they believe they have solved a problem whose answer has long eluded man — an efficient way of tapping the boundless and free energy of the sun.

Dr. Aden B. Meinel of the University of Arizona and his wife Marjorie are building a device which will focus and trap sunlight.

The sunlight would be converted into heat which would be used to run conventional electrical generator stations.

Such stations now get their heat from nuclear fission or fossil fuels such as coal. The heat converts water to steam, which turns turbines connected to generators that produce electricity.

"This isn't a new electricity generating system; it's a new fuel source for generators that already exist," Mrs. Meinel told reporters Wednesday.

The first device, which the Meinels call a "credibility model," is expected to be ready in about three months. It is about the size of a large table.

The heart of the Meinels' converter is a stainless steel pipe on which microscopically thin films of moly-tungsten, cerium and magnesium compounds are deposited. They allow sunlight to pass through, but prevent much of the energy it contains from radiating back out.

Special lenses concentrate the sunlight before it strikes the pipe, generating temperatures up to 1,000 degrees. A gas or liquid flowing through the pipe carries off the heat for use at the power plant.

The Meinels expect to construct a demonstration plant within five years. The smallest such plant might cost $100 million and generate 25 million watts of power.

Once the solar converters were built, there would be no cost for the heat they generated, the scientists said. There also would be no pollution, depletion of natural resources or danger of radiation as exists with many present power plants. The plant would cover an area about the size of a football field.

Meinel predicted the cost would become competitive if enough units were built.

Art Dealer Suing Author Seeks Hughes Manuscript

VILLARS - SUR - OLLON, Switzerland (AP) — The fugitive art dealer who is suing Clifford Irving for $50 million says he is trying to get Irving's autobiography" of Howard Hughes to sell it to the billionaire recluse.

"Hughes is willing to pay any amount to have the manuscript and burn it," Ferand Legros said in an interview Wednesday. "He will try to get it and then we will hear from Hughes what he is ready to pay."

Richard Hansen, a public relations spokesman for the Hughes interests, said Levi has made contact with Hughes' lawyers but "Mr. Hughes has not offered nor is he willing to pay any such price to get the Irving manuscript."

Legros, who claims Irving libelled him in his book Fake, a 1969 bestseller about an art forger, is trying to get the Hughes manuscript by means of a writ of attachment he obtained in a New York court in connection with his suit. That means if Legros' lawyer can prove to a court that Irving has assets, they can be seized.

Legros has also demanded that Irving's publisher, the McGraw-Hill Book Co., turn over the manuscript. But Ted Weber, a McGraw-Hill spokesman, said the manuscript belongs to the publisher, not Irving, and "I can tell you nobody's going to get the Hughes manuscript."

Saulnier Probe Closed to Public

MONTREAL (CP) — About 150 spectators and reporters were locked out of the Quebec police commission hearing into the conduct of Public Chief Jacques Saulnier Wednesday, minutes after a key witness began to testify.

Constable Leo Villeneuve had just begun to tell about his role in investigations into the morality squad when Judge Roger Gosselin, commission chairman, decided to continue behind closed doors.

Before Wednesday's lockout of spectators and reporters, the 32-year-old constable testified about events before he and two other constables, along with 3rd lieutenant Bedard, their team, were transferred out of the morality squad.

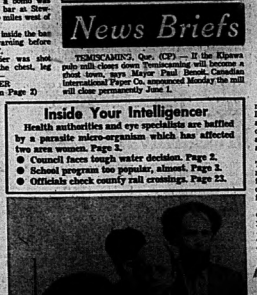
Constable Villeneuve said that on Nov. 18, 1968, he went to Mr. Saulnier, then a captain in charge of the morality squad, with "grave information concerning members of the morality squad" he said he received the previous day from an informer.

Constable Villeneuve added that after that encounter he stopped reporting to Mr. Saulnier "because he was, at times, one of the persons mentioned by informers."

In earlier testimony, Lieut. Emile Ducharme, the constable's superior, said he took the report to then chief Jean-Paul Gilbert.

Mr. Ducharme said that on Nov. 18, two days after he submitted the report, he was advised by Mr. Gilbert that he and the three constables who drafted the report were being transferred outside the morality squad.

Mr. Ducharme testified he had turned in reports on information he received concerning policemen to Mr. Gilbert and Mayor Jean Drapeau.



At the afternoon session, Mr. Gilbert, police chief from 1962 to 1969, said that constant investigations by Mr. Ducharme in 1968 into the conduct of the squad's captain made it "impossible for the morality squad to function properly."

At a recall he said he and Mr. Ducharme and the three constables transferred out.

Council Asked to Make Water Decision Feb. 14

City council will be handed the task of deciding on plans for the location of Belleville's future water supply, sources revealed today.

Commissioners and staff of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission, in a closed session Wednesday, "reached a unanimous conclusion" which will be presented to council on Feb. 14.

On Jan. 11, the consulting firm of Dove and Skerrie presented an engineering study which stated cost of supplying the Belleville area with water, would more than double in the next four years, regardless of the source of supply.

The choice rests between a $22 million project which will pipe water directly from Lake Ontario or a $15 million reservation to present facilities.

The position of the PUC was to have been made public at their next meeting, but yesterday's decision was not revealed.

Once this has gone to council, the Ontario Water Resources Commission plans to call a hearing to poll public opinion.

One commissioner believes this public concern by the OWRC is only skin deep. The OWRC is only skin deep. The my opinion that the OWRC has made up its mind. I've been told I'm wrong, but I don't think so," he said.

"I think there will be serious repercussions."

Three Safe-crack in 10 Days

Thieves last night drilled their way into the office safe at the Belleville Memorial Arena. Loot amounted to $300 from the petty cash fund, arena foreman Forman Ernest Flindall, shown here, said today. To add insult to injury, they used the arena's tools for the job.

Three Safes Are Robbed In City in Past 10 Days

Thieves early this morning drilled their way into a floor safe at the Belleville Memorial Arena. They made off with a petty cash fund of $300.

Adding insult to injury, the safecrackers made use of the arenas own tools to do the job. A horseshoe-shaped hole was drilled through the roof of the safe.

Arena foreman Ernest Flindall said he thought the culprits hid in the building until the 1 a.m. closing time. "It's taken them some time to do it," he said. An electric clock had been disconnected. It was stopped at 4.22 a.m.

City police Constables James Smith and William Brook discovered the break-in and called Mr. Flindall at 5:30 a.m.

Although no inventory check has been made, the foreman believes no attempt was made to break into the soft drink machines or the canteen.

This is the third safe job within the past 10 days but city Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie says there is no pattern.

He does admit, however, that the jobs were "similar" in nature.

On Jan. 24, thieves physically removed a floor safe at the Western Tire Store in the Belleville Plaza. They loaded the box onto a truck, which they then stole from the garage. Both truck and rifled safe were found on Elmwood Drive. Approximately $1,500, much of this in credit cards, and cheques, were stolen.

This Tuesday, thieves broke into the Belleville Livestock Sales Company barn on North Front Street. The safe was pried open. No loss has not been released.

Commenting on the first two safe jobs, Chief Crosbie said the thieves "certainly know" what they were doing.

He said all three had been done by the "classic safe job method," not usually employed by professional safecrackers.

The investigations continue.

BCI Taking Part In Carnival Week

Belleville Collegiate Institute has been holding its First full scale winter carnival this week, tieing in with the city winter carnival.

Started last Friday with a Toilet Bowl Football game between the senior students of the school, the highlight of last weekend's activities was the scavenger hunt, taking students across the city.

These points, as well as others earned during the week are linked into the house system at the school for an over all house trophy.

Today's major activities will be tobogan races and a staff against the students volleyball game to be held after school.

Friday will be boys and girls day at the school. Snow shoe races have also been scheduled but no location was announced.

Work will start Friday on the construction of snow sculptures to be entered into city competition.

Robert McKnight, student co-ordinator at the school said, "it could possibly be an all-night thing and a book-up has been arranged to feed the workers.

Saturday will begin with snow sculpture judging and then action will shift to Zwick's Island where inter-school competitions will be held in tobogan races, tug-of-wars and broom ball.

The final high school hockey game will be held in the Memorial Arena Saturday at 7:15 p.m. and at 8 p.m. a dance will be held in the Bleecker Auditorium.

Specialists Investigate

Baffling Eye Affliction Affects Two Women

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Health authorities in Belleville today confirmed they are investigating the presence of what they describe as parasitic micro - organisms, which have settled in the optic nerves of two local women.

Dr. D. R. Lenk, medical health officer for Hastings-Prince Edward counties, said the cases are rare and, so far, baffling in origin.

University of Toronto specialists are assisting in the investigation and the health office has reported both occurrences to the Ontario department of health, which also has detailed an official to the case.

The identities of the women — a teenage girl from the Corbyville area, the other woman from Belleville — have not been revealed. They are believed still in hospital in Toronto, under the scrutiny of ophthalmic specialists.

The tiny organisms — one in the eye of each woman — are believed to be larvae of allaria worms which usually breed in animal species — foxes, dogs, cats, snails and frogs — but seldom in humans, said the health officer.

Both cases were discovered several weeks apart, and no common factor as yet has been discovered in the incidents, said Dr. Lenk.

He says he has never heard of such a case before in Canada, and two such incidents within an area of relatively small population are "exceedingly rare."

Dr. Lenk, who once worked for British Coastal authorities, said he had heard of such cases of larvae being discovered in humans when he served in central Africa, but he has never heard of a case occurring in Canada.

The larvae grow into worms in the intestines of their wild life carriers, said the health officer, but he doubted if such growth would occur in humans.

The danger involved, he said, was that the parasitic micro - organism by their "very presence" in sensitive optic tissue, could cause eye damage.

Specialists and health authorities have been probing for a common factor to determine the origin of the organisms.

Samples of water, stools of pets in the households of both patients, even a sample of wild frog's legs have been involved in the search.

"There is no common factor that we can see at present," said Dr. Lenk. "This is awkward, because we like to get a common factor. Then, of course the puzzle will be solved."

Dr. S. E. Johnson, chief of ophthalmology at the department in Toronto, said one of her staff was looking into the report from Dr. Lenk.

She said she had never heard of two such cases before in Canada but that didn't "mean much," because she had not researched Canadian statistics.

Queen Victoria's Community School Program Draws Crowds

School Use So Successful Queen Vic Having Problem

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Queen Victoria School's community program is almost bursting the seams of the building.

The school used to draw about 80 each night to its program for teenagers but since Christmas the number has increased to about 100.

To relieve the congestion at Queen Victoria, plans are afoot to open up Sidney Alexandra for some activities for teenagers.

The community school committee, the group of teachers and men and women from the community who have steered the program through its formative years, met at the school last night for a mid-year review. And the consequences of success was the members' chief concern.

Although the teenagers' program is expanding, the deep freeze of a Canadian winter appears to have chilled enthusiasm for some of the adult activities.

Men's and women's keep fit classes have died out since the Christmas recess, and attendance has dropped at the family swim at Albert College every Monday night at 7 p.m.

The committee decided to wait until the weather improves to try to revive the keep fit classes.

The swimming, at a cost of $1 a family for the hour in the Albert pool will continue. with an appeal going out to all who are interested to telephone the school office at 968-8350.

The committee is sending out a second appeal — for supervisors for the evening program from 7 to 9 p.m. The program is dependant on volunteers from the school neighborhood to keep the activities going in the evening hours.

Donald Poynter, a recreational worker assigned to the school through the city recreation commission and project 500, a provincial government work program, presented ideas for expanded activities and for outdoor programs in the summer.

He is looking for "knowledgeable women" to take over a homemaking and crafts program for senior girls, someone with a broad background to teach knitting, crochet and knitting, sewing and any other crafts the girls might like to try.

At the same time, he is planning to open a small motors course for senior boys. Both programs are tentatively scheduled to take advantage of the home economics and shop rooms at Queen Alexandra.

Mr. Poynter has also offered to give free guitar lessons to those enrolled in the community school program and free piano and singing lessons are available to anyone who seeks instruction.

Program organizers are looking for an instructor to teach furniture refinishing and the chess lessons for both youngsters and adults will continue.

The children in Dick Lovering's chess club will now attend for an hour on Tuesday nights, leaving the next two hours of the evening for adults.

"I'd like to see more women come out to play chess," said Mr. Lovering.

Two 10 - week upholstery courses have now ended, with people coming from as far away as Consecon and Roslin to take the lessons.

One ceramics course is now over, and another 6 week course begins Thursday at 4:15 p.m. for children 12 years old and under. The fee is $5 and the instructor is Mrs. Audry Davies.

Through the community school program, roller skating is available at Ben Bleecker auditorium every Friday night for the teenagers. Tickets, if bought through the school, cost 35 cents for the evening.

"I hope this will take some of the pressure off the school and give the custodians time to revive the place for the next day," said Mr. Poynter.

Although originally conceived as a service to the neighborhood around Queen Victoria School, the community program is packing them in from all over the city.

It is drawing participants as far away as the Ha'g Road area and the west hill and in the case of some adult programs, from outside the city.

Local Scout Troop Aids Moosonee Boys

It's a long, long way to Moosonee, but human involvement makes distance a nothing.

At least that seems the case with a group of Belleville scouts who last night wrapped up their involvement in material response and despatched along the route to one of Ontario's least accessible settlements.

The scouts — members of the 2nd Belleville troop — Christ Church basement sorting and packing a round of such items as skates, comic books and coloring books.

The packages are destined for Indian students at a public school a good 700 miles away by road and rail in the Moosonee area.

Cosmo DeCleru, troop scout leader, said the project originally was inspired by a friend Earnest Hamilton — visiting him at Christmas, who teaches at the school.

Mr. Hamilton mentioned the need for such items by his 40 students. Mr. DeCleru put his scouts to work and by last night estimated they had sufficient response to fulfil the school teacher's wish.

Freight expenses will be paid by the scout troop's own committee, said Mr. DeCleru.

Cigarettes Are Stolen

TRENTON (Staff) — Town police have launched an investigation into the theft of $3,000 cigarettes and watches from Birt's Handy Stand yesterday.

Detective Sergeant Sid Vickers disclosed yesterday afternoon that the theft had taken place at the Byron Street store earlier in the morning.

He said entry was gained to the premises by cutting a hole in the roof with a chisel and that merchandise was removed from the store through a back door in the stock room. Discovery of the theft was made only after the shop opened Wednesday morning.

Police are currently investigating a number of leads.

Urban Renewal Report Due By End of Month

The long awaited final report for the Belleville central area urban renewal scheme, together with recommendations, will be ready for presentation to the city by the end of February.

That is the word from Allen Brass, of Proctor, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon, Toronto consulting engineers and planners, who carried out the renewal study for the city's downtown and Forter Ward areas.

In a recent letter to City Manager J. R. Reynolds Mr. Brass said he expected to complete the Belleville report by mid-February and would be able to submit it to the city by the end of the month.

Mr. Reynolds told council that the report was supposed to have been ready by last July or August.

Mayor J. Russell Scott agreed that the report was "long overdue" but said it now appeared there would be something ready by the middle of February.

Serious talk about the possibility of urban renewal in Belleville dates back more than five years when the Chamber of Commerce presented proposals for downtown redevelopment and a "magic circle" traffic pattern concept.

That same year council decided that a firm of professional town planners should be retained to do a full scale urban renewal study and early in 1968 made application to the senior governments for the 75 per cent grant being given for such studies.

The firm of Proctor, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon was retained and the study got under way in the fall of 1968.

But before the study was long under way the federal government withdrew the grants it was offering for approved projects under urban renewal schemes.

There was some question about the value of continuing the study in view of the withdrawal of federal grants but downtown merchants and interested citizens pressed for its completion.

The first interim report on the study had been received in September 1969 and in December of that year council decided to have the report completed.

The planners' conceptual report for the downtown and Foster Ward areas was received last April at which time a final report with recommendation was promised for midsummer.

The final report will include cost estimates for the various roads and municipal servicing proposals included in the report, together with cost estimates in acquiring land for redevelopment purposes under public or private initiatives.

Findings of the more recent north-south arterial road study done by Totten, Sims and Hubicki Associates, will also be included in the report.

Court Sentences

Solicitor-General Goyer of all people is quoted as saying judges need guidelines and expert help in determining correct sentences.

The members of the judiciary may have wondered if they had heard the man correctly, but there was Mr. Goyer suggesting a complete review of the sentencing process, adding that perhaps the judges themselves can get together and decide guidelines they can suggest to government.

Earlier the Solicitor-General had said a prisoner's chance for rehabilitation were lessened if a judge imposed too severe a sentence. No mention of the lamentable tendency of some judges to impose sentences of such incredible leniency as to make one wonder at the future of law and order. No mention either of the extraordinary alacrity of the Parole Board to allow prisoners out — and in the case of some, notably Yves Geoffroy, to go completely free.

But wait . . . maybe Mr. Goyer is not so deep in cuckoo land as might be imagined, for there was Mr. Justice Morand of the Ontario Supreme Court saying that while judges must retain the right to decide sentences (indeed, who but they should have the sole right?) he was sure they would welcome assistance from social specialists (who, incidentally, are often among our latter-day apostles of leniency) in reaching decisions. But is there anything new in this? The courts have always relied on advice from professional people; probation officers, clergymen and the like in reaching their decisions.

And Mr. Justice Morand may also have a point, along with Mr. Goyer, for how can we reconcile the inconsistency of sentences meted out? A few days ago we questioned the suspended sentence imposed in Sudbury on a 29-year-old American who had pleaded guilty to raping a 13-year-old girl. Compare this with the seven-year sentence imposed on a 19-year-old Toronto woman on Monday when she pleaded guilty to importing 275 pounds of marijuana from Jamaica. The sentence seems all the more harsh considering Judge Lyon's statement that he was satisfied the woman was not the main offender in the case. Guidelines then? Well the members of the judiciary must know their law; what they don't seem to be able to agree on is appropriate punishment; and this despite the fact guidelines are already available. Judge Lyon of Toronto for one knows this — the seven years he imposed on Clifford Houchen was the minimum term for the offence.

Quebec Progress

A communique from the Government of Quebec in recent days notes that the legislature adopted 120 bills in 1971 and quotes Premier Bourassa as saying "the second session had a bright economic, social and administrative character. . ."

Although this communique, as it is styled, was mailed in Quebec City January 27 it is datelined December 24, indicating there was little if any hurry for christmas celebration among the Quebec civil service. The text is under the hand of one Charles Denis.

Now it is something of an event to receive Press handouts from Quebec City so we have studied it with more than passing interest. Under the heading of economics Premier Bourassa is quoted as saying that "net job creation" more than quadrupled in 1971 with an estimated 50,000 to 55,000 new jobs compared with only 12,000 in 1970. Last year there was the best since 1967, in spite of the disturbances of October and the U.S. dollar crisis.

Premier Bourassa comes in for praise under the heading Alertness of the Administration, but is credited with spending personally prospects in North America and Europe, travelling twice to New York and once to San Francisco, as well as to London, Brussels, Dusseldorf, Milan, Rome and Paris. This resulted among other benefits in a $120 million contract for the construction of 12 ships. At home the premier twice visited Roupn, as well as Saint-Jean-Vianney, the Magdalen Islands, La Sarre, Rivière-du-Loup, the Eastern Townships and Hull. Moreover, the province played host to a number of international dignitaries including French foreign minister Maurice Schumann and President Tito of Yugoslavia.

There is mention of cultural and economic contacts with French-speaking countries in Africa as well as such domestic considerations as the Dorion Commission report covering the matter of language rights in Quebec.

All in all we are afforded a very comprehensive look at the Bourassa government's performance in 1971. When all is said and done the province of Quebec is one of the more stable regions of the world today, a happy factor it shares with the rest of Canada.

Goyer Now Making It Easy for Campus Radicals

Ottawa Red-faced At Reaction To Prison "Reform"

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Solicitor General Jean-Pierre Goyer, in a speech urged if not instant "reforms" of the prison and parole system is causing the government acute embarrassment, have turned to the universities.

The Solicitor-General's policy, apply on law and order, is recognized as the theme of Queen's room, is that the rehabilitation of the criminal must come before the protection of society.

And so, in the months since he took over the jails and parole procedures have become so free and easy that the public, at first alarmed, is now recently has taken to laughing.

At the government.

And this is what is upsetting the administration, and to how the unhappy occupants of the East Block; disturbing the

Mr. Tassy is the taxpayers laughing at him and his boss, Solicitor-General.

Demands have been made for the heads of the Solicitor General, of Parole Board Chairman George Street, of Commissioner of Penitentiaries Commissioner P. A. Nelson.

But public and political calls for dismissals and resignations usually come from the party in government.

Not Ottawa, ridicule and laughter, though.

Nor anger, either.

Guy Marcil, president of the Montreal Police Association, is not alone in saying that if they don't know in Ottawa what is going on."

They cannot, he says, or they would realize that "90 percent of the 100 shootists last year between police and criminals in Montreal were drug addicts, or users of them on parole.

The RCMP felt so strongly about Jean-Pierre Goyer's views are profoundly close to the point of mutiny that it was approached Solicitor-General.

And now, turning back the clock to the days of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Prime Minister Lester Pearson, the Solicitor General is chasing the RCMP off the campus and university campus.

Mr. Pearson first did it to the money of the Canadian Broadcasting to the demands of the Ontario Association of University Teachers.

For police to interfere with illegal strikes, property damage, vandalism, and the preachers of the New Left declaring of social, civil disobedience, he said, was a violation of freedom. It was argued, of civil liberties on the campus.

Then, over succeeding years, and particularly when parliamentary veteran George McIlraith became Solicitor-General under Prime Minister Trudeau, the RCMP sort of "stiffed" back onto campuses.

George McIlraith was a no-nonsense kind of Solicitor-General, and, as he saw it, the Mount police departments should maintain law and order, and leave the universities much respect for it.

So when Jean-Pierre Goyer took office he began a different approach, the University Teachers Association and the RCMP what it termed its unease and apprehension over RCMP campus surveillance.

And Jean - Pierre Goyer obliged them by "reforming" and reaffirming the Lester Pearson-McIlraith policy of 1969.

Before there could be RCMP surveillance on campus, Mr. Goyer proclaimed, there had to be a specific request for it to be made.

But the RCMP, protested the academics, had outlawed themselves.

which is not surprising in view of the various disregard the Police and the Solicitor-General have for the rights of citizens in some of its bright young men to undertake illegal workshops.

Social Science Professor Marie-Andree Bertrand of the University of Montreal, in typical words, called for a public hearing into such RCMP activities which work an average $10,000 to $12,000.

Further, she protests, following the same protests, that Solicitor-General, RCMP "informers" were preppy on Quebec and other campuses.

Is there, after all, any need of RCMP activities at universities when there are "informers" in the halls of higher learning?

Perhaps Professor Bertrand answered the question with her statement that "agents of the state have been given the right to act as provocateurs." If these agents are of the RCMP the whole matter, they would have been hushed by the authorities.

A Question for Constituents

Members of Parliament: How Do They Rate?

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Ottawa Bureau
of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — How good is your member of Parliament? Leaving partisan considerations aside, just how well do you think your federal representative performs, both in his riding and in Ottawa?

Residents of Canadians will be considering this question in the coming months as the next election draws near. If your present MP does not measure up in your opinion perhaps you have a couple of choices. You can vote one in the next election, a candidate of another party. But if you want to support your own party, last out the MP himself, the problem is much tougher.

Only by getting together with other members of the party in your riding and supporting another man or woman at the nomination meeting can this be done. And in Canadian politics it is a rare occurrence when an MP does not get the party nomination as often as he wishes to seek it.

In my view, there are three general classifications of MPs. There is the MP who speaks frequently in the Commons, who is active in the daily question period, and who plays a leading role in the caucus of his own party caucus. He gets a lot of publicity, is frequently quoted and interviewed and, in short, becomes a national political figure. But the same man may be a poor riding representative. His drive for national fame may mean much scant time is given to the daily, mundane chores of looking after his constituents. He visits his riding infrequently and when he does, makes little effort to meet with and talk to the average Joe.

Then there is the type of member who hardly ever speaks in the Commons, is never interviewed by the news media and rarely takes part in question period.

But this member is a good constituency man. He spends most of his time helping people in his riding with their problems involving the federal government—everything from pension application, unemployment insurance claims, immigration problems, rush requests for passports, even trying to find a job for an out-of-work constituent.

He visits his riding often and usually has regular hours every week when people can make appointment him and talk over their problems or take their questions. He reads the local papers carefully and keeps fully informed on what is going on in his riding, even to the extent of sending messages of congratulation on births, marriages and similar happy events. He knows a lot of people by their first name and is readily available to the average citizen.

The third classification—and it is not only the best, but the rarest—is the MP who somehow manages to combine the best of both of the above classifications. Not only does he take on special responsibilities for his riding perhaps as a result of position critic to a cabinet minister or heading up a caucus committee in some special field, he also does his riding homework. He is active in both.

I said there were three general classifications. Perhaps I should have said four. Unfortunately, there is also the MP at the low end of the scale. He takes little interest in his Ottawa work and is lazy when it comes to looking after his riding. Fortunately, this type is few and far between; but voters have a responsibility to find out who these people are and to make sure they are not returned to office.

In assessing the value of an MP, the Commons' Hansard report is one guideline, but not a particularly good one. Hansard has an index which lists, among other things, how many times each MP has spoken or asked a question. It does give a fair indication of the extent of "an MP's activities in the Commons. It says nothing about his committee or caucus work, nor about the less glamorous business of taking care of riding matters.

And it has one other disadvantage. It is weighted in favour of MPs from opposition parties. By the nature of the beast, the Commons is a place where a government back-bencher has little influence. During the daily question period probably 95 per cent of the questions come from the opposition benches. Cabinet ministers often enter debate but often the government whip discourages such participation if the government is anxious to get a piece of legislation put through with a minimum of delay.

The other day I saw a statement from Gordon Sullivan, the Liberal MP for Hamilton Mountain. He announced he did not intend to run in the next election. My reaction, and the reaction of many members of the Press Gallery, was: "Gordon Sullivan, who he?"

A check with the Hansard index tends to confirm that un kind question. In the period from Oct. 8, 1970 to Nov. 19, 1971, there are only seven entries under his name, all but three of them questions. Contrast this, say, to the index for the same period for the New Democrat from Waterloo-Cambridge. The entry under Mr. Saltzman's name occupies over two pages of the index and numbers well over 100 separate items.

Consider Doug Stewart, the Liberal MP for Okanagan-Kootenay East. He makes not appearance in the index at all, indicating no questions and no speeches in the Commons.

I don't know Mr. Sullivan personally, but he may be a fine constituency man. I do know Mr. Stewart. He has told me that his particular view of how to be a good MP is to work hard on local affairs and is not intent on an active Commons role. Whether this decision to seem, be—performs his riding duties well, both in Ottawa and on frequent trips back to his British Columbia constituency. I think, therefore, that we may fairly say that it takes all kinds. And there are all kinds of MPs in the Commons. It's up to the voters to decide which kind they prefer.

Seven Countries in Survey Spend More Than Canada on Education

Peterborough Examiner

The latest subject for a thorough examination and economic survey by the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development in Canda. The OECD which includes among its members Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Finland, France, the Federal Republic of (West) Germany, Greece, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, the United Kingdom and the U.S., plus Yugoslavia as an "associate", also looks among other things, the highest educational economic growth and employment and rising standard of living.

Did you know, for example, that the per capita Gross National Product in Sweden is higher than in Canada ($3,820 to $3,500)? It is $4,360 in the U.S., $3,240 in Switzerland, $3,200 in Denmark, $3,020 in West Germany, $2,980 in France, $2,900 in France and Norway, $2,760 in the U.K. — and $218 in Yugoslavia.

Did you know that of the 23 OECD countries Canada has the larger percentage of their GNP on education than Canada — and that the U.S. is not among them? Canada's share is 6.36 per cent, the U.S.'s 6.19 per cent. Sweden spends 7.80 per cent of its GNP on education, the Netherlands 6.71, Switzerland and Finland 6.36, Denmark 6.21, Italy 5.80, Norway 5.61, Austria 4.40 and the U.K. 4.19 per cent.

As for gross fixed investment only 3.8 per cent of Canada's GNP went into residential construction (1965-68 average) and only three countries were behing us: Turkey (3.6), the U.K. (3.6) and the U.S. (3.5 per cent) (No figures are available for Yugoslavia.)

High-rise Living Today

Ottawa Journal

Dr. Daniel Cappon, a psychiatrist and professor in the Faculty of Environmental Studies at York University, has produced a brutal "facts" about the effects of high - rise living on mental and social health, particularly among children.

Writing in the publication Housing and People, published by the Canadian Council on Social Development, Dr. Capon says children who live in high-rise apartments are worst affected by the lack of opportunity for physical exercise. He says it leads to lethargy, restlessness, and eventually fear or withdrawal; depersonalization or psychopathy.

He talks of combining the observations as the mental health director in a child guidance centre in York township for five years.

Some of his other findings:

Adolescents in the high - rise suffer more from having noth-

taken little interest in his Ottawa work and is lazy when it comes to looking after his riding. Fortunately, this type is few and far between; but voters have a responsibility to find out who these people are and to make sure they are not returned to office.

Crossing Signals Could Eliminate Train Whistles

Train whistles and unprotected crossings could be things of the past in the city of Belleville soon, more than a year in advance of the CP and CN railways and the city of Belleville are cautious.

At a meeting of railway representatives and city officials, it was tentatively agreed to close off the South John Street and Cromwell Street crossings and to provide signalized protection for crossings to Church and George Streets and for Foster Ave.

Because the meeting there has been a double fatality at Belleville Road and this crossing has now also been included in plans for the installation of signalized protection.

As a convenience for Foster Ave. West residents, a 16-foot walkway between George and Church Streets will be provided south of the tracks when John Street is closed.

Original hopes were that a bowstring or roadway bridge connecting George and Church Streets with the closed John Street, but Mayor J. Russell Scott at this week's meeting of council there was not sufficient width.

The 16-foot connecting walkway will be provided at no cost to the city, the mayor said.

Eighty per cent of the cost of providing signalized protection for Church and George Streets and for Foster Ave. and Belleville Road will be borne by the Canadian Railway Transport Commission, with the balance to be paid by the railways and the city.

The mayor said that all four crossings could be protected at little actual cost to the city. When the crossings are protected the city can ask that the train whistles be stopped.

An order has already been signed for additional protection at the Herchimer Ave. crossing.

The city's cost of this installation was included in last year's budget and the actual placement of the equipment will be carried out by the CPR this year.

The city will pay 15% per cent of the estimated $15,000 total cost.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said he was not certain whether the installation at Herchimer Ave. called for gate protection as well as flashing lights and signal bells.

The Haig Road double fatality was brought up by Alderman Gerald Joyce who said he had been asked by several area residents whether the city had plans for crossing protection at this point.

These residents, he said, had been unaware that highways department plans for a grade separation of the Bypass would dead-end the street and eliminate the level crossing.

He suggested, however, that brush which now obscures vision to some extent could be cut as an immediate measure to improve safety.

Also in connection with local highway safety, Mayor J. Russell Scott noted that since the accident some days ago on the Bay Bridge Road which involved a local school bus, there had been a change in the attitude of many people with respect to the need for a new bridge over the bay.

Many people who previously didn't feel a new bridge was necessary had now changed their minds and now support it, he said.

He said the city should support in any way possible the campaign for a new high level bridge.

Nursery Gets Yardmen's TV

Belleville Day Nursery on Foley Street has a new piece of equipment today — a television set donated by the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund.

The donation is the latest of the good works performed by the yardmen as the result of money raised through their monthly draws.

The yardmen have also donated a two year's subscription to Coldrex to bring programs into the day nursery.

Agricultural Societies Meet Thursday

The annual meeting of the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies, District 3 will be held Thursday, Feb. 3 at Club Ontara in Belleville and will commence about 10 a.m. with the men, upstairs and the ladies below. The noon meal will be served at the club and the meeting is expected to adjourn about 4 p.m.

Is City Shorted?

The city council resolutions committee headed by Alderman E. A. Orr, will bring in a recommendation urging the Ontario Department of Transportation and Communications to keep population figures on municipality signs more up to date.

Reason for the suggested action is that highway signs at the entrance to Belleville give the city's population at 31,049 while the regional assessment office lists it at 34,000.

Early in January, city officials contacted the district highway office in Kingston with respect to the discrepancy in population figures and were told as the result of current department policy, figures were two years in arrears.

District Administrator Engineer J. W. Reid in his letter replied that figures currently on signs were taken from the 1971 municipal directory and are revised each year as new directories are received.

Unless there is a policy change by the department, Mr. Reid's letter said there was no choice but to continue as in the past.

Public Speaking Winners Named

MARMORA — Public speaking contests were held at Marmora senior school and Sacred Heart separate school this past week to pick the three students who will represent their schools at the Centre Hastings competition to be held at Madoc public school on Feb. 3.

Two grade 8 students, Ruth Lingwat, speaking on "Pollution," and Lisa Johnson, who spoke on "A Trip to Walt Disney World," were the unanimous choices of the judges at Marmora senior school with an honorable mention going to Carole Moore for her presentation of "Sam's Hero" in Reverse.

Winner at Sacred Heart school was a grade 7 student, Carole Anne Shannon, who chose as her subject, "The Flight of the Orphan." Marcella Nesseth and Lori Shannon, speaking on "Alcoholism" and "Witchcraft", were given honorable mention.

The judges at Marmora senior school were Mrs. R. McNamara, Mrs. Charles Brady and William McKenzie; those at Sacred Heart were Mr. C. O. Mesecher and Mr. Gordon Bennett and Mrs. J. J. McLaren.

The winner of the Centre Hastings competition will advance to the Hastings County speak-off to be held in Trenton on Feb. 16. The winners of the competition will go to the zone finals to be held on Feb. 26.

A free trip to Toronto during the mid-term break will be a chance to take part in the all Ontario finals will be awarded to the winners of the zone finals.

Nineteen other students also spoke at Marmora senior school and four others at Sacred Heart school.

IODE Head Re-elected For Another Term

MARMORA — Mrs. Dennis Agler was re-elected Regent of the Marmora Chapter IODE for a second term in office at the annual meeting held January 27 at the home of Mrs. G. A. Wentworth.

Other officers for 1972 are: Ist Vice-Regent, Mrs. Richard Kotoski; 2nd Vice-Regent, Mrs. Leonard Bicknell; secretary, Mrs. Vaughan Glover; treasurer, Mrs. Sid Demorest; education secretary, Mrs. Gordon Bennett; Echo secretary, Mrs. W. M. Regan; services secretary, Mrs. Howard Bleshey; and standard bearer Mrs. Jack Jones.

Conveners for the committees were also appointed. Retiring secretary, Mrs. Clarus Green, presented on the year's activities which were concentrated on educational, welfare and community work. During the year, the Chapter held two rummage sales, two bake sales, one boutique table and a chinese auction, as well as a dance on an Easter ham and a basket of groceries at Christmas time.

For the second year in succession, the Chapter sponsored a bus trip to the Ontario Science Centre in Toronto for children's prizes at the Marmora Fall Fair.

The Chapter's adopted school at Davis Inlet in Labrador was assisted with a supply of underwear for the 109 children in residence there. A shipment of games, puzzles, toys and other items were sent in time for Christmas.

A book was donated to Marmora Public Library in memory of Miss Miriam Savage and a donation made towards the library's expenses. The Lacy Morrison Fund received the usual donation.

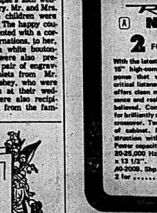
The Chapter was assisted with a loan during the year. The members sponsored the C.N.I.B. canvass and assisted at the March of Dimes, the Red Cross blitz and the Cancer fund.

A donation was made to the Canadian Legion Branch 227 to assist with their Christmas baskets. Toys for the Pediatric Ward of Belleville General Hospital were purchased with money donated by the members instead of exchanging gifts at Christmas. A layette was donated to the Provincial Headquarters for shipment to the Northwest Territories. A wreath was presented at the Cenotaph on Remembrance Day by one of the members.

Notice was received that the provincial annual meeting will be held in Hamilton on April 19 and 20.

Mrs. Chas. Brady reported on plans to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Marmora Chapter in conjunction with an area district dinner. A tentative date of September 28 was set and Mrs. Brady's committee will continue to work on the necessary arrangements.

Ways and means convener, Mrs. Grenville Mahlejohn, suggested a vocal variety raising events which will be investigated.



The Regret welcomed several new members to the Chapter — Mrs. G. Greening, Mrs. L. Paiero and Mrs. C. McCoy.

It was decided that a bake sale should be held February 25 and that details on a ham for Easter will be sold.

Mrs. Bennett will convene the bake sale and Mrs. Kotoski the sale of tickets for the ham.

Family Honors Couple on Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Yanch of Oshawa (nee Loretta De Marsh, of Tweed) were guests of honor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Brushey, (nee Yvonne Yanch, Flinton) recently on the occasion of the former couple's 25th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Yanch's seven children were in attendance. The happy couple were presented with a corsage of red carnations, to her, and to him, a white boutonniere. They were also presented with a pair of engraved silver goblets from Mr. and Mrs. Brushey, who were in attendance at their wedding. They were also recipients of a gift from the family.

CN Pensioners Welcome New Members

It was noted at the first regular meeting of the Belleville Railway Pensioners Association that there are 300 railway pensioners in the Belleville district and they are welcome to attend any of the association meetings.

The meeting was held at Club Canara last week when 49 pensioners from Toronto, Trenton, Napanee and Belleville were present. President Harold S. Robbins welcomed the gathering and dinner consisting of southern fried chicken with all the trimmings was served by the CNEA Ladies' Auxiliary.

Before the Toronto pensioners left for home a game of bingo was played and Gordon Shaw was the winner. Other games were also played throughout the afternoon and winners were Edgar Buchanan and Frank Donaldson.

It was reported that a number of pensioners who have been in hospital since the last meeting in November have been sent get-well cards. An increase of 30 new pensioners was also reported.

Meetings are held the fourth Wednesday of the month each month except December and the summer months.

Ann Landers

Article on Nudity Gives Explanation

Dear Ann Landers: Several years ago you printed a letter from a man who complained because his wife undressed in the closet. He said it had been going on for 35 years and he was sick of it. I have been undressing in the closet for longer than that and it has taken me until now to understand the reason well enough to put it down on paper.

What opened my eyes was an article I read recently about nudists. It said they think nothing of nakedness because they become accustomed to it. No one turns his head to look after the first day or two. It stands to reason that anything on display constantly loses its mystique.

I'm glad I read that article. Now I know the answer. What do you think, Ann?—Refined In Steubenville

Dear R.I.S.: I think you are kidding yourself. Prove the tone of your letter your relationship with your husband is in no danger of over-exposure.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been reading your column for years and have concluded that you think by printing a sad letter you will help not only the person with the problem (some sympathy), but also others who might have the same trouble. Well, you're wasting your time. As my dear late grandmother used to say: "Your pea soup you won't cure my tomatoes."

I don't care to read about misery and grief. Life is sad enough as it is. Your Ann Landers for laughs. If I went in cry I can read my own mail. I have a friend who is crippled with arthritis, a sister who is living with a drunk, a daughter on drugs and a son who went to Canada because he didn't want to serve in Vietnam.

So keep it funny, Ann, or I'm going to pass you by.—Virginia Beach.

Dear Virginia: I hate it too a reader, but I think you ought to skip my column and go straight to the comics. Goodbye and good luck.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's son by his first marriage is 28 years old. He does not get along with his mother and asked if he could stay with us. I said O.K. until he gets a place of his own. He found a place, but two months later he wanted to come back to live here until he got a job. I said on My husband said yes. He moved in. He pays $20 a week which we don't need. I'd rather have him out of here. His own mother wants him at home (she can use the money) but he is mad at her.

We have five children of our own and are crowded. I worked to help my husband pay support for this boy and his sister until they reached 18. I am sick of his face and tired of seeing him hanging around. Please give me some advice.—Wahoah Wee.

Dear Wahoah: Sorry, but I think you should accept this boy into your home graciously (he's there anyway, you'll notice). View the inconvenience as your contribution to your husband's happiness. According to your letter the boy is willing to pay for room and board, so he's not a freeloader. He is asking for housing on a temporary basis. In my opinion you have simple worries compared with some women who write to me about the problems they are having with step-children.

Retirement After 40 Years Of Service

MADOC — Rev. Frank E. Vaughan, Pastor of the Madoc Baptist Church for the past four years, will terminate his ministry here on Sunday, January 28.

Mr. Vaughan has spent over 40 years in the Baptist Ministry, and during that time has served churches at Norland, Sarnia, and Cannington, Ontario.

On the conclusion of his ministry here, he will retire to Lindsay, Ontario.

Rev. Orville Thamer of Cloyne, a retired missionary of the Sudan Interior Mission, will carry on the services at present as interim pastor.

Mirror of Your Mind

by Ann Landers

Can sudden riches cure pessimism?

NOT unless hitting the jackpot is some way—a lucky lottery selection, an unexpected inheritance, etc.—knew that the chronic pessimist will now be able to afford the professional counseling he might need. Although his confidence won't be boosted by suddenly coming into all the money, once he learns why he is obsessed looking so much on the dark side of life, he may then grow to believe he can enjoy living even without all that money.

When is a marriage considered 'safe'?

NEVER; if "safe" means that a husband and wife think that just because they are married five, ten, 20, 30 or any number of years that their marriage won't fall apart. Successful marriages treat each other. As a matter of fact, just about the neatest marriage in the area which a husband, for instance, believes that his wife is too set in her ways ever to upset her routine by breaking up their marriage even though she is unhappy.

Should parents encourage questions?

CERTAINLY, and mothers and fathers shouldn't be afraid that a child will ask questions that the parents can't answer. In fact, a child may benefit in esteem simply because he can, along his parents once in a while. He will not only learn from them that it is no disgrace not to have something, but he will also feel closer to his parents because they will go out of their way to find out specific information just to satisfy him.

Successful Living

Relate to A Child's Feelings, Not His Deeds

By DORIS CLARE

A school counsellor points out that a parent should relate to the feeling behind a youngster's behavior, to better get discipline or praise.

For instance, if Junior helps himself to a quarter which he sees lying around, in order to buy mother a surprise birthday present, it is not enough that he considers this deed a theft. He has solved a problem condition and triumphed in expressing his love for dear old Mum; that's all.

So what is the punishment? Should there not be some expression of gratitude for the thoughtfulness, while at the same time an explanation that people do not help themselves to money which does not belong to them?

If Molly, age five, pulls the hair of Mary, age six, how do we relate to the feeling that prompted it? Is Molly jealous or frustrated because Mary, who is older, has the limelight?

If she is, we relate, not to the vindictiveness, but to the frustration. We give Molly a limelight of her own.

If a school boy who usually performs well begins to daydream or talk back, why? Has something at school or at home gone amiss and left him confused?

Relate to the feeling behind the act. Be your own Canadian social worker with the people you love best.

Dear Doris: I am 56 and had the same dentist for 15 years. When he was sick I went to a younger dentist and had several extractions and fillings done.

He made my dentures which looked lovely but from them on I couldn't eat, sleep or talk with them in. I went back trying to explain where they hurt and he worked at refitting them. Every time it was worse than ever.

I paid $400 for those teeth. Later on, I consulted my old dentist again; he made me new dentures which are perfect. I wrote to the other dentist returning the useless dentures to him and expected a refund. He replied that under no situation would he refund any of the money.

All I received for $400 was 14 months of tension and such discomfort I hardly kept going. — Eating Again.

Dear Eating: Kiss the $400 goodbye! The prosthodontist I consulted felt he might have given you at least a partial refund, but it would not be worth while to take the matter to court. It cannot be proved that the dentist was negligent or careless or did not do his best.

I am glad you finally got tooth comfort. I don't know of anything which can be more wearing on the nerves than uncomfortable dentures. Most of our prosthodontists take exquisite and endless pains to adjust and readjust dentures until they do give the wearer comfort and service.

Confidential to Bob: Your strong urge toward physical contact with many women does not justify, in my mind, any thoughts of castration. We have to give some consideration to your own mental agency, and castration will not remove that.

I do not agree with the counsel who suggested occasional unfaithfulness to your wife and would suggest that your problem calls for psychiatric help, from a psychiatrist who specializes in difficulties of this kind.

Reports at Marmora Red Cross Meeting Indicate Successful Year

MARMORA — The Marmora Branch, Canadian Red Cross Society held its annual meeting on January 24 and the following officers were returned to office for the year 1972: president, Mrs. D. J. Middleton; vice-president, Mrs. M. Campbell; secretary, Mrs. Raymond Sharpe; treasurer, Mrs. James McChesney. Committee chairmen were also appointed.

Reports presented indicated a busy and successful year.

Report on the loan cupboard presented by Mrs. Tom Shannon, showed that during the year 100 articles had been loaned out and 54 people serviced. A pair of crutches is being donated from Deloro and during the year three wheelchairs were made by Mr. Campbell, a pair of two canes, pair of boy's crutches, foot exercisers. The local branch will purchase four new pairs of crutches and crutch pads; also hold tight crutch tips to supplement the loan cupboard. Mrs. Shannon pointed out that each year the sick room equipment loan service plays a ever-increasing role in community assistance. Wheel chairs, bed pans, bed pads, crutches, canes, bed tables are only a few of the items available on loan.

Mrs. McKitchin expressed thanks to Mrs. Sharpe for all the time, effort and other contributions she has given the 13 years she was chairman of the loan cupboard, a position she has held since the inception of this service in Marmora.

The 1971 financial statement was given by the treasurer, Mrs. James McChesney, and showed that campaign receipts totalled $843.55, additional equipment was purchased for the loan cupboard and $206.61 spent on the Marmora Red Cross Water Safety program.

Mrs. Howard Bleecker, chairman of Disaster Services and Wallace, reported that a request had been made to the Red Cross Youth Fund and glasses supplied to a local child, also that assistance of clothing, food and bale of bedding had been given to a local family after a fire.

Water safety chairman, Mrs. J. L. Killins, reported that the swimming program conducted by the Marmora Recreation Committee had been successful, with an enrolment of 155. In addition, 10 students successfully completed a survival swimming course. There is also coordination of effort with the Royal Lifesaving Society with 13 awards being won. For the second year, competitive swimming was a part of the swimming program, with teams from Marmora competing in five events. Mrs. Killian also advised that those on water safety and safe boating practices were shown in the schools.

Canada Red Cross Week, currently in Marmora, will be held on Monday, March 13, with Mrs. George Wilde as campaign chairman.

City Congregational Meetings

CHRIST CHURCH

The annual meeting of Christ Church Anglican was held January 30 commencing with Holy Communion in the Church. There were 75 communicants at the service. Members adjourned to the parish hall to hear reports of the activities of the parish for the year 1971. Receipts were $53,288 this year compared to $52,777 in 1970. There was a balance at the close of the year of $2,360. The sum of $18,000 was paid to the Diocese of which $580 was for Canadian World Mission and $200 for Primates World Relief.

The rector reported 46 baptisms, 43 funerals, 62 confirmed and 30 weddings. There were 1188 calls made by the clergy and 281 counselling periods. The average attendance was 254 adults each Sunday and 189 in the church school. There are ten organizations functioning in the parish under Anglican Church Women, Anglican Church Men and Anglican Church Youth.

A Diocesan Quota of $12,418 was accepted by the parish and a total budget of $26,000 for the operation of the parish as a whole.

Wardens for 1972 were Alric Mouring, rector's warden, Allan Gardiner, people's warden and Mr. Leslie Wilkins as deputy warden. Lay delegates to synod are to be Jack Ellis, William Weatherstone, Ber-and Wright, George Woonacott, Mrs. D. G. Livingstone and Mrs. Cherry, with alternates being Mrs. Mary Fletcher and Mrs. Ronald Cooke.

It was noted that one of the highlights of the year was the final discharging of the $25,000 Parish Hall debt by the members of the congregation.

All members were called upon to increase their contributions to the parish funds by 10 percent to permit the discharging of the 1972 budget commitments.

Kenneth Daley was presented with a gift as a token of appreciation for work as warden for three years.

TABERNACLE UNITED CHURCH

Tabernacle United Church congregation enjoyed a delicious potluck supper Monday evening which was followed by the annual meeting.

Rev. J. L. Dean opened the meeting with a brief devotional period and presided for the business period. A moment of silent tribute was paid to the 18 members and associates who passed on to "Higher Service" during the year.

Harry Jefls, recording secretary of the official board read the minutes of last year's meeting. The combined annual reports of the various organizations in the Congregation were reviewed and on motion by a representative of each group, unanimously accepted. All reports showed progress, encouragement and consideration. The financial status of each was good.

A nominating committee appointed by the official board presented the following names to be added to those: Harry Caldwell, Leslie Finkle, Cyrus Pulford and Cass Walker. Re-elected for another term were Harry Bailey, Ray Brickman, Mrs. K. Cornish, Frank Douglas, Morley Graham, Percy Kerr, Clifford Reid, John Lyon and Mrs. L. Stenson. New names to be added to the committee of stewards are Gerald Blakely, Mrs. Leslie Brickman, Lloyd Castello, George Shaw and Fred Wooster. Re-elected for another term are Russell Boldrick, M. M. Hackett, Glynn Reynolds, Carl Shaw and James Stenson, auditor. This slate of names was unanimously accepted.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Templer were unable to be present because of illness; however Harry Jefls did give a presentation address expressing the regret of the congregation that Mr. Templer found it necessary to retire as organist and choir director at the end of the year. A gift from the congregation, a leatherbound 'new hymn book suitably inscribed will be presented to Mr. Templer at his home.

William MacKay expressed appreciation to the minister and his wife for services rendered. A genuine ovation was shown by those present.

Following the adjournment of the business part of the meeting Mrs. Jeanne Matier, convener of the program committee, presented a group of couples from Holloway Street United Church who favored with humorous entertainment and sing-song. Mrs. L. Swenson thanked the group.

Mr. Dean showed timely slides of the residence, the nine UCW groups, Western Canada and Alaska.

Women's Institutes

REDNERSVILLE W.I.

REDNERSVILLE — The January meeting of Rednersville W. I. was held with hostess Mrs. C. Vanclief while Mrs. W. Fuller presided at the meeting. She welcomed all and thanked those who helped to make the quilting and potluck dinner such a success.

Mrs. H. Montgomery reported the new covers she acquired for the Tweedsmuir Book. She is donating these and intended to be provided with more paper.

There was a brief report on the Ontario Fruit Summary Day at Wellington held during May 16 which was well attended. It was interesting to see the exhibits, skits, poem and song given by the different groups. The home economist showed an informative film on the harvesting and packaging of Ontario-grown cherries, peaches and plums.

It was decided to hold another quilting and potluck dinner on February 22 to raise money.

All were reminded of the district annual to be held at Mountain View on May 24 and also of the area conference for 1972 to which will take place at Peterborough.

A letter from the new Ontario president, Mrs. Noblitt was read which stated she was looking forward to meeting the different W. I. delegates and members at the 75th anniversary of the W. I. at the Royal York Hotel on February 29.

Mrs. H. Montgomery gave current events including an interesting and complete resume of news for 1971.

Mrs. R. Brickman introduced the guest speaker, Miss Valerie Truax of the V.O.N. staff in Belleville.

She told the group that the VON, which is one of 90 branches across Canada, now has services to patients in all of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties. This Quinte branch is a non-profit, voluntary agency not supported by taxation and for this reason, they must charge a fee.

The aim of the VON is to treat patients in their homes, when possible, and so release hospital beds for more needy people.

Services are to all age groups and people who need help may call the VON which, at first, conducting a doctor; however, after two visits, a doctor should be called if further care is needed. The qualified VON may be contacted at any time — during their regular hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Miss Truax also spoke in regard to the Ontario Department of Health's Home Care Program led by Dr. Vaughn and nurse Coughlin, the Queen's Self-Care unit, and the Homemaking service provided by the Red Cross.

Mrs. R. Brickman thanked Miss Truax for her informative talk.

Mrs. K. Green thanked the hostess and expressed appreciation to those responsible for the program.

The meeting was closed with the Institute Grace and all enjoyed a lunch and a social half hour.

New Farm Subsidies Announced

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau announced new farm subsidies Wednesday night to ease the burden on eastern Canadian livestock farmers and hog producers across the country.

Speaking to the Co-operative Federee de Quebec, the prime minister said the government will pay up to $1,000 to each hog producer to compensate for 1971 hog prices which Mr. Trudeau said fell to "disastrous levels."

At the same time, Mr. Trudeau announced the Canadian livestock feed board has been authorized, as of April 1, to increase transport of feed grains to "certain regions of Eastern Canada" where feed grain prices had jumped during the year.

The prime minister's speech to 2,000 delegates at the co-operative's annual convention was the first in memory he has made that deals specifically with agriculture.

He received enthusiastic applause when he told the delegates that an estimated $5 million will go to Quebec farmers since the province accounts for about 20 per cent of Canada's hog production.

Under the hog subsidy scheme, the agriculture stabilization board will pay 25 to each farmer for each qualifying hog up to a maximum of 200 hogs.

The Canadian livestock feed board will also increase subsidies for feed transport to provide relief to eastern livestock and poultry producers who have had to pay significantly more for the same Canadian wheat board grains than do their western counterparts.

Mr. Trudeau pointed out, however, that eastern farmers had received substantially higher prices for the final product than prairie farmers had.

Quebec farmers have been critical of a 17-cent surcharge on each bushel of grain imposed by the Canadian wheat board on grain purchased in the province.

Albert Allain, president of the Catholic Farmers Union, has said the surcharge was totally unjustified and accused the wheat board of discrimination.

In his speech Wednesday, Mr. Trudeau said about six cents in warehousing and handling charges would be cut from grain costs through a new shipping scheme between the Prairies and the East.

Bourassa Picks New Ministers

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa moved new blood into two key ministries for 1973, while reassigning part of his own workload in a cabinet shuffle announced Wednesday.

The premier created the new post of vice-premier and at the same time dropped the intergovernmental affairs portfolio, thus becoming the first Quebec premier since the days of Maurice Duplessis not to carry a cabinet portfolio.

He appointed Gerard D. Levesque, previously Industry and Commerce minister, as vice-premier and as the new intergovernmental affairs minister.

Mr. Levesque also continues as government house leader.

Other major parts of the shuffle see Guy Saint-Pierre lined up to handle the colossal James Bay development project and Francois Cloutier moved in to handle the province's explosive language policies to be formulated this year.

Thus he will have responsibility for all aspects of the language policy to be drawn up by the Bourassa government, following presentation of a royal commission report on the status of French this year.

James Bay Project Could Harm Indians

MONTREAL (CP) — The impact of the James Bay hydroelectric project on northern Quebec Indians could be of "potentially alarming proportions," says a federal-provincial environment study.

It says "appropriate action must be taken in advance to alleviate the" settlers' disturbances in the native population's way of life.

But the report by federal and provincial experts on "various environmental effects of the giant project also hopes the James Bay area "could become a laboratory of world-wide significance."

It was released in English, French and Cree at a news conference Wednesday, although key recommendations were revealed in a Montreal newspaper report in mid-January.

In urging integrated studies and planning before construction starts, the study says the James Bay project provides "an opportunity to integrate ecological research with a major engineering program in order to develop data and experience that will be needed in future resource developments in these latitudes."

Professor's Warning About 'Pen' Ignored

KINGSTON (CP) — A layman who worked with an inmates' group prior to the April Kingston penitentiary riot says his warning to officials of impending trouble went unheeded.

Prof. David McLay of Queen's University's science faculty said that "if we had been more radical last March or April ... the riot may not have taken place.

He told a meeting of the Canadian Coalition for Development's Kingston committee there were "serious blunders made (by convicts) to members of our committee."

He was a member of a chaplain's group that visited convicts for informal discussion periods. Convicts told the group that "feeling was running very high at KP" and the main source of tension was an anticipated transfer of convicts to Millhaven penitentiary, 17 miles west of here. The transfer of a small group of prisoners commenced two days before the riot.

He and another member tried unsuccessfully to arrange a meeting with deputy wardens. A request to the federal justice committee went unanswered.

The Quebec provincial commission of inquiry into the cause and results of the riot tried to obtain a copy of the letter but a copy was never supplied, he said.

"I think the committee has a lot to answer for in that they didn't follow up on the letter."

Queen to Mark 20th Anniversary

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth marks the 20th anniversary of her ascent to throne Sunday.

There will be no celebration, but everyone expects that her silver jubilee five years hence will get a lot of attention.

On Tuesday, the Queen will start another of the tours that she sees as part of her job, this time to places bordering the Gulf of Siam, the Strait of Malacca and in the Indian Ocean.

Three Guards Deny Beating Prisoner

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — Three of five Millhaven penitentiary guards accused of assaulting prisoner John Hance during his transfer to the institution last April 19 denied in court Wednesday that they took part in any assault or were witness to any beatings by guards.

Guards Robert Earl Goodwin, 24, of Kingston, Lester Earl Landsbra, 31, of Odessa, and Edgar Albert Sweet, 32, of Napanee, were identified by Hance Monday as three who beat him after he was taken to the prison, with 11 other prisoners following the April riot at Kingston.

The other two guards, Grant Golden of Harrowsmith, and Peter Hinch of Napanee, were expected to be called to the witness stand today by defence lawyer Stewart Wilson of Kingston.

The five guards are among eight accused of a total of 17 assaults involving seven prisoners after the riot.

Prisoner William Shepley, 25, serving 12 years for armed robbery and a concurrent 15-year term for manslaughter, testified he saw Hinch strike Hance and all but two other prisoners on a bus during their transfer.

He said that the prisoners who were beaten by guards as they left the bus, climbed steps to a loading platform and created the platform into a corridor of the prison.

They were lining up and beating us so fast that, with the leg irons on, we just couldn't keep with it."

Most of Shepley's testimony was given under protection of the Canada Evidence Act. He was one of the prisoners charged with murder and later convicted of manslaughter in the death of two prisoners in the Kingston penitentiary riot.

Another prisoner, Joseph Ramsey, 31, serving 20 years on three counts of robbery and one of wounding, told the Lennox and Addington county court that he saw Hance beaten with a blackjack by guards Hinch and Sweet, and Hance refused to run, as ordered, in a corridor.

Goodwin said he was issued a blackjack but used a riot-stick when another officer handed it to him. He said he grabbed Hance by the shoulder, pushed him, then prodded him in the back with the stick when the prisoner refused to run, as ordered, in a corridor.

Sweet said prisoners were prodded if they made belligerent gestures or were reluctant to move.

The trial continues.

Healthy Prostitute Better Than Sick Amateur--Lawyer

OTTAWA (CP) — Suggestions that all the "old blue laws" be removed from the Criminal Code were made Wednesday at the National Conference on the Law.

"A healthy prostitute is much better for a sick amateur," lawyer Clement Beauchamp of Hull, Que., said in a workshop discussion on the administration of justice and the criminal law.

"Let's get all that moral stuff out of the Criminal Code. That's a good start."

Several workshop members agreed that laws prohibiting such things as gambling and prostitution, morally repugnant in part but still considered wrong by others, provide the foundation for organized crime in North America.

Dr. John Seabey, a professor from Berkeley, Calif., said organized crime is a price society pays for continuing to keep on the books laws that many people ignore.

Lucille Cale, a former prison psychologist now with the criminology department at the University of Ottawa, suggested "de-crim"inalizing those things that are morally repugnant to some" but do no harm to anyone except the persons who indulges in them.

He also suggested that justice is ill-served when so many poor people go to jail for petty theft while more influential persons who commit huge frauds or manipulate stocks are treated as though they were playing a joke.

J. C. Paterson of the law faculty at Windsor University said legalizing gambling and registering prostitutes could cut the props from under organized crime.

Leafs Snap Long Slump

By CHUCK SYOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto Maple Leafs' public-ity department, anticipating yet another disaster on ice Wednes-day night, issued a game-by-game account of the team's longest-ever losing streak.

That 16-game drought hap-pened in January and February, 1967, and the sorrowful record was in danger of being equalled in the current National Hockey League season had the Leafs lost Wednesday night to Minne-sota North Stars.

But, after letting go of a 2-0 lead, the Leafs came out on top 3-2 on Gerry Meahan's goal late in the third period to end their 1972 losing string at eight games and climbed back into a fourth-place tie with Detroit Red Wings in the East Division.

The hastily-prepared release on the 1967 losing streak went back into the files and Toronto coach Johnny McLellan said:

"I don't ever want to go through a stretch like that again."

In other games Wednesday, Phil Esposito and Bobby Orr provided the scoring as Boston Bruins stopped New York Rangers 3-0 and Vancouver Canucks downed California Golden Seals 5-1.

In tonight's action, Montreal Canadiens visit Los Angeles Kings, Pittsburgh Penguins meet the Blues in St. Louis, De-troit tackles the Flyers in Phila-delphia, New York visits Buf-falo Sabres and Minnesota is at Vancouver.

"We played a little better," was McClellan's laconic ex-planation for the Leafs' first victory since Jan. 15.

"I'll have to say we did it the hard way—Monday's 4-0 goal lead—then we had to work hard to get the winning goal."

Monahan redeemed himself late in the third period when he fired a hard slapshot from about 40 feet by beat North Stars goalie Gump Worsley for the winning goal.

At New York, Ed Giacomin of the Rangers and Gerry Cheev-ers of the Bruins staged a goal-tending duel until the third pe-riod when Esposito got his 46th goal of the season and Orr his 42nd to extend the Bruin un-beaten streak to 11 games.

The victory pushed the East Division-leading Bruins eight points in front of second-place New York. It was also the third Boston win on New York ice this season.

California goalie Gilles Mel-oche who added to Toronto's misery last week by shutting out the Leafs 4-0 was not so for-tunate against the Canucks.

Clippers Open Narrow AHL Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A three-goal performance by 23-year-old Joe Szura led Balti-more Clippers to a 6-3 victory over Providence Reds Wednes-day night and a three-point lead in the American Hockey League Western Division.

Two other games ended in 3-3 ties with Cleveland Barons visit-ing Hershey Bears and Rich-mond Robins battling Tidewater Wings at Norfolk, Va.

Marc Dufour earned four as-sists and scored once himself to aid the Baltimore cause and other goals came from Pete Laframbroise and Bob Rivard as the Clippers widened their divi-sion lead over Hershey.

Ron Garwasiuk, Don Black-burn and Ray Clearwater scored for Providence.

World Hockey Association

Asked to Comply With CAHA

CALGARY (CP) — The World Hockey Association was asked today to follow Canadian Ama-teur Hockey Association regula-tions when the proposed league holds its draft next week.

In a letter to WHA president Joe Davidson, the CAHA said:

"We are confident that you and your member clubs are aware . . . that junior hockey . . . professional hockey's greatest single source of talent and any steps taken by your or-ganization to disturb or destroy this structure would be disas-trous, not only to professional but to amateur hockey as well."

The letter, sent by CAHA president Joe Krycuka of Cal-gary, asked the WHA not to take any steps "to draft, entice or otherwise encourage the defection to professional ranks of amateurs eligible to play under CAHA regulations during the 1972-73 season."

Krycka said the CAHA will "take all necessary steps" in-cluding government interven-tion, if the association goes against the rules.

MacNeil Eyed by WHA

NEW YORK (CP) — Al MacNeil, former coach of Mont-real Canadiens, is a "definite candidate" for coach of the new NHL Long Island, N.Y., entry, Ray Boe, president of the fran-chise, said Wednesday night.

"He's a strong, attractive, ag-gressive guy," Boe said. "He has a tremendous record. He's close to the Stanley Cup—what more can you say?"

Boe said, however, he has yet talked to MacNeil, now general manager and coach of Nova Scotia Voyageurs of the Ameri-can Hockey League, about the job.

"I've asked the Canadiens for permission to talk to MacNeil," he said, "but they haven't given me permission as yet."

MacNeil led the Canadiens to their victory in the Stanley Cup last spring, but was sent to Hal-ifax as head man of the Voya-geurs.

When it was reported Wednes-day that he was in line for the coaching job with Long Island MacNeil said he knew nothing about it.

Sapporo Games Open In Pomp and Pageantry

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — There is a certain amount of delightful informality in launching an Olympics but the Japanese organizers took no shortcuts with the pre-celebration on youth, and the end product was a bright and cheery opening ceremony today.

The Japanese, displaying their guests before their emperor, still kept pomp and pageantry in the 75-minute ceremony that ended with thousands of youngsters skating—some fell in the huge rink where more than 50,000 people watched it.

It was 17 degrees and windy at the athletes from 35 countries passed before Emperor Hirohito and his empress in the colorful parade.

Now the battle is on for the 35 gold medals to be awarded in hockey, skiing, figure skating, speed skating, bobsledding, luge racing and the biathlon.

The Games were under rain call today as sanded hockey teams played their first elimination matches to win a place in the championship section. Russia, the defending champion, did not have to qualify for the six-country title round-robin. Ten other countries battled for the five remaining top berths.

Full and wet order of the day for Friday, when the full program is unveiled with two gold medals at stake in the men's 10,000-metre speed skating event and the 30-kilometre cross-country ski race.

The first compulsory school figures will be skated Friday in the women's competition, and the Canadians banked on Karen Magnussen of Vancouver to come home with a medal although she faces tough competition from two American girls and world champion Beatrix Schuba of Austria, if she's in the competitions.

Miss Magnussen, 19, placed third in the world championships last year behind Miss Schuba and Julie Holmes of the United States. Absent Lynn Copeman, another American contender.

Sixty athletes from 18 countries will depart at 30-second intervals in the 10.6-mile cross-country race with Jari Ossbolt-Jensen of Inuvik, Northwest Territories, drawing the 20th position and Malcolm Hunter of Ottawa starting as No. 46.

KAREN MAGNUSSEN

The two-man bobsled teams of Bob Storey, Ottawa, and Al Hartley, Toronto, and Hans Gehrig, Montreal, and Andy Fasulo, Burlington, Ont., try for a medal in the first two of four heats.

The luge racers also face their initial heats, with Larry Arbuthot, St. Laurent, Que., Dave McCourt, L'Annonciation, Que., Denis Richland, Montreal, Que., and Paul Nielson, Calgary, all competing.

The ski jumpers also will be out in force in the 70-metre event of the combined competition.

The opening ceremony, in the outdoor rink set amid the lovely snow-clad mountain landscape of Hokkaido, was a color television producer's dream.

It began with the teams marching past the royal enclosure in strikingly contrasting uniforms and ended with 10,000 balloons being released and colored smoke bombs leaving rainbow patterns in the sky.

The Canadian team, bundled in fur-capped coats, marched smartly past the Japanese royal family with Miss Magnussen bravely holding the Canadian flag in the brisk wind.

The Japanese, as host nation, marched last, in all-white outfits.

Izumi Tsujimura, a Japanese girl, skated gracefully into the arena with the Olympic torch, which started out Dec. 28 on its traditional journey from Olympia, Greece. Hideki Takada, a Japanese runner, bore it on the carpeted staircase leading to the Olympic flame.

Ruth Hutchinson, the lithesome brunette from North Vancouver, could have been exposed had the odd tear fallen as she and her Canadian teammates marched into the rink.

The 20-year-old figure skater broke her left arm Monday in a freak accident at the gate into Olympic village, sidelining her from competition here and at the world championships in Calgary next month.

"You can guess . . . I don't really have to say," said the diminutive lass later at the Canadian headquarters in the village when asked what thoughts went through her head as she paraded around the stadium knowing there was nothing she could contribute otherwise to the Canadian cause.

Czechs Qualify, Trouncing Japan

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Czechoslovakia, silver medalist in 1968, easily qualified for the 1972 Winter Olympics hockey championship tournament today, trouncing Japan 8-2.

The Japanese held the Czechs to one goal in the first period, but then the roof fell in then in the second period when the Czechs scored half their goals, and added three more in the last 20 minutes.

Two top Czech forwards accounted for five goals, Ivan Hlinka drilling three and Vaclav Nedomansky two. Jiri Kochta, Eduard Novak and Frantisek Pospisil scored the other goals for Czechoslovakia, while Kaji Iwamoto and Yasuhie Tanaka scored for Japan.

Japan now drops into the consolation tournament while Czechoslovakia joins Russia in the six-country main tournament.

Filion Runaway Winner

CHICAGO (AP) — Harness driver Herve Filion of Angers, Que., who set world records for victories in a single season and total earnings during one year, has been named Driver of the Year by the Harness Tracks of America, it was announced Wednesday.

Filion, who won 543 races and garnered $1,915,945 during 2,213 drives in 1971, also finished seventh in the universal driver percentages with a mark of .393.

The award is based on a formula which awards points for races won, earnings and percentages. Joe O'Brien of Alberton, P.E.I., who has finished among the top 10 point earners each year the award has been given, was second with 145 triumphs, $937,881 in earnings and a .338 percentage.

Jungle Jim Hunter Waiting Turn to Win

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Jim Hunter is known as a dynamite skier who comes out of the gate like a bucking steer.

His attacking style on the slopes, which has earned him the nickname Jungle Jim, has carried him to some impressive showings in various Alpine skiing competitions.

JIM HUNTER

And, the 19-year-old Calgarian says he hopes to be able to win a medal in this year's Olympics for Canada and God—decidedly not in that order.

Brundage Welcomes China

SAPPORO, Japan (Reuter) — Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said Wednesday the People's Republic of China should be in the Olympic Games and the IOC would welcome its participation.

"We would like China in the Olympics and feel it should be in the movement, but if it comes in then China must follow the rules of the Olympic movement," Brundage said in an interview.

For Hunter believes that implicit faith allows him to turn energy, otherwise used up in nervousness, into physical energy.

"I get a little nervous," Hunter says. "Everyone does, but it isn't a big thing with me."

"I place every downhill in God's hands. There is nothing to worry about. He has spared my life already, so I know he is going to take care of me."

Veterans Battle Friday Night

The ANAF Duke of Edinburgh Unit and Legion Branch 99 will both be hotenough to the sound of distant thunder Friday night. The more distant the better.

Both teams will be battling to avoid possession of the "Thanks" given to the losing team in the annual hockey exhibition between the two veterans organizations.

The game, held in conjunction with the Belleville Winter Carnival will be held Friday night at Dick Ellis Rink, commencing at 9 p.m.

Last year the Legion was able to rid themselves of the fur-lined mug by handing the Dukers a 7-5 setback.

"It might just as well stay at the Army-Navy and collect dust," swollen Legion president Jack Rashotte, "Oh no," returned ANAF's Hank Ford, "we'll make sure that it's nice and shiny when we give it back to you."

Donning the blades for the Dukers this year will be such hockey notables (?) as Bob Taylor, John "Shakey" Baker, Bob Brooks, Gary Greenwood, Rick Hey, Jan Woodcock and Ron Callahan.

Wheeling in the other direction will be such Legion stalwarts as Floyd Crawford, Jean - Paul Lamirande, Carl Stonebreaker, Bill Gill and George Wilson.

Admission for the game will be free.

Sizing Up the Opposition

Hank Ford, president of the ANAF Duke of Edinburgh Unit, lends a helping hand to opposing head Jack Rashotte after the Legion Branch 99 president hauled his hockey sweater out of the moth balls to get in the spirit of the annual rivalry between the two clubs. The teams will meet in a Friday night exhibition hockey match at Dick Ellis Rink.

Frazier Receives Nod

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Frazier's 15-round victory over Muhammad Ali last March 4 that made him undisputed heavyweight champion of the world also earned the all-conquering Philadelphian Ring Magazine's Fighter of the Year award for the third time.

The monthly boxing magazine, in a release Wednesday, placed lightweight champion Ken Buchanan of Scotland second, middleweight champion Carlos Monzon of Argentina third, light heavyweight partial champion Bob Foster of Washington fourth and welterweight champion Jose Napoles of Mexico fifth.

Frazier Receives Nod

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Frazier's 15-round victory over Muhammad Ali last March 4 that made him undisputed heavyweight champion of the world also earned the all-conquering Philadelphian Ring Magazine's Fighter of the Year award for the third time.

The monthly boxing magazine, in a release Wednesday, placed lightweight champion Ken Buchanan of Scotland second, middleweight champion Carlos Monzon of Argentina third, light heavyweight partial champion Bob Foster of Washington fourth and welterweight champion Jose Napoles of Mexico fifth.

Ontario Curling Finals Break Ice

OTTAWA (CP) — It's a new season, a new format for the Ontario curling championships, and possibly a new champion.

For the first time the chosen few will play through Sunday's final to decide the provincial champion and will be following the format of the Canadian championships, seven ends to finish.

Ten clubs are entered in the provincial event, which is a neighbourhood affair. Nearly half have been representing Toronto clubs and the others from Ottawa, Kingston, Gravenhurst, Hamilton and St. Thomas.

Champs Got Richer

"At first glance," said an executive of one NFL team, who requested that his name not be used, "I'd say Dallas and Baltimore got the best of it overall."

The Cowboys got nine players in the first four rounds and the Colts got seven good athletes, particularly in the second round when they had three straight picks.

Other teams that did well in the first two rounds were Green Bay Packers, Cincinnati Bengals, Chicago Bears, Denver Broncos, St. Louis Cardinals and Buffalo Bills who had the first pick in defensive end Walt Patulski of Notre Dame.

The shortest NFL draft ever opened up Wednesday evening but 26 teams selected a full complement of 442 collegians.

Although they got picked 38th and first in the opening round, the Cowboys came with the player they rated No. 6 in the country, 227-pound running back Bill Thomas of Boston College.

With three choices in the second round, the Cowboys went for Houston running back Robert Newhouse, whose 1,737 yards in 1971 made him major college football's second highest single-season ground-gainer; Colgate linebacker Cyril Pinder with speed, and wide receiver Charlie McKee of Arizona.

The Colts' first pick was 256-pound tackle Tom Drougas of Oregon and in the second round they added Jackie Mildren, Oklahoma's wishbone quarterback; Michigan wingback Glenn Doughty and Penn State running back Lydell Mitchell.

Baltimore unearthed wide receivers Doughty, Michigan State's Eric Allen, who holds the conference career rushing record of 359 yards, and Herb Washington, Allen's teammate. Also quarterbacks Van Brownson and all-American Gary Wichard.

On the first two rounds, Green Bay came up with cornerback Willie Buchanan of San Diego State, the younger brother of veteran back Ed Buchanan with Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Canadian Football League.

Nebraska quarterback Taggs and Chester Marcol, a record-setting kicker from tiny Humboldt College, also joined the Packers.

Cincinnati picked California defensive tackle Sherman White and Louisiana State defensive back Tommy Casanova; Chicago selected Southern Illinois offensive tackle Lionel Antoine and Iowa defensive back Craig Clark and Riley Odoms and St. Louis went for running back Clarence Denver chose Bobby Moore with receiver Bobby Moore of Oregon and Arizona linebacker Mark Arneson.

The Redskins, who had traded away all their choices up to the eighth round, made Denson their first pick.

In Montreal, Denson and Alouettes general manager Red O'Quinn expressed surprise. O'Quinn said he didn't anticipate the running back to move south this year. Denson is under contract to Montreal for another two years.

Running back Hugh McGarrity of Calgary Stampeders, who went in the eighth round to Cleveland Fog, the Stampeders, too, were unworried.

He's presently under contract to this football club and he's going to be with us for at least one year," Stamps general manager Rogers Leboe said in Calgary.

Steve Booras, an Alouettes defensive end, went to New England Patriots in the 13th round. Booras suffered a knee injury late in the 1970 season with Montreal and saw only intermittent duty last season.

New England also picked Vancouver-born tackle Willie Pantier from Montana University, whom British Columbia Lions hope to sign.

Concorde Replicas

Thanks to a new scientific giant, builders of the revolutionary British - French Concorde plane should know the effects upon it of long time supersonic flying before the first paying passenger steps aboard. Two replicas of the West's first supersonic passenger aircraft have been built to explore the safety factors before the Concorde takes to the air commercially in 1974. The 2 - called "structured laboratories" also will investigate the impact of the Concorde upon the environment in exhaust fumes and sonic booms. Photos show interior and exterior view of Concorde. Social Workers Unaware Mother Mentally Ill

OTTAWA (CP) — A social worker said Wednesday she had no knowledge that Carrie Stobo had been charged in her husband's murder nor had spent two years in a mental hospital.

Charlotte Anderssen of the Oshawa offices of the Ontario Family and social services department said she would have treated the case differently if she had known.

She was testifying at an inquest into the August death of Mrs. Stobo who had set herself on fire after bludgeoning her daughter to death with a hammer and severely wounding her son.

Evidence at the inquest, in its fourth day today, showed that Mrs. Stobo was committed to the mental hospital in Brockville in 1966 after the rifle-slaying of her husband in their Brockville home.

In 1968 she was found not guilty of non-capital murder by reason of insanity. Her six children had been farmed out to various places and four of them were returned to her in 1970, more than a year after she left the Brockville hospital.

Mrs. Anderssen said she assisted Mrs. Stobo in finding a job in June, 1971, about two months before the woman took her own life.

"We had nothing on file to indicate she killed her husband or spent time in Brockville," she said.

"I knew nothing of Carrie, except she had been in Royal Ottawa Hospital and there had been trouble with rented cars."

She said if she had had any background on Mrs. Stobo she undoubtedly would have involved the district public health nurse and the Children's Aid Society.

She recalled making one visit to the Stobo home and feeling that, "something wasn't quite right." She said she had a total case load of 300 families and had scheduled another visit to the Stobos in October.

Mrs. Morton Stobo, brother of the dead husband, told the coroner's jury that her husband attempted to dissuade the mother from taking back the four children.

Mrs. Stobo said she could see that her daughter-in-law's condition was steadily deteriorating from the time she took the children.

Dr. Arie Hoogenraad, rehabilitation director at the Brockville hospital, testified that he was concerned that Mrs. Stobo receive follow-up treatment after her discharge.

He agreed with Dr. H. B. Cottam, Ontario supervising coroner, that once a patient is discharged from a psychiatric institution, the psychiatrist is dependent upon the co-operation of the patient.

Skier Uses Chute

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "I was really surprised at how unnerved I was," says a 29-year-old skier after photographs confirmed his claim that he skied off the edge of Yosemite's 3,300-foot-high El Capitan and plunged halfway down before opening his parachute.

"I was probably going about 100 miles an hour when I opened the chute," Rick Sylvester, Beverly Hills, Calif., told reporters here Tuesday.

He said he performed the stunt Monday morning for movie cameras filming it from an overhead helicopter for the climactic scene in a $20,000 full-length film about skiers.

Sylvester said he didn't tell Yosemite National Park rangers of his plans and they were incredulous when Sylvester told them about his feat. But photographs released Tuesday backed up his story.

After hurtling at roughly 80 m.p.h. off the sheer granite rock's brink, Sylvester said he somersaulted backward, dropped his skis and looked down.

"The ilip surprised me," he said. "I wasn't expecting it."

He estimated it took him a minute and a half from leaving the top to land on the valley floor.

Snapshot Outing Is Ordeal

TORONTO (CP) — A middle-aged Latvian couple told a provincial inquiry Wednesday they went to an anti-Communist demonstration last Oct. 25 with a camera to snap pictures of people in ethnic costumes, and ended up trampled by police horses.

Alfred Landins, 59, and his wife Vera were giving evidence at Judge Anthony Vannelli's inquiry into the demonstration by about 6,000 persons at the Ontario Science Centre, where Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin was speaking at a banquet.

Mr. Landins, a diminutive bespectacled man, testified he and his wife were often flown, trampled and beaten by at least three mounted policemen.

He said they were standing on the rear fringe of the crowd, expected to have been 15 deep across the street from the science centre, when the police lines opened and a mounted police officer rode into the crowd.

"I suddenly saw horses very close. We did not run because we had no time. Nothing like that all happened so fast. I saw my wife knocked down. I crouched over her to protect her.

"A horse jumped over me and the left hoof was on the right side of my head. I don't know exactly how he hit me with. But I did hear the swish of something he was holding.

The Law:

Is It Moving Toward Justice Or Just Enslaving Everbody?

OTTAWA (CP) — A full "impulse to scream," the Calgary MP added.

A broad spectrum of topics related to the general conference theme—"law, society and social justice"—were kicked around verbally in panel discussions and a score of workshop sessions held by the 338 delegates.

They were summoned to the first-ever Canadian conference of this type by the federal government, sponsor of the two-day think-tank exercise. While the delegate list is heavily weighted with judges, lawyers and legislators, it is liberally sprinkled with social workers, policemen, journalists and representatives of community activist groups, youth organizations and native peoples groups with the aim of injecting a leavening influence.

Sexually Inadequate Jailed

TORONTO (CP) — A professor of social work says Ontario will be dealing with dangerous sexual offenders have resulted in a group of sexually and sexually inadequate individuals being placed in federal bars in conditions of appalling degradation.

Cyril Greenland, of McMaster University in Hamilton, says a study he did of 17 so-called dangerous sexual offenders from Ontario in the federal penitentiary system shows that only three have ever been violent or threatened violence in getting sexual gratification.

The professor, he describes as a non-violent group of older homosexual pedophiles, exhibitionists and mental defectives and a diagnosed paycopath suffering from hypersexuality.

Prof. Greenland's study was carried out under contract with the solicitor-general's department, which administers the federal penitentiary service. He writes on his findings in the current issue of the Canadian Journal of Criminology and Corrections.

The gulf between the optimists and pessimists became rapidly apparent as the conference settled into its first real working day after a welcoming address Tuesday night by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Julius Stone, professor of jurisprudence and international law at the University of Sydney, Australia, opened a morning panel discussion by saying social progress has been steady although problems remain for the poor and minority groups.

He rejected as "knee-ill-ill clinic" the views of U.S. philosopher Herbert Marcuse that the law and similar institutions there are enslaving individuals.

Reform crusader Ralph Nader would never have achieved anything "if the mass of citizens were really as incapable as Marcuse insists of transcending their own material demands," he said.

Man retained the capacity to "control, change and reform" official government vertions and institutions.

There were limits to what could be done immediately to resolve some problems and they must be recognized. If they were not, the result could be a destructive "frenzy to remove all evils at once."

Some position, which drew a standing ovation, was backed by Chief Justice Freedman.

But Mr. Seeley, who teaches at Osgoode Hall, the Study of Democratic Studies in Santa Barbara, said the party's dominstrated a lack of concern about alarming social problems and threatens the party's total reduction to helplessness of virtually everyone.

People were still saying there could be no swift solution to such a problem as poverty, which had been around since Biblical times. It had certainly been well documented and it could be attacked and licked right now, he said, lack of real concern.

Professor Dion referred to the Trudeau government's use of the War Measures Act to crush the Front de Liberation du Quebec terrorist kidnappings at the fall of 1970 as an example of a measure which harshly curtailed civil rights but drew solid support from a majority of Canadians.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

Assume you're East and South gets to four hearts on the bidding shown.

Partner leads the king of diamonds and declarer promptly comes down. It would seem that your chances of beating the contract are very, very slim. Declarer is sure to have the A-K of hearts and ace of spades for his opening bid, and the most you can reasonably expect is to win two diamonds and a trump to hold declarer to four.

But, actually, there is a good chance of stopping the contract if you make a rather unusual play at trick one. On the king of diamonds you play the jack, and when West continues with the ace you play the deuce.

Of course, your trusty partner thinks you started with the doubtful one of 3-2 which is exactly what you want him to think — and accordingly he plays the ten of diamonds next expecting dummy to ruff and hoping that you will be able to overruff.

Declarer, also observing your 3-2, is likely to ruff in dummy with the ten, and if he does this will regret it later on. Your Q-9-8-7, which were good for one trump trick from the moment dummy appeared, have now loosened into two trump tricks as a result of your deceptive manoeuvre at trick one.

Of course, declarer may not fall into your scheme of things and may ruff the third diamond in dummy with the five — but in that case it will have cost you a thing to have attempted the coup. Any play is debatable, but in order to increase the chance of declarer's going down, you surely want to step in the right direction; and the more such steps you take the more often declarer will go wrong.

Tomorrow: Test your dummy play.

Kidnappers Got Many Leaves

OTTAWA (CP) — Paul Faguy, federal commissioner of penitentiaries, says the six young Toronto men convicted in the Mary Nelles kidnapping have been recommended for early parole and work leaves during their confinement in prison. Mr. Faguy said in a statement Wednesday that all six "have been released within their first 13 months of imprisonment, although in three cases the first absence was with an escort. The six were given sentences ranging from 10 to 15 years in 1969.

Four of them—Ralph Campeau, 22, John Hogan, 22, Michael Whiteside, 26, and Peter Burns, 25—are out on parole. Two others—Gary Adams, 28, and Richard Yeowart, 28—still are behind bars.

The statement says gifting was done for the six that is not done for other prisoners. They went through the ordinary process of being sent to Kingston penitentiary, where they were classified and sent to other prisons.

The statement showed that Campeau, paroled last July after serving 20 months of a 10-year sentence, spent most of his confinement in the Beaver Creek minimum-security prison near Bracebridge where temporary leave was granted several times. He had leave to visit his parents six times, averaging three days each, and also passes for 26 evenings to attend night classes at Bracebridge High School.

What The Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Keep your wits about you, be ready to make a deal or force an issue with a rival. Play hard work hard, pursue romantic interests vigorously.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): A feeling of transformation is in the air. Be ready to enjoy your share. Think of ideas for redecorating your home.

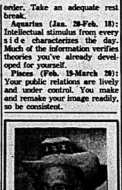
Gemini (May 21-June 20): Stay on your toes to make a quick move as an opportunity opens and closes within hours.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Full low up creative energy with a fresh line of ideas. Bring friends, relatives with you in any travels.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Put on your most attractive attire, best humor, and charm your way through an easy day. Entertain business contacts.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It's a good time for explaining your projects to those people who are needed to complete the presentation and get approval.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The day grows in intensity and significance as the hours — hopefully the hours, according to what you've put into your daily living lately.



Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Sudden incidental advantages come and go swiftly in a day full of friendly, romantic discussion.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Anything you work or play at attracts guests, onlookers, curiosity. Take leadership and make the most of it.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): This is a good day for signing and setting deals; closing accounts, putting things in proper order. Take an adequate rest break.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Intellectual stimulus from every side characterizes the day. Much of the information verifies theories you've already developed for yourself.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Your public relations are lively and under control. You make and remake your image readily, so be consistent.

Marmora Personals

MARMORA — Mrs. Walter Potts, Mrs. James Cook, Mrs. Gordon Moffatt, Mrs. John Glover, Mrs. E. Post and Mrs. George Fox attended the annual meeting of the United Church Women of Belleville Presbyterian held in King St. United Church, Trenton. The special speaker was Dr. Ernest Long, retiring secretary of General Council.

Mr. Tony Cullyeah and Bobby of Niagara Falls, N.Y. visited Mr. and Mrs. James Luke and other relatives in the area on the weekend.

Mrs. John Peters and children were in Ottawa last week visiting her mother, Mrs. Archie Hill.

The flowers on the altar of St. Paul's Church last Sunday in memory of Mr. Leslie Rundle were placed there by his wife, Alma and family.

The Marmora Branch of the Red Cross Society aided the family of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Phillips whose home was completely gutted by fire last week.

British Soldiers Accused by Ulster Catholics of Butchery

LONDON (CP) — The British soldier stands accused by Catholics of butchery, the cry against him echoes through Catholic ghettoes.

"We got one and we will get 12 more," says an Irish Republican Army spokesman.

Sunday, Jan. 30: What really happened on that tragic Bloody Sunday? Who fired first in the clash of the Londonderry generation, the march that shattered British policy in Northern Ireland?

Bloody Sunday: The conflicting, contradictory testimony defies an answer.

For two years British troops were under great strain as they attempted to separate Catholics and Protestants.

From simple separation, the troops were turned into a British force against the outlawed IRA. Soldiers died in ambush; were walking the streets while terror, others lashed by revelry with "friends" who killed them.

Bloody Sunday, which brought death to 13 Catholic civilians, may have been an event that tested military nerve — the beginning of a new policy of tougher response.

The British have given their side. Military commanders and British defence leaders have replied. But the parachutists, the men ordered over the barriers remain silent.

They await the verdict of a wartime gunner who rose to be brigadier — John Widgery, now chief justice of England.

The British government maintains that the army had received intelligence reports that the IRA would use the demonstration to attack the troops. The troops were ready.

Of all the versions of what happened, these points appear undisputed.

After challenging the barricades, the bulk of the demonstration turned back. But a hard-core of the marchers remained, pitching bottles, wood, bricks, iron bars and even canisters of gas at the troops.

The army responded with gas and rubber bullets. Water cannon were brought up to spray the rioters with dye. Whether the dye was intended merely as a deterrent or more significantly as a means of later identification is open to question.

In any case, commanders ordered the troops to round up the rioters. The troops leaped the barricades and the rioters fell back.

It was clear the troops would be in the township a long time. Maj.-Gen. Robert Ford, land forces commander, said: "We had hoped to arrest between 20 and 30 but due to a delay of about 10 minutes, we only got about 7."

Now the controversy begins. The army maintains its troops came under fire from a bit-n'r of undefined sportsmen known as an IRA nest. Troops returned the fire, March leaders and IRA spokesmen deny that any shots were fired at the soldiers. In fact none of them was hit. Two were injured from an acid bomb apparently thrown from the flats.

March leaders claim also that if the troops had fired at snipers in the flats, the bodies would have shown signs of a heavy fall. There was no such evidence. A doctor lost in by William Cardinal Conway, Primate of All Ireland, said some of the dead had been shot in the back.

Eleven priests on the day they were on the scene also maintain that those killed had been shot in the streets, some at the process of running, others while lying on the ground. Among the 16 Catholics wounded, 11 claim to be hit while running away.

Officials Inspect Rail Crossings

Les Looney of the Board of Transport, surveys one of the disputed level crossings in Sidney Township. Mr. Looney, together with representatives of Canadian National, Canadian Pacific and the Hastings County Board of Education, Wednesday was investigating crossings on White's Road and Allen's Road. He made no commitments as to his recommendations to the board although he was sympathetic to White's Road ratepayers who are demanding warning signals. Centre, with glasses, is Sidney Reeve Jack Bush.

White Road Ratepayers Ask Warning Lights on Crossing

White's Road ratepayers Tuesday presented a 162-signature petition to Sidney Township council but sparks which were expected to accompany the confrontation never materialized.

The three-member delegation spoke to council for only 15 minutes although they vowed to return in larger and more vociferous numbers at the next meeting, March 6.

Led by Ray Boylan, who lives six lanes north of the disputed CN rail crossing, the ratepayers also read a letter from Dr. Richard Potter, MPP for Quinte informing them that he has contacted the Department of Transportation and Communication. The only argument of the evening arose when Mr. Boylan took township reeve Jack Bush to task for a statement he made concerning the view up the tracks.

The delegation was informed that an inspector from the federal Board of Transport would be in the township today to survey both the CN and CP crossings on White's Road as well as the CP crossing on Aiken's Road.

The petition, which calls for the installation of warning lights and improved road conditions, was spread over nine pages. It had been circulated by several residents of White's Road and contained names of persons from points as removed as Belleville and Frankford.

Mr. Boylan said all the signatures belonged to people who use the road including truck drivers. One council member, protesting that only ratepayers' names should have been eligible, later stated the distant signatures "just mean up the good names they have got."

Mr. Boylan's rebuttal was:

"If you go up the road once, it becomes a hazard to you. Anyone using it is as much in jeopardy as the people who live there."

Dr. Potter, replying to a submission made to him by protest spearhead Mrs. Jean McKay, said he still relies on the ratepayers as soon as he hears from the transportation department.

The statement by Mr. Bush which aroused Mr. Boylan's ire implied that there is a clear view of at least a half mile when looking east up the double CN track as you approach the crossing from the south side. Mr. Boylan contended that from the bottom of the slope which rises to the crossing, a driver's vision is severely limited by brush.

He said that if plans to build the road up had been carried out last fall as was originally scheduled, council "wouldn't have all these people bothering you."

He also stated, that a picture published last week in The Intelligencer showing a train approaching White's Road crossing was "deceptive". He said the dangerous area was at the bottom of the hill and not near the top where the picture was taken.

Letters sent by the White's Road group to local school bus firms and the Separate and Hastings County Boards of Education have drawn little active response as far as council is concerned. Mr. Boylan said he had received a call from a Hastings board spokesman who expressed grave concern over the matter.

Speaking about the petition, Mr. Boylan said: "If nothing else, it has made more people aware than ever before of what's happening."

Self-determination Is Favored by PCs

OTTAWA (CP) — A majority of the 1,200 delegates to the Progressive Conservatives' national convention last December voted in favor of recognizing a province's right of self-determination, the party announced this week.

In results of a policy ballot released Wednesday, 68 per cent supported self-determination, seven per cent refused it, 12 per cent were undecided and 20 per cent abstained.

Forty-four per cent approved a resolution condemning the use of force by the federal government to prevent a separation of Canada from choosing a political orientation different from the existing philosophy.

Ulcerative Colitis Comes Back

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Five years ago, after the birth of our third child, I developed ulcerative colitis. With medication, and following a low-residue diet, I was healed in about six months. At that time my doctor encouraged me to drink milk and I did. I also ate ice cream and cheese frequently.

Last fall shortly after the birth of our fourth child, the symptoms returned. This time my doctor prescribed the same medication, low-residue diet but no milk or milk products. Two months later I am still not well.

Will you comment? I read that everyone, regardless of age, needs to drink milk. I am five feet six, and weigh 140 lbs. — Mrs. T.F.

Ulcerative colitis is notorious for its ups and downs—getting better, then relapsing. It is also a condition that is sensitive to your emotions and anxieties and nervous tensions. That might be at least part of the reason it flared up after your pregnancies.

Now I don't know, of course, whether your doctor may have found some indications making him suspect that milk was bothering you. On the face of it, since you had such good results five years ago, I would think it questionable whether milk is troublesome for you.

It is known that milk products increase intestinal bulk, and that could be part of your trouble. Possibly the use of skim milk would be satisfactory, and drinking it, say, once a day and not at every meal, could be tried.

Although milk (whether whole, skim, two per cent or buttermilk) is a fine source of protein and necessary minerals, it is not the only source. As a generality I consider it a good habit for anyone, at any age, to get some milk or milk products into the daily diet. It is particularly important, and some people just don't get enough of that.

But when a person happens to be sensitive to milk and have digestive upsets because of it, then it is possible to get the necessary protein from meat, eggs and fish, and to get the calcium from vegetables, or even from a simple calcium supplement in tablet or other form.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am writing in regards to Mrs. H.V.N. who is worried about her little boy with the ventricular septal defect.

I was born with the same kind of defect, led a normal life, and even had a baby at age 28. I had heart surgery at 31. I am now 30 and have had two more children since the operation. I hope this will help ease Mrs. H.V.N.'s mind. — Mrs. J.M.M.

I hope so, too. You can't blame parents for worrying when a child needs heart surgery but, depending on just what kind of surgery, they worry very much. Thanks for writing.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read an article about saccharin causing cancer in mice. Do you really think it is dangerous? I use at least eight quarter-grain tablets a day. — E.S.

I don't know of any indication that it is harmful in ordinary amounts such as you are using. Mice and men are different. The results of such animal experiments can not automatically apply to humans.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you tell me how to heal a varicose ulcer? It stays the same no matter what I put on it. — M.E.W.

Stripping (removal) of varicose veins often is the only effective way of improving circulation enough so such ulcers heal. This is combined with pressure dressings.

Those on Bail Don't Have to Starve

Accused Man Is Hired on Winter Works

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre Vallieres, once described as the leader of the Front de Liberation du Quebec, and who faces charges of counselling to kidnap and murder, has been hired by the federal government to work on a winter works project.

Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey told reporters in Wednesday that Mr. Vallieres is a Canadian citizen and fulfills all the criteria for the job. Until he is convicted of criminal charges, he is fully entitled to unemployment, said the minister.

"And I am glad that he has rediscovered federalism."

Mr. Mackasey faced persistent questioning about the bail-hiring when he met reporters Wednesday, and he repeatedly said that "nothing in Canadian law" which says that when you bail you have to starve."

Mr. Vallieres was hired as co-ordinator of a project to establish a community information centre in Montreal's Saint Jacques district.

Mr. Mackasey said he has the conditions of low-income earners in the area which is 85 miles north of Ottawa. He is to begin work next week at a salary of $128 a week.

He had gone into hiding last September before his trial on the criminal charges. He gave himself up Jan. 24 and was released on bail the following day after agreeing to appear in court March 6.

While in hiding he wrote a 27-page document in which he said he had cut all ties with the FLQ and was supporting the Parti Quebecois, which advocates the separation of Quebec by political means.

Davis Says He Needs Experienced Cabinet

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis has appointed the same man who formed his cabinet before the Oct. 21 general elections as his ministers for the 30th session of the Ontario legislature.

After they were sworn in Wednesday, he said he needs their experience at a time of "difficult and complicated" legislation for government.

The new appointments were preceded last month by the creation of three policy ministers: A. R. "Dick" Lawrence, provincial secretary for justice; Robert Welch, provincial secretary for social development, and Allan Lawrence, provincial secretary for justice.

Wednesday, Mr. Davis shuffled the face cards in 19 of 21 ministries but neither picked up from the deck of backbenchers nor one dealed.

And for the time being at least, he did not keep his election promise to appoint a woman to the cabinet.

Marketing been a backbencher myself for a couple of years, the experience is very helpful," daughter, Lewis, of the only New Democratic Party, said he had assured that male chauvinism would some day end in cabinet appointments "but apparently not this time."

Thomas Wells, 48, took over the education portfolio, the largest spending department in government.

Previously he had been minister of social and family services, a minor department, and before that health.

He said he wants to continue the decentralization of education by placing more decision-making with the county boards.

Dr. Richard Potter, 46, a part-time specialist in mental health, was named health minister. The department's budget is second only to education.

George Kerr of Burlington, who had been to stay on as minister of the environment where he had earned a solid reputation, was named minister of colleges and universities. In that portfolio he will be busy with the report of the Wright commission on post-secondary education which recommends playing down the importance of degrees.

Chatham businessman Darcy McKeough, 38, will carry the heaviest load of any cabinet minister and as the government's number two man behind Mr. Davis. He is minister-designate of finance and intergovernmental affairs, remains treasurer and minister of economics and will also take on municipal affairs, a portfolio he held earlier.

James Auld, 48, of Brockville, assumed the ministry of the environment. He had previously been minister of public works.

Charles MacNaughton, who has served in eight portfolios, was named chairman of the cabinet's management board which will have responsibility for the provincial budget. In essence he and the board will control the purse strings.

Allan Grossman, 60, becomes revenue minister and vice-chairman of the management board. He had been minister of trade and development.

Mr. Davis said that despite the appointment of John White, 45, of London to the post of minister without portfolio, and Mr. Grossman will head an upcoming trade mission to China because of his experience.

Mr. White, in London, England, on government business was the only cabinet minister not on hand for the swearing in.

The oldest cabinet minister from a service standpoint is John Yaremko, 53, who remains provincial secretary and minister of citizenship but is also responsible for consumer affairs.

He will have responsibility for the Ontario Police Commission, the Ontario provincial police and purchasing marshals. Creation of this new portfolio is an attempt to assess responsibility and will also take on municipal affairs, a portfolio he held earlier.

Toronto lawyer Dalton Bales, 51, moves from municipal affairs to justice.

Fern Guindon, the bilingual Ottawa-Carleton lawyer who has been minister of tourism for a year, moves into the labor portfolio. David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor, said he had been happy with Labor Minister Gordon Carton, and now it seems there is nobody in the top echelons of the department who is labor oriented.

"I suppose that's the way they want it."

Meanwhile Mr. Carton was moved to transportation and communications.

Leo Bernier, 42, of Kenora, who had been minister of mines and northern affairs, will head a larger department of natural resources which will include lands and forests.

Rene Brunelle, former ministers of lands and forests, was named minister of social and family services.

The only cabinet ministers unaffected by the shuffle are Attorney-General Arthur Wishart, Q.C., and Provincial Secretary for Resources Development Leslie Frost, Q.C.

The only cabinet ministers unaffected by the shuffle are Attorney-General Arthur Wishart, Q.C., and Provincial Secretary for Resources Development Leslie Frost, Q.C.

Shuffle Seems Interim Move

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis's cabinet reshuffle Wednesday appears to be a cautious, interim step in the major reorganization taking place in the structure of the Ontario government and civil service.

Mr. Davis admitted as much when he told reporters at a news conference that new blood would not give him the cabinet stability and experience he requires during the difficult period of reorganization.

Therefore, there are no new faces in the 21-member cabinet, although some of the shifts are surprisingly many seasoned observers.

The major changes are seen to be in three portfolios—health, which goes to outsider Bella Wille Decter, Richard Potter; the veteran Charles MacNaughton as chairman of the management board of cabinet; and Gordon Carton as minister of transportation and communications.

There still is no clear indication of how reorganization responsibilities may shift in the name of agencies, secretariats, deputy ministers, department committees and boards envisaged under the government's bid for what it calls a modernizing of government operations.

By staying with virtually the same cabinet, Mr. Davis also achieves two immediate objectives.

1. It gives him time to assess the qualifications of the 27 newcomers in his caucus, elected in last fall's provincial election, and also gives the new members time to gain some valuable experience. Mr. Davis says he did not appoint a woman to his cabinet because the only two women MPPs are newcomers.

2. It provides a period of continuity while he carries out his assessment of the best way to complete his program for reorganizing the whole government process.

Once restructuring is completed and the lines of responsibility are defined, Mr. Davis can be expected to make other major changes in his cabinet, this time not forced on him by external factors.

OPP Cars Off Roads, Mail Stops

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Quinte area late today began shouldering out from under the worst storm lashing of winter 1972, a squall that:

—Halted home mail deliveries in Belleville and district, believed the first such cancellation in city history.

—Caused power and telephone disruptions in Hastings and Prince Edward counties that blacked out much of the area south of Belleville, including Picton.

—Ground rural bus services to a standstill.

—Made travel hazardous as high winds frustrated round-the-clock labor to keep transportation routes safe.

—Forced police patrols off the major highways, answering only when called to specific occurrences.

—Diverted CFB Trenton incoming flights to Ottawa and suspended Trenton outward flights until runways were plowed back to normal today.

In a sweeping blast almost without interruption for 24 hours, the squall left 12 inches of snow behind in the Belleville - Trenton area, 16 inches in Picton, nearly 30 inches further north in the Tweed area.

But the crucial factor was accompanying winds — gusting up to 45 miles-an-hour — that swept the fallen snow across the area, rendering visibility zero at times on main highways, flushing heavy drifts across country roads, plugging access to rural areas.

Bearing the worst effects of the storm were areas where winds were at their most jumbled hydro connections — notably across Prince Edward County.

The squall was part of a weather system that punched much of Ontario and Quebec, causing blizzard - like conditions. One person was killed in a traffic accident in Toronto.

As the squall eased, an OPP spokesman in Belleville said police cruisers would be dispatched throughout the area to check any cars found isolated by the storm.

Patrols had to be curtailed until winds were lowered and visibility became clearer, he said. At Madoc, some OPP officers reported for duty on snowmobiles, only to find their detachment office snowed in by heavy drifts, said the spokesman.

In the Quinte area, an Ontario Hydro spokesman in Belleville said the first failure, broke about 6 a.m. when a conductor on a 44,000 volt main feeder running south from Belleville line was blown down. Some of the power load was transferred to a second line, but this also developed problems about 7:45 a.m. and the line carried no power for nearly an hour. In Picton Rural, residential power was restored sporadically by 10:30 a.m., but the business district was still blacked out. Vibrations from high winds caused problems in the Trenton - Frankford, Tweed area and plunged roads were a main factor in thwarting restoration efforts of hydro line crews.

Bellevillians felt the storm's wrath as they awoke to find mail — perhaps for the first time ever.

Assistant postmaster Jack Smith said he took the decision after the city's 25 letter carriers off their routes because

Britain, 8 Lands Recognize Bangladesh

LONDON (CP) — Britain announced today its recognition of the new state of Bangladesh and was followed by several other European countries, including West Germany.

Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home made the British announcement in the House of Commons.

Britain became the second major power to recognize Bangladesh, the former East Pakistan territory. The Soviet Union did so Jan. 24.

The British recognition came five days after Pakistan announced it was leaving the Commonwealth, because Australia and New Zealand recognized Bangladesh and Britain was intending to do so.

West Germany announced its recognition in Bonn and said the two governments will exchange ambassadors.

The Nordic countries—Sweden, Norway, Denmark, and Finland—also announced formal recognition of Bangladesh and the Dutch foreign office said in The Hague the Netherlands will recognize the new state.

Diplomatic sources in Brussels said five other members of the European Common Market —Belgium and Luxembourg— were preparing to recognize the young nation carved by war from Pakistan last December.

But France and Italy were reported delaying.

Austria, the Irish Republic and Israel also recognized Bangladesh today.

The entire Soviet bloc with the exception of Rumania has recognized the new nation.

Mahoney Will Head Tax Review

OTTAWA (CP) — Patrick Mahoney, newly-appointed minister of state, has been assigned to work on a continuing review of tax policy with Finance Minister John Turner, the prime minister's office said Thursday.

Also announced was a minishuffle of parliamentary secretaries effective last Friday's cabinet shuffle. Parliamentary secretaries are MPs assigned to assist individual ministers and on occasion speak for them in the Commons.

One new parliamentary secretary was appointed—Ian Watson, MP for Lapraire, to assist Revenue Minister Herb Gray.

Doctors' Pay Full Pay at Agreed Scale Potter's Objective

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Health Minister Richard Potter said Thursday he wants Ontario doctors to work out a fee schedule that the government medical plan would pay in full.

Since Nov. 1 doctors who send their claims to the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan have had to accept 90 per cent as payment in full. Previously they were free to bill the patient for the other 10 per cent.

Dr. Potter, appointed to the portfolio Wednesday, said OHSIP should pay them the full 100 per cent but this would have to be done in stages to avoid sharp increases in medicare payments.

It would also require adjustments in fee schedule that both doctors and the government could accept.

He said the Ontario Medical Association, which reviews the schedule every two years, has expressed its intention of holding the line on fees at this year's review.

"I think this is right," he said. "I think it is also right that we should state our intention to remove this 10 per cent barrier once and for all."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Colder air has begun to move into Ontario accompanied by strong westerly winds. This has caused treacherously icy conditions in southern Ontario. As the cold air continues to move across the Great Lakes today widespread snow-flurry activity will continue with heavy squalls in the snowbelt communities. The weekend outlook promises mainly sunny skies across Ontario but temperatures will remain below seasonal values.

CP Rail Engineers Walk Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — CP Rail was expected to seek an injunction today in the wake of a walkout by 70 locomotive engineers, Thursday which virtually halted traffic on the company's lines in and out of Vancouver.

The stoppage by members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers forced cancellation of Thursday night's eastbound passenger run and brought freight movements to a standstill. A westbound passenger train arrived here about an hour late Thursday night.

At issue is the case of an engineman with 28 years service who was withdrawn from service in January because he could not meet the minimum eyesight standards of the Canadian transport commission.

The union claims the company wanted to "give him a job with a broom, sweeping up the shop or something."

IRA Will Steer Clear of British Troops at Mourning March

BELFAST (CP) — An officer of the Irish Republican Army said today that the anti-British guerrillas will steer clear of the British troops ordered to disperse a Roman Catholic mourning march Sunday in Newry.

"We plan to keep well away," an officer of the IRA's militant Provisional wing told local newspapers. "It would be distinctly unwise for us to go into a situation like this where we would run the risk of arrest or shooting by the soldiers."

Up to 20,000 demonstrators are expected by join the march. The Civil Rights Association is organizing it as a tribute to the 13 Catholic civilians killed when British paratroops broke up another banned procession in Londonderry last Sunday.

All public processions are banned in Northern Ireland, and the British Army warned that its soldiers would break up the Newry march by force if necessary. The army brought in 259 more infantrymen, boosting its strength in the province to 15,000 troops.

The Civil Rights Association appealed to IRA gunmen to stay away.

"We do not want any troublemakers in our ranks," a spokesman said. "If there is any violence it must be made clear that it comes only from the British Army."

Thursday night, Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain published the text of letters he sent to John Cardinal Heenan, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Westminster, William Cardinal Conway, Roman Catholic Primate of all Ireland and Eric Lynch, premier of the Irish Republic, appealing to them to use their influence to stop the Newry march.

Thursday night the first of 500 additional British troops were on their way to Northern Ireland. The remainder are expected later today.

A spokesman for the army said it is highly likely that the 1st Battalion of the Parachute Regiment, which was involved in last Sunday's shootings, will be in Newry this weekend.

The Parachute Regiment has been blamed for firing indiscriminately during the action in Londonderry and for laughing about as the victims of the shooting fell.

The army and the British government have denied these charges and Britain's chief justice, Lord Widgery, is to conduct an independent one-man inquiry into the affair.

Civil rights leader Kevin McCorry said Thursday: "The Newry march is going ahead as planned."

Anti-Unionist Asks Eire to Move Troops Near Border

LONDONDERRY (CP) — The big preoccupation for the Roman Catholics of Londonderry still rocking from last Sunday's 13 killings in the Bogside — now is not so much the grief over these tragic deaths as the projected civil rights march in Newry Sunday.

Hitting Catholic Derry like a rumor's bombshell Thursday night was the statement by one anti-Unionist member of the Northern Ireland Parliament calling on Prime Minister Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic to move Dublin troops close to the border in time for the beginning of Sunday's demonstration.

Newry lies close to the controversial frontier between Ulster and the republic on the northern side. And MP Ivan Cooper said that if British troops in Newry resort to firing on the demonstrators this weekend, then soldiers from the Irish Republic should cross the border to defend the civil rights demonstrators.

However, among some Derry Catholics the opinion is that the Newry march might turn out to be a merciful anticlimax—if soldiers and units of the Irish Republican Army from south of the border don't disrupt the organizers' plan for a peaceful demonstration.

Albert Land Split Hearing Decision Reserved by OMB

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Spectwriter

Vacant Albert College property of the east end of Wellington will be used in the city, the provost for the past 15 years, may be sold for a senior citizens' apartment development or whether the site is worthy of a land split.

This was indicated Wednesday at an Ontario Municipal Board hearing at city hall when appeals against a May 1971, committee of adjustment decision on a land split application were heard.

Albert College was appealing against conditions set by the committee of adjustment in granting the land split, while area residents appealed against the committee decision.

No zoning change would be necessary for the Albert College property to allow apartment construction as it is now in a R 3 area which permits multiple family residences.

Following a four-hour hearing, the board decision on the Albert appeal was reserved. But if the property is sold and for a senior citizens' apartment development, it is understood, though the Albert College appeal may be withdrawn and no decision will be necessary.

The board members asked Albert College counsel, J. D. Templeman, QC to notify them by March 31 if a decision on the appeal was satisfied.

If the land split application is withdrawn, it was intimated that the area residents' appeal would also be withdrawn and the "whole thing dismissed."

The Albert College application for a land split of its property, known as Maple Manor Lane, is against the zoning by-law which prohibits the creation of vacant lots.

But area residents objected strenuously expressing fears of increased traffic, narrow residential streets and overcrowding of existing services.

A big point of objection was the loss of the open space used for a city playground for more than one and a half decades.

For a time yesterday it appeared questionable whether the OMB hearing would actually go ahead as scheduled.

Mr. Templeman told the hearing that if certain arrangements now pending for the sale of the subject property were completed, a land split would not be necessary.

He said, holding the hearing would be an exercise in futility.

Asked by OMB members what Albert College was doing with the property, Mr. Templeman said he was not free to divulge details but later during the hearing said the subject site was being considered for senior citizens' apartment development.

Movement of the lot line of the property to be sold to west of an unopened street allowance, owned by Albert College, would allow permit the sale without a severance, he submitted.

If conditions set by the local committee of adjustment were upheld, Mr. Templeman said Albert College could be driven to moving the lot line "and no one would be any better off."

One of the conditions set by the committee of adjustment called for necessary lands for the widening of Wellington Crescent at original cost to the city, to be dedicated to the corporation.

Another, which resulted in possibly the greatest objection on the part of the college, called for a private roadway with a minimum of 40 feet to be provided by the college over the remainder of the property to provide vehicular access to Highland Ave.

Mr. Templeman asked that this condition be struck from the committee of adjustment decision.

The condition for provision of an access road to the subject property to Highland Ave. was a recommendation from Richard Danziger, development planner with the then Belleville and Suburban Planning Board.

Mr. Danziger testified that he had conferred with Planning Director Bert Kenny on the Albert College land split application but not with the city traffic engineer.

He said he felt that if an apartment complex was developed on the Albert property, it would likely generate heavy traffic through narrow Wellington Crese. residential streets.

Diverting some of this traffic to Highland Ave would alleviate some of the problem, he said.

But board members immediately indicated they would not approve of the private roadway requirement.

Who would do the snowplowing, how would garbage get collected and what about fire trucks, they said.

They said they would not agree to a condition on remaining land and city solicitor John C. Miller took the same view.

"A condition on remaining property would be an improperity," he stated.

Only two witnesses — local Ontario Land Surveyor Walter Watson and Deputy City Clerk Earl Dafoe, were called by Albert College counsel.

Mr. Dafoe said the hearing that present zoning in the subject area which was designated R 3 about 20 years ago, permitted multiple dwellings but no row housing.

Under the terms of the present by-law, up to 92 units could be accommodated on the property, he said.

Mr. Danziger told the hearing that in his opinion, aside from the economic viewpoint, the subject property formed part a good site for multiple family construction.

"It should remain as a park or for family development," he said.

Representations made to a West Hill ratepayers' petition urging city council to retain the area for which would prevent apartment construction.

As result of the petition, council directed the city residential chapter of the city's proposed official plan be considered by the planning director.

But when the plan was completed, council failed to pass it and referred the matter to the Quinte Planning Board which has since hired a firm of consultants to prepare an official plan. This is not expected to be ready before mid-summer of next year.

Commenting on the fact, that council had taken no action on the rezoning request, board members noted that, in fact, it was the city's citizens couldn't have taken action.

"Unfortunately for them, they didn't," was the comment.

Mr. Dafoe told the hearing that he had given no instruction to have the Albert College property retained as a park, he had been directed to negotiate for its purchase.

He said the regional assessment office had valued the 1.9 acres at $72,900 while the property was worth $100,000.

"Council feeling was that land was too expensive for park purposes," he said.

Wellington Crescent area residents testifying in support of their own appeal against the land severance made a strong point about the pending loss of the playground area, if possible, the sanitary sewers if a big apartment complex was built. Increased traffic density and the fact that there was no storm sewer in the area.

Kenneth Peoples, 16 Wellington Crescent, pointed out that the city building bylaw called for roof drainage from apartments to go into the storm sewers.

"The proposed development would mean 300 per cent more sewage going into the sanitary sewers than for which the service was installed," he said.

Other objectors called included Miss Grace Kenny, 67 Charlotte Street; Elorse H. Thompson, 19 Wellington Crescent, Frank Leach, 3 Wellington Crescent and Mrs. Ruth Grant, 11 Wellington Crescent.

Mrs. Leach told the hearing he had purchased his home on Wellington Crescent in 1967 mainly because it was a quiet street.

He said he objected to the cost of additional services and wider roadway if these had to be imposed because of the proposed development.

Miss Kenny said her prime concern was that under present zoning, high density could be erected in the playground area immediately in the rear of her property.

People of all ages — including the residents of new apartment buildings — met her street — made good use of the open space, she said.

If the apartment proposal went ahead, area residents would lose that valuable bit of existence, Miss Kenny warned, "and Wellington Crescent residents will be right in the middle of it.

"Should property owners protest or should they submit meekly," she asked.

The human element as well as the dollar should be considered, she argued.

BGH's Queenie Cooke Retires

When Miss Queenie Cooke started nursing in the Quinte area, doctors and nurses would often be called upon to dash off into the north country to lend assistance.

Back in 1961, when she joined the nursing staff at Belleville General Hospital, there were only 150 beds as compared to the more than 400 that came under her control as night nursing supervisor for the past 12 years.

A close friend and nursing cronies, Miss M. R. Gaw, a hospital assistant administrator, last night recalled several times when they have travelled together to antique shops and Miss Cooke, unprocessed traffic density and the fact that there was no storm sewer in the area.

Kenneth Peoples, 16 Wellington Crescent, pointed out that the city building bylaw called for roof drainage from apartments to go into the storm sewers.

"The proposed development would mean 300 per cent more sewage going into the sanitary sewers than for which the service was installed, he said.

Later, Mr. Smith said mail had been delivered to the city's business and commercial areas.

Carriers' mail-boxes spotted throughout the city also were snowed in, he noted.

"It's pointless to make it if the carriers can't deliver it," added Mr. Smith. " . . . This is about the first time in (city) history I can recall the letter carriers not going out."

There will be no substitute deliveries Saturday, he said.

Also affected were seven rural mail routes in the Belleville area where mail, however, could be delivered tomorrow.

Mail from Ottawa to Peterborough, which is sorted in Belleville, could not be despatched to its destination because of poor driving conditions.

City work crews starting plowing Belleville streets early yesterday as the squall built up, reported city engineer Wilbur Purcell. Workers took a break between 8 p.m. and 2 a.m. before tackling the buildup. In all, 12 crews endeavoring to get the city mobile for the morning rush-hour.

Heavy drifts created the worst problems, said the engineer. There's drifting and there's not much you can do about it."

Complaints from irate homeowners about driveways plugged by passing snowplows also were heard last night. The flow of calls distracted staff from their necessary duties, said Mr. Purcell.

It's the individual's responsibility to get to the road after it's our job to keep them moving," he explained.

Bell Telephone reported no major failures, although Trenton experienced the hardest hit by downed service wires running from main lines into households.

Lines in Prince Edward County, and in an area between Frankford and Tweed, also were affected by ice-laden trees, plugged roads were hampering access by work crews.

If necessary, said a local Bell official, crews would work all weekend to ensure all rural services were restored.

Workers Spend Night at Plant

Quinte - area workers at a Belleville factory spent a record home last night.

The workers, from Deserono and Napanee — were left without transportation when the company parking lot immobilized during the night's severe storm.

The workers, instead, settled down and spend the night at the textile fibre plant.

Loyalist Board Revises Budget

Loyalist College's board of governors last night approved revisions in its 1972 operating budget that will leave it with $384,646 in working capital to finance its operations at the beginning of the fiscal year until government grants come through.

The $136,646 amounts to less than the one month's working capital ($350,000 for Loyalist) that the department of colleges and universities lays down as a guideline.

The college's total budget is $4.3 million.

In some areas cost of operating the colleges was running less than originally estimated.

The academic budget will be reduced by $21,295, the largest reduction being in staff salaries.

Administrative expenses will probably be $6,170 less than budgeted, with savings being effected in the cost of telephones and on computer service.

The college will save $7,800 on property and plant operations, and $3,840 on the cost of running its northern operations in Bancroft.

With the approval of the provincial department, the surpluses accruing this year will be reserved for replacement of furniture and equipment, an item not provided for by provincial government regulations and for expenditures for capital equipment.

The $126,368 designated equipment replacement for this purpose is 10 per cent of last year's purchase price for furniture and equipment.

Under the original approved budget, revenue was shown as $3,322,145, with expenses amounting to $3,460,361, leaving a surplus of $271,784.

Under the revised budget, revenue has climbed to $4,456,850, expenses have been raised to $4,320,004, leaving a surplus of $136,646.

School Music Instruction Spotty

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The sound of music has been muted in city schools.

And the bands aren't likely to strike up again in elementary classrooms until public demand calls for them.

Both vocal and instrumental music are offered on a hit and miss basis in county schools. Only Bancroft's secondary school offers both. In the remaining secondary schools only instrumental music is taught — on a part time basis in Madoc and Trenton.

On the elementary level, only vocal music is offered in elementary schools, and that, usually by a teacher hired to teach other subjects and pushed into covering a music class or two as a sideline.

Instrumental music used to be available in Belleville's elementary schools, but with the retirement of Alf Cooper, who instructed two generations of city youngsters, the option disappeared from the course of study.

Now, one public school teacher and a high school teacher are keeping instrumental music alive in two elementary schools, and Stephen Choma, conductor of the Eastern Ontario Symphony Orchestra is giving free instruction on string instruments to 10 pupils at Harry J. Clarke School.

High school teachers, who need to depend upon Mr. Cooper's pupils to form the nucleus of their school bands, have to start from scratch to teach instrumental music to Grade 9 students.

But this is nothing compared to the frustration of the elementary school music teachers, who see all their careful instruction in vocal music go for naught when their pupils enter secondary school. With no vocal or choral music instruction available in the high schools, a child who has taken vocal music must drop it when he moves on to Grade 9.

"Boys, especially, miss the most critical part of their training — the period when their voices are changing," says Murray Irwin, director of the Belleville Choral Society and vice-principal of Centennial Secondary School.

"The voice has to be trained just the same as a musical instrument," says Mr. Irwin. "The answer is a choral course."

A pilot study in a high school credit course in choral music has been under way at Ottawa's Fisher Park school for three years, and its director was brought to Belleville two weeks ago to illustrate its advantages.

Mr. Irwin and his fellow teachers have brought similar groups to the city in the past to give students enrolled in music options a chance to hear first rate performances by their peers in other centres.

Not the least important aspect of this program is the opportunity it gives city teachers to share ideas with other teachers and music directors who come with their groups.

Such performances are expensive, but Mr. Irwin sees four or five county boards in this area sharing in the cost of bringing groups here in the future.

The Hastings County Music Educators Association presented a brief on music teaching to the board last year, but because of the tight budget it did not reach the floor for public discussion.

The chief cost of beefing up the music course of study, says association president Douglas Aselstine, is the expense of qualified teachers.

The practice of pinning a reluctant teacher into taking on a few classes in music must stop, if music training is to succeed, he says. The music teachers would like each kindergarten to Grade 8 school to have one qualified music teacher to handle all classes.

Each senior elementary school would need two such teachers, and each high school would also need two — one for instrumental music and one for vocal or choral.

At the present time, about 19 per cent of the students entering Grade 9 elect to take a music option. The numbers would increase, the teachers believe if, the choice of either vocal or instrumental music were available.

"I suppose the role of the principal and the school is to sell the idea that music is not a frill," said Mr. Irwin. "But parents will have to say if they want music — theirs in the most impressive voice to the board of education."

$26,000 Project Approved

Word came this week that a project submitted by the United Community Services has been accepted and will mean 13 new jobs created for a four-month period.

The Local Initiatives Program, sponsored federally, will provide almost $26,000 to the Belleville project. Of this figure, over $22,000 will be spent on wages.

Under the direction of the UCS office, the project intends to research the needs of the area's senior citizens.

Isidore Cooperman, director of the UCS said today, "we can't help these people if we do not know what hardships they are having or what they need."

Using the assessment files in Trenton, a thorough list is now being compiled of all residents over the age of 60.

A spokesman for the project said, "we are trying to identify the concerns of senior citizens in such areas as income, health, nutrition, housing, transportation, employment, retirement, recreation and volunteer roles."

This will be completed by questionnaires circulated at churches, senior citizen homes and meeting places and some home interviews.

"We are even anticipating having senior citizens working to develop the questionnaire," said Mr. Cooperman. "When needs are found, they should be met by the public, voluntary and private organizations and by senior citizens themselves."

The project is scheduled to end on the last day of May.

Consultant Outlines Steps To Obtain Project Approval

Graham Deline, project officer and consultant for the federal Opportunities for Youth program met with area students to discuss work possibilities Wednesday.

Mr. Deline pointed out the differences from last year and talked on the five "necessary points" for an acceptable project.

"The projects must be planned, administered and evaluated by students themselves," he told his Belleville Collegiate Institute audience. "Secondly, preference will be given to those projects which will offer new services to the community, next the project should be of benefit to the community, the project should be workable and finally each project should employ about 10 or 15 people.

One project idea that Mr. Deline was "real excited about" was the completion of the Quinte - Hastings Trail.

Members of the administration were anticipating funding from the Opportunities for Youth program to complete the manual labor of the trail.

"I suppose it could be given a grant but I am against it because it takes much of the initiative from the students," said Mr. Deline. "I am not against physical work but I think the planning stages should be given high priority."

Through local initiatives program funds, the trail has been laid out and some work has been started.

Two other projects suggested by students were a general arts centre and a newspaper.

"The Opportunities for Youth Program will not be funding any hostels this summer," said Mr. Deline.

A member of the group, after asking for information, was told he could contact the office of the secretary of state where a new department has been set up to handle hostels exclusively.

While Mr. Deline said the $6.8 million would be spent in Ontario this summer, he mentioned that this money would be going to areas of high unemployment and low income.

"A lot of money will tend to centre around those cities with post secondary schools," he said. "The emphasis is placed on these students who we feel will submit the most programs."

At last night's meeting, 40 people knew the project they had in mind and had done some work developing it. However, there wasn't a post-secondary school student present.

Mr. Deline, stationed in Ottawa, left the meeting advising, "if problems come up, don't be afraid to call me in Ottawa to discuss it."

Mr. Deline also mentioned that perhaps guidance from the United Community Services would be helpful.

AG Office Moves

PICTON (Staff) — Staff members of the Ontario department of agriculture and foods move to new offices on Highway 33 near Picton on today. Office accommodations on the ground floor of a new building have been leased for the department by the provincial government.

The telephone number and mailing address of the agricultural department will not be changed.

For a number of years prior to this move the department occupied offices in a building on Elizabeth Street in Picton.

Crash Inquest March 2

An inquest has been called into the car - train crash Jan. 28 at Haig Road which took the lives of two Belleville - area women.

Coroner Dr. W. F. Bates yesterday said the inquest would be held March 2 at city police headquarters.

The hearing will inquire into the death of Mrs. Jacqueline Hubbard, 49, of Elmwood Drive, driver of the car which collided with a CPR freight at a level - crossing. Also killed in the mishap was Nancy Crawford, 19, also of Elmwood Drive.

Factory Equipment In Demand

The smaller and less efficient rural cheese factories may be a thing of the past but any up - to - date equipment they may have in use is being snapped up by the larger plants.

This was shown at a recent auction sale held to dispose of the contents of the United Empire Loyalist Factory at Adolphustown which has been closed down. The sale drew an estimated 1,500 persons.

Older type cheesemaking equipment went for bargain prices with stainless steel vats being sold to farmers for use as cattle watering troughs.

Representatives from larger factories in Prince Edward county, Amherst Island, Wilton, Madoc and Perth were on hand to bid on newer equipment.

Bidding on the factory real estate did not match the reserve bid and the property will be listed for sale through real estate dealers.

Health Minister

To the surprise of no one, Belleville's Dr. Richard Potter has been appointed Minister of Health in the Davis government. Typically he is anxious to get down to work quickly, with foremost in mind the restructuring of the provincial health program which he feels is necessary.

Dr. Potter has already presented a strong image as an innovator and practical man — first as a backbencher, then as chairman of the legislature's standing committee on health — a post in which he found himself involved in a measure of controversy — and latterly as Minister Without Portfolio.

On his own admission Dr. Potter has been long interested in the health post. His professional talents as a physician, and his legislative activities as Minister Without Portfolio, have been concentrated to this end.

Tangible evidence of Dr. Potter's interest in the health field to-date is the extended care unit in the former Queen's Motel. A pioneering facility which frees hospital beds at Belleville General, Dr. Potter was a prime mover of this initiative.

With Dr. Potter's appointment it is interesting to note he is one of a trio of cabinet ministers extending from here to Brockville where James Auld, the new environment minister, makes his home. The other minister is Syl Apps of Kingston, who remains minister of correctional services. For Mr. Auld, who was in Belleville the other day, it is his third cabinet posting — he was once minister of tourism and information and latterly minister of works.

Winter Olympics

The opening ceremonies of the Olympic Games is always a moving occasion, but the Japanese have surpassed all with the pageantry and dash of the winter games' initiation in Sapporo. In the tradition of modern Japan and its progressive society — one that also retains the best of its past heritage — the ceremonies were carried out with great flair.

The brisk and nimble music, composed specially for the occasion, and supported by a choir of high school students, was just right for the measured tread of the national teams — including, of course, the Olympic torch never borne with such finesse as it was by the beautiful young figure skating champion of Hokkaido (the northern island where Sapporo is located), then carried up the steps by another teenager, a 16-year-old boy . . . the concluding entry into the arena of the youngsters with their balloons never so symbolic of hope and peace in the world. Would that such a show of international concord could be matched by warring societies in other parts of our supposedly civilized universe.

We suppose it is a surprise to many to think of winter sports even in Japan, but Sapporo, as we have indicated, is northerly, and the winds come from the not far distant coast of Siberia a factor which at this Olympic opening found a tremendous drop in degrees into a chill factor of around zero. An admirable spot for any winter Olympics!

Fresh Prospect

To view Belleville at night from the dining room of the Treadgold Motel is to be afforded a fresh perspective. Furthermore, unless one is well versed with the waterfront it is to spend much of the evening trying to orientate oneself with a new and even exotic prospect. You look out through the cluster of trees, ethereal in the January night, to the lights of deserted Victoria Park — deserted, that is, except for an occasional car circling around and back to Dundas and Front. To say are the lights of Massasagua. It is Belleville, but it might be a world away until you get your bearings.

Still Going Strong

Avery Brundage, U.S. president of the International Olympic Committee is one of those old soldiers who never die. He is 84.

So too, one might say, is Prince Edward County native Harry Spencer of St. Catharines. A consultant to the Ontario Paper Company at Thorold, Mr. Spencer, 74, is off to India on a volunteer assignment with Canadian Executive Service Overseas. For the next six months he will be assisting a pulp and paper conversion company, standardling quality and introducing new varieties.

Such men are an inspiration to us all. They would put some younger men to shame. Mr. Spencer, incidentally, is a man in the Olympic tradition — he still plays tennis. Another in this mould of course is Governor-General Roland Michener.

President Still Riding the Crest of Public Favor

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — In television spectaculars since New Year's Day, President Nixon has gone before the American people to report on the State of the Union and the economy, and on peace proposals and planned United States troop withdrawals from South Vietnam.

Although the basics he will remain aloof from politics, at least until after the national party nominating convention next summer, the sum total of all this information appears to politically potent even though he could insist it is all just part of the job of being president.

As a low-keyed follower, a bevy of Democratic leaders put together a couple of shows of their own, aimed at putting the Republican president's statements, claims and promises under the microscope.

But the end result of all this activity, in the view of a public observer, has been that only the war and the economy have emerged as the real issues in the November presidential election.

Even there Nixon spotlights his Democratic critics by concocting outright that unemployment was the only spanner in the economy, and by dramatically unveiling the cloak-and-dagger aspects of his secret peace efforts over the last 30 months.

Only thunder thus somewhat stolen, the Democrats were left to criticizing the president for using his office to conduct political business, and they noted Nixon had entered the White House on the strength of his "plan" for ending the war, much as he now talked of talks to cut unemployment and bring a turnaround in the inflationary spiral.

The two are tied together, Republican say the economy has been demanding the end of the war and the war was largely the creation of the Democratic administrations of presidents John F. Kennedy and Johnson. The Democratic counter is has long since become a Republican war and Nixon's war," because of his expansion into Cambodia and Laos.

One of the main reasons Nixon has been such an unusually elusive target for the Democratic critics is that he changed the stance of the Republican party that the traditional "offensive is the best defense" fit as they did in the past.

In the old days the Democrats could always lambaste their challengers at being too servile, too accommodating, too opposed to big government control of Washington and tending toward isolationist ideas in foreign policy.

But in his three years in office Nixon has at times sounded more like a Democrat than a Republican. He imposed wage and price controls; he had enormous federal deficits totalling nearly $100 billion; devalued the dollar and established a new platform with a minimum guaranteed income for every family. Right now he is preoccupied with China and plans visits to Peking and Moscow.

And in the back of every Democratic mind is the fact that no president since FDR has been defeated in a bid for re-election to a second four-year term.

More on Officers and Other Ranks

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

With regard to the letter "Officers and Other Ranks" in last Friday's Intelligencer, I have debated for some time whether this letter merited a response, but as Mr. Hockley has found it necessary to carry the argument to a personal level and publicly label me as being condescending, pompous, and ignorant of the performance of military graduates in civilian life, I feel that I deserve the right to set the record straight.

If someone able to discern the delicate technical difference between libel and slander is evidently unable to grasp my intent in the phrase, ". . .don't forget that these are some of Canada's best young men . . ." astounds me. In view of the fact, (and it is a fact) that military college graduates are some of Canada's best young men, (some, not only, mind you) I feel that it is surprising that so many remain in the forces. At no time did I imply that those in the "other ranks" belonged to some lower category, an implication that Mr. Hockley obviously wished me to make.

If handling and leading men does not fall within the scope of "appreciating situations, and devising steps to deal with such unforeseen circumstances", I can only wonder what does. Of course such an ability is not the prerogative of officers and we can do without the innuendo of "officer class". It is an ability present in all of us to a greater or lesser extent, an ability that is cultivated by extensive education. Those who possess it to a greater extent generally become officers, either commissioned, or non-commissioned.

The record of hundreds of excadets who have served this country in other than military capacities speaks for itself. Mr. Hockley's stubborn contention that people with military training are incapable of handling civilian employees competently, I could name several fellow graduates who are holding positions of responsibility in the 'outside world' without any difficulty, but such a list would be meaningless.

Suggesting that graduates should serve time in the ranks in order to learn of the problems there makes about as much sense as demanding that a doctor have a baby before he becomes an obstetrician. Surely no one can believe that in four years of military college studies, learn nothing about what being a subordinate involves, or how important good leadership is.

That he would assume that I had written "at the top of my head" without discussing the whole matter seriously with several 'old timers' is indicative of his low esteem in which Mr. Hockley holds military college graduates. My ego has not suffered as a result of these discussions, and is not apt to suffer from the faulty arguments of someone who seems to carry a chip on his shoulder against those who were not commissioned from the ranks.

P.S. The above letter was drafted prior to the appearance of Mr. Hockley's editorial, aloof letters to the editor. I would just like to add that I do not intend to carry on a personal vendetta with Mr. Hockley through your paper. His first letter I felt bound to contest, primarily because I am an RMC graduate, but also because I felt a warning officer. His answering letter struck me as more of an attack on me than an orderly attack on my arguments. I consider this an extremely poor tactic, and feel bound to defend myself.

Senior Citizens Receive Financial Concessions in Several Communities

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Further to my letter of last week in your valuable paper I am noting some of the help Senior Citizens are receiving in various centres of Canada.

Homeowners in Toronto now receive a rebate of $100.00 annually on their municipal tax bill.

To qualify they must have occupied their own homes for at least 10 years, if single their total income must not exceed $3,400 or $4,500 if married.

Peterboro and Hamilton have similar schemes, but not Belleville! This relief is additional to the Provincial rebate.

In Windsor there are 25 stores which give a discount of 10 per cent to 12,000 of their senior citizens and also deliver the goods to their homes. To qualify they must acquire an identification card with their signature and photo thereon. More of their 20,000 senior citizens are applying continually and the merchants are delighted with the scheme and the older citizens appreciate the chance of saving on their meagre incomes. The scheme was accomplished through a committee working with the Windsor mayor. What a chance for the Front St. merchants in Belleville to assist in Belleville with the co-operation of the mayor and council.

An Easo Station in Toronto gives a 10 per cent discount to all members over 60.

Some movie theatres across Canada offer reduced admission fees to senior citizens over 65.

I can recite thoughts or help for the senior citizens follow.

Why can't the federal government run projects for senior citizens similar to the "Opportunities for Youth program" using the great untapped reserve of talents and skills they possess?

Why should a pensioner who has worked for 35 to 50 years for a company to earn his pension be forced to pay income tax on same, also on his old age security pension?

Why should senior citizens who have paid municipal taxes for 6 years or more still have to pay although their children have long since left school, (I refer to my own children).

The above items should be of interest to all senior citizens in Belleville, (unless they become original no results will be obtained).

According to statistics Canada there are 1,700,000 persons over 65 in Canada today and they are definitely entitled to a voice in these affairs. Imagine if there was one organization covering them all, all levels of government would take notice and ease their burdens.

To conclude I still wish to volunteer to work on behalf of the senior citizens of Belleville and district if there is any group or organization interested in making it possible to form a committee to pursue some of the ideas and allot space for meetings.

All citizens should realize that old age cannot be prevented and it is in their own interests also to take an interest in helping their senior citizens obtain some further help from the three levels of government.

JAY-GEE-II
Belleville.

Government "Generosity"

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Now that the Old Age Pension has been raised this last month, all recipients of this generosity should gratefully send Ottawa a vote in the morning and at sunset, and give thanks to Bowa Benson for his unselfish generosity. Not forgetting Mr. Munro, who takes away your Canada pension payments if you dare display any initiative.

Best savings, better in gratitude for this marvelous increase in our pittance, we shall see to it that you are re-elected for another ride on the gravy train.

W. E. BENNETT,
Wellington.

Gold was discovered in the Fraser River area, British Columbia 121 years ago today—in 1858. Tens of thousands of people headed for the West Coast. Hundreds of ships jammed the harbors as they left their way across the Gulf of Georgia to the gold fields. Then made the dangerous trip up the swift-running river. Hundreds of miles of cabins covering a speck of gold dust but others made it and panned fortunes from the sandbars at such places as Hope, Boston Bar and Barkerville. When the gold fever died, thousands of prospectors stayed to found British Columbia's first cities.

1925—Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced at a Commonwealth conference that his country would have a new republic within the British Commonwealth.

1954—Queen Elizabeth II became the first reigning sovereign to open the Australian Parliament.

1962—Rangers were declared strated for the first time, at McGill University, Montreal.

Economic and Political Developments in Africa

News from South Africa

More than $464 million was spent by South African governments in the Bantu homelands during the period 1959 to 1968, the Commissioner-General of the Xhosa National Unit, Mr. J. H. Abrahams, said at the opening ceremony of the offices of the Transkei Authority at Kwelegha near East London.

The Commissioner - General said the new offices were for the people of the Transkei amounted to $18.6 in 1959 and $158.2 in 1970. The gross national product of the Transkei totalled $98.6 million in 1970, as against $166.5 million in Rhodesia, $131.6-million of Congo-Kinshasa, $79.8-million of Lesotho and $63-million of Swaziland.

In South Africa the average wage paid to an unskilled Bantu worker was 17.5 cents an hour as compared with 83 cents in Congo-Kinshasa, 9.8 cents in Ghana and 9.8 cents in Nigeria.

The republic had one medical doctor for every 1,812 persons as against one for every 29,000 in Burundi, one for every 69,000 in Ethiopia and one for every 21,000 in Botswana.

Addressing the Property Institute of Namibia, Mr. Owen Horwood, Minister of Bantu Development and of Public Works, Mr. P. Coetzee, said that the Bantu Trust had established some collection of what has been achieved in the Bantu homelands during groups with the National Housing Commission, from 1st April of March, 1971: For White 88,-128 dwellings, for Indians 6,-128 dwellings, for Coloured 111,184, and for Bantu 332,567 dwellings, at a total cost of $1,245-billion.

The minister said that since 1961 the Community Development Board had also spent considerable sums on Community Development funds on housing and his Department and with local authorities have provided the following total number of housing units over the past 10 years: for Whites in 953, for Indians 23,069, for Coloured 75,831 and for Bantu 1,-668,000 at a total cost of $648.2-million.

The leaders of three Bantu homeland governments have declared that they support the policy of separate development (apartheid) and that self-government in the homelands and that they would never accept the idea of being represented in Parliament by whites.

This was stated by the Chief Minister of the Transkei, Paramount Chief Kaiser Matanzima and the Acting Chief Councillor of the Transkei Territorial Authority, Chief P. J. Mphephu, after discussions with the Prime Minister, Mr. John Vorster, the Minister of Bantu Administration and Development, Mr. M. C. Botha, and the Deputy Minister of Bantu Administration, Dr. P. G. van der Byl.

Chief Mphephu said the vote of the nation would be based on the rate of progress being made towards self-rule. The implementation of the policy of separate development. He also declared that the Venda people would never again accept a system of representation in the Senate and the Parliament of the Republic.

The Venda people were opposed to the Bantu Laws Amendment Act of 1970, he said. Chief Mphephu said the Venda people did not want representation in parliament. "We are Bantu, but we do not want it because we have found that the white man cannot represent us properly, and the black man correctly, however good his intentions may be. We do not think that any white man can say what the Bantu needs, he stated.

Library Proram for Kids in Hospital

A campaign is underway in Bavarian children's hospitals and sanatoria to "develop a taste for reading books" among the young patients.

The initiative for the program comes from a committee of librarians and journalists who recently met in Munich and, to start, 5,000 books, as well as illustrated magazines, donated by publishers, bookshops and toy manufacturers, were distributed to children in 25 hospitals and sanatoria. And 120 public libraries in Bavaria have undertaken to send books interested to read to the children.

According to book-world sources, 75 per cent of the population of the German Federal Republic never go into a bookshop. And, the sources add, many parents bring nothing but picture magazines, comic books and television magazines for their children to read in hospitals.

The committee wants to see libraries set up in all hospitals that treat children. Books for these libraries would be chosen by the committee in co-operation with young patients, their parents, doctors and nurses. In other countries, such as the Scandinavian states and Britain every children's hospital is expected to have a library and the committee members point out.

The therapeutic value of reading has lately been recognized by physicians and psychologists. Reading is particularly important for the child who, by losing himself in the magic world of fairy tales or the excitement of adventure stories, can overcome the disagreeable sense of isolation and immobility that comes from being in hospital. Books, the committee believes, can turn empty hours in hospital into more agreeable ones and can encourage a lasting habit of reading books for pleasure.

Sharp Warns Foreign Firms

NEW YORK (CP) — Multinational corporations must take account of Canadian policies and interests if they would retain the freedom of action they have had in Canada, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Thursday.

At the same time he criticized certain unnamed corporations operating in Canada for "short-sightedness."

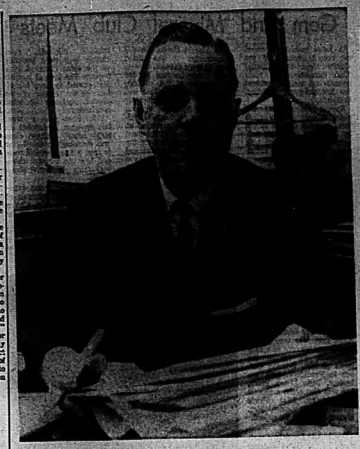
In a major address to the American Management Association, a high-powered group of U.S. executives, Mr. Sharp said Canada's approach to foreign investment—particularly American investment—is positive.

He added, however:

"Canadians are determined that foreign corporations will serve Canadian interests, that they will function in accordance with Canadian priorities and respond to Canadian aspirations."

Much of Canada's labor force works for American multi-national corporations and "any decisions affecting our economic life are often made on your side of the border."

Such corporations had brought Canada prosperity and a great fund of technology. It was hardly surprising, however, that many Canadians were concerned that the Canadian government was preoccupied with the question.



Mr. Sharp said multi-national corporations must be ready to adjust to Canada's basic policy conditions, local sensitivities and local needs.

"Opportunity for advancement to the highest level for locally-recruited staff is an obvious necessity; as is participation as a corporate citizen in the social and cultural life of the local community.

"Perhaps less obvious is the need to rid management of branch-plant mentality and a tendency to see everything in terms of the parent-subsidiary relationship.

"It is asking for trouble, for example, to concentrate research, development and design in the home country, denying to the host nation opportunities to strengthen its own scientific and technological capabilities.

He also called Washington for its efforts in the past to apply its Trading with the Enemy Act to Canadian subsidiaries to American corporations and to apply U.S. anti-trust legislation extra-territorially.

Election Organizer

Robert N. Thompson, the former Social Credit leader, has been standing the country in a new role, organizing the basic political machinery for the Progressive Conservative party's next election campaign. Between now and the time he will hold 25 seminars telling Conservative representatives in 25 federal constituencies how to ready new leader who will be chosen Saturday.

The party's leadership convention opens at 2 p.m. today with four candidates in the running. More than 1,000 were expected to attend, including about 700 voting delegates.

The candidates are Edward M. Roberts, 31, health minister in the former Liberal government; Tom Burgess, 36, who joined the party last March; Vincent Spencer, 44, of Windsor, Ont., businessman; and Rod Moores, 22, a second-year student at Memorial University.

Mr. Smallwood, 71, who had been on vacation in Clearwater, Fla., since resigning the Liberal government Jan. 18 after almost 23 years in office, is scheduled to step down as party leader Monday.

A battle over whether the party should accept Mr. Burgess, returned as New Labrador Party leader in the Oct. 28 provincial election and Hugh Shea, Conservative backbencher who also joined the Liberals Monday, could develop if former cabinet minister Clyde Wells goes ahead with plans to run delegates to reject them.

The switch gave the Liberals numerical superiority in the 42 seat legislature. Standing now 15 Liberal 21, Conservative 20 and vacant one. The vacancy was created by the resignation of Liberal Augustus Oldford, elected in Fortune Bay.

In the election, the Conservatives under Frank Moores won 21 and the Liberals 20. Mr. Smallwood's government remained in office until the House had a legal battle over a disputed seat.

Mr. Roberts said in an interview Thursday the Liberals would not attempt to bring down the government when the legislature meets in mid-February as long as the PC administration acted in the best interest of the province.

Mr. Smallwood appeared in high spirits as he arrived in St. John's aboard a commercial flight Thursday and said in an interview he made a start on historical research—a retirement project—while in Florida.

Toronto Police Horses Only Bruised Rioters

TORONTO (CP) — Demonstrators set a rally to protest Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin's visit to Toronto suffered bruises when police horses panicked and stampeded yesterday, police showed Thursday.

Hospital records were introduced during an inquiry into events at the Ontario Science Centre Oct. 25 when mounted policemen charged demonstrators were brought in after a bottle was pushed into police lines between the demonstrators and the centre where Premier Kosygin was dining as a guest of the Canadian Manufacturers Association.

Z-rays of Vera Lauffer, who said she was trampled by three horses, and her husband, who said he was beaten when he tried to protect her, revealed no broken bones. Christine Romachenko, who said a horse stepped on her leg, was bruised.

Medical evidence showed only minor injuries to two officers who were also hurt in the incident. They have not yet appeared at the inquiry.

Thursday was the ninth day of the inquiry. There have been about 220 typewritten pages of testimony, a day, court reporters say.

Earlier Thursday, Jack Risdon said he saw blood showering from one man's face and a friend dragged away by his hair to the police line.

And a geography teacher testified he heard a mounted policeman shouting "DP bastards; you'll get yours," as he swung his club around in a rage and a woman crouched below a spruce tree.

The teacher, Michael Wawrzinyn, said the couple seemed to escape the blows. At one point, he said, a man stopped to ask a mounted police officer a question from the police and a mounted Metro policeman "whacked" the man face or five times.

Noting the continuing conflict between testimony by reporters and photographers who covered the incident and members of the Ukrainian community, Roy McMurtry, counsel for Metro police, told the teacher "either you or they are deliberately trying to misrepresent the facts."

Mr. Wawrzyniyn conceded that the police horses moved slowly the police horses moved slowly through the front lines of the crowd when they panicked and stampeded without provocation.

Hugh McMurtry accused the witness of a propensity to exaggerate things under oath but later accepted his statement that he didn't think he was.

Nicholas Dersko, an associate professor of mathematics at the University of Toronto, said 15 horses occasionally ran in a changed direction as the moved through the crowd. He singled out different individuals to give chase.

Asl. William Boyichuk asked for special permission to testify but when he was finished Judge John Sopinka said his testimony would be ignored.

The inquiry continues.

Law Forum Debates Publishing of Names

OTTAWA (CP) — The possibilities of a cabinet minister being charged in the House of Commons were raised Thursday at the National Conference on the Law.

Jack Webster, Vancouver broadcaster and author, was asked by saying public drunkenness is the law's favorite term in its news story. But if it happened to a cabinet minister it was "page 1."

Liberal Senator Keith Davey, who headed the Senate study of the omnibus bill, said it wouldn't be reported if a minister appeared in the Commons under the influence.

"It should be," Mr. Webster replied. But he did not appear in the Parliamentary Press Gallery.

Members of the workshop on the law and the media included Peter Desbarats of the Gain of the Toronto Globe and Mail, a gallery member, for the occasion.

"Well, you can't keep the papers full of that sort of thing," he replied.

The comments were part of a discussion on whether the names of arrested persons tends to damag them irrevocably, as guilty or not, public mind even if they should later be found innocent.

Elmer Sopha of Sudbury, a criminal lawyer and former Liberal MP, chairman of the Ontario legislature, said there is a "prophylactic effect" to publishing names.

Impaired driving convictions did not carry much social stigma now because many people thought "they got hot for the grace of God on it."

Publication on the front page of every newspaper every day of those convicted might cut down the number of offences.

Snowmobilers Off to Russia

WINNIPEG (CP) — A team of six-man team of Arctic outdoorsmen, led by Eric Cooper, a native Quebecer, roared into Winnipeg Thursday in a fleet of lumbering armed their orange-colored snowmobiles in the general direction of Russia.

The Trans-World Snowmobile Expedition arrived on the plains with publicity agent, camera crews, banners, flags signs and a local police escort. The hardy seven expect to push north from Winnipeg for 10 days.

Their destination is Moosonee, at the end of a circuitous route spanning half the world and taking them through Alaska, the polar ice pack, Greenland and Scandinavia.

PC Delegates Support Publishing Assistance

OTTAWA (CP) — More government assistance to the Canadian publishing, broadcasting industry and restoration of three distinctive branches in the armed forces will be found in support among Conservative party delegates.

The party released Thursday the final policy votes by delegates attending the December 1 convention here and, among other things, by a surprisingly greater action on urban problems and transportation, a big per role for government, more government initiatives in preserving economic independence and steps to ensure the country's sovereignty.

The party's parliamentary caucus is not bound by the views of delegates.

A third of the delegates favored establishment of a national periodicals development corporation "to grant capital assistance toward the establishment of new Canadian newspapers and magazines or to aid toward the expansion of established ones."

Twenty-nine per cent of the delegates were opposed to this, while the remainder were undecided or did not reply.

There was strong support—48 per cent—for a resolution that "tax and other incentives should be initiated to encourage the expansion of news gathering and broadcasting facilities in Canada, particularly direct Canadian foreign news gathering services." Delegates favored legislation to ensure the effective Canadian control of all broadcasting and newspapers published in Canada.

There was strong support for a resolution to attempt to modify the Canadian parliamentary system toward the American presidential system. But Canada's present system, a revised constitution, the delegates decided, and greater powers should be given to the provinces.

Delegates decided "the morale and general effectiveness of the armed forces would be much improved by some restoration of the distinctive traditions of the former three armed services."

In calling for a clever watch on foreign investment in Canada, the delegates said there should be full financial disclosure by foreign-owned firms in Canada. The government should also require "that all dues, assessments and contributions made to unions be banked in Canada by Canadian working men and women can so decide the economic destiny without dictation from the United States."

Ontario Is Not Buying Power To Supply U.S.

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro is not negotiating to buy electrical power from Quebec on behalf of United States utilities, George Gathercole, chairman of hydro, said Thursday.

"In Ontario, we are always in the business of acquiring energy on a favorable rate to meet our needs," he said. "But it's certainly not our intention to obtain energy for export."

He was commenting on a report Wednesday in which Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa was quoted as saying Ontario Hydro was negotiating with Hydro-Quebec for power that would be resold to the United States.

"We have ties with the U.S., and if at any time through our system there was a surplus, then we would be prepared to do it on an interruptible basis," Mr. Gathercole added.

Banker, Publisher Differ on Approach

TORONTO (CP) — The aims of the Committee for an Independent Canada were questioned Thursday by a Canadian banker when a committee member termed the banks part of the "threat from within" to Canada's economic sovereignty.

R. M. MacIntosh, deputy chief general manager of The Bank of Nova Scotia, and Jack McClelland, a founding member of the committee and president and publisher of McClelland and Stewart Ltd., were speaking at an Empire Club meeting.

Mr. MacIntosh said economic and sociological threats foreign ownership as if there were a connection between it and the political and cultural life of a country. He cautioned that "if we focus our attention on non-problems, we will clearly produce illusory solutions."

Mr. MacIntosh said he believes "foreign cultural influences do not travel on the back of foreign ownership . . . by and large."

Mr. McClelland said financial institutions such as banks help determine the character of Canadian companies. Other industries and their associations reflect the attitudes of their members, often foreign-controlled companies.

Zoologist Says Hard To Keep Up to Changes

OTTAWA (CP) — Can lawyers, law-makers or the voters themselves gear the rate of speed of social and technological problems long enough to control them?

David Suzuki, a University of British Columbia zoologist, put it to the scientists Thursday to improve their predictions about the potential side-effects of their innovations, and to the rest of society to improve the voters' chances of voicing their views on technical changes.

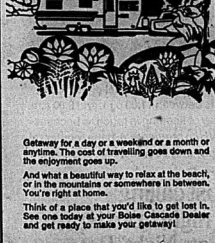
He was taking part in a workshop on technology at the Liberal party national conference on the law.

He said the birth control pill, for example, is estimated to be flooding 600 tons of "excess hormones" yearly into the oceans from North American usage, and nobody knows the environmental result.

Even when the results of change seem clear, citizens rarely get the chance to decide whether those changes are desirable, he said.

Commuter Grant Refused

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto lawyer says the federal government has turned down a request for a grant under its local facilities program to help finance a commuter train between Bayrie and Newmarket.



John Modcof, spokesman for a group seeking to promote such a train, said in an interview Thursday he has received a letter of rejection from the government.

Mr. Modcof's group wanted $97,200 to operate one train to Toronto each morning and one back to Barrie, about 30 miles north, each evening. He said his group had expected the service would return revenue of $72,000 to Ottawa.

A spokesman for the department of manpower and immigration, which is responsible for the local incentives program, said the proposal was turned down because it would duplicate GO-Transit buses.

WEDDING

CARPENTER — ROOTE

The United Church in Frankford was the setting Saturday, January 22 for the wedding when Bonnie Lynn Roote exchanged vows with Keith Trevor Carpenter. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Roote, Frankford and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carpenter also of Frankford.

Rev. William McDonald of Trenton, officiated at the double - ring ceremony. Organist, Mrs. Fern Sykes played appropriate wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Neal Roote, brother of the bride, who sang two selections. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of Chantilly lace and satin with a wedding band collar, shirt lace Mona Lisa sleeves and scissor front. The skirt was trimmed with a self lace at the empire waist. A chapel length train trimmed with a wide satin border at the hemline fell from the waistline. A four-tier shoulder length veil of pure silk illusion was held by a headpiece of Guipure lace flowers and satin petals trimmed with seed pearls and aurore borealis. She carried a cascade of miniature pink carnations and red roses.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was her sister, Miss Diane Roote while the bridesmaids were Miss Vickie Wyatt of Frankford and Miss Holly Vanderhoop of Stirling. They were all dressed alike in floor length, floral velvet gowns with Guipure lace trim and headpieces of blue carnations and blue burr flowers.

The flower girls were Cathy and Teresa Carpenter of Peterborough, both nieces of the bridegroom. They were identical floor length gowns of white velvet with royal blue velvet capes and bonnets to match. They carried nosegays of blue carnations and white stephanotis.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Terry Carpenter of Peterborough while the ushers were Gus Scaletta and William Adams of Trenton. The ring bearer was Terry Roote of Frankford, nephew of the bridal.

A reception was held in Rose Lowry Hall where the mother of the bride received the guests. She wore a two-piece polyester double knit ensemble. The dress was a multicolor print with a mauve coat and hat to match, with brown accessories and a corsage of mauve carnations.

She was assisted by the mother of the bridegroom who was dressed in a beige coat and dress ensemble of English wool trimmed with simulated mink and a hat to match. Her accessories were chocolate brown with a corsage of orange roses.

Following the reception, the bridegroom's parents gave a dance for the guests in the Masonic Hall.

For the honeymoon to points east, the bride changed to a yellow and black crimplene dress with a brown coat and accessories with a corsage of yellow roses.

Misleading Practices In Some Supermarkets

CALGARY (CP) — You may think you're a sharp shopper because you attend sales.

But recent experiences of a woman reporter in several Calgary supermarkets show you also must have an eagle-eye, a suspicious mind and an aggressive attitude if you're going to make sales pay off.

Doris Milke of The Herald kept track of her experiences with misleading practices during two months of shopping at various supermarkets. She found the following times when a sale is not a sale:

—When the price isn't reduced even if the sign says "Our low price" or "Every-day low price."

—When the item is marked with the regular price and you must gamble that the cashier will ring up the sale price

—When the same product, not on sale, costs less in a different size.

—When a product is advertised but you can't find it and pick up a similar product at the regular price.

—When the sale price is not as low as that advertised in the flyer or newspaper ad.

You can lose money in all these ways, Mrs. Milke found.

"If you answer 'No' to any of the following questions, you'll be losing money, too," she wrote.

—Do you watch the prices rung up on the cash register?

—Do you look at the price stamped on the sale item to be sure it agrees with the advertised offer?

—If you can't find the product on sale, do you ask an employee where it is?

—Do you ask what will be substituted when you are told a sale item is temporarily out of stock?

A "Yes" answer to all these questions probably means you are an aggressive shopper and are getting good bargains, she said.

But Mrs. Milke noticed that most shoppers plunk down their sale items, then don't watch whether a higher price is charged.

"If they do notice, they decide it's only a few cents more, anyway.

"I did notice in one store, it was only a seven-cent ins on a can of tomato soup. But on a 66-cent total for four cans, it would have been a 10-per-cent saving."

"Shopping aggressively doesn't mean being rude or demanding something that doesn't belong to you. Just insist on receiving what you've paid for or been offered . . . and don't be embarrassed to insist."

Gem and Mineral Club Meets

A large number attended the recent meeting of the Quinte Gem and Mineral Club including both rock hounds and visitors, held at the Entomological Building, Belleville.

Special visitors was the night school geology class from Loyalist College taught by Bob Ross of Quinte Secondary School and all took part in the evening's activities.

President Walter Savage chaired the meeting and the minutes of the previous meeting were read by secretary Marvin Green. On self introduction it was found that 54 were present.

Al Reid lectured on the composition of the sulphide group of minerals that had been selected as the topic of the evening. There was an outstanding display of sulphide minerals arranged on the tables. Some of the more prominent minerals were the pyrites, both in crystal and massive structure; also a good display of galena, marcasite, bornite, arsenopyrite and the delicate mineral stibnite.

The sulphide minerals set up for the lecture were arranged by Gordon Alyea, Jean Reid, David Walmsley Doris Ruest and Allen Montgomery. Mr. Reid pointed out the difference in these sulphide minerals, even though they have identical formulae of the same chemical composition. The area of location also proved to have the effect on the quality of the crystal structure of some specimens.

Bob Ross gave a short talk on what he teaches his night school geology class and described in detail how to read a topographical map, and how to pinpoint locations from an aerial photograph.

Door prizes for the evening consisted of minerals of the sulphide family, also a fine collection made up by David Walmsley.

Following the meeting all enjoyed a closer look at the rock samples and a time of fellowship was spent.

Reception Held at New Library

NAPANEE — An informal reception on Saturday in Napanee officially introduced the public library plan as the headquarters of the Lennox and Addington County Library System, which came into effect January 1.

The reception was conducted by the new county librarian, Barry Robinson of Kingston, former director of the Lake Ontario Regional Library Systems and the three-member staff.

A total of $5,000 was spent by the county to renovate the basement of the two-storey building on Dundas St., which now serves as a children's library.

Additional space will provide storage rooms and a distributing centre.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID A. BUTCHER

Butcher — Doran

Eastminster United Church, Belleville was the setting recently for the wedding ceremony when Lee Anne Doran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Doran of Belleville was united in marriage to David Adams Butcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Butcher, also of Belleville. Rev. A. McDowell minister of the church officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown in empire style of Italian brocade with silver thread and featuring long bell sleeves. A flowing train with scalloped edges extended from a gathering at the head and she carried a bouquet of white mums and red roses.

The bride's only attendant was her sister Miss Debra Doran of Williamston, Ontario, who wore an empire styled gown fashioned with lilac chiffon skirt and a deeper purple bodice. She carried a bouquet of purple and white 'mums.

Ronald Butcher of Ottawa attended his brother, while the usher was Kevin Langabeer. A reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a black and white Emilo Pucci designed dress, matching accessories and a corsage of pink 'mums. Assisting, the bridegroom's mother wore a dress in hot pink shade, matching accessories and a corsage of pink 'mums.

Leaving on the honeymoon trip, the bride donned a black velvet baby-doll styled dress with empire waist and long puffed sleeves trimmed with blue and yellow.

On return Mr. and Mrs. Butcher will reside in Belleville.

Spicy Aroma Wakes Up Appetite

By ALICE DENHOFF

It is true we begin enjoying the aroma of a freshly baked cinnamon-scented apple pie or coffee cake even before it comes from the oven. There are spots on the tongue where our taste buds pick out sweet, sour, salt and bitter, but it's really the aroma which adds spicy goodness.

There are dozens of spices, herbs, seeds and blends from which to stock spice shelves. Probably no two kitchens will have exactly the same selection, but each is sure to include cinnamon—probably ground. Some spice aromas are carried in seeds, others in leaves or roots, but the heady aroma of cinnamon is stored in bark.

QUICK CINNAMON APPLE COBBLER

2 cans (19 ounce) 4 ounces each) sliced apples
¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cups ready-to-bake crescent rolls

Turn apples into an eight-by-eight-by-two-inch pan. Combine next four ingredients and sprinkle over apples. Dot with butter. Top with crescent rolls. Bake at 400 degrees F. 30 minutes or until browned. Cover with foil. Bake another 15 minutes or until rolls have cooked underneath. Makes six to eight portions.

CINNAMON RASPBERRY PUDDING

2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen raspberries
2¼ cups water
2 sticks cinnamon, 2 inches long
2 slices lemon
3 tablespoons cornstarch
½ cup sugar
¼ cup water
Whipped cream, optional

Combine raspberries, two cups of the water, cinnamon and lemon in a saucepan. Cover, bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes. Remove from heat and strain. Combine cornstarch, sugar and salt. Add remaining half cup water; mix until smooth. Add to liquid and cook, stirring, until mixture thickens. Remove from heat, cool slightly, stir and cook two to two minutes, or until thickened, smooth and clear. Pour into serving dishes. Cool and chill. Serve topped with whipped cream, if desired.

Serves nine.

SPICED FRESH PRUNES

1 cup light brown sugar
½ cup water
¼ cup cider vinegar
2 sticks cinnamon, each 2 inches long
1 teaspoon whole allspice
½ teaspoon whole cloves
2 pounds fresh prunes

Place first four ingredients in a three-quart saucepan. Tie allspice and cloves in a cheesecloth bag and add. Mix well and bring to boiling point. Boil five minutes. Pour prunes in a 6 inch; add to spiced syrup. Simmer 10 minutes. Remove from heat and cool in syrup. Should be chilled at least 24 hours before serving. Store in a covered jar and serve as needed. Recipe yields approximately five cups.

Neighbors Aid Group Holds Euchre Party

THURLOW — The 2nd line Thurlow Neighbor's Aid held a progressive euchre party on January 28. Mrs. A. Crombie and Mrs. A. Mitchell were convenors while seven tables were set up.

Congratulations were extended to Fred and Bedell who had celebrated his 81st birthday in January.

Mr. and Mrs. McNish have returned after an absence due to illness.

Prizes were awarded and the lucky draw winner was Raymond Higgins.

The next euchre will be held February 11.

Singer Gives Direction for Home Chores

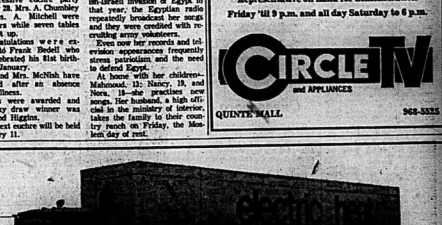
CAIRO (AP) — A beautiful popular singer who is lifting times inspires Egyptian soldiers to prepare for battle also heads a war committee to mobilize the women for home-front chores.

Fahda Kamel, whose songs are heard across the Arab world, is a member of Parliament and a leader of rightist leader in a country with Moslem traditions.

"If war breaks out with Israel," she says, "we've got to be ready. If more men will be sent to the front, we women will run the home front.

"We'll keep law and order, take up tough jobs in industries. We'll clean up what's bombed and guide panic-stricken civilians out of their bombed houses. Other women have done it in wars, why shouldn't we?"

Fahda runs the Cairo Women's War Committee, which is responsible for organizing the home front groups in Cairo and other Egyptian cities and villages. The committee also operates under the aegis of the Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's only political party.



The 38-year-old singer was one of seven women elected for three-year parliamentary terms in 1971. They are among 343 deputies.

But the shapely brunette also has another job-keeping morale among the troops. She's a star in shows staged for soldiers' entertainment at the battle front.

Fahda's ability to inspire patriotism among young men made her famous in 1956. During the combined French-British-Israeli invasion of Egypt in that year, the Egyptian radio repeatedly broadcast her songs and they were credited with recruiting army volunteers.

Even now her records and television appearances frequently stress patriotism and the need to defend Egypt.

At home with her children—Mahmoud, 13; Nancy, 19, and Nora, 18—she practices new songs. Her husband, a high official in the ministry of interior, takes the family in their country ranch on Friday, the Moslem day of rest.

Can You Hear Something Before It Happens?

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My husband died on his way home last October 31st. Ever before he died I kept hearing something like someone crying in the house.

If I stopped to listen this crying would stop, but I'm sure that I'm alone in the house. I find that I myself cry as I go from room to room and realize that it was the same sound as I heard. I heard it two nights before my husband's death.

Is it possible that I heard myself? How could that be? Can you help me is there anyone who can explain it all? — Alone.

Dear Alone: Those who study such things say that it could indeed happen — that there have been cases where a person has seen or heard an accident or a call for help or the sounds of grief — before they actually happened.

We can't explain these things, but we are now becoming more alive to their existence. There are at least 33 universities across the world studying psychic happenings.

This new science is called parapsychology.

Dear Doris: Do you think it is advisable for a 20-year-old to make a will? I have some money in the bank and a few more personal possessions, which I would like my mother to have.

Is it true the next-of-kin receives a person's belongings if there is no will left? Do you know much a lawyer charges to make out a will? — Willing.

Dear Willing: Quite advisable. Parents or next of kin should check, and if there is no will and they are by chance separated they will inherit the money.

If you wish your mother to have your belongings you should say so in legal form. The charge for drawing up a will is never a large one, especially without complications. If you suspect that will is no longer valid and you will have to make another to suit the new situation.

Dear Doris: I read your column every night and was very interested tonight by the "less protesting and more prayer" recommended by a reader. I do healthy agree.

If people would read the Bible they would find that these days in which we live are foretold in God's word and we just have to look around and see if any real believers in Christ are up using "pot" and "dope". I do say that these young people are finding Christ as the only answer to the problems of life are they will find it, but surely live a different life. — God's Way.

Dear God's Way: Couldn't agree more. Love — the big word — winning hearts, takes care about the plight of every single human child — is the fulfilling of the law.

And our 20th century, super sophisticated world with ministers and psychiatrists arrive at the same conclusion in their different situations. Love, praise, the ideas that make the world worthy, are the keys to useful and joyful self-expression.

Wouldn't it be nice if we could run a world conference people and unkind criticism and replace it with constructive discussion and help for the fellow who has slipped a little behind in the rat race!

(Canadian resources exist to help with many of today's problems of daily living. Doris can advise and direct you.)

Do you think 72 students ought to keep their collective mouths shut and put up with this display of horrible manners? We would appreciate a solution to our problem—one that will not get us expelled. P.l.e.a.s.e. Thank you. — Victims Without Pantsuits.

Dear Victims: First let me say in behalf of the teacher, I feel very sorry for anyone who has 72 in his or her class. No wonder she's nervous.

This does not justify bad manners, however, and I suggest that you students write a letter and tell her that is bothering you. It is not necessary to be signed and you can discuss the your grievances and sign your names. It may be that the teacher is unaware that she is irritating her students and needs only to be told.

Club Activities

TWEED SENIOR CITIZENS' CLUB WO, 399

A meeting of the Senior Citizens of Tweed and District, No. 399, was held at St. James' Anglican Church Hall, at 2 p.m. January 26, with 36 members and two visitors in attendance and when the meeting was opened the two visitors had joined the club.

The president, Mr. T. H. Jenkins, opened the meeting with prayer and an interesting verse.

A brief business session was held, most of the business was held over for the general meeting on February 9.

A euchre party will be held, sponsored by the senior citizens' club, at the hall at the Township Hall, in Actinolite, on Friday evening, February 4, when cards will be played, lunch served and good prizes awarded, and the admission will only be fifty cents each.

There were four prizes at this club meeting, and they were won by Mrs. Elizabeth Moon and Mrs. Arthur McCarey. Following the business, the members played euchre, bridge and agravation, which were much enjoyed by all participants.

It was discussed and planned that very soon the club would invest in a new supply of chairs, and also more card tables, but this will be determined at the general meeting, which will be held at the same place and at the usual time, February 9. During this meeting Mr. Charles Porritt recited a wonderful piece of prose, entitled "Smiles."

CHRIST CHURCH A.C.W.

There were 19 members present at the regular meeting of the Christ Church A. C. W., held in the Parish Hall on January 24.

Canon R. B. Wright was present and spoke on Lenten obligations and fasting and also on all year and not just during the Lenten season.

The officers for 1972 were installed by Canon Wright as follows: honorary president, Mrs. R. B. Wright; president, Mrs. L. Sterne; secretary, Mrs. G. D. Devolin; treasurer, Mrs. P. Burton; program convenor, Miss F. Reid; social service secretary, Mrs. H. Reid; assistant, Mrs. E. Green; card secretary, Mrs. F. Mason; visiting convener, Mrs. F. Reid and pianist, Mrs. E. Copeland.

The financial report for 1971 was read by the treasurer, Mrs. Sterne.

Canon Wright closed the meeting with the Benediction.

A social half hour followed with Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Copeland as hostesses.

CANNIFTON AND CORBYVILLE SENIOR CITIZENS

It was decided at the meeting of Canniffon and Corbyville Senior Citizens, January 26 in St. Mark's Recreation Hall, Canniffon that the annual bazaar would be held in June.

President Olive Care welcomed all and conducted the business period. After which Elsie Brenton read the minutes and gave the treasurer's report.

The next meeting set for February 9 will consist of a potluck dinner and quilting.

Readings were given by Daisy Golden, Olive Farnham, and Edna Andrew along with a duet by Jessie Howard.

Card playing, bingo and a lunch was also enjoyed.

Birthdays in December and January were honored with a cake and the birthday song.

Fire-fighter's Wife Gives Her Views

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 28-year-old mother of four. Today is Sunday and we are home alone. Where is my husband? He's on duty—a fire fighter.

We consider ourselves an average family and I would never consider asking my husband to change professions.

This is a man who loves his job. He works a relatively short week, 56 hours, compared with the husbands. But fire fighters are sometimes called on to work 24 hours at a time in case of a disaster. It is part of the job and I respect his obligations. Once my fire fighter worked seven days straight. He came home only twice, to change clothes and get groceries. (Our men have to buy their own food when on duty). Our baby was six months old at the time, and sick with pneumonia. Our other children were 5, 4 and 2.

There are times when I hear the sirens and my heart jumps because I know my fire fighter may be about to lay his life on the line. In a single day he saved a family and kept a fire from spreading to an entire block. Sometimes those alarms mean someone's fire-fighter husband is about to step into a trap set by a deranged murderer. It has happened.

The National Safety Commission says fire fighting is the most dangerous profession in the country—more dangerous than mining, longshore work or police work. In the back of my mind is the ever-present fear that one night a voice on the phone will say: "I am sorry, he didn't make it this time." So, the next time you hear the wail of a fire engine siren, thank God that it's not manning that rig are dedicated professionals who risk their lives daily to protect you and your loved ones. And say a little prayer for the wife still young Mrs. Fire Fighter U.S.A.

Dear Mrs.: You said it well. And thanks for making it possible for millions of Americans to sleep peacefully in front of the set instead of in the streets.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 12 years old and in the 7th grade. My problem is my English teacher. There are 72 kids in our class so she has to speak into a microphone. It seems like she is a nervous wreck. She keeps standing in front of the class with a bag of buttered popcorn, yakking a mile a minute, tossing the corn into her mouth and crunching into the microphone till it drives everybody crazy. Then she jabs her fingernails between her teeth to get the kernels of corn out. It's very unappetizing, not to say it grates on everybody's nerves.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CRAWFORD

Are sports an escape from reality?

NO. Sports and the athletes are getting hard knocks from most commentators these days. Some of the criticism is justified, but many people derive benefits from without really knowing or caring why they do. Yet it sports did nothing else for the athlete, they do at least teach him to discipline himself, especially for a purpose. That training alone will help him face reality when he is no longer active in sports.

Must a couple have the same goal?

YES, as far as their chief goal in life is concerned, a husband and wife must both be eagerly anxious to achieve it. That means that, if one is a doctor, the other must be willing to help him and not be identical. For instance, he might want success in business; she might prefer to see intellectual achievement as well as success as a wife and mother. Both husband and wife should encourage each other to strive for individual accomplishments.

Does over-confidence hurt a child?

YES, over-confidence can be just as damaging in a child's emotional health as lack of confidence. It is not so much that the over-confident youngster is out to attempt things that prove beyond his capability. But when he can't do something the child who has had it drilled into him that he can succeed in anything he tries will gradually begin to believe that he failed because there is something wrong with him.

Jake and the Kid's Author Thanks CBC for Opportunity

OTTAWA (CP)—Only the CBC saved him from having to churn out radio scripts for the old American idols Perkins of The Green Hornet radio serials, author W. O. Mitchell confessed Thursday.

It was the fact that he had a chance to get his work such as the Jake and the Kid series on a publicly-owned network that kept him from having to turn to the U.S. to earn enough money to get his children through school.

No private broadcasting organization in Canada would have been willing to put up the necessary money, the humorist told a workshop at the National Conference on the Law.

He offered the comment as the group sounded out feelings on whether regulations help improve the quality of broadcasting, a subject that resulted in some brisk comments on the relative merits of Canadian and U.S. television and public and private broadcasting in Canada.

Jack Webster, Vancouver broadcaster, said the new contest quota for Canadian music on radio stations similar to the Canadian content rule for TV, had "made a hell of a lot of money for Anne Murray."

But had this made radio any better? His view was that now "you get Canadian garbage instead of American garbage."

George Bain, columnist for the Toronto Globe and Mail, says it is a false assumption that TV or radio are cultural media. They were vehicles for advertising—for what sells best." This included the CBC.

Keith Davey, Liberal senator who headed the Senate study of the mass media, said this was downgrading the CBC, which had done a good job in public affairs.

The American networks, privately owned, do more provocative public affairs programs and do them better than the "milksop" CBC, Mr. Bain commented.

Senator Sopha, a Sudbury, Ont., lawyer and former Liberal member of the Ontario legislature, took the Canadian Radio-Television Commission to task for ignoring residents in his area "cultural captives" of a single TV system for 18 years. The privately-owned CTV network said finally been given permission to establish a second service there just recently.

The CRTC had denied importation of American TV signals by cable systems during all this period and others were tired of this "cultural insulation bull."

Pierre Juneau, CRTC chairman, said the commission isn't trying to make decisions which ultimately could destroy broadcasting services for many persons while making more choice available to a few.

There were places in Canada where if cable was allowed to import American signals the local station would go broke. So 100 per cent of those with TV sets would lose service so that perhaps 30 or 40 per cent, those on cable, could have wider choice.

Mr. Sopha said the monopoly enjoyed by those who first set up TV in his area "allowed people to print money in Sudbury."

Sedgewick Would Limit Immigration

TORONTO (CP) — Canada should admit as Immigrants only those it really needs, the Ontario branch of the Canadian Bar Association was told Thursday.

Canada should not "blindly encourage people" to come here, said Toronto lawyer Joseph Sedgwick. With the present rate of unemployment, "it may well be that some 20 to 25 million people is the optimum population for Canada."

He suggested that a better alternative to the present high numbers of people from other lands might be to ascertain the ideal population for the country and allow it to be reached by a natural increase in births.

Ted Milliken and Instrument of Comfort

Telecare Is Ready to Help--Anytime

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The number 962-4111.

It's been ringing with increasing frequency since 1967.

That's the year a group of volunteers decided they might serve a social need by simply answering the telephone.

What resulted was Lifeline — a round-the-clock service which made available a sympathetic ear and friendship to anonymous voice to hear and talk out the problems of people in distress.

Now, under a new name and director, it is entering its fifth year of operation as an established, voluntary social service.

The new name is Telecare. The new director Ted Milliken, commercial department head at Belleville Collegiate and a founding member of the project.

(Although it began — and built its reputation — as Lifeline, the name — change to Telecare was for good reasons: (1) Lifeline is the name used by a religious organization's summer camp program, and the registered trademark of a fluorescent bulb manufacturer.)

The name, the number and the director's identity. These are the only things now known to the public. Telecare emphasizes anonymity—even for its volunteer workers as well as the latter by function as a responsive listening post to human distress.

Says Mr. Milliken: "Our prime purpose is just to listen to — and be a sator-chosire — knowledge about what help is available. Then we let the caller seek his (or her) way through to some decision of their own."

The Telecare phone counselors may refer a caller to an existing social service which can alleviate a problem: they may refer the person to one of the doctors, the clergy, lay professionals who may provide the answers.

But most of all they listen to whoever dials 962-4111 any hour, in day or night.

So far they've listened to 6,000 callers with problems—a total that's grown from 500 calls in that lonesome first year of operation to 2,000 during 1971.

But statistics do not particular preoccupy Telecare or its director.

"We don't gear any success by statistics," wryly cautions Mr. Milliken. "After all, to be ultimately successful we'll be out of business because every body's problems would be solved."

Telecare first went into business after being established by a group of church workers, including Mr. Milliken, and headed by Rev. Williams Lamb, the well - known, energetic pastor of Holloway Street United Church.

It was Mr. Lamb—whom Mr. Milliken describes as "a man of tremendous faith and amazing patience" — who launched the project into reality, becoming its first director.

At the time it was the second such operation in Canada and took almost a year in the preparation — finding quarters, pondering its workings, and assembling volunteers into workshops where they learned the human basics, the arts and design needed in counselling.

Mr. Milliken: "We weren't sure we'd get a dial a day for a month, but we were prepared to try it out." recalled Mr. Milliken. "If the help we were able to give was anywhere close to the amount of time invested, then we were prepared to carry on." We realized when we started this what's the kind of thing you get into today and out by tomorrow."

Evolution of social thinking has resulted in expanded social services, more and better organized community service. Does Telecare and its callers indicate loopholes in the network?

Not at all, says Mr. Milliken. But not every caller is aware of the social services available. About 15 per cent of Telecare's calls result in referrals—to agencies, groups or professionals.

Telecare aims to provide that necessary human link — someone to talk to, in a society where human contact has become increasingly depersonalized.

As Mr. Milliken sees it: "I think when our (human) community was less livable, more stable, people were moving less and there were closeknit, more common activities... people felt on the whole a more common bond with their fellow man.

Besides a more frenetic pace of life, Mr. Milliken also quotes self-centredness and what he calls "thing-centredness" that provides "commercialized as people."

"We set to communicate through things. We say: I'll take you for a somewhat longer ride and don't listen to what's bothering you."

He's satisfied Telecare has proved its need: "We're happy that not many people need us . . . If there are more people great. Our service is dedicated to do what we can to alleviating human need."

Much of that need is simply loneliness: "Many of our calls are from people who are just lonely. They have no friends. And they may be people who have lived in Belleville all their lives and still there is no one they can really turn to."

Loneliness and marital problems account for a large number of calls to Telecare from persons seeking advice, reassurance or just plain empathy with a fellow being.

Telecare's director frankly sees nothing startling in this:

"I think if we look up and down our own street like the sort of indicative of our community."

In recent years too, Telecare has been receiving more calls from teenagers since earlier "they may have been

Neither Rain Nor Snow . . .

With 12 inches of snow blanketing the Quinte area, drifting roads and many side streets were impassible this morning. For this field worker with the Hastings County Social Services Department, the road conditions presented an almost insurmountable problem: Stu Meeks, who operates a local rescue service, saved the day, when he arrived at the Hastings County Court House with his snowmobile and sleigh to help with an emergency call.

bers to express their faith in some kind of social action. And it's certainly an expression of faith that, late every Saturday night from 11 p.m. to midnight, finds the nest morning waiting and answering calls."

But Mr. Milliken emphatically makes this point: "Religion is not pushed over the phone." If a caller expresses a spiritual need, or a desire to feels Christianity may provide an answer to a specific problem, the counsellor is at liberty to pursue such a course.

As a group, Telecare members are non-sectarian, but expressed Christian religious belief is necessary to membership.

Founded by active churchmen, Telecare, one of its basic interests is that its members "signify by their Christian faith by active membership in a Christian church," confirms Mr. Milliken.

In his explanation the director goes to the core of Telecare's continued existence: the dedication of its workers.

"Their chief reward for helping the distressed is an act of faith, he says.

"As well as a service to the community, it (Telecare) is despite without money. No matter how humanitarian, there are bills to be paid—rent, heat and, of course for Telecare, phone charges."

Mr. Milliken says Telecare currently has raised a budget of $2,000—including $110 monthly rent, $30 phone charges each month. About half the cash comes from the counsellors themselves, the rest in donations from social, church and community sources.

But cash and its problems is no preoccupation with the Telecare group.

"We've never asked anyone for money," says Mr. Milliken. "When we started, one of our original policies was if we were doing God's work, let's leave the financing to him."

Someone up There may have been listening on the night that policy was decided. Telecare the telephone service has continued without a break.

"So far," says Telecare's director, "we've never had any financial difficulties."

Then he adds: "We're certainly not unaware of the need for money to operate. . . But if we ever have to worry about money . . . I think we're getting a bit of base."

HOME Lots Could Be Available Next Month

Residential lots under the HOME plan (Home Ownership Made Easy) could be available for sale in Belleville as early as late March or early April.

This is the estimate of Alderman Enos David, chairman of a special city council committee working out details for the development of municipal owned land in the city's northwest section.

Prime call for the development of 42 lots west of Sidney Street and north of the Tracey Street extension.

Cost of the serviced lots, measuring 70 by 90 feet, will be "less than 22,500" according to Alderman David.

But before the lots can be offered for sale, there has to be a number of steps to clear the development and also a property survey. The city will make application to Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to carry out development of the lots.

Purchasers of the lots will also be eligible for mortgage loans from CMHC, it was stated.

Underground wiring will be one of the features of the development.

Another feature will be a community area with will accommodate for a total of 48 cars. Each 16-foot-wide public laneways between back to-back lots and leading from an off-street frontal roadway will provide access to the residences.

The draft plan for the HOME lot development was prepared by the Quinte Planning Board.

Loyalist Board Vacancies Filled

Two new members have been appointed to the board of governors of Loyalist College to fill vacancies created by death and retirement.

Gerald Whitsett, an executive with Mead Johnson in Belleville has replaced Judge J. C. Anderson, who retired from the board last year.

Picton lawyer C. Douglas Walmsley has taken the place of Sheriff H. J. Colliver who died last year. Mr. Walmsley called to make his first board meeting on Friday night at the Four Seasons Hotel. He was part - way to Belleville when road conditions due to the storm forced him to turn back to Picton.

Airplane Acquisition Dismissed As Rumor

TRENTON (Staff) — Both De Havilland Aircraft and the Canadian Armed Forces have dismissed a British report that the Canadian government is about to purchase approximately 200 fighters in new planes.

The February issue of the aviation magazine, Air Enthusiast says "the Canadian Armed Forces are believed to be completing a requirement for a further 20 Buffalo and 40 Twin Otter aircraft." Partial explanation for the purchase, according to the article, was the sale in 1970 of the military's fleet of Caribous to Tanzania.

Ernest Ball, public relations chief for De Havilland of Canada, said yesterday "we have nothing on this."

However, he did say De Havilland is engaged in periodic talks with the government concerning possible sale of more Twin Otters "but I would not want to go out on limb and give numbers . . . besides I do not think talks have reached that stage."

On the question of Buffalo sales, he emphasized that there are not even negotiations on this subject.

The public relations executive dismissed the possibility the source for the British report may have been De Havilland of Canada's British parent firm. "If this story were true, I assure you we would know," he said.

One Canadian Armed Forces spokesman says "no decisions have been made." The only prospect for the acquisition of more planes would depend on if there is a surplus in the 1971 defence budget.

A year ago there was money left over in the $1.8 billion annual budget for 1970 and this was used to purchase a new Boeing 707 for Trenton's 437 Squadron fleet.

Movers To Build Warehouse

TRENTON (Staff) — Capital Movers and Storage Ltd. of Kingston has announced its intention to build a new 10,000 square foot warehouse at Trenton's Sidney Street and Highway 401 interchange.

Construction of the large facility will begin before the end of March with the completion date set for August. Company officials say value of the new structure will be between $80,000 and $100,000.

Mssrs. Dickson, president of the firm, said today he would be handling much of the construction work himself through a general contracting firm in which he also has interests. However, he said "we will go local on this job as much as we can."

Dirkson explained that Capital operates in the Quinte area now from leased facilities at the corner of Highway 2 and Wooler Rd. but "the time has come for us to enhance our operation in the Quinte area."

At a recent meeting, town council ratified the sale of 2.23 acres of industrial parkland to Capital. There is a CP Rail siding on the land which Mr. Dirkson says the company will use in its expanded local operations.

17.8 Inches In Picton

PICTON (Staff)—A spokesman at the weather station at the Picton pacification plant said a snowfall of 17.8 inches was recorded here last night.

All Picton streets were reported open this morning although heavy snow banked the streets. There plows, manned by town employees worked throughout the night and were continued to bring back snow from the streets.

A spokesman for the Prince Edward county roads department said this morning road conditions were "terrible" in Prince Edward county. "Bad visibility, drifting and banking. He said county plows have been at work since early morning, but bad visibility has hampered their efforts. He added that the plows "can make only a mile or two an hour," and said that if the wind subsides, all county roads can be opened quickly. He said the heavy snowfall was general in Prince Edward county.

Most school bus runs in Prince Edward were cancelled this morning and at 9 a.m., no employees had arrived at the offices of Prince Edward county board of education offices at Bloomfield.

Picton pacemaker Robert Carter said all rural mail delivery in the county has been cancelled today due to road conditions. The Glenora ferry operated on schedule throughout the night and is continuing service this morning, but a crew member noted there is no waiting line-up of cars.

No accidents were reported by either Picton detachment of Ontario Provincial Police or the Picton police department. A department of highways bulletin received by the Picton OPP advised that the main highways are passable, but visibility is poor. Motorists were urged not to drive unless necessary. For the county and township roads were described as passable although the majority were snowbound.

Maynooth Man's Plans Thwarted

With driveways plugged — and driving hazardous anywhere in most areas during the morning work rush — Quinte Ambulance sought transportation wherever they could find it.

Some got to work on snowmobiles, others used public transportation, and many kept calling for taxis.

But the man who probably holds the record for obstinacy to overcome all storm obstacles was the man called for a Belleville cab from Maynooth, 100 miles away at the north end of Hastings County.

He phoned long-distance at 8:30 a.m. and asked for a taxi to meet him in Maynooth and bring him to work in Belleville.

The cab company despatcher said he'd oblige — and sent a vehicle on its way. However, it never made it. Storm conditions were bad on Highway 62. Apologetically, the despatcher returned the call to the customer and informed him the taxi just couldn't make it.

Snow Will Help Carnival Events

While most of the city is buried with clearing sidewalks and driveways, the Belleville Winter Carnival Committee rejoices at the snow "shot in the arm."

It had been feared for the last few weeks that there might be a snowless Winter Carnival in the city, wiping out many of the Friday night included events.

"This is the best thing that could have happened to the carnival," said Pat Houston, manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. "We even have a day's grace to have the parking lots cleared."

At least one participating group is the carnival parade, as enthused as Mr. Houston about the snow.

James Murkett, president of the Belleville Flying Club, said today, "I don't see any way in the world that we can put aircraft into the carnival now."

Mr. Marker was to contribute aircraft to ferry personalities aloft over Zwick's Island on both days over the weekend. There was also to be a tour service for carnival guys.

Apart from being snowed out of his own airstrip, Mr. Marker claims that the snow pretty well rules out any possibility of making a landing strip on the bay surface."

Mr Marker suggested that parachutists be flown in from another location, other than Belleville.

"This is the only hitch I can see in programmed events," said Mr. Houston. "The snow is just what the doctor ordered for the snowmobiles and the dog sled."

Crews were out Thursday, setting the course for the cross-country snow machine races and a spokesman for the carnival says "once a trail has been broken by a machine following the course, there will be no problem."

Reports come too, that the dogs will be running regardless of the heavy snow fall.

This evening's activities will be highlighted by the torch-light parade to begin at 6:30 p.m. at the Post Office parkbet.

The carnival committee invites anyone interested in the parade to come down at 6 p.m. and carry a torch.

The parade will move down Front Street and then to the carnival mascot Oobpik and the AN and AP Pop Stands.

The finish line will be at the City Hall and then action moves to the Ben Bleasdell Auditorium at 8 p.m. for the Lions' Beer Fest.

The same evening high school hockey tournament will be held in the Park Hill Arena, followed by the ANAF-Legion clash.

The Cadette Twirlers will be appearing at the Quinte Mall at 1 p.m. and later at the Belleville Plaza at 8 p.m. Also at the plaza will be the CFRS Trenton concert band at 7 p.m.

The Belleville Fish and Game Club will be sponsoring a Fishing derby over the weekend, in conjunction with the Belleville Winter Carnival.

A Perch Fishing Derby will begin on Saturday at 10 a.m. and continue to 4 p.m.

Fishing will be done on the bay east of the government dock.

This category is open to any child 12 or under.

The senior fishing contest has been operating since Jan. 29 and the final day will be Saturday Feb. 5.

The contest is open to contestants and all species will be fished.

Prizes will be awarded for winners in both groups.

Society to Meet

PICTON (Staff) — Members of the Prince Edward Agricultural Society will hold their annual meeting this Saturday at the board room of the Ontario department of agriculture and foods.

The meeting called by society president Walter Demille, will begin at 1:30 p.m.

Bad Night for Injuries

Stingier Bruins Lose Ken Hodge

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

During the last few seasons, Boston Bruins have been noted for their high scoring and hard hitting. This year they've added a new ingredient — defence. It may become fashionable in Boston for years hence.

For the second consecutive night Thursday, the Bruins' defence was near perfect as they beat Minnesota North Stars 6-1 and maintained an eight-point lead over New York Rangers in the National Hockey League's Eastern Division.

The night before goalie Gerry Cheevers and his team-mates shut out the Rangers in New York 3-0 and against Minnesota, it was goalie Eddie Johnston's turn.

In other games Thursday, the Rangers beat Buffalo Sabres 4-2, Philadelphia Flyers edged Detroit Red Wings 3-2, Pittsburgh Penguins downed St. Louis Blues 5-3 and Montreal Canadiens slashed to a 1-1 tie with Los Angeles Kings.

It was a costly night of NHL action as the Bruins lost Ken Hodge with a fractured ankle, Montreal's Terry Harper went out with a cut hand and Kings goalie Rogatien Vachon suffered a knee injury.

"It was a great defensive game," said Bruins coach Tom Johnson. "Everybody out there gave us a great game.

The Bruins began streaming defence in training camp. They have been working at it ever since, and the success has been obvious. They have lost only two of their 37 games and Johnston and Cheevers are in contention for the Vezina Trophy. The trophy goes to the goalies of the NHL team who allow the least goals in a season.

The Bruins have allowed 109 goals in 51 games, second only to Chicago Black Hawks who allowed 96 in one less contest.

The Bruins are not hurting in the offensive department either, trailing only the Rangers in goals scored, 215-207.

"Last year," said goalie Johnston, who had to make only 15 saves against the North Stars, "we'd be ahead five or six to one and the game would end up 7-3 or 8-4. This year when we get a five or six-to-one lead, that's all they get—one goal.

"Sure, we're aware we're in contention for the Vezina, but every time somebody mentions it we let in four or five the next day."

Despite the stress on defence, Johnston has become somewhat of an offensive threat this year, assisting on three goals. His assist on Johnny Bucyk's goal in the second period Thursday tied an NHL record for assists by goaltenders, set in 1969 by Bernie Parent, then with Philadelphia and tied earlier this season by Montreal's Ken Dryden.

Johnston was kidded about having a bonus clause in his contract for scoring a certain number of points, as do many NHL players.

"Yeah, I get a bonus clause," Johnston replied. "One Bruins T-shirt for every point after five."

It didn't take the Bruins long to get their offence in gear against the North Stars. Fred Stanfield tipped in a Bobby Orr slap shot from the point after 1:44 of play and Wayne Cashman made it 2-0 less than a minute later when he banged in a rebound.

Minnesota's Danny Grant scored on a power play, but the Bruins added two goals in each of the last two periods as they extended their unbeaten string to 13 games.

Hodge suffered his ankle injury when he was hit by a puck or stick. It went unreported, he said. He was taken to hospital for x-rays and the ankle was placed in a cast.

The right winger will be lost to the club four to six weeks.

At Los Angeles, Vachon hurt his knee trying to make a shot by Larry Plesic that went for the only Canadiens' score. Vincent Cavier, Kings' team doctor, said Vachon apparently threw a ligament in his knee which was to be x-rayed today.

Rookie Gary Edwards replaced Vachon in the pen with 12 minutes left in the second period and shut out the Canadiens the rest of the way.

Harper suffered severe lacerations of his right hand when he punched into the glass on top of the boards after taking a check by Kings defenceman Gilles Marotte. A fan also was cut by the flying glass.

Pittsburgh opened only its third victory in 21 games when Bryan Hextall broke a 3-3 tie with his goal midway through the third period at St. Louis.

Rod Gilbert's 30th goal of the season at the 1:36 mark of the first period started the Rangers on the way to their victory at Buffalo but New York coach Emile Francis dabbed Jim Neilson's goal as the key score.

"It was reserved when the score was 1-1 but fortunately Neilson put in a good long shot for us," said Francis.

At Philadelphia, the Red Wings started fast with two goals by rookie centre Marcel Dionne but the Flyers roared back with three goals in the second period to take a 4-3 lead and stayed in front the rest of the way.

Chicago Black Hawks are at Vancouver to meet the Canucks tonight while Montreal continues its road trip against the Seals in California.

Ted Brown Finds Arena Ice Tailor-made for His Game

OTTAWA (CP) — Arena conditions for the start of the Ontario curling championships today, especially for Ted Brown of Kingston, that outside it was the winter's worst day so far.

Brown curled his way to a fast lead after two rounds Thursday, and was the only undefeated entry in the 18-rink round-robin championships.

But while he was happy as could be with the ice, specially made in East Armstrong arena for the event, the 1,200 fans who watched the matches had to battle more than a foot of snow that fell during the day.

All other entries had 1-1 won-lost records except Brian Adams of Hanover at 0-2.

Today, the first of three rounds scheduled, Brown was to test his win streak against John Scott of Gravenhurst while Jim Creighton of Toronto Boulevard played Earle Hushagen of Toronto Humber Highland. Ken Rowen of Toronto Avalon met Eldon Coombe of Ottawa, Ross Pearce of Toronto Simpsons-Sears took on Jim Waite of St. Thomas and Bob Woods played Brian Adams of Hanover.

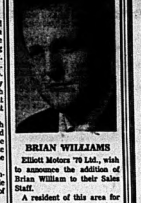
Brown built his early lead on an 11-8 first-round win over Woods and a thrilling 7-6 victory in the second roundover Hushagen.

Other first-round scores were Rowen 10-8 over Pearce in an extra end, Scott over Creighton 8-7, Hushagen over Adams 13-5 and Waite over Coombe 7-4.

In the second round it was Coombe over Adams 13-6 in 10 ends of the regulation 12, Pearce over Scott 13-3 in 10 ends, Woods over Waite 7-6 in an extra end and Creighton over Rowan 11-6 in the only regulation game of the round.

Most of the curlers were more than normally nervous prior to the competition because it is the first time the provincial championship has been played on ice specially made in an arena.

Orr Best NHL Helper



By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins took over the lead for most assists in the National Hockey League's scoring race Thursday, setting up three goals as the Bruins walloped Minnesota North Stars 6-1.

Orr now has 53 assists and 22 goals for 75 points and remains in third place, two points ahead of Rod Gilbert of New York Rangers. Orr's team-mate, Phil Esposito, leads the scoring race with 98 points six ahead of Jean Ratelle of New York Rangers.

Beat Swiss 5-3

Yanks Fourth Team to Qualify

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — The United States, Poland and Finland each scored hockey victories Friday to qualify for the championship tournament of the Winter Olympics.

The Americans downed Switzerland 5-3, Poland defeated West Germany 4-0 and Finland crushed Norway 12-1 to advance to the Class A battle for the gold medal along with Russia, Czechoslovakia and Sweden.

Switzerland, West Germany and Norway will play in Class B along with Japan and Yugoslavia.

Thursday, the Czechs beat Japan 8-2 and Sweden drubbed Yugoslavia 8-1 to gain entry into Class A play. Russia drew a bye and was exempt from playing in the qualifying round because of their victory in last year's world championships.

U.S. coach Murray Williamson said he had not expected the Americans to control the game against Switzerland as much as they did. The U.S. peppered Swiss goalie Gerard Rigazet with 39 shots while Switzerland had only 18 at American goalie Wylie Carran.

"I thought we would not have as much trouble as we did," said Williamson. "It turned out to be a tough game."

He said that he was happy with the control the U.S. exhibited but had been concerned about the Americans being too anxious around the red zone consequently missing good scoring opportunities.

The Americans will face Sweden Saturday in their first encounter in the six-team round-robin affair.

Coach Williamson says his club will be underdogs for the rest of the Class A competition.

He said he was not impressed with the Swedes in their twin pow Yugoslavia "but I know they are capable of an explosive game."

Young Mark Howe, son of Gordie Howe, the former National Hockey League star, had several good scoring chances for the U.S. club. But like his team-mates, he was frustrated by Rigolet's sharp goaltending.

"I think if we continue to play like we did today, we are going to win some more games," Howe said.

SAPPORO, Japan (Reuter) — The International Ski Federation FIS acted Thursday to deny ski manufacturers free publicity from gold medal winners in the Winter Olympics.

The federation ruled that skiers taking part in the Alpine and Nordic events must not pose for cameramen displaying skis with trade marks.

Japan's MVP Can't Even Play

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — The man chosen as the most valuable hockey player in Japan this year is watching the hockey action at the Winter Olympic Games from the stands.

The reason is simply. Mel Wakabayashi, who grew up and learned his hockey in Chatham, Ont., is still a Canadian citizen.

Still, Wakabayashi, who was an all-American at the University of Michigan, played a big part in helping the Japanese team prepare for the Games.

And the Wakabayashi family is still represented on the team. Mel's brother Osamu, known as Herb when he was an all-American forward at Boston University, has become a Japanese citizen and therefore is eligible to play in the Olympics.

"We are the only gaijin (foreigners) on the team," Mel said in an interview, adding that both brothers play for the Seibu Railway team, which contributed 11 players to the 35-man team.

Wakabayashi, who works in a hotel in Seibu, says his role in helping the Japanese club prepare for the Games was limited to "just trying to get their spirits up."

For three years, a Russian has been helping coach the Japanese national squad and Wakabayashi quickly noted that "the Canadians and Russians don't mix on ice."

Japanese generally "don't use their bodies much, but they can skate like the wind," he says.

Beatrix Keeps Her Word

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — When champion figure skate Beatrix Schuba of Austria se she had the Olympic gold me locked up, the words sort hung in the air.

But the 21-year-old sho keeper's daughter didn't wa the words — "I don't think so one can catch me" was the w she put it.

Then the word on the ice st turned in a perfect performance, unofficial figures show Friday. The nine judges rank her first three compulsor behind figures at the top of t list, giving her a total of 9.6 o disallowing her lowest possible 9 on placings.

The ordinals are more impo tant than the scoring points — lower the ordinals the high the posting. With the point sy em, it's the other way around.

When the three figures are completed Friday — there are six Saturday — the Czec dian challenger, 19-year-o Karen Magnussen of Vancouver, found herself in four place, but still within earshot of gold.

Julie Holmes of the Unit States was in second with 1 in Hungarian girl, Zsuzsa Kassany, was third.

Miss Schuba, who at 5 is t world in tracing figures h compared with the skaters, is not strong in the freesty Excellent freestylers, like Ma Magnussen, can get good enough showing in the compulsory figures to win a medal by outclassing Beatrix the ballet on ice.

But each segment cou equally in the final analysis, air national, Jim Eserstein, a one world championship, al Schuba built up such an un whelming margin in the compulseries that no one co catch her.

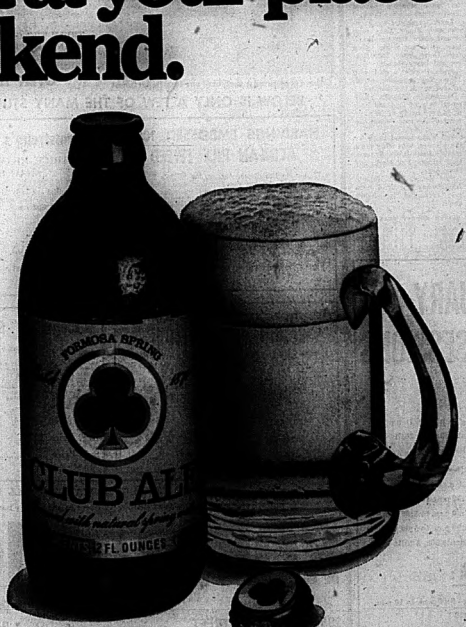
The first full day of compe tion in the Games Friday w pretty much according to hoy

Ard Schenk, the 27 year-o Flying Dutchman, won the 5,000-metre speed skating m medal as everybody expe he would and appeared a sa bet to win three and poss four gold medals before the day competitions end Feb. 13.

He already holds six Gam records and missed an Olym record by 1.3 seconds wh half-blinded by snow, he ra the distance in 7:23.61 - world mark for the 5,000 - 7:12.9.

Shy Vyacheslav Vedenin, 26-year-old Russian skat showed a strong finishing k to win the 30-kilometre cro country gold medal over a w treed, undulating course in hour 36 minutes 31.15 seconds

Vedenin, who ducked rep ers after his win, is only second non-Scandinavian to the event.



Norway, the country wh took the team title four ye ago at Grenoble, France, pic up more points than the R sians Friday by sweeping four silver and bronze medals the two finals and leadi standing with 20 points ea Russia and the Netherla each has 11. The unofficial p system is based on scoring 7-4-2-1 for the first six finish in each final.

Germany showed its power the bobsledding and luge co petition. A West German s held a commanding lead a two heats in the two-man bo with Canadian teams 17th 20th. East Germans were le ing in the men's and wom luge singles after two heats, were headed for a sweep o the medals.

Norwegians Roar Gron and Sten Stensen won the g and bronze medals in the 5 metres—a distance equi to miles. Their countrymen, Tydom and John Hurv were well-frozen after trek 18.6 miles in the cross-cou race as they sailed down a and bronze medals.

We're new in town. Let's meet at your place this weekend.

It'll be a pleasure.
We guarantee it.
We may have been a little slow getting Club Ale to you in the past.
Because our brewery was a little small. And we won't hurry Club Ale when we brew it.
But now, we've built a bigger brewery near Barrie, Ontario. So after 100 years, there's finally enough Club to go around.
And we haven't hurried up our slow brewing process one little bit.
So why not try a slow brewed Club Ale.
We take the time.
You taste the difference.
See you on the weekend?

Club Ale
At Formosa Spring, we won't hurry our beer.

Tiremen Don't Mind This Railroad Job

The Western Tire juveniles are being railroaded, but they really don't mind. Thanks to the efforts of the Belleville Yardmen's Benefit Fund, the city's GMHA all-stars will be the home entry in Sunday's tournament sponsored by the railroad group.

The one-day event will pit Western Tire against some of the top juvenile teams from eastern Ontario, including their GMHA play-down rivals from Trenton.

The local entry, compiled a 17-5-2 record in regular and exhibition play this season, finishing first in the Quinte-St. Lawrence "AA" division. The Tiremen added to their record last week by downing Trenton 3-2 in the first game of the play-downs.

Top scoring combination for Belleville this season has been the Rick Meagher - Mike Gosselin - Ross Herrington line. Meagher has counted 28 goals and 31 assists to pace the team while Gosselin has added 15 goals and 25 assists to rank second.

Rob Foster has been another top point producer with 19 goals and 17 assists while rearguard Sonny Farrell has picked up 17 helpers among his 27 points.

The club has received capable goaltending from starter Calvin Lane and back-up Roger LaBrash.

Western will open tournament action at 1:30 against Trenton's 7 at the Memorial Arena. Games will also be held at Dick Ellis Rink.

Also included in the tournament are Campbellford, Burlington, Peterborough, Richmond Hill, Ajax and Trenton. The "B" championship will take place 7:30 Sunday night at the Memorial Arena with the "A" title match getting under way at 9 p.m.

Trophy-size Trophy

Western Tire juvenile captain Sonny Farrell and Edward "Ted" Brandon of the sponsoring Belleville Yardmen's Benefit Fund discover that you don't have to kneel very low to be at eye level with the Gerald Cornell Memorial Trophy. The award, to be presented to the "A" champions of Sunday's juvenile hockey tournament, stands 56 inches tall and weighs over 30 pounds. A total of eight teams, including Belleville's GMHA entry, will be vying for the award.

Archers Join Up

The Belleville Minor Sports Association made two additions despite a subtraction in the overall picture at their annual general meeting Thursday.

Fewer than 20 persons braved the elements to attend the meeting, which extended president Tom Cavanagh's term for another year.

Archery became the ninth sport to be admitted under the BMSA umbrella and Cec Hochkeit became the only new executive member when he was nominated as the association's second vice president.

In addition to president Cavanagh, other returning members of the executive are first vice - president Harold England, secretary Austin Watkin, and treasurer Cliff Belch.

There were no alterations to the minor sports constitution, but it was decided that the executive council, consisting of the BMSA officers and presidents of each minor sport, would convene in the near future to discuss possible means of raising more funds for minor sport activity in the city.

Bad Night All Around For Cabbies

It was a bad night for taxis al. around.

The Central Taxi entry in the Quinte Hockey League took a 10-1 pasting from league - leading Belvedere Hotel while Stinson's banded Reid's Dairy a 5-4 setback.

Larry Marshall, Gene Francis and Elmer Cala each scored twice for the Belvedere men, who got single goals from Gerry Jones, John Baker, and Larry Potter.

Meanwhile Stinson's jumped off to a 3-0 lead and hung on to keep Reid's in the basement of the four - team league.

Paul Zakos, Reid Mallory, Jim Mackay and Errol Johnston accounted for Reid's goals.

Half a Hundred Waits Best Anglers

By GEORGE H. CARVER

They don't know it, but the worst of contracts were let this week for the makers of the trout, pike and pickerel fraternities.

They are being hunted in the ice-shackled lairs of Hastings county rivers and lakes, and the Bay of Quinte.

Winter Carnival officials in conjunction with Belleville Fish and Game club members have put prizes on the heads of speckled, finny weights of three divisions.

Fifty dollars rides on the head of the largest lake trout hooked in the Carnival's senior fish derby. Another fifty goes to the captor of the biggest specimen of lake or brook trout. A third half-century will line the wallet of the Walton hooking the weightiest wall-eye or pike.

The senior derby got under way last Monday and will close Saturday at 4.30 p.m.

Weigh-in will take place at Bob's Sport Shop, South Front Street.

A junior fish derby takes place on Saturday, Feb. 5th from 11.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. under the auspices of the Fish and Game.

This event takes place on a sheltered section of the bay east of the government dock. The area will be enclosed with snow fence and supervised by Fish and Game club members.

Age limit for the youngsters is twelve years. Prizes amounting to fifty dollars will be awarded various winners.

Each junior entry will receive a Fish and Game Club membership gratis.

As was noted, senior entries must be caught in Hastings county waters, or the Bay of Quinte.

Yardmen Sweep Opponents Aside

The Belleville Yardmen swept aside all opposition in the broomball competition of the Belleville Winter Carnival Thursday.

A goal by Norman Pope gave the Yardmen a 1-0 win over the Lions Club in the championship game. The yardmen had advanced to the final with a 3-0 victory over the Jaycees, while the Lions had defeated the Kinsmen 1-0 in their opening game.

"He tried his best to stop the goal, but they scored anyway."

Prisoner Could Have Seen MD

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — A Millhaven penitentiary prisoner, who alleges he was beaten by guards during his transfer April last April, could have obtained a medical examination after 10 days prior to his examination by the prison doctor, a county court jury was told Thursday.
Joseph Bergeron, head hospital officer at Millhaven, said John Hance, who testified Thursday he suffered bruises, cuts and scrapes in a beating by five guards April 19, made no mention of ill treatment or injuries when he was in the prison hospital April 23.

Morality Chief Did Nothing

Statement by Pay-off Girl Lost from Locked File

MONTREAL (CP) — Lieut. Emile Ducharme said Thursday a sworn statement from a young girl who said she handled money used to pay off two Montreal morality squad members disappeared from a locked file in his private office the day after it was signed "or maybe a little later."

The lieutenant, testifying before a Quebec Police Commission inquiry into the conduct of Jacques Saulnier, former head of the morality squad and now chief of police, said Mr. Saulnier did nothing when informed that the two men were getting payoffs from prostitution activities.

Mr. Ducharme said he received the sworn statement in January, 1963, and immediately transmitted the information to Mr. Saulnier.

"I know Mr. Saulnier didn't do anything about it," he said, "because the officers involved stayed on the squad."

The lieutenant has emerged as an important witness at the inquiry since the emphasis was shifted away from a color television set Mr. Saulnier received from a hotel owner in December, 1962, when he was still head of the morality squad.

Mr. Ducharme also testified that on or about May 24, 1965, he had informed Mr. Saulnier that "Martha Adams was operating a prostitution ring from a house at a certain address."

He said he obtained a search warrant, planned a raid on the house and only informed Capt. Saulnier, the judge who granted the warrant and the court clerk of the plan.

"When we entered Martha Adams' apartment, she was alone. According to all the information I had received from witnesses, there was a continuous coming and going at the place."

A woman called Martha Adams was subpoenaed to appear before the commission inquiry today. Her lawyer, Augustin Choquette, objected to having his client testify since she is already before the courts on charges of living off the avails of prostitution and operating a bawdy house.

Jean-Louis Leger, Mr. Saulnier's lawyer, asked Mr. Ducharme if Miss Adams' house had not been a "call house" but a sort of dispatch centre for visiting call girls who did not actually stay on the premises.

"According to my information it was a consultation," the lieutenant said. "There were supposed to be prostitutes in the house and even some men to service the needs of homosexuals."

Common Law Seen Safeguard

OTTAWA (CP) — The common law system, says an Austrian, may be the last chance Canadians have to protect themselves from a public menace that could lead to a "new dictatorship" which would overrun every part of our life.

Ivan Illich, educational philosopher, told the national conference on the law Thursday:

"Insistence on due process now is so important because during the next years and even the next months the fear of destructive growth will spread among the public.

"Panic will make public opinion ready to entrust bureaucrats with the management of a structural crisis.

"The stage is being set for a new dictatorship, the escalating of government by the application of plans made by self-appointed engineers of the future."

Many of the 350 delegates at the conference—mostly lawyers, academics and legislators—spent the rest of the day hovering over that prospect.

The four-day conference—the first of its kind in Canada—ends today.

What The Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Conventional lines are apt to yield results well enough for today's needs. You are much appreciated in your home.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Practical action had to prevail over sudden whims. Where you have any chance at all, seek the finer traits of your loved ones, refresh your home life.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Organize your crew for a day of festivity, a night of celebration. Avoid extremes.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): People you care about are firmly behind you, but something important. Get going while the time is right. Competitive activity isn't the most desirable stance but could work out well.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Improve your social environment: gather about you those who have promised co-operation.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Just getting through the day in a happy frame of mind is quite accomplishment. Prepare for the future while appreciating the present.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Earthly forces are quiet, merging into gala moods as romantic interests thrive.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Other people's struggles spill over into your path, both career wise and personal projects. There's nothing for it but to help clear matters up.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): None other than the best is apt to suit you today. Younger people you've encouraged bring you pride.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Like as not there are several activities you hadn't thought about. See that you're not left out, go ahead to catch up.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Most of what happens now is high comedy—if you can take the humor at all. Consolidate your resources.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): A slow morning meanders into a much livelier afternoon and evening with an adventure at hand. Pursue sentimental interests.

Hormones Okay With Glaucoma

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it safe for a glaucoma patient to take a daily dosage of hormones? I read that anyone with glaucoma should not take hormones as they retain fluid in the body.—M.T.

It is true that some hormones (the female hormones) can cause water retention in the tissues.

And too much fluid retention can be an undesirable influence with glaucoma, tending to increase pressure in the eyes, and that is just what need be avoided.

But please note that I say it can be a factor, and distinctly do not say that it will be.

The point I'm trying to make is this: some patients with glaucoma may have some other medical problem for which hormones are the preferred treatment. Indeed, by the time we get to the glaucoma age most of us are pretty likely to have something or other the matter with us which needs attention.

The amount of fluid retention from use of hormones depends on the dosage, and it depends also on the individual's reaction. I doubt that the average dosage of a hormone would cause enough fluid retention to complicate the glaucoma.

In any event, medication for the glaucoma ordinarily should offset the effect of the hormones.

No, I can't agree that prescribing hormones in such cases should be a hard and fast rule. It's something for the physician to keep in mind. If eye pressure (the glaucoma) can't be controlled in a reasonable level, then in certain cases the use of hormones might be reduced or halted, but when the eye pressure remains satisfactory, I see no reason to worry about the hormones.

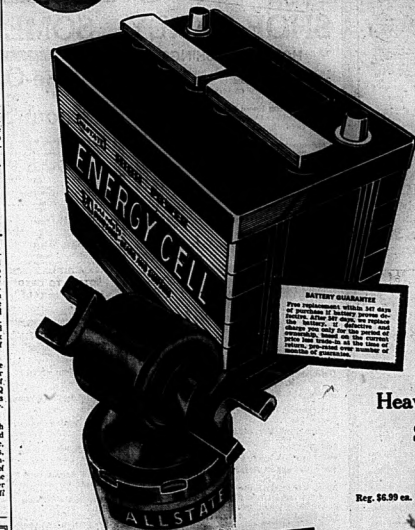
Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any cure for fungus under the toenails and fingernails?—E.C.

If you mean a definite cure, no. But a dermatologist, and sometimes your regular doctor, can prescribe medicine for the fungus infection. Other times it is necessary to remove the nail, so medicine can be applied more directly to the fungus.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A friend of ours claims that he has a special substance or acid in his body that prevents alcoholism and car bulbar. He also claims he can breathe in 99 per cent air pollution without any ill effects. Is it possible?—R.F.

I've spent enough time trying to explode some of the ancient old wives' tales—so now I guess I'll have to do the same for some of the new nonsensical notions—like the above. Utterly ridiculous.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I understand that hardening of the arteries was prevalent among my ancestors, and from symptoms I believe I may have the same affliction. I am particularly alarmed about my heart.



Would a physician be able to prescribe a medication or help control this malady?—F.R.

Only within certain limits. There is no way to unharden arteries, but one of the principal consequences of hardened arteries is high blood pressure, which can be harmful in a variety of ways. Also, high cholesterol may be a factor.

You certainly should see a doctor. Find out whether your blood pressure and cholesterol are too high, and if so start treatment to reduce both. The eyes can, indeed, be affected by high blood pressure, so if I were you I would get after this right away.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Three Notrump and North leads the nine of hearts. How would you play the hand?

	♠K74 ♥J104 ♦KJ8 ♣2852
♠A54 ♥AK7 ♦Q107 ♣AQ109	W E
	♠QJ2 ♥Q852 ♦Q275 ♣A43

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Five Diamonds. The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
4♦	3♣	Pass	3♦
4♦	Pass	5♦

North leads the king of clubs. How would you play the hand?

	♠A73 ♥EK10 ♦AK10842 ♣J72
♠KQ ♥J852 ♦Q275 ♣A43	W E
	♠J9654 ♥Q9 ♦J93 ♣KQ85

1. This is one of those hands where, with correct play, you can't lose the contract no matter how the cards are divided.

Win the heart with the ace, play a spade to the king, and finesse the jack of clubs. If North has the king, you are sure to make the hand by repeating the finesse, or let's assume the jack loses to South's king.

South cannot return a spade or a heart without handing you a vital trick, while if he returns a diamond or a club you automatically make nine tricks — two spades, two hearts, two diamonds and three clubs — by forcing out the ace of diamonds.

If you started by attempting a heart finesse at trick one, the contract would be a gilt-edged statun if South had something like five hearts to the queen, plus the ace of diamonds and king of clubs. Similarly, you could fail in your mission if you won the ace of hearts at trick one and led a diamond at trick two. If North had the ace and played another heart at trick three, you might find yourself in deep trouble.

2. The potential losers are two hearts and a club. For North may have the A-Q of hearts in addition to the K-Q of clubs. To overcome this possibility, you do best to arrange for an endplay.

Win the king of clubs with the ace, draw trumps, lead the second one with the ace, and cash the ace of spades, discarding a club from dummy. Then play the jack of clubs, saddling North with the lead and forcing him to either lead a heart or yield a ruff and discard.

Tomorrow: Blackwood.

Nationalism Committee Modifies Press Ban

TORONTO (CP) — Members of the Ontario legislature select committee on economic and cultural nationalism agreed Thursday to modify an earlier ruling to bar reporters from covering some phases of their hearings.

The ruling for a partial press ban was made last week when the all-party, 11-man committee began closed sessions to discuss what they wanted in their report to government, due March 31.

Committee chairman Russell Rowe (PC—Northumberland) said the meetings were closed to permit free-wheeling discussion, adding that allowing reporters to sit in at this stage would be "akin to letting them know what will be in the report before it's made public."

Only bearings in which witnesses appeared, or briefs were presented, would be open to the press and public.

Under the modified ruling, made at the start of hearings Thursday, he said the meetings now will be held in-camera only "during the period when we are actually writing the report."

This stage would come probably in the last week of this month.

Only two reporters showed up for the brief session Thursday which saw Dr. S. G. Triantis in spirited exchange with members over foreign investment policy. Dr. Triantis is a University of Toronto economist hired by the committee as a consultant.

Dr. Triantis said he "could see" the committee coming up with a policy recommendation in its final report to encourage diversity in foreign capital flows, rather than continuing a dependence of American investment.

Japan was anxious to trade with Canada in coal, uranium, copper, or "anything under the sun."

"It's time we asked them to come, but under certain conditions."

Sidney Handleman (PC—Carleton) said he was surprised that Dr. Triantis would advocate a policy of more foreign investment.

"Let's play one country off against the other," Dr. Triantis replied.

IRA Sends Men To Ulster Town

Storm Leaves Nine Dead

By The Canadian Press

At least nine storm-related deaths — six in Quebec province — were blamed today on blizzards that buried some parts of Ontario and Quebec under as much as 18 inches of snow Friday.

High winds Friday built huge drifts in the streets of Montreal and Ottawa and other eastern Ontario cities, closing businesses, government offices, schools and halting buses, trains and planes. Late in the day as the storms eased transportation began to creep back to near-normal schedules.

Snow-shovellers will need the exercise to keep warm today with wind-chill ratings which the weather bureau said will be "bitterly to extremely cold" existing over the two provinces.

Most areas have temperatures from zero to 10 above with winds of 15 to 25 miles an hour and snowdrifts or clearing skies. In Ottawa, buried under wind-drifted 18 inches of snow from the worst blizzard in five years, the thermometer pi nged to zero early today.

Tonight all of Onta~o and Quebec will be near zero or much below. Some moderation is predicted for Sunday.

"As you can see, the earthlay is a very heavy smoker"

Electronic Technicians To Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Technicians who service radar and communications equipment at Canadian airports will go on strike at 6 p.m. Sunday.

The strike is not expected to shut down air traffic.

The union announcement came Friday night at a three-minute news conference attended by representatives of the federal government, which employs the technicians, and mediator Gordon Simmons.

John Kearney, negotiator for Local 2228 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, declined further comment after announcing the impending withdrawal of services.

Treasury board representative W. H. Oliver said the government regrets the announcement but we hope it doesn't impede our efforts to achieve a settlement."

Mr.Simmons, a professor at Queen's University in Kingston, said "we've made progress and we'll keep making it" in negotiations.

Newry March Danger Grows

NEWRY, Northern Ireland (CP) — Security forces say guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army are slipping into the blockaded town of Newry to attack British troops sent there to disperse a planned civil rights march by Roman Catholics Sunday.

Roads to Newry, near the border with the Irish Republic, have been blocked by soldiers who are searching vehicles for hidden arms. British intelligence officers say they were tipped by a woman that the IRA gave her sons British army uniforms to wear at the parade.

The planned parade Sunday by thousands of civil rights marchers has been declared illegal under Northern Ireland's ban on public processions. IRA leaders claim they have advised their members to avoid Newry over the week to prevent another "bloody Sunday."

An ominous silence hung over the market town today on the eve of the demonstration.

In the Irish Republic, Premier Jack Lynch has pleaded for restraint on the part of demonstrators.

Missile Agreement Foreseen

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union completed Friday the sixth round of SALT talks and there were signs of an agreement in the foreseeable future on curbing ballistic missiles. A seventh round was set to start March 28.

"There has been some study on treaty language," a conference spokesman said of the 2½ months of strategic arms limitation talks. "We are hopeful that we will reach the agreements . . . before long."

There was no definite word on how far the two sides advanced in their talks, and it was officially reported that the negotiating teams here made "reasonable progress."

But reference to what appeared to be preliminary work on a treaty curbing ballistic defensive weapons, seemed to indicate that the United States and the Soviet Union have so far substantially narrowed the gap in their positions.

STOL Stalled

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's STOL aircraft development project appears to be stalled at high level in the government.

"The government is seriously looking at a number of alternatives," one government source. "With the cabinet shuffle, things are pretty much at a standstill."

The Canadian aircraft industry is counting on the STOL short takeoff and landing-airplane to inject new life int~ the ailing aircraft construction business.

The memory of a similar march in Londonderry last Sunday, which ended in a bloodbath when 13 men were killed, is fresh in everyone's mind.

Lynch says irresponsible activity by the troops could "lead to a war situation." He said the republic had not yet asked for help from Commonwealth countries but this would have to be considered if no assistance was forthcoming from the republic's allies.

Foreign Minister Patrick Hillery is flying to Ottawa from Washington this weekend for talks with Canadian leaders Monday. He received no pledge of assistance from the U.S.

Newry was poised to receive hundreds of journalists from around the world who were pouring in to report on the march which is expected to be joined by about 30,000 people from Ulster and the republic.

The one hint of a possible compromise was suggestions that the march be organized so it might decide to hold a public meeting—still legal in Ulster—instead of a demonstration.

British Prime Minister Edward Heath, Home Secretary Reginald Maudling and Ulster Premier Brian Faulkner have urged that the march be called off. Heath and Faulkner got the six hours in London Friday but no new policies were announced.

Cardinal Conway, Roman Catholic primate of all Ireland, added his voice to those calling for cancellation of the demonstration.

The town was ringed Friday night with British troops and members of the volunteer Ulster Defence Regiment who searched all vehicles entering the area for explosives or weapons.

The red lights of army vehicles flashed on and off and mist as soldiers with blackened faces, many carrying automatic weapons carried out their minute searches.

Inside the town of 18,000, predominantly Catholic, most stores have been boarded up as a precaution against further violence or as a result of attacks launched against them in recent months.

The Sunday demonstration is everyone's preoccupation. A working class city, normally packed with late-night drinkers was nearly empty by midnight Friday. Most had gone home early to brace themselves for the expected crisis ahead.

An additional 500 British troops have been sent to Ulster, bringing the total to 15,000. Heath says he is determined to carry out what he considers to be his responsibility to uphold the ban on marches.

Security Crackdown in Ulster

British security forces halt traffic on highway leading to the Northern Ireland border town of Newry Friday to search drivers and passengers. Security forces are searching for arms at checkpoints on avenues of approach to the town — scene of Sunday's planned civil rights march. Newry has been virtually sealed off by British troops.

Planes Delayed at Vancouver

Live Bomb Found at Airport

VANCOUVER (CP) — Explosives experts dismantled a live bomb found in a locker at Vancouver International Airport Friday night after CP Air reported an extortion attempt.

RCMP said company officials were directed to the locker after receiving a phone call demanding "a large sum of money."

They said a live bomb was found inside and dismantled, but declined to say how big it was. Earlier reports said it weighed 30 pounds.

No answers were forthcoming on questions concerning the amount demanded by the extortionist, although one report put the figure at $100,000.

The bomb scare caused CP Air to hold up two flights to Toronto for searches and a company DC-8 jetliner enroute to Tokyo with 78 passengers was diverted to Anchorage.

Both planes, carrying a total of almost 200 passengers, continued to Toronto after one was detained for 1½ hours and the other for nearly three hours. No bombs were reported found.

The Tokyo-bound aircraft was about 400 miles north of Amchitka Island on the trans-polar route over the Bering Sea when the 10-man crew received warning of a bomb call.

The plane arrived in Anchorage under escort by a Hercules aircraft from the nearby Elmendorf Air Force Base. A detailed search of the aircraft and baggage failed to turn up any explosives.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Westerly winds will put a chill on today's weather in most parts of Ontario. This will also lead to a continuation of drifting and blowing snow in exposed areas. Although most localities will spend today under mainly sunny skies these areas adjacent to the Great Lakes can expect a continuation of snow-squall activity. In regions farther away from the lakes some light flurries are possible. Temperatures today will remain in low teens across southern Ontario while the frigid single digits will encompass the north. As a high pressure area moves into Ontario tonight the winds will begin to let up but at the same times temperatures will begin to plummet in values below zero across most of the province. As the high pressure area moves eastward cloudy skies are expected for Sunday but temperatures will begin to moderate.

Kierans Flays Bank of Canada

EDMONTON (CP) — A conservative central bank, "more conservative than any country has ever had," is largely to blame for Canada's foreign ownership problems, Eric Kierans, former communications minister, said Friday.

Canada has been the victim of its own "bad monetary and economic policies since 1955," Mr. Kierans told a news conference, and "there is more cement in Bank of Canada personnel than in the building."

For one thing, there was $3 billion too much in the bank's foreign exchange fund, an excess that was artificially keeping the value of the Canadian dollar equal to that of the United States dollar and hurting Canadian exporters.

Based on productivity, Mr. Kierans said, the Canadian dollar should be worth 85 cents in relation to the U.S. dollar.

New Appeal On Beaches Is Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Ray Haggarty, Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for Welland South, said in a statement Friday the provincial attorney-general's department should appeal Thursday's ruling of the Ontario Supreme Court concerning four American cottagers.

Their property, on the Ontario side of Lake Erie, extends to the water's edge, the ruling said.

The court upheld a 1970 lower court decision that the public has no right to use the beaches because the beaches are not Crown land.

Mr. Haggarty said legislation should be introduced to protect for public use all lake- and river-front areas that can be used without serious encroachment on established cottages."

Joey Pleads With Newfies

Don't Trade Pride in History for Profit

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A plea for Newfoundlanders to retain their identity and a parting shot at the Progressive Conservative administration marked Joseph R. Smallwood's farewell speech Friday night as Newfoundland Liberal party leader.

Mr. Smallwood's successor was to be elected today from among four candidates with voting by 780 delegates expected to begin in mid-afternoon.

"Shame upon us if we, in our eagerness to profit from the wider prosperity . . . if we should ever give up the fierce pride we had in our own history, our uniqueness and our love for this dear land," Mr. Smallwood, 71, told a crowd of about 1,000 in a military drill hall.

It was common sense for Newfoundlanders to be good Canadians but they should withstand mainland cultural and other influences which could wipe out native characteristics.

"Let us be unafraid of being different," said the man who in 1949 persuaded Newfoundlanders to join Canada instead of returning to the status of a self-governing dominion within the British Commonwealth.

He warned the party, in power from 1949 until its defeat in the Oct. 28 provincial election, that a "Tory plot" was afoot to alter representation in the legislature to favor the larger population centres.

Two-thirds of Premier Frank Moores's 15-man cabinet were from St. John's, Gander, Grand Falls and Corner Brook, which he said contained about one-third the province's population.

"I call upon our party to fight with all its skill against this plot the Tories are hatching."

He said representation could become a great issue in battles in our province in the coming months.

Premier Moores has said a redistribution of the 42 legislature seats may be undertaken.

Whether Mr. Moores will remain in power long enough to begin redistribution may depend on whoever is elected Liberal leader today.

Javelin Repays $24 Million

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Advances of $24 million, made by the former Smallwood Liberal government in the Javelin group of companies for a linerboard mill and associated operations in Stephenville and Goose Bay, Nfld., have been repaid to the province.

A joint announcement Friday by the Conservative government and Javelin said the money was repaid under arrangements "satisfactory both to government and Javelin" from proceeds of a long-term loan arranged in Germany in December.

Finance Minister John Crosbie had said Jan. 28 the government-of Premier Frank Moores would take over the mill at Stephenville unless industrial promoter John Doyle, agreed to withdraw voluntarily from the project or repay $24. million in government advances.

The government advances, Mr. Crosbie said, were guaranteed by former premier Joseph Smallwood and a backup agreement to ensure the money would be spent on the linerboard mill. The advances and guarantees, all made public by the Liberal government, totalled $34 million since last June.

Library to Show Work of Loyalist Photo Students

A display, representing the full scope of photography courses now in their second year at Loyalist College, will be featured at Corby Library Feb. 7 to 26.

Val Balitskas, photography teacher at the college, called the students' work "noteworthy."

"Most of the students who started last year had never held a camera in their hands before," he said.

The photography display was originally intended to present Mr. Balitskas's work.

"But with so much creative effort maturing around me this fall, I felt there was no justification in my monopolizing a show," the teacher said.

Photography is part of the course of study for journalism, law enforcement and educational resource technician. It is a prerequisite for television and movie making. It is also given as an extension course.

A mixed class of men and women, combining evening and day students, is held Saturdays, for four or five hours.

Greek Night In Picton

PICTON (Staff) — Greek dancing and films will highlight Night in Greece, sponsored Sunday, Feb. 13, by Club Kolneziva of Picton. This fellowship group, now promoting a series of ethnic nights, will meet in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church hall where a Greek dinner, prepared by Pauline Kate Gimaris, will be served.

Recently members of Club Kolneziva enjoyed a Night in Scotland as part of their cultural studies.

The students, both young people and adults, hear lectures on the history, art and photographic studio subjects.

Their teacher, Mr. Balitskas, is a member of the Royal Photographic Society of Great Britain, and one time worked in the Ottawa studio of Yousf Karsh. He has had experience as a free lance news photographer, editor and advertising manager on Canadian newspapers.

He has been a public relations officer and editor of government publications in Latvia, editor and co-publisher of a newspaper for displaced persons in Germany, and before coming to Loyalist was assistant general manager with the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association.

Helicopter Flies Boy To Toronto

TRENTON — Provincial police in the Quinte district are slowly catching up on paperwork involved in a rash of minor accidents and other incidences resulting from Thursday night's 12-inch snowfall.

Dozens of vehicles slid into the ditch along provincial highways and county roads and after being abandoned completely immobilized by banks left from snowplows.

Canadian Forces Base at Trenton reported no emergencies over the snowy weekend, helicopter flight from Brockville to Toronto for a small boy requiring hospital treatment.

Pets Casualties In Power Failure

PICTON (Staff) — A Picton merchant yesterday philosophically advertised a special sale of canaries and parakeets "while they last" as a town-wide power failure left his store without heat.

The birds were rescued by employees who carried them to an upstairs room where a lighted stove maintained "hot enough" temperatures and restored yesterday afternoon.

A staff member also expressed concern for tanks full of tropical fish that were suddenly plunged into less than tropical temperatures during the power blackout. He said that one customer reported her entire aquarium of fish had died soon after the heating system in her home was cut by the power failure.

Most Picton merchants continued business as usual yesterday although no electricity for heat was available until shortly before one p.m. Shoppers groped through stores to take entire supplies of purchases as clerks did their best to assist.

Road conditions followed Thursday night's storm forced several workers to arrive on the job by snowmobile.

Beer Fest Bubbles, While Torches Fizzle

The doors opened at 8 p.m. and before 9:30 p.m. all the mugs had been sold along with three kegs (36 gallons) of draft beer.

The first purchase of the evening was $1 for a mug with the winter carnival crest painted on it, filled with draft beer.

After that it was 25 cents a draft and 50 cents a bottle. Seventy-five cases of beer were stocked and sold out before the evening finished.

Before long, when everyone had started to loosen up a bit, the dance floor began to fill with polka-dancing couples of all ages. By the end of the evening it didn't matter if you could polka or not.

Because of the snow situation, large groups of secretaries visited the beer fest and got warmed up before continuing on their way.

There was only one incident last night involving a fight and a smashed door.

Police say this morning, "a 17-year-old youth will be summonsed in connection with the incident."

Of last night's capacity crowd, at least 75 per cent were in the 18 to 21 group.

Music for the evening was provided by a German dance band that hadn't played together in five years and was reunited especially for the night.

Members of the former Herb Mueller band came from as far away as Ottawa and Toronto to play for the evening.

A spokesman for the Lions said "this might be a first for the city to have a beer fest like this, but with this kind of reaction it won't be the last."

The torchlight parade, held earlier in the evening could not make such a boast as no more than 25 people participated in the event.

"I don't know whether this illustrates the type of community involvement we have, or if it was just too cold for people to come out," said a spokesman for the parade committee.

The parade, which was supposed to have a pipe band leading upwards of 100 torch-bearers, added to the Carnival mascot Ookpik marching ahead of a convertible carrying the carnival queen and her princesses, who in turn were followed by a stalwart band of 15 torch - carrying school-children.

The occasional downtown shopper stopped to watch the parade as it moved down the dead-quiet Front St. to the market square where it was abandoned.

IN MEMORIAM

DAVIS — In loving memory of our dear father, Thomas Davis, who passed away Feb. 5, 1971.
Sadly missed by his wife Mary.

DAVIS — In memory of our dear father, who passed away Feb. 5, 1971.
Sadly missed by his wife Mary.

DAVIS — In loving memory of our dear father, who passed away Feb. 5, 1971.
A devoted wife and dear father was he,
And he loved us more than words can tell,
But he's gone, we believe, to a better home,
Where we hope to meet him again.
Sadly missed by his wife Mary and family.

DAVIS — In loving memory of our dear father, who passed away Feb. 5, 1971.
Just when our lives seemed brightest,
God took our father best.
Sadly missed by Jean and Fred.

DAVIS — In loving memory of our dear father, who passed away Feb. 5, 1971.
Happy and smiling, always cheerful,
Kind to all, a friend indeed.
Sadly missed by Jean and Fred.

DAVIS — In loving memory of our dear father, who passed away Feb. 5, 1971.
Life's beautiful life came a peaceful close,
But he died as he lived, every inch a man.
Entered a castle there's many more to win,
Fought the fight and kept the faith.
Sadly missed by his wife Norma.

DAVIS — In loving memory of our dear father, who passed away Feb. 5, 1971.
Others are taken, yet we honor him,
Others die, but we shall not forget him.
Sadly missed by Mona and Dad, Lorraine, David, Christopher and Murray.

ADAMS — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, who passed away Feb. 5, 1971.
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
Tired hands and weary feet,
Trials are past,
Pain and grief suffered, in patience he bore,
But now called her home to suffer no more.
Always remembered by husband and children.

SAMAIN, Joseph — In loving memory of our dear father, who passed away two years ago today, Feb. 6, 1970.
Two years have passed,
We know not your pain,
We know not your path,
But we know you're free.
Sadly missed by daughters Dolly, Peggy, son-in-law Hazel.

FLEWDEN, Gary — In loving memory of our dear son, who passed away Feb. 5, 1971.
Time heals as nature, made us kind,
But not the memory of you dear,
With a word came the call,
Your presence was required,
Sudden was the parting word with Jesus, now Sonny, Larry and Mom.
Sadly missed by Mom and Dad.

FLUNDER — In loving memory of our dear father, who passed away Feb. 5, 1971.
Memories are golden,
Memories are sweet,
Memories to please, both to relive and repeat.
Sadly missed by Mom and Family.
—Ever remembered by sister Bert Eric and Tim, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon.

Mezzo's Recital Pleases Storm-braving Listeners

By EUGENE LANG

As the winter's heaviest snowfall presented this area in a soft coverlet of bejewelled white, residents of Belleville and environs were warmed by radio Thursday to stay indoors as shunning was necessary to venture out. Nevertheless, a few loyal (and hardy) souls did brave the elements to be present at BCI auditorium for the debut recital of Frances Bible, esteemed gifted American mezzo-soprano in the third of the 1973-74 series of musical events sponsored by the local Community Concert Association. Perhaps the low gross of hands greeted Miss Bible in all the weather being the catalyst for the smallest audience in living memory at one of these functions. But those who were on hand were treated to seventy-five minutes of vocal variety from the possessor of a voice both rich and warm in quality.

Miss Bible has been acclaimed innumerable times for her singing abilities from appearances that she has made in opera, oratorio and recital in Europe, Australia and on North American shores. She is the leading mezzo-soprano of the New York City Opera in Lincoln Center where she has a large roster of roles to her credit. Leading symphony orchestras throughout the continent have engaged her as soloist with many repeat performances taking place. Within the last two years she has sung in an opera broadcast with the CBC, so all told her credentials are well established.

The program chosen for the recital Thursday was one that elicited the best from our soloist, encompassing opera, ballet, art song, concert vehicles and some folk items. The opening Habanera aria from Julius Caesar was sung with fine restraint, but seemed to be a warming up exercise only with an undue amount of vibrato marring the concept. Schubert and A. Hall vocal items preceded by five examples of German lieder. The morbid Ausstellia was given vehemence in voicing, with the anguish of Nacht und Traume bathed in solace. Moving from Schubert to Brahms with a devilish but fine dialogue handling of Vergevlieches Standchen. A third vocal line was exhibited in the flowing melody of the lovely Sapphische Ode, this being offset by a force-

Bancroft Arena Receives Grant From Province

TWEED (Special) — The provincial grant for new arena at Bancroft, the North Hastings Recreation Centre, has received a $30,000 grant.

During a brief ceremony in the Bancroft office, Clarke T. Rollins, MPP Hastings, presented a cheque for the amount of $30,000 to Bancroft Reeve Jack Brown for the village's portion of the grant. A second cheque, for $10,000 was presented by Mr. R. Collins to Reeve Jack MacKenzie, of Faraday Township, as the township's portion of the grant. The cheques were issued by the Hon. William Darcart of the Department of Agriculture.

ful feeling in Meine Lieve ist Gram held up by a dramatic keyboard accompaniment.

Four Tonadillas (little poems set to Spanish dance rhythms of tuneful type) by Enrique Granados, composer and rising facets of the singer's aptitudes from the sensuous the exotic through the saucy to the tinge of nostalgia and culminating in power in rendition.

The French Art Song was represented by composers Arthur Duparc, Reynaldo Han, Camille Saint-Saens and Gabriel Faure with each selection carefully and considered by our recitalist. Two that stood out were the opening Hai Luli, here sung with dramatic delection but voiced with passion in wide range of the voice. Tranquility shone from the throat of Miss Bible in her caressed phrases of L'heure Exquise of Hahn, traversed with velvety softness.

The Finnish Master, Jean Sibelius had three songs in his lovely yet impassioned The Tryst, beautifully sung by Miss Bible. Two old favorites dressed up in Roger Quilter's creative garb of companiments that brought familiarity to the listeners were Greensleeves and Charlie is My Darling, fervency sung into the former, and frivolity in the latter.

Richard Hageman's endearing Do Not Go, My Love was recreated with poignant pleading while tossing the coin to the other side his Richards was a gay, light-hearted Spanish serenity.

Two operatic arias were offered, the melancholy My Heart at thy Sweet Voice from Samson and Delilah of Saint Saens, here portrayed with emotional appeal by rich tonal tones emanating from Miss Bible's glowing delivery of this well known area. Bizet's captivating Habanera from Carmen was unrolled (as all singers are wont to do!) with sexy seduction; this being topped off with two encores to the hearty (in feeling) but weak in decibel count) applause from the audience.

Piano backings by Stanton Carter were carefully modeled to the enhancement of Miss Bible's offerings, thus completing a rewarding musical evening for the scanty few who did not take the line of least resistance by staying indoors. Only plodded heavily ably through the mounds and mountains of white to be faithful to the muses.

More Organization Said Needed at Fall Fairs

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

A representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture has called for "more organization" to eliminate safety and liability hazards at local fall fairs.

Ray Pender, of Stirling, said Thursday unloading procedures and cattle presentations must be improved upon if participants and visitors to fairs in eastern Ontario are to derive maximum satisfaction. He was in Belleville to address the annual District Three Fairs' Convention of the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies.

The convention also heard suggestions concerning the encouragement of young people and the need for a balance between modern themes and rural atmosphere. The role of the midway was another particular topic, with most delegates concluding that while it can be profitable, it is also the most risky proposition.

Mr. Pender, who heads 4-H Clubs in Hastings County, was critical of "the mixture of cars, trucks, people and cattle" which often congregates in unloading areas. He went on to discuss conditions during 4-H presentations, saying "at present, we are not informed about scheduling and often find ourselves stuck in a corner drowned out by a loud public address system.

Cattle should be shown in larger areas in order that they may be displayed to full advantage, he said. Too much is compressed into each day's activities, particularly at smaller fairs.

A shortage of interested young people was evident from opinions expressed by several representatives to the one-day meeting. District chairman Albert Vader, of Coe Hill, said that although 4-H clubs have declined over a certain number of potential recruits, many leave for the city when they reach the age of 18 or 20. And while some may return to help out on fair day, organizers "need their touch" throughout the year.

Russ Gomme, an official with the horticultural branch of the Ontario department of agriculture, told delegates that youth should be given an active part in the running of the fair. He suggested employing them for maintenance work, claiming this change "can alter the whole image of a fair."

Earlier in the afternoon, a panel of local experts concluded newcomers should be granted their own spheres of interest.

"If we want them, we're going to have to give in to them," said one panel member, noting the recent emergence of rock groups at fairs. "Otherwise, they're not interested."

Mr. Gomme also discussed the possibility of incorporating current trends in technology and ecology into today's fairs. He said that more than ever before, "people are aware of natural resources" and since most resources come from the topsoil on which we live", they would be natural themes for an agricultural event.

He was contradicted somewhat by Mr. Vader who felt a need to stress the rural atmosphere.

"Home-spun entertainment . . . it's the drawing card," he said.

The subject of midways was heard frequently, although delegates were unanimous in their desire to leave related decisions to individual fair organizers.

Ev Gowsell of the Quinte Exhibition told the assembly of 75 persons that his fair books its midway five years in advance.

"It's the only way to get a reliable situation where each side knows the date and the price," he said. Performers should be asked to post a performance bond before they are signed.

Mr. Vader said that while some fairs can make good use of a midway, others do not require one if they are particularly strong in another area.

"They are okay if the fair is balanced," he commented. Several changes were made in the men's and lady's divisions of the society during the morning session.

Jim Coveney of Roseneath and Creighton Lockyer of Picton were elected auditors by the men. Albert Vader and Cameron Bunnett of Belleville remain as chairman and assistant chairman while Gordon McCubban of Warkworth was re-elected secretary.

The women's slate was considerably revamped. New directress is Mrs. Janet Hamilton of Trenton. Her two assistants are Mrs. Doris Whiteford of Cherry Valley and Mrs. Doris Campbell of Parham. Mrs. W. A. Hume of Campbellford continues as secretary.

Also announced was a shift in the date of the annual meeting from February to the fall. Next convention will be October 26th again at Club Canara in Belleville.

The closing remarks during division chairmen to prepare their annual reports for the agriculture department. The reports are due January 1.

More than 50 ladies attended Thursday's meeting. They were busy in the morning viewing cake and flower displays, before joining the men in the afternoon for discussions

The Scent of Summer

Even though summer is a long way off, Albert Vader and Mrs. Janet Hamilton find this bouquet of carnations too tempting to resist. Men's and women's division presidents of the local fair, Mrs. Hamilton were at Club Canara Thursday to preside over the annual convention. Mr. Vader reported that while no outstanding gains were made in gate receipts in 1971, this year's fairs have a "bright future".

New Minister Is Encouraging To Fishermen

TORONTO (Special) — Ontario commercial fishermen were offered an open door policy by Leo Bernier, new minister of lands and forests, speaking at their annual meeting.

Mr. Bernier, in his first official speech Wednesday afternoon as lands and forests minister, told delegates attending the Ontario Federation of Commercial Fisheries that his office door will be open to hear of any problems in the commercial fishing business.

The minister told more than 50 delegates attending the annual meeting at Queen's Park that his own riding of Kenora has an important commercial fishing industry.

Mr. Bernier spoke to the council members representing commercial fishermen on the Great Lakes and in Northwestern Ontario less than four hours after Prime Minister William Davis had announced the cabinet changes which resulted in the move of Rene Brunelle from the lands and forests portfolio to social and family services.

The prime minister hinted to the council members earlier in the day changes were in the offing. Mr. Davis told the fishermen that the government wants to be as helpful as possible in developing a strong fishing industry. He said the government investigates difficulties but there is a field of optimism.

Dr. Donald Hurley, representing the department of lands and forests fish management unit for Lake Ontario, said experiments are underway in the Bay of Quinte to determine possible cures for excess nutrient enrichment of water from municipal and agricultural sources. He said oxygen created by the enrichment takes oxygen from the water and, in addition to sufficient amounts, sinks to the bottom of the lake and can another fish eggs thus reduce the quantity of species.

Dr. Hurley said the fishermen the department is hopeful will reverse the process particularly in bodies of water which are normally high in nutrient content.

"To maintain fish we must be able to control their environment to a much greater extent than ever before," said Dr. Hurley.

He said once the water quality of the Bay of Quinte is improved to the point that the prime species of fish will return to the bay and provide a good economic base for fishermen in the area.

Kenneth Lotus, fisheries research branch of the department, said the mercury contamination problem experienced last year demonstrated that can happen if fishermen are docile about protecting their waters.

Mr. Lotus said fishermen will have to make a louder noise and let people interfere with the resource of fish. He said fishermen will have to get more excited about the environment to aid in its protection.

H. F. Gauthier of Windsor was re-elected president of the council which is made up of the president and council of each of a dozen area councils. G. C. B. Smith of Fort Frances and Lyman Black of Wawa were re - elected vice - presidents.

The Unsung Majority

In Northern Ireland (substitute the Middle East, Argentina or Uruguay as the case may be), the people not heard from are the thousands of every shade of political opinion, and varying religions, who are keeping normal life going as best they can: professional men, industrial workers . . . moderates all, but does anyone ever hear of them?

They are not heard from because they prefer life, law and order to death, and such prosperity as they may achieve rather than confrontation and destruction. They are the largely law-abiding middle-class who have no guns or bombs in their hands, no thought of harming their fellow man whatever his class, creed or color. But do they get any publicity?

That they do not is the fault of both media and public, for while we recognize they are there, doing their job, unsung and unhonored, neither media nor public are much interested in the sane, even course of events. Regrettable, but that is the way of the world.

It may not be generally known, incidentally, that the Northern Ireland government has long since moved to correct many of the early complaints of the civil rights demonstrators who first came on the scene in 1969, with regard to housing and voting for instance. Yet the clamor is for more concessions.

The precise requests of last Sunday's demonstrators in Londonderry were never made known. All that is known is that the march was held in defiance of a government ban applying to all such gatherings in Ulster, in the interests of security, and with tragic consequences known to all. Another such demonstration is planned for Newry this Sunday and the authorities say it will be broken up, with what results we can only guess. It takes two to pick a fight, to create an act of provocation. Or as an old axiom has it, action and reaction are equal and opposite.

N. Z. Developments

Sir Keith Holyoake has had a long run — more than a decade — as Prime Minister of New Zealand, in anticipation of an election before long the National party and government leader has stepped down in favor of his younger deputy, Minister of Labor Marshall.

In a recent review of the events of 1971 Sir Keith spoke of developments in Asia, notably the admission of Communist China to the United Nations. He referred to the South Pacific Forum held in Wellington, attended by heads of government of independent and self-governing countries of the South Pacific, and said there was in this grouping a "growing feeling of regionalism."

For New Zealand, however, Sir Keith said the year's most significant event had been final acceptance of Britain as a member of the European Common Market. He said this would clearly affect New Zealand's traditional trading relationship with Britain, even though the country's immediate interests had been protected. Meanwhile New Zealand was continuing its search for new markets.

For all its isolation New Zealand is very much in the forefront of the modern world. As a pioneer moreover it is known for many aspects of social legislation, such as voting rights for women. Next month too it will be the scene of an interesting gathering, the 13th International vintage car rally. The New Zealand post office is issuing six stamps to mark the event.

Because of wartime controls New Zealanders traditionally have made their cars last and consequently the country is rich in vintage models. Incidentally, New Zealand reputedly has more cars per capita then any country in the world save the United States.

Unsettled

The Farmers' Almanac predicted an "unsettled time" for the period February 4-7 and it is that all right. The low pressure systems, or "depressions" as the British call them, have done their thing and the result has been in winter's manner born. Of course we have all seen worse but the storm's end did bring to the area — to tree and brush and farm or city street — the kind of grave beauty we associate with this season.

Committee Recommends Economies

The High Cost of Getting Elected to Parliament

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Be kind to your friendly neighborhood election candidates.

All of them, Liberal, Conservative, New Democratic and Social Credit.

For, once more they are going to have to finance their campaign out of their own pockets.

Which is the way it has always been — and probably always will be, if any politician want it to continue.

This, most candidates backed by the two old established parties, the Liberals and Conservatives, and to a lesser extent the New Deens, do get some help from party headquarters.

But never enough. Never nearly enough to prevent many of them going deep into the red, as they have in previous campaigns, so deep it takes up till the next election to recover some semblance of personal solvency.

Getting elected can carry a price tag high enough to financially break all but the wealthiest candidates. There have been election expenses, and riding where the winner picked up as much as $100,000 and along with his seat in the House.

There are mighty few "bargain" elections, and even few "cheap" constituencies.

So for the years, worried parliamentarians have been working to put a legislative lid on election expenses.

They have the lid all ready.

But the word coming out of the Prime Minister's East Block office is that the lid there is not going to be time to slam it on.

It was back just after the last election in 1968 when the Trudeau Liberals were flush with its sudden surge to power, promised Parliament "high priority" for what it formally called "electoral reform," but which is really the business of curtailing.

Or, more accurately, passing the buck — or the bill — to the taxpayers to pick up.

Two years after that election the Special Committee on Election Expenses went to work with James A. Jerome, Liberal MP for Sudbury, in charge.

Two more years and 49 meetings later the Committee came up with 32 moves — and timesaving recommendations for your friendly neighborhood election candidates, if not for you as a taxpayer.

Key proposals included the limiting of election spending to 10 cents for the first 15,000 people in your constituency, and then to 5 cents for the candidates. Parties would be held to 30 cents per voter-head.

The campaign was to be cut to 28 days, from the previous eight weeks.

There was to be some reimbursement for "workers" as against frivolous or out-of-luck candidates, amounting either 50 percent of the number of votes cast or 20 percent of the total vote.

This reimbursement would include three cents for each elector in the constituency for campaign "workers," plus the government to put through, like an election package for other expenses up to 25,000; three cents each for the number above that.

That would have cured much of the "high cost of living" for Parliament — for the cost of rapid manufacture because the timbers still show amazingly clearly the "pencil" marks made by the Punic carpenters. By studying these letters and guide-lines, specialists today may learn the secrets of the Punic shipwrights, as the Romans presumably did from the model that enabled them to build their fleet so quickly and subsequently wrest control of the sea from their rivals.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

February 5, 1952

Tired and weary, King George VI died today after 15 years on the throne. Princess Elizabeth, his 25-year-old daughter, automatically succeeds him — the first ruling queen in more than half a century.

"The sad news of the unexpected passing of His Majesty King George VI comes as a real shock to all citizens of Belleville as it does to those of Canada and the rest of the Empire", Mayor A. McLean Haig said today. "His Majesty perhaps never recovered from the anxiety and strain of the war years. Through his wide broadcasts he has been more personal to us than any of the preceding monarchs. I am sure that all citizens of Belleville join with me in a deep feeling of sympathy for all members of the Royal Family. To our mother and her husband go our sincere wishes and prayers for a long, successful and happy reign."

30 YEARS AGO

February 5, 1942

Meeting in the Board Room of the Belleville General Hospital the Women's Institute Association heard reports of a splendid year's work, the record of the 62nd year of the organization's efforts for the welfare of the citizens of Belleville. The good that is being accomplished in the city under the WCA program was set forth in the report of the acting administrator of the Belleville General Hospital, the report read by the first Women's Christian Association.

One of the largest war contracts to be awarded recently by obtaining contracts totalling $389,752. The listing is set forth in the public issue of the Department of Munitions and Supply under heading "naval supplies."

Couve De Murville's Book

Quebec As Seen by Former French Premier

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: A former prime minister of France, Maurice Couve de Murville, has devoted six pages to the problem of Quebec in his book "La politique etrangere.1958-1969— Foreign Policy, 1958-1969.

Commenting on the famous incident on the Montreal city hall balcony where General Charles de Gaulle made his thereafter celebrated cry "Vive le Quebec libre", Mr. Couve de Murville writes:

"The dust has settled. The sentiments and resentments have been appeased. . . . The French in Canada . . . continue to exist without the help or complicity of anyone, by the sole fact that they are finally at peace."

He places the problem in a historical context, saying that until recently the French in Canada lived in total isolation, playing no political or economic role . . . and nothing much happened until the 1960-1970 period.

He makes an excessively severe and, to us, profoundly unjust judgment of the Duplessis regime.

"At the time of a first visit to Quebec in 1960," he writes, "the Union Nationale, the archaic, abusive party of Maurice Duplessis, was still in power. It contented itself with just being there, unshakeable in its maintenance of language and religion, indifferent to everything else, particularly to what would rock the community it had so long identified with and would make that community anything more than something desperately behind a flourishing and dominant English community."

Mr. Couve de Murville then eulogizes Jean Lesage . . . later . . . Daniel Johnson.

We agree with Mr. Couve de Murville's view of Messrs. Lesage and Johnson. But we contend that the French of France have shown a gross ignorance about the Duplessis regime.

We freely admit that regime, when compared with those of Lesage and Johnson, could appear archaic, especially in the last years. However, we must have the surety to recognize that Mr. Lesage's Liberal regime could not have come about if Mr. Duplessis had not prepared the way by instilling in French-Canadians a feeling of pride in his autonomous stand in the face of central authority.

Quarter-of-A-Million Live In Poverty in Metro Toronto

Ottawa Le Droit: Foreign ownership in Canada and industrial strategy, two familiar themes of the NDP for at least a decade, could constitute the major debate of the next election according to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

But what happened to the Just Society? To listen to Mr. Trudeau, one could believe that the objective has been achieved while thousands of Canadians are still without work and social aid programs provide only a Band-Aid hardly allowing beneficiaries to subsist.

Several days ago the Toronto social planning council revealed that 225,000 inhabitants of Metro Toronto live within the threshold of poverty and 89,000 of these are children "whose future perspectives are rather sombre."

The Senate committee on poverty has recommended a guaranteed minimum income for all Canadians and the big government treasurers smile before tossing the report in the incinerator. They have it the money, they say. . . .

To talk of foreign ownership and industrial strategy is as interesting as it is inaccessible for the majority of voters who will be completely hoodwinked.

But what if one speaks of a guaranteed minimum income during this election?

Gun-Happy America

St. Catharines Standard

There are now 30 million private citizens in the United States who own pistols.

That's the startling statistic given in a recent article in an American consumer publication called Moneyswatch.

The article was titled "How to buy a pistol for protection," and went on to review various kinds of pistols on the market, to comment on their features, and to recommend certain calibers and makes.

It did not suggest that anyone should go out and buy a pistol; indeed, it suggested the government should confiscate and melt down all firearms. But the magazine editors obviously felt that if the quality of life in the U.S. had degenerated to the stage where 30 million people already owned pistols, it was their duty as a consumer magazine to discuss the relative merits of various types, just as if they were dealing with washers, dryers or television sets.

Education, Entertainment or What?

By DON O'HEARN
From The Ottawa Park Bureau of The Intelligencer

Where does education stop and entertainment begin?

This is one simplistic approach to assessing the report, discussed recently, of the committee on post-secondary education.

For there are many proposals and considerations that can be debated in the report.

But at the base of many, if not all, is just how far should education go today and in the future.

Many strange matters already are coming under education in our province, such as astrology courses in community colleges.

And the report would extend this trend.

This is not said reprovingly. For there isn't any committee at all today on a good definition of education, let alone its scope.

And the report leads to go to extremes.

And the report goes towards the extremes the more it loses its practicality.

The degrees, or "the association with letters" as the report so astringently calls them.

The report would have it so that a person could get a degree on the basis of experience outside of scholastic attendance.

Who is going to judge this and how? It would have to be on a basis of a great many personal judgments by people of widely differing standards using different norms.

The only possible consequence one can see would be our present absurd system of granting honorary degrees swollen beyond the grotesque.

Then it proposes that promotion because of degrees should be forbidden by law. How could this possibly be enforced?

There are just two perhaps picayune examples of sheading overweighing practicality.

Not to say that the report is not good, it is.

But it does require feet-on-ground assessment and balanced considerations.

Not the least of which is how much of our productivity should go to education.

Ship Find Affords Clue To Roman Sea Power

Honor Frost is USECO Features

Miss Frost, who is heading the operation of excavating the first Punic ship ever found, is an independent research worker. She is one of the pioneers of underwater archaeology in the Mediterranean and a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries, London.

Discovery of a ship which sank some 2,300 years ago may solve the mystery of how Rome acquired the technical know-how to become the dominant sea power in the ancient Mediterranean world. Now found the ship — the first Punic vessel ever discovered — near the Sicilian town of Marsala last summer in such good condition that the marks made by the carpenters can still be seen.

It was built by Phoenician colonists from what is today Lebanon and Syria who settled along the Western Mediterranean shores and, until supplanted by the Romans, were the masters of the Mediterranean. Their greatest colony was Carthage, near present-day Tunis.

After Carthage, the most important Punic colony existed at one time was on the island of Motya, off the western end of Sicily. And it was around Motya, or Mozia as it is now called, and north of Marsala, on the main island of Sicily, that we found the Punic ship. Marsala, incidentally, was built over the ruins of another important Punic colony, Lilybeum.

By the time the First Punic War had begun, in 264 BC, the Romans controlled land communications around the Mediterranean. But they did not have the technology to build ships equal to those of the Carthaginians. However, in 260 BC, the Romans used a Punic vessel as a model to build a fleet of 120 ships in two months. This feat, and a heavy defeat which naval scholars, strongly implied were fiction, is understandable.

The Marsala ship may provide the key to such a system of rapid manufacture because the timbers still show amazingly clearly the "pencil" marks made by the Punic carpenters. By studying these letters and guide-lines, specialists today may learn the secrets of the Punic shipwrights, as the Romans presumably did from the model that enabled them to build their fleet so quickly and subsequently wrest control of the sea from their rivals.

Praying in the Snow

With boots and shoes removed and kneeling on prayer rugs, 19 Moslems pray outside the Jami Mosque in Toronto as part of a protest against the Modern Society of Toronto which locked them out of the former Presbyterian church because they had not paid a $112 fee to join the society. Leader of the group, University of Toronto Professor Qadeer Baig, said that under Islamic law, a mosque may never be closed to believers, but society president Ayub Ali says until mortgage is paid, the building is not a true mosque. Hard-working Band of Laymen Burr in Catholic Church's Side

NEW YORK (AP) — A relatively small, but hard-working band of Roman Catholics—the National Association of Laity—has become a burr in the side of church officialdom in the United States.

In its latest thrust, it issued an 111-page analysis of diocesan financial reports, criticizing most of them for omissions or misleading data or failure to make reports at all.

Official church spokesman termed the criticism "shrill and incoherent," and said steps were under way to improve church financial reporting.

This, however, is only the most recent case in which the association has ruffled institutional feathers.

Among other things, it has urged fuller women's rights in the church and participation of priests and laity in electing bishops. It has contended that priests should have the right to marry, and maintained that contraception, banned by the church, is a matter of individual conscience.

"We stress an authentic, free, responsible lay voice in Catholicism," says Joseph O'Donoghue, 40, a former priest and now executive director of the association.

Other than him, there are only a few, scattered former priests in the organization, he says, its cross-country membership of about 15,000 being made up of lay men and women of various professions in 25 different chapters.

"They're very involved church people," he says. "The vast majority of them do varsteadily one or two days a week in their parishes and dioceses. When I speak around the country, it always amazes me to see how extensively they are involved."

Most of them, he says, spend at least 20 hours weekly or more teaching Confraternity of Christian Doctrine classes, the church's "sining for school children, if serving parish or diocesan boards and councils.

In compiling its critical report on church finances, O'Donoghue says the association has mobilized all the data available from individual dioceses, then assigned various portions of it to 40 volunteer accountants across the country to analyze.

The association has taken the position that no tax funds should be provided to maintain Catholic separate schools until dioceses make full reports of assets and income.

Founded on June 25, 1967, at St. Paul, Minn., the association states its purpose is to "put the flesh of reality on the spirit brought to the church by the Second Vatican Council," an international gathering of bishops that unleashed new trends and directions in the church.

Flying Parson Active

DARWIN, Australia (Reuter) — Australia's 63-year-old "flying parson" is still going at full throttle after 36 years of bringing spiritual medicine to a remote area of the Northern Territory.

The drone of Rev. Harold Sharpshon's Cessna plane is a familiar sound to tribes of aborigines scattered over a 37,000-square-mile reservation in Arnhem Land.

"Sheppie"—a sort of latter-day ministering angel with his own set of wings—has become their teacher, adviser and friend, as well as pastor.

Fit and tanned, he flies supplies every day to lonely outposts, and transports missionaries around a network of Methodist missions, often providing an air link with more populated areas hundreds of miles apart.

In Arnhem Land, where airstrips are unsophisticated, Sheppie often lands his aircraft on makeshift strips cleared by his aboriginal helpers more than 30 years ago.

Switch to Elegance in Men's Styles

By STASIA EVASUK

There's a big switch to gentlemanly, understated clothes for men this spring. The classic, elegant looks are back.

There are no fads and no nonsense clothes, says Thomas Aplin, executive director of the Men's Clothing Manufacturer's Association of Ontario.

"The customer is becoming more sophisticated and more discerning in the purchase of his clothing. Detailing is important, with the well-tailored look stronger than ever."

What are the details to look for in men's spring fashions?

Watch for the half-belt. It's back in sports - wear, with jacket detailing, patch pockets or pointed flap pockets.

Single-breasted and three-button jackets are popular. The jacket length remains the same as this past season, but vents are still the same wide width or sometimes slightly narrower.

The square shoulder is in, with a smaller shoulder pad, and a semi-rope finish.

The trouser is more flared with wide cuffs in sportswear and a flared, non-cuff pant very strong in the well-tailored executive suit.

Cuffs are from 1¼ to 2¾ inches. The cuff trend which started last year in Toronto and Montreal is big in all parts of Canada.

Bold, hot colors in suitings, shirtings and accessories are out.

What's in: All the understated colors are in from varying shades of dark navy to light navy, brown from very dark to light and black.

Pin-stripes and chalk stripes are good.

In fabrics, knits are very big. The new woven-stretch fabric on the market should ease the knit problem, Aplin points out.

The most popular fabrics for spring are worsteds, wool and polyester, cotton and wool, silk and wool, and the linen look.

The linen look combines 20 per cent linen with wool, cotton or mixtures of fabrics that look like linen. It has a clean look with a minimum of tailoring.

Colorful Glen checks, single checks accented with a great deal of stitching on the edges and pockets is another look.

Generally, the clean and simple but not too severe look is popular.

The styling and color of men's hats has resulted in a big increase of headgear.

The cycle of small hats and stingy brims rejected by the hair generation is well on its way to being a part of fashion history.

Hair is still important but more important is the increasing desire for a final touch to complete that type of image.

PRINTED PATTERN M362 SIZES 8-16 Laurence Green

Quick, Lean and Long-waisted!

It's a shape you'll love in June just as much as you do in January — a crisp, effortlessly wearable dress you'll reach for every time you open your closet. The standing band neckline of Printed Pattern M362 by Laurence Green is precisely curved to frame your neck and face. Beneath it, a sleek sideline plummets to create a longer-waisted look. The buttons are purely decorative for it's quicker to step in and zip up the back. Choose knits, linen, blends, textured cotton.

Printed Pattern M362 is available in New Misses' Sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, 16. Size 12 (bust 34) requires 2¾ yards 35-inch.

Woman Is Commissioner Of Human Rights Group

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Valerie Kasurak has been appointed a commissioner of the Ontario Human Rights Commission, one more job in a busy extra-curricular career.

Miss Kasurak is an insurance underwriter who has been a member of the citizens advisory committee to the OHRC, a member of the Windsor advisory committee on employment, a Canadian representative to UN Human Rights Commission meetings.

She says the problems of immigrant and minority groups have been of special interest to her over the years. A particular concern is recognition of immigrants' trade skills to give them a chance to compete in the Canadian labor market.

"We have recommended elimination of the Canadian experience qualification, which many immigrants cannot meet, but we are still greatly concerned about inequities in employment for Negroes, Asians and Indians."

Miss Kasurak will work with the OHRC Windsor office. But as a commissioner she will have duties that extend throughout the province.

Argyll Chapter IODE Elects New Officers

The annual meeting of the Argyll Chapter IODE conducted by the Regent Mrs. H. Kokesh was held recently in the officers' mess at the Belleville Armories. On opening she thanked all who had assisted in making the "Winter Fantasy" dance a success.

Mrs. C. Bridgl read an article (U.S.A. Army Publication) given by Hon. John E. Davies, director of U.S.A. Civil Defence. A number of annual reports were given by the officers and committees and a list of nominations for the 1972 executive was read by Mrs. E. Smith. Retiring Regent Mrs. Kokesh expressed thanks for the co-operation received during her term of office.

Mrs. J. Cousins, Honorary Regent spoke on the high ideals and goals of the IODE and installed the new executive as follows: Honorary Regent, Mrs. J. Cousins; Honorary, Vice-Regent, Mrs. J. McLeod; Regent, Mrs. B. Milroy; 1st Vice-Regent, Mrs. F. Sprague; 2nd Vice-Regent, Mrs. M. Smith; secretary, Mrs. H. Birkenshaw; treasurer, Mrs. R. Allan; educational secretary, Mrs. D. Weskett; service secretary, Mrs. P. Till and standard bearer, Mrs. R. Liddle.

A report was given on the recent dance held in the Officers' Mess sponsored by the Argyll Chapter. Convenors for this event were Mrs. H. Kokesh, Mrs. R. Allan, Mrs. B. Milroy. A number of spot dance prizes were awarded and the door prize was won by Grant Thompson and the raffle by Dr. J. Clarke. A buffet dinner served at midnight concluded a pleasant evening.

The incoming Regent Mrs. Milroy, on behalf of the chapter, presented the retiring Regent Mrs. Kokesh with a gift.

During business it was announced that a rummage sale will be held March 2.

Marriage Notice

TURNOUR — PHILLIPS—

The marriage took place recently in Tsawwassen United Church, Delta, British Columbia, when Marion Eleanor Phillips, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Phillips of Belleville and the late Mr. Arthur Phillips, formerly of RR3, Stirling was united in marriage to Robert Chad Turnour, Earl of Winterton, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Turnour, formerly of England. Rev. R. Govan Kilgour officiated and attendants were Miss Margaret E. Kirby and Harry L. Garrett. The Earl and Lady Winterton are residing in Delta, B.C.

The Greening of the Orange

You can't judge a book by its cover, and the same holds true for fruit. Don't be taken by its color — which isn't always orange.

Some oranges — and grapefruit, too — come in shades tailor - made for St. Patrick's Day. But don't be put off the green coloring has nothing whatsoever to do with ripeness or maturity of the fruit. In fact, these citrus fruits are just as ripe, juicy and delicious as the bright red and yellow varieties in parts that appear at other times in the season.

The presence of orange, yellow or green coloring in the oranges and grapefruit peels is determined by temperatures. Cool weather gives the fruit its familiar colorful blush and there simply hasn't been enough cool weather in Florida this year to make the change from the inherent green to a deep orange or yellow color. This has been a most unusual winter and spring blossoms have begun to appear in January.

Fruit that was green when in the formative stages months ago still is green, even though the fruit has reached maturity and is ripe as any orange or yellow - colored citrus at the nearest supermarket.

In a country like Thailand, the weather never is cool enough to give oranges the warm, glowing color generally characteristic of citrus in the United States. Thailanders simply consider oranges as a green - skinned fruit and would be surprised by colors of the same fruit in countries with cooler climates.

Another phenomenon of citrus in Florida is the mysterious process in which brightly colored fruit will turn green again.

This is a sleight - of - hand of nature that is called "regreening."

Some varieties of citrus are unique in that the trees bear both blossoms and fruit at the same time. In the spring, when the new blossoms appear on the trees, chlorophyll — the green element in plants — begins to surge through the limbs and is ready to contribute to the growth of the tiny new fruit formed by the blossoms. Often, this green dell appear to be a set of thoroughly ripened fruit.

That's regreening.

Oddly enough, citrus does not ripen like most other fruits after being picked. The fruit must meet all maturity standards set by the Florida Citrus Commission before being shipped to market.

Because the green peel from an orange or grapefruit and there is no way to tell the difference between that fruit and a brightly colored product. "Look at the heart — not at the skin."

Engagement Notice

The engagement is announced of Sharon Dianne Parks, daughter of Mrs. Marion Parks of Toronto, formerly of Belleville, and the late Mr. Everett Parks, to Christopher David Burke, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Burke of Brantford. The marriage will take place in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, on Saturday, March 11, at 2 p.m.

UCW MEETINGS

TABERNACLE UCW

The new officers for 1972 were installed by Rev. Dean at the January meeting of Tabernacle U.C.W.

Mrs. Aitchison, the treasurer, reported a good balance on hand.

In the absence of the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Nelson gave the report. Mrs. Bailey mentioned four pounds of used stamps were collected as well as several pairs of eye - glasses.

It was suggested that the men of the church help in the selling of the tickets for the Smorgasbord to be held March 21 at the church. The Congregational Supper was held January 31. Also announced was the future Presbyterial to be held in King St. United Church, Trenton. "Personal Involvement" will be the theme.

Mrs. Wessels was in charge of the entertainment which consisted of accordion selections by Carol Wessels and Nancy Post.

The meeting was closed with lunch and a social hour.

TARTAN, CHECK — This trim, little suit is in an acrilan/wool mixture, with a bold tartan check in red, white, yellow, and blue. The tailored blazer is worn over a curvy waistcoat, while the pleated skirt ends above the knee. A baker boy cap tops the outfit. (CP Photo)

Differences Of Sexs Not To Be Feared

WINNIPEG (CP) — Equality between the sexes will come about only when men stop fearing the feminine and acknowledge that both sexes share similar characteristics.

That's the opinion of Penelope Washburn of Wooster College in Ohio who said: "We have split the human personality into two separate entities, labelling one masculine and the other feminine, attributing certain characteristics to each."

She said the feminine is the irrational, that which cannot be controlled, a category into which both death and emotions also fall.

"Our Western society fears both these because we are unable to control them. And so we suppress them," a move that led to the suppression of the female.

"You see this in the lack of women as leaders in religious life."

Prof. Washburn said Western civilization must change its attitude towards the sexes in order to develop a more realistic conception of religion, a step that is necessary for equality.

She said if religion is to be of any significance the church must start accepting woman as a full part of the religious life and must also accept the femininity of God.

"Only then will it allow man to accept death more gracefully and without fear, but it will also make a mortal life more peaceful."

SEWING BASEBALLS KEEPS ME ALIVE — Mrs. Susannah Shoveler, 81-year-old Brantford great grand mother, sews horsehide covers on baseballs for Spaldings of Canada. Working in her home, Mrs. Shooter earns $2.50 for each dozen baseballs and it takes about 20 minutes to sew each one. She's not getting rich, but "another busy," she says, has helped keep her alive (CP Photo)

Successful Living

Young Couple Not Sure of Decision

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have a son at college who is now living unmarried with his girl friend. She is a fine girl and somehow the two of them have persuaded us to accept the situation.

They are maintaining a nice home and are both working as well as doing some school work.

Since there is nothing I can do about that part of it, my question is a social one. The girl's mother is shy and modest. I have talked to her on the telephone. I have never met her. She refuses to answer in my direction and neither have the kids.

Whether or not these two ever get married, our lives will forever be a little entwined. Should I take any initiative here? — Worried Prudent

Dear Social: I think so. And I would be willing to bet that your two kids will make the union legal and permanent before too long. It may indeed be that they are not nearly as sure of their decision or their acceptance as they might be, and this is the reason why they take no steps to bring the two families together.

Part of the benefit, in their eyes, of this kind of union is the fact that they are free. They may have a genuine fear of a permanent commitment in this unsettled world. They fail to realize that the very commitment influences the union.

Try acting as if you were the girl's actual mother-in-law and make the socially acceptable gesture of inviting her mother to your home or calling upon her at hers.

Dear Doris: I was most interested in your poem about the crust that was poked under the little boy's plate and came back to haunt him. Do you know that these words were set to music?

During my younger days I was a soloist and quite often I sang The Wasted Crust as an encore. I am now a great-grandma twice over. — Norah

Dear Norah: I hope when you described it that you had great big eyes and a big long nose! you made it all very spooky and scarey. Do you now sing your solo to your great-grandchildren?

Dear Doris: My husband and I, age 48, plan to fly to Hawaii and, Doris, I have never been out of Blanktown, and have never flown.

Please advise me as to what to wear on the plane (still weather cool, pastel suit?); and what to pack for both of us. We will be doing the usual: tan the cosmical way.

Getting Excited.

Dear Getting: I'd be excited too. Hawaii is a grand place to visit — especially at the end of a long hard Canadian winter.

One of those pant suits in the new permanent press material would make it easy to sit out those hours on the plane.

The weather will be balmy in Hawaii which suggests summer dresses, bathing suits and sweaters. At least one "dressy" dress is going to be welcome for evening dining and dancing. There's a heap of light chic that can be had in Hawaii!

I'm sending you the Air Canada leaflet "For The Woman Who's Going Places", which gives you a good many tips about packing, tipping and travel. Leaflet available at any reader for 20 cents and a nine-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

* * *

(There's always something to do about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris, a Canadian social worker, is a step in the right direction.)

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOAN CONNELL

Are teenagers glad to run away?

NOT unless they are escaping physical and mental abuse at home. Other than that, teenaged runaways usually end up in circumstances just as similar to the ones they left behind. The big difference is that no one actually cares for the "escapees" in their new surroundings; so the only satisfaction they can derive from running away is the negative one of knowing they have caused their parents severe anguish.

Is it best to 'burn bridges behind you?'

YES, if that means you then won't have any regrets about decisions you made that cannot be changed. Don't, however, be eager to reach that point where you have burned your bridges behind you. You should be glad to be able to make up your mind about something; but in those cases where you might still make a change for the better, you should be willing to do so without closing your mind because you don't want to think about that subject.

Should a husband admit he has faults?

CERTAINLY; although it isn't necessary, since his wife knows well enough that her husband isn't perfect. He shouldn't, however, let his responsibility end with owning up to the fact that he has faults; he should try to correct them. Not only that; he had better get professional counseling if he thinks any fan of his wife is the reverse, in his twisted logic, she deserves what she got for marrying him while knowing he had those faults.

THAT WHITE FLUFFY STUFF

"Snow-making is a point for critical consideration for any ski resort operator." — James Brabon.

"I'm going north, to a ski lodge for the weekend," a friend is saying, who is a good skier, and frequents various ski resorts during the winter from New England to Quebec and parts of Ontario.

"Last winter, with plenty of snow that was constant the whole season, ski resorts hadn't a worry. But what about a winter like this one, when there is snow one day and gone the next? Doesn't that just send a bendache to resort operators?" we asked her.

"Perhaps once upon a time — but surely not these days, for it is now seasonally adjusted, thanks to the snow-machine. All the ski lodges I know of in Quebec and Ontario have them, (and locally speaking,Napanee's ski-hill has one) not to mention New England, but all ski resorts from coast to coast."

"Has this come about rather suddenly?"

"Well, naturally dependent on snow to attract their winter's share of the skiers, resort operators have been adding snow-making capacity for a number of years. So, it has not been all that sudden, it has been on the way, I'd say, rather quickly, once demonstrations proved its worth."

"The advantages are definite, then?"

"Well, Mother Nature might possibly disown such machines, but resort-operators point out that snow-making ability allows a ski area to open a lot earlier and remain open longer and later each season. Then there's the problem of how to get the snow to all of which are immediately evident. The snow machine covers them with beautiful white snow — as if by magic."

"Of course such machines must involve a lot of investment?"

"The big ski-resorts, yes. I'm told some snow-making systems now in place represent around a million dollars in capital investment.

"Looks like snow - making machines have business in big business. It's fascinating how one business creates another."

"True — and sometimes in a surprising way. One big inventor was tinkering with a mechanism that would spray a mist on citrus trees when he was amazed to discover that as he turned on the device a snowlike substance fell to the ground.

"What he hoped to invent as an effort to prevent frost damage to Florida's citrus trees 15 years ago has now turned into a multi-million dollar enterprise making snow machines. His firm, I remember reading, supplies ski areas in the United States, Canada, Australia, Germany, Japan, Korea, Spain and Switzerland.

"It's quite thrilling, really. And now, I see by the paper, that a local firm in North Bay think they have the solution for removal and disposal of the fluffy stuff with a jet melt snow-machine. What a boon for mankind that might be.

And so we concluded, that just as the housewife no longer needs to keep her eye on the clock to keep her pantry shelves filled with jars of preserves and pickles, the supermarkets now obligingly smooth the way, so winter enjoyment of a child with a department need no longer keep an eye on the weather. Snow and anti-snow machines will do the weather looking for them — and correct it to his liking of all concerned.

First Woman On Transport Commission

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. Humphrey S. M. Carver, 57, of Ottawa has been appointed to the Canadian transport commission, the first woman ever named to the post.

The appointment announced Wednesday brings the transport commission to full strength of 18 members for the first time in two years.

The new commissioner has long experience in the public service, including a year's spent researching the role of women in Canadian politics for the royal commission on the status of women.

Born in Toronto, Mrs. Carver has received master's degrees in history from Harvard University, Kingston, and Radcliffe College, Cambridge, Mass.

She served on the wartime prices and trade board in 1942 and spent seven years with the Commodity Prices Stabilization Corp., becoming chief of research. She was an economist with the tariff board from 1953 to 1852.

In 1951, she married the chairman of the advisory group to Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., who retired in 1967. They have two children.

Ann Landers

No Substitute for A Mother's Arms

Dear Ann Landers: Have you noticed that mothers and fathers no longer carry infants in their arms? Babies are toted in boxes—the modern way to stash, feed, hold and carry one's child. All the infant needs is a seat! There ought to be legislation similar to the message which is mandatory on cigaret packs: "Warning! Excessive or prolonged use may be harmful to your infant's future mental health."

Why are our pediatricians and psychologists so derelict in this area of prevention? Don't they recognize the potential dangers? Some of your modern babies are held for only a few minutes a day when they are moved from the bed to the crib.

Please alert young mothers to the emotional hazards when infants are not held, rocked and caressed. Babies need the warmth of a mother's loving arms—and a father's, too. It makes them feel safe and protected. We can learn from the animals. No chimpanzee or puppy or piglet ever thrived in a box away from its mother. — C.D.I.

Dear C.D.I.: Right you are. The infant seat is useful for brief transport, and it can be a life-saver for a traveling kid but there is no substitute for a mother's arms.

Dr. Harvey Harlow of the University of Wisconsin Primate Laboratory says that despite minimum of bodily contact the baby manages to grow and to cure the proper normal socialization and development is from 45 minutes to one hour of holding every day. Dr. Harlow points out that mothers do not automatically love their babies and the intimate bodily contact serves to bind the mother to her baby and helps make her love it.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married for 25 years to a man I can no longer respect. The problem is that I am allergic to smoke. A person who is not similarly afflicted cannot comprehend the discomfort I suffer when I am subjected to cigaret smoke.

My husband says I am selfish — that I am trying to interfere with his pleasure by putting my comfort first. Now it has gotten to the point where we are at war over this. The minute he puts his pants on in the morning he reaches for a cigaret. The last thing he does at night before he turns out the light is have a smoke.

Although we are in our mid-lifeAs I have told him that our long life is over because I cannot stand the smell of the smoke or, in fact, be kissed by a man with hair. He threatens to go elsewhere.

When we were married my husband would buy a pack of cigarets on Monday, and still have half a pack left at the end of the week. In the past two years (since the doctor told me I am allergic to cigaret smoke) he has been using a chain smoker. I think he is doing this to get even with me for something and I don't know what. Please help me.—At My Wit's End.

Dear Wit's End: Does the intensity of the feelings on both sides, I suspect the smoking is a symptom of a deeper problem between you two. Your husband is unhappy about something and you ought to find out what it is.

I recommend counseling. If he won't go with you, go alone. It would be a shame to let 25 years of marriage go up in smoke when the real problem is rooted elsewhere.

Chief of Surgery Speaks at QMS Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Quinte Medical Secretaries was hosted by Trenton nurses and was held in the teaching room of Trenton Hospital. President, Mrs. Diana Hall called the meeting to order and welcomed six guests.

It was announced that Quinte Clinic Day is to be held April 15, 1972 at Belleville General Hospital. Clinic Days are also to be held at North York, Peterborough, Timmins, chief of surgery, Trenton. He was introduced by his secretary, Mrs. Marlene Stewart.

As an introduction to his talk Dr. Watts used the Canadian Cancer Society films showing the correct method of self - examination". Dr. Watts pointed out the absolute necessity for regular systematic self - examination and also an annual or semi-annual examination by a physician, preferably one having had much experience in breast cancer and related diseases.

Some interesting facts were pointed out namely that breast cancer is the oldest known malignancy, that it occurs in males as well as females, that the percentage of breast cancer appears to be proportional to the climate one lives in, Ceylon has the lowest death rate due to cancer. Though cancer is not a hereditary disease the incidence of cancer seems to run in families.

Dr. Watts pointed out that the biggest cause of low five year survival rate is ignorance and delay in seeking diagnosis and treatment. Despite mammograms and new cytology-type diagnostic procedures the only 100 per cent procedure for diagnosis is biopsy.

He also showed various methods of surgical procedure and before the question and answer period reiterated the advice for following the method of self-examination shown in the movie and the need to see a physician regularly.

Mrs. Jean Ling thanked Dr. Watts for sparing time to present his interesting and informative talk.

The next regular meeting to be held in Education Hall Belleville Hospital on February 9, 1972.

Bulgarian Princess Now Happy Housewife

TORONTO (CP) — "Just say I am a housewife and happy to be in this marvelous country where I am left in peace."

The housewife was Princess Maria Louise, 37-year-old sister of King Simeon II, pretender to the Bulgarian throne that was abolished after the Second World War. She is married to a Toronto businessman and lives quietly in a well-to-do suburban neighborhood.

Princess Maria is among a group of members of European nobility found in Toronto Star survey to be living in the metropolitan area. Others are 8 prince, four counts and two barons.

The Count of Czachi, whose family once owned 3,200 Hungarian acres and a large house in Budapest, fled to Canada after the 1956 Hungarian revolution. Now 46, he is a $180-a-week assembly-line worker in an automobile plant.

The newspaper does not identify the prince, the other three counts or the barons.

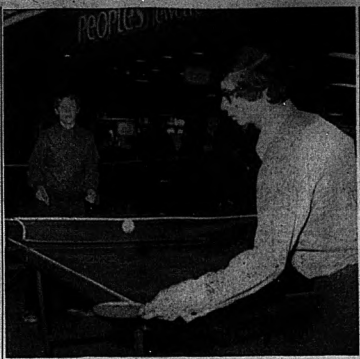
Trenton Water Cut Off



TRENTON (Staff) — An area along Trenton's Dundas Street from the Gilbert Hotel to Queen Street was without water this morning following the breaking off of a water hydrant.

Police say they received no report of an accident in which the town water system was disrupted but they say a 4-inch snowplow struck the hydrant at Queen and Dundas Street corner.

For 90 minutes water spewed as high as 60 feet into the air before public utilities workers sealed off the line. Service was expected to be restored to the area later today.

But before the water was shut off, thousands of gallons of water poured down the street turning snow into slush and ice. Despite the water, the street was still passable.

Thirty Hours of Back-and-forth

Clik-clok for Good Cause

The United Appeal of Belleville is receiving a boost this weekend as four students try to set a new Canadian record at a table tennis marathon.

The marathon, sponsored by the Computer Science Club of Centennial Secondary School, is being held at the Quinte Mall, the sporting event began Friday afternoon and will continue until 6 p.m. today.

Paul Westborpe, Steve Gallinger, Keith Dafoe and Andy Ling, the two-man teams in the marathon, are trying to set a Canadian longevity record of 30 hours.

The students are allowed a five-minute break after every hour of play. A total of 18 teachers from the school are acting as supervisors and witnesses during the event.

Members of the club have been blitzing the city and district villages during the past week seeking sponsors for one of the two teams. People have been asked to make a personal pledge for each hour the team participates.

The Belleville United Appeal will be receiving 50 per cent of the funds raised. The rest of the funds will be forwarded for needy children in Pakistan.

A spokesman for the marathon said further contributions can be made to the United Appeal offices through their office at 962-8531 or by calling Marathon Control at 962-4466.

The Computer Science Club will be registered as a member of the Canadian Table Tennis Association and aims at setting a Canadian record. After marathon time will also be recognized by the National Table Tennis Association.

The Computer Science Club has taken on two other projects within the school. These are a student telephone directory and a proposed computer dating service, scheduled to begin sometime this month.

CBC Technicians Cancel TV Shows

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The CBC was forced to cancel filming of two major productions Friday at Toronto and more than a dozen other centres after a 24-hour walkout by technicians.

Toronto workers, who had been back on the job for six hours, walked off again Friday afternoon, continuing the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians' protest in a wage dispute with management.

The union has been in a legal position to strike since Jan. 21.

Taping of a 90-minute special marking the 50th anniversary of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra was cancelled because of the walkout. It also blocked taping of a program in the Jalna series, the CBC's major drama of the season.

However, the late national news, prepared at CBC's Toronto station, went smoothly as management personnel filled in for technicians and announcers for the second consecutive night.

Photographic projections, absent Thursday night, were back and small hitches in timing of news items had disappeared.

Other locations affected are Corner Brook, St. John's, Grand Falls and Gander, Nfld., Halifax and Sydney, N.S.; Moncton, N.B.; Regina, Saskatoon and Moose Jaw, Sask.; and Calgary and Edmonton.

Meanwhile, Winnipeg technicians were operating on a work-to-rule basis.

Some radio and television outlets reported a measure of program disruption but no complete shutdown of operations as management personnel moved in to do the work.

The union rejected a conciliation board report Jan. 14 which would have given technicians a six per-cent salary increase retroactive to last July, plus an additional 4½ per cent this July 1 in a 21-month contract.

The technicians are seeking a 12.2 per cent increase retroactive to last July 1, another 8.5 per cent this July 1, and an additional 7.8 per cent in 1973. They also want a four-day, 36-hour week.

The sides have been negotiating since last May.

SOUND TEST

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A group of researchers at Vanderbilt University's School of Engineering is experimenting with a method of sending sonic waves through fractured bones to measure healing. In the new technique sonic vibrations are measured on an oscilloscope and analyzed by a computer. By comparing the results with a measurement from a person's unbroken limb doctors can tell whether a patient's broken limb has healed sufficiently to be returned to normal use.

Farmers Meet This Month

PICTON (Staff) — Three farmers' meetings to discuss crop production will be held this month at the new offices of the Ontario department of agriculture and foods at Bloomfield road.

The first meeting, to be held February 14, will feature guest speakers Grover Smith, William Otat, assistant agriculture representative for Prince Edward County and Prince Edward agriculture representative Larry Matheson.

Topics for discussion include insect and disease problems in forage, cereals and in corn. Changes in crop insurance for 1972 will be outlined by Arthur McLaughlin.

White beans will provide the topic for discussion on February 16 when the second in this series of meetings is conducted. Special speaker will be Charles Broadwell, secretary-manager of the Ontario Bean Producers' Marketing Board.

How Chemicals Work will be among the subjects of the final lecture on February 18. Others are Know Your Weeds and What's New in Weed Control.

Regulations and the pesticide act also will be discussed.

SUNNINGDALE, England (AP) — Actress Diana Dors has joined a campaign aimed at allowing prisoners to have sexual intercourse with their wives in jail.

The campaign was started by Rene Wisbey, whose husband is serving a 20-year sentence for his part in the $7-million train robbery of 1963.

Mrs. Wisbey, 30, recently lost her 18-year-old daughter in a traffic accident. She appealed to Home Secretary Reginald Maudling to be allowed to sleep with her husband to have another child.

Miss Dors said she supports the appeal. Her own husband, actor Alan Lake, was released from prison last October. He served an 18-month sentence for wounding a man in a tavern brawl.

"I am 40 and want to have another baby before I am too old," said Miss Dors. "If Alan had got a longer sentence it could well have ruined our plans for the family."

HOLLYWOOD (Reuter) — Costumery has been broken out within the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce on whether a star honoring Charlie Chaplin should be placed in the Hollywood Boulevard sidewalk. It was learned here Friday.

Miss Dors' star, prepared 11 years ago, was never installed because of local reaction to Chaplin's attacks on the United States.

Disastrous Opening Round For Canadian Olympic Skiers

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Before the women's downhill ski race was run at the Winter Olympic Games, fans of Canadian skiing ace Nancy Greene said this Canadian girl would probably have trouble with the turns on the Mount Eenwa course.

She was right. Saturday's downhill event was a disaster-filled disaster for the Canadian women's ski team as the best they could do was a tie for fifth and by Carolyn Oughton of Cowichan.

Miss Oughton was clocked in one minute, 46.03 seconds, just a tick behind the time of Marie Therese Nadig of Switzerland. The Swiss girl was timed at 1:36.02.

Both Miss Oughton, who struck a bump on the wrong and her team-mate Laurie Kreiner of Timmins, Ont., complained about mistakes they made on the slope.

Miss Nadig made about 20 mistakes, said Miss Kreiner, who was the second top Canadian in the race, finishing 20th. "I caught an edge right at the start and blew the turns."

Miss Kreiner, 17, then switched her 18-year-old sister Kathy finish 33rd in the downhill with a time of 1:41.84 for the 1½-mile run.

Kathy said she wasn't leaving with "before the race and added: "I'm feeling funny now."

The biggest disappointment from a Canadian standpoint was the performance of Judy Crawford. The 20-year-old Toronto student placed 27th with an unimpressive time of 1:41.75.

Miss Crawford admitted to having troubles with the curves on the slope.

"It's a tough course, technically," she said. "If you don't take your turns properly you lose a lot of time. I didn't take my turns properly."

Miss Crawford drew the No. 3 starting position for the race. It snowed yesterday until the start of the race, making the surface quite soft, thus slowing down the early starters.

Meanwhile, Miss Nadig was in a dream world after the race. She finished ahead of pre-race favorite Annemarie Proell of Austria, who was clocked in 1:37. Susan Corrock of the United States was third.

Her victory over Miss Proell came as somewhat of an upset because Miss Proell had finished four out of five World Cup downhill races this season.

Miss Proell assumed up because, saying:

"I had to happen once that I am defeated and I feared that it could happen in the Olympics not here."

Fourth place in the event went to Isabelle Mir of France while two West German girls—Rosi Speiser and Rosi Mittermaier—finished fifth and sixth respectively.

Miss Mir's time was 1:38.62, Miss Speiser's 1:39.10 and Miss Mittermaier's 1:39.32.

Intelligencer Sports

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1972

Gary Makes Cut

HONOLULU (AP) — Bob Murphy was looking at the second-round lead. Marty Fleckman was looking at his white undertaker's gloves. And Arnold Palmer was looking for a chance to try it all over again.

"I'd just like to go out and play one over," said Palmer, who had a whopping 76 in Friday's second round of the $200,000 Hawaiian open golf tournament.

Murphy had to wipe the rain from his face before he could see anything at all after posting a hard-earned 73 and the 36-hole lead at 135.

And Fleckman who had a share of the lead at one time, went two over par on two of his last three holes and borrowed a pair of waste-maker-Palmer gloves from his caddy to play the 18th hole when it became so wet he had trouble gripping the clubs.

Fleckman finished with a 71 and 137, alone in third place.

The weather was a major factor. The strongest field of the year was buffeted by shifting, changing winds and drenched with rain that sent even those safe to downpour on the Waialae Country Club course.

The conditions generally sent scores up, but the 43-year-old Palmer said that wasn't his problem.

"The story of my round was putting," he said. "I had 36 putts. I didn't one-putt once and I had three-putts all. That's the whole thing." He was far back in the field at 143.

Lee Trevino, Masters champion Charles Coody and Big George Archer were in a group of 12 at 141 and tied for fourth place going into today's third round in the chase for the $40,000 first prize. Archer had a 68, Trevino 69 and Coody 72.

Jack Nicklaus scrambled for a 71 and 143.

It took a score of 144 to make the cut for the final two rounds and both Billy Casper and defending champion Tom Weiskopf missed it. Shaw was at 145 and Casper took a nightmarish eight on the par-four eighth hole en route to a 77-146.

Canadians Ben Kern and Gary Bowerman of Toronto both missed the cut. Kern shot 73-73 —146 and Bowerman 73-74-147.

Quinte's Game Cancelled

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

All three games scheduled Friday night in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league were postponed because of snow and poor weather conditions.

The game between Oakville Oaks and Owen Sound Crescents was postponed when weather conditions kept the Oakville team from making the trip. Also called off were the Galt at Orillia and Belleville at Barrie games.

The games at Barrie and Orillia both have been rescheduled for Wednesday. No rescheduling date has been announced for the Oakville-Owen Sound contest.

Games tonight, weather permitting, have Owen Sound at Galt and Woodstock at Kingston.

Sunday, Barrie is at Oakville and Orillia at Woodstock.

The Quintes will attempt to remain in the battle for the sixth and final league playoff position when they meet Oakville in an 8 p.m. bout tonight at the Belleville Memorial Arena.

Four Busy Broom-men

Skip Earl Jesse (right) and his CFB Trenton curling foursome have their work cut out for them. In the next two weeks, the rink of, from left, lead Wayne McCreadie, second Wayne MacDonald, and third Hec McIntosh will be competing in the Canadian Armed Forces and provincial Royal Canadian Legion championships. Experience is on their side, however. McIntosh skipped a rink to the Armed Forces title last year and Jesse will be looking for his third straight provincial Legion title Feb. 16-20 in Trenton.

Imperials Open With Bang

How's this for openers? The Blake Kerr Imperial midgets opened their OMHA midget series with Trenton in fine style Friday by banging a 15-1 loss on Trenton.

Seven unanswered goals in the second period provided the runaway margin for the Imperials in the first game of a best five playdown series.

Peter Smrke had four goals and as many assists for Belleville, while Andy Ricketts collected two goals and four assists. John Masterson, Steve Kirby, Mark Coates and Paul Ackerman each scored twice with single tallies going to Martin Thistel and David Flesch.

Each team drew six minor and one major penalty.

The second game of the series is slated for 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in Trenton.

O'Donnell Helps Brockville

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

League-leading Smiths Falls Bears defeated Ottawa Rangers 3-2 Friday in the Central Junior Hockey League and moved seven points in front of the second-place Rangers.

They now have 54 points and Ottawa 47.

In another Friday game Brockville Braves beat Pembroke Lumber Kings 5-1 and gained a third-place tie with the Kings.

Both teams have 38 points but Brockville has played three less games than Pembroke.

Hull Volants, idle Friday, are fourth in the five-team league with 33 points.

In Smiths Falls, Shawn Howard scored twice for the Bears and Don Robertson once.

Joe Ricciardi and Rob McNabb scored for Ottawa.

Scoring for Brockville were Phil Saskiewicz, with two goals, Kevin O'Donnell, Dave Dicks and Bill Bisbee.

Murray Drew scored for visiting Pembroke.

Brockville plays in Pembroke Sunday's only game.

Gary Makes Cut

HONOLULU (AP) — Bob Murphy was looking at the second-round lead. Marty Fleckman was looking at his white undertaker's gloves. And Arnold Palmer was looking for a chance to try it all over again.

"I'd just like to go out and play one over," said Palmer, who had a whopping 76 in Friday's second round of the $200,000 Hawaiian open golf tournament.

Murphy had to wipe the rain from his face before he could see anything at all after posting a hard-earned 73 and the 36-hole lead at 135.

And Fleckman who had a share of the lead at one time, went two over par on two of his last three holes and borrowed a pair of waste-maker-Palmer gloves from his caddy to play the 18th hole when it became so wet he had trouble gripping the clubs.

Fleckman finished with a 71 and 137, alone in third place.

The weather was a major factor. The strongest field of the year was buffeted by shifting, changing winds and drenched with rain that sent even those safe to downpour on the Waialae Country Club course.

The conditions generally sent scores up, but the 43-year-old Palmer said that wasn't his problem.

"The story of my round was putting," he said. "I had 36 putts. I didn't one-putt once and I had three-putts all. That's the whole thing." He was far back in the field at 143.

Lee Trevino, Masters champion Charles Coody and Big George Archer were in a group of 12 at 141 and tied for fourth place going into today's third round in the chase for the $40,000 first prize. Archer had a 68, Trevino 69 and Coody 72.

Jack Nicklaus scrambled for a 71 and 143.

It took a score of 144 to make the cut for the final two rounds and both Billy Casper and defending champion Tom Weiskopf missed it. Shaw was at 145 and Casper took a nightmarish eight on the par-four eighth hole en route to a 77-146.

Canadians Ben Kern and Gary Bowerman of Toronto both missed the cut. Kern shot 73-73 —146 and Bowerman 73-74-147.

Earl Jesse's CFB Rink Heading for Europe

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Members of Earl Jesse's Canadian Forces Base Trenton curling rink aren't just stingy about the number of opponents they allow in the house.

They're also economical when it comes to the question of brooms.

"We started using these nylon-covered foam brooms about three years ago," Jesse informs. "It cuts down a lot of cost. Normally we'd go through 12 brooms a season—ones last us two years."

"They're very effective, too," the CFB skip added as an afterthought, and from someone's curling record confirms they have swept a lot of good opponents out of competition.

Sunday, the Jesse rink leaves for the Canadian Forces Base at Lahr, West Germany, where they will represent the Ontario district at the armed forces championships, competing against four other Canadian - based rinks and a host European - based quartet of Canadians.

The CFB Trenton foursome are all accomplished curlers in their own right.

Third Hec McIntosh, from Christopher Lake, Saskatchewan, skipped a Trenton rink to last year's Canadian Armed Forces title in Chilliwack, B.C.

Wayne McCreadie, from St. Catharines, was chosen outstanding lead of the native at Royal Canadian Legion competition last year while curling for Jesse.

The annual Legion spiels have been favorites for Jesse who will be aiming for h's third straight provincial Legion title in Trenton Feb 16-20, two days after returning from the Lahr services' competition.

Second Wayne "Scotch" MacDonald, the only member of the same rink to have curled in Lahr's Rhine Valley Club before, is as quick with a quip as he is with a takeout.

"Yep, I curled there before and won a prize," he beamed, and, half - serious, for a moment. "It was for being the furthest club to come."

MacDonald is a newcomer to the Jesse rink, replacing Carl Legroix, current CFB Trenton club pinsetter, who suffered a fractured ankle in an auto accident last year.

MacDonald's brand of humor should stand the Trenton curlers in good stead in the midst of next week's competition that promises to be as tough as Jesse has ever faced as a skip.

"One of our opposition will be the Atlantic region rink that won the national Legion title last year, they're skipped by Lon Dugre", Jesse said, "so we'll be looking for a bit of revenge."

Jesse's rink finished in a four-way tie for second in last year's the national Legion spiel, and finished second the previous year after losing a sudden-death final.

Hailing from Medicine Hat, Jesse got a late start in December last year, when he was reunited with former rink-mate McIntosh.

Is it easier excelling in servicemen - oriented curling?

"The competition in the forces is better than ever — they've cut the regions down," Jesse says. "For example, the winner of the Ontario region now is the best rink in three provinces.

"And the Legion competition is really good. One rink last year — Frank Hoare's from Nova Scotia — was just out of the Brier."

Jesse, a sergeant, (that's the only reason he's skip," needles MacDonald), a corporal (like the other rink members), is the oldest member of the foursome at 34. The other three are 32.

"We're not in any regular league so as a matter of fact this is the first game we've had in eight days," Jesse says, saying after a four-end warm-up at Belleville's Quinte Curling Club with ex-Dave Bowes foursome this week.

"We just get out the odd non-hour or weekend".

Their first game in the forces' championship, which runs Tuesday - through - Friday, will be with host Lahr club.

That will be the first of 10 games they will play in the double - round - robin series.

Jesse doesn't subscribe to any specific school of curling, although, he admits, "I try to keep it clean. But we have to be prepared to play anything if the occasion arises."

The Trenton rink will have many times at the two major bonspiels Jesse's gang will contest within the next two weeks.

But, win or lose, one thing's for certain, they won't boast the additional financial worry about where their next brooms are coming from!

Schuba Keeps Word

SAPPORO, Japan (A-P) — Beatrix Schuba's prediction that she would win an Olympic gold medal for Austria spoke well to be as precise as her figure eights at the halfway point of the women's Olympic figure skating competition.

The big blonde who came here as champion of Austria, Europe and the world on the strength of her school figures was the unanimous choice of the nine judges Saturday as the No. 1 skater in the competition's which count 50 per cent toward the title.

Her ordinals total of 3.9 and her point total of 1,347 virtually put the top trophy out of the reach of runners-up Julie Holmes, Karen Magnussen and Janet Lynn. They will battle battle-style for the silver medal in Monday night's finale—Ice free skating—no more important than the compulsories but infinitely more appealing to the public.

Thus the gold medal will lack the luster it had in the 1968 Olympics at Grenoble, won by American Peggy Fleming, a free skater with flare.

Miss Holmes, 20 of North Hollywood, Calif., was No. 2 in the compulsories with 28.5 ordinals and 1,128.5 points, "as the same as I expected" for services and showmanship as Miss Fleming.

But two petite blondes—the shy 18-year-old Miss Lynn from Rockford, Ill., and the personable 19-year-old Miss Magnussen of Vancouver, could give performances that would match Julie's.

Karen, the Canadian and North American champion who finished third in the world behind Miss Lynn and Julie, was No. 3 in Saturday's compulsories with 29.9 ordinals and 1,165.7 points. Miss Lynn, the U.S. national champion, wound up fourth with 30.2 ordinals and 1,074.6 points. She also finished fourth in the world competition at Lyon, France, in 1971.

Miss Schuba, wearing the royal blue skating dress that has become part of her good luck charm along with a little Indian Squaw doll given to her by her mother six years ago, was pleased with her compulsories.

"I'm glad I carried them perfectly," she said.

The top finishers drew for the last nine places in order of performance in Monday's free-skating program. The battle-by-battle order, No. 19 Marina Sanaia of Russia skating to the ice first.

Miss Schuba drew No. 16, Miss Holmes No. 13, Miss Magnussen No. 11, Miss Lynn No. 10 and Zsuzsa Almassy of Hungary, the No. 5 finisher, Saturday, No. 18.

With Ruth Hutchinson out of competition with an arm broken in a fall at the Olympic Village before the games started, the only other Canadian competitor was Cathy Irwin of Vancouver who finished 12th.

Home Court Helps

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jerry West says the home-court advantage in the National Basketball Association isn't just rumor; it's fact.

It was his inspired play late in the game Friday night that lifted Los Angeles Lakers over Milwaukee Bucks 109-105 in a National Basketball Association game of more importance than simply another victory. The team with the best record during the regular season plays its playoff games at home and the importance is evident in that this year, the Bucks' only victory over the Lakers' has come in Milwaukee and the Lakers' two victories over the Bucks have been here.

West scored 37 points, made at least nine steals, hit 15 of 26 shots, popped off for 13 assists and generated sparks in a sizzling fast break.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led the Bucks with 40 points.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Boston Celtics whipped Cincinnati Royals 132-109, New York Knicks trounced Buffalo Braves 103-91, Detroit Pistons overcame Philadelphia 76ers 118-113, Seattle SuperSonics downed Cleveland Cavaliers 118-112, Chicago Bulls edged Baltimore Bullets 110-108, Phoenix Suns took Golden State Warriors 113-105, and Portland Trailblazers nipped Houston Rockets 114-113.

In the American Basketball Association, it was: Carolina 106, Memphis 100; Kentucky 109, Pittsburgh 101; Virginia 115, Floridians 107; Dallas 118, Denver 102, and Utah 121, Indiana 116.

Karen Still Top Medal Hope

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — The Canadian women Olympic skiers had just been wiped out on the downhill slopes of Mount Eniwa Saturday when word came through that figure skater Karen Magnussen of Vancouver had rallied to the top three figures and was in a solid position for a medal.

Chef de mission Frank Shaughnessy of Montreal has been saying right along that the 18-year-old North American champion is Canada's "only real hope for a medal" in these Winter Games.

From the looks of things after six events and two days of competition he may be right.

Canada has Karen, a point, let alone a medal. But Miss Magnussen's efforts in the compulsory school figures completed Saturday, left her in a strong position for at least a bronze medal, and possibly silver, or gold.

Among the best freestyle skaters in the world, the Canadian girl had the back of her third ever with her after the finished third in the compulsory figures also at this site. She was the No. 1 starting position in the freestyle windup scheduled Monday.

That means she will be able to watch the performances of her challengers before she goes on the ice and tailoring her own performance accordingly. There are 26 girls in the event.

In the women's downhill, a chubby 17-year-old Swiss girl, Marie-Therese Nadig, won the gold medal and 20-year-old Susan Cornwall of the United States set its first Olympic downhill medal ever by taking the bronze.

Between them, winning the silver, came the heavily-favored Austrian threat Wiesi Hoflehner of Austria, the 1971 World Cup champion, still nursing the effects of a bad cold.

"I still can't believe I won a gold medal," the excited Miss Nadig said as she was mobbed by team-mates. Her winning time for the 1,800-metre was one minute 36.88 seconds.

It was Caroline Oughton of Sydney who posted the best Canadian time—1:40.82—and tied for 18th place. Laurie Kreiner of Timmins, Ont., finished 28th in the 45-girl field, her sister Cathy Kreiner of Port Credit, Ont., of Toronto wound up 37th.

Canadians have historically had little success in this event of Olympic competition. Lucile Wheeler of St. Agathe, Que., is the only Canadian to win a medal in the downhill event in 1956.

Both sides of divided Germany scored heavily in the competition Saturday. Wern Germans winning gold medals in the two-man bobsled and 500-metre men's speedskating while the East Germans captured the prized Nordic combined championship.

West Germany leads the medal table with two gold and the points list with 30 after completion of six events of the 35 scheduled over an 11-day span.

Outside of Miss Magnussen's performance, the Canadian individual Canadian showing so far has been 15th by speed skater Kevin Paul Ryan in the men's 1,500 metres.

Today, ideal conditions, Wolfgang Zimmerer and Peter Utschneider won the two-man bobsled title with a total time of 4:57.97 for four runs— the last two Saturday. Horst Floth and Pepi Bader, silver winners in 1968, did it again for a one-two West German windup. Jean Wicki and Edy Bubacher of Switzerland were the bronze winners.

The two Canadian teams never were in the race. Bob Stewart of Ottawa and Mike Hartley of Toronto placed 16th and Hans Gehrig of Montreal and Andy Adolfs of Burlington, Ont., were 18th.

Wiesi Hoflehner of Austria, the bronze medal winner in the women's downhill skiing event, is shown in action during the competition.

A crowd of 40,000 turned out in the big outdoor main rink to see Erhard Keller of West Germany win his second Olympic gold medal.

No Surprises During Opening Olympic Pound

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Czechoslovakia and Sweden scored expected victories Saturday in the opening games of championship hockey play at the Winter Olympics.

Hard-shooting Vaclav Nedomansky fired six goals as the Czechs crushed Poland 14-1. In the other match Sweden upended the United States 8-1.

Defending champion Russia was scheduled to play Finland later in the day.

The Poles, who got into the championship pool by blanking West Germany 4-0 Friday, were simply no match for the fast-forechecking Czechs.

Poland managed only 16 shots on goal, six of them in the first period and four in the third. Czechoslovakia meanwhele peppered the Polish netminder with 43 shots—22 in the first period, 11 in the second and 36 in the third.

Nedomansky spiked the scoring in the second after the game was faceoff. By 1:22 of the second period, he already had scored two goals.

Vladimir Martinec and Jiri Kochta each added two goals and Roland Machac, Vaclav Nedomansky, while Eduard Novak, Bohuslav Stasny, Ivan Hlinka and Richard Farda added singles.

Leszek Tokarz scored the lone goal for the Poles with his team playing a man short in the second period.

The last few minutes of the game were quite rugged and Poland's Marek Kupiec was assessed a five-minute major for high sticking after Czechoslovakia's Oldrich Machac was carried off the ice bleeding profusely.

At the final buzzer, Poland's Jerzy Potz was given a five-minute penalty for roughing by referee Bob Nadin of Toronto.

The Swedes opened their next game against the U.S. Monday, then meet Canada Tuesday and Czechoslovakia Wednesday.

Finland plays Russia and the Czechs Monday, dropped out of world play in 1969 after a dispute with the International Ice Hockey Federation over the use of pro or professional players in the world championships.

Sweden scored twice in the first and third periods in their win over the U.S. in a game that featured only two penalties called, both to the Americans in the first period.

The U.S. also had a pair of goals called back as the Finnish referee ruled both times that the Americans had a man in the goal crease.

U.S. coach Murray Williamson thought both the disallowed goals should have counted.

On the first disallowed goal he said the referee ruled that Ron and Nasiund was standing in the crease.

"It was a judgment call and he blew it," the American c oach said.

He also said that the Swedes had a better team than Americans, who had only 16 hours rest after defeating Switzerland Friday to qualify for championship play.

Bill Harris, the former National Hockey League star who now coaches the Swedish team, said he found it difficult to understand some of the scheduling in the tournament.

"We knew if we could outskate the Americans in the first and second periods, they'd be very tired."

Sweden will meet Russia Monday and Harris feels the Russians "will have to play an exceptionally strong game" to beat his club.

There is a great deal of confidence among the Swedes he said, especially since they defeated the Russians 4-3 two weeks ago.

Open Hockey Discussed

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — The probability of Canada and Russia meeting in open hockey exhibition by May, 1972, was discussed Saturday by Fred Page, Canada's representative on the International Ice Hockey Federation.

Page, also a director of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, admitted there had been problems in negotiating a proposed exchange of teams before latest talks began this year.

But he expected any misunderstandings to be settled during meetings here with Russian coach Anatoli Tarasov. Both men are attending the 11th Winter Olympic Games.

The Canadian IIHF director said he was not at liberty to say who would make up Canada's ski team personnel, only that they would be highly-rated players and that the same team would play a return game in Russia.

Page said negotiations to have Canada resume play at the top level of international hockey started between him and Tarasov last year in Europe. A follow-up letter in November failed to produce any results, but the two got together again in January when Tarasov's Russian army team took part in a world cup hockey tournament in Calgary.

Page said Tarasov agreed to play in open hockey at that time and for the Canadian IIHF delegate to proceed with plans for the exhibition games.

Page said he had the Russian coach sign a proposal agreement, "and then I started to play their game." Rather than agree immediately to the proposal, Page said he would take the document back to the CAHA for consideration. He said Gordon Juckes, executive director of the CAHA, then sent a telegram to Tarasov before his return to Russia expressing the CAHA's interest and desire to continue negotiations.

Nothing was heard again, said Page, until he met another Russian hockey coach, Arkadi Tchernychev, in the lobby of a Sapporo hotel this week.

"He was the same interpreter we had in Europe last year," said Page, "and I got the impression we was chiding us for not following up on the proposals.

"This really started to burn me," said Page. "He said the Russians were still favorable toward playing in open hockey."

Canada withdrew from world hockey competition in 1969 following a dispute with the IIHF over the use of reinstated professionals.

Page said he expected Canada to make the same proposals at the IIHF meeting in Hungary this year and that they would be accepted on the same basis as before.

However, it was his personal feeling Canada would get more support from the hockey powers than they did in 1969.

This was confirmed later in the day by Jaroslav Pitner, coach of the powerful Czechoslovak team, during an interview following the Czech's 14-1 win over Poland.

Asked if he thought Canada would return to the world championship tournaments, Pitner said the Canadian problem appears to be resolved and he foresaw the country again entering world and Olympic hockey tournaments this year.

Colds Catching at Winter Olympics

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — These will go down as "The Sneezing Olympics."

Everybody has a cold. It's become a status symbol. It's a mark of activity—from the cauldron of the living quarters into over-heated cars to the narrow-chilling mountain venues.

A deep-seated cough is good for the gold medal. A sneeze wins the silver; a wheeze the bronze.

Cough syrup has replaced warm sake as the national drink. People swarm popping pills like gum drops.

The International Olympic Committee has been asked to keep an eye on the first time. Almost everybody here is on dope of one kind or another—mostly antibiotics and aspirin.

Several members of the Canadian squad were among the early sufferers.

Toronto Rink Leads Ontarios

OTTAWA (CP) — Two hot streaks and a fast-cooling hand Friday put up a sixth-round match today that could be the key to this year's Ontario curling championship.

Glen Shannon of Toronto Humber Highland and Ross Pearce of Toronto Simpsons-Sears scored identical 4-3 victories straight victories Friday and the championship lead with 4-1 won lost records.

They were drawn against each other today in the first of three-rink three-round day at the Earl Armstrong arena in nearby Gloucester Township.

After draws today were set for 2:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. with the final round scheduled at 1 p.m. Sunday.

The town of Kingston started the day as the apparent team to beat when he downed the only unbeaten rink after three rounds, including two Friday.

But he took terrible thumpings from Shannon and Pearce in 11-ends and dropped into a fourway tie at three wins and two losses with Bodon Coombe of Ottawa, Jim Creighton of Toronto Boulevard and Bob Woods of Toronto Royal Canadian.

Ken Rowan of Toronto Avonlea Curl and Jim Waite of St. Thomas have 3-3 records, John Scott of Greenwood is 1-5 and Brian Adams of Hanover is winless in five starts.

The later sixth-round matches nit Scott against Woods, Adams against Waite, Creighton against Coombe and Rowan against Brown.

Pearce actually started his streak Thursday with a 13-3 win over Scott and simply maintained his momentum Friday by beating Waite 7-4, Adams 12-5 and finally Brown 13-4. Hurdegen only got moving Friday after he clobbered Creighton 14-6, clipped Waite 12-9 and beat Scott 11-8.

Brown looked like a worldbeater after dropping Scott 15-4 in the third round with a five-ender. Five of the ice in the fourth and went down 13-5 to Coombe before Pearce battered him in the nightcap.

In other third-round matches, Coombe lombed Rowan 14-4 while Woods was beating Adams 13-11 in the best game of the competition so far for the young Hanover entry.

Blonde Bashes World Records

TORONTO (CP) — Patty Jean Johnson, 21, a blonde housewife from Renton, Wash., bludgeoned two world-record-breaking performances Friday at the Toronto Star Maple Leaf Indoor games in going to her parents that girls weren't made just to look pretty and go to parties.

"They always fight me about track," Patty recalled after her record runs of 6.5 seconds in the heat and final of the women's 50-yard hurdles. The previous record of 6.5 was set by China's Chi Cheng in 1970.

"I wasn't the thing for girls to do, they said. You miss out on parties." Now her parents have already purchased ringside tickets to see Patty perform in the Summer Olympics in Munich Aug. 26-Sept. 10.

She was a gold medal winner in the 100-metre hurdles at the Pan-American Games last summer in Cali, Columbia, but didn't expect to do well here.

"I was quite nervous, but my referees are good."

She beat out some tough rivals in Lacey O'Neal of Washington and Mamie Rallins of Tennessee State University, 1971 meet winner in the event, beating them both by two-tenths of a second.

Mrs. Johnson lives with her Marine husband in San Clemente, Calif.

The bespectacled American was the only world record-breaker in the 18-event meet which attracted 15,695 fans, largest to ever attend an indoor meet in anada.

Michigan State University star Herb Washington, a perennial performer here, won the men's 50-yard dash in five seconds flat to equal the world record, the only performer to come close to Mrs. Johnson's feat.

Washington's win was marred by an incident involving Dr. Delano Meriwether, in Boston haematologist who pulled up shortly after leaving the starter's block when he mistook the "echo" of the starter's pistol shot as the signal for a false start. Dr. Meriwether finished last, but didn't lodge a complaint.

But for the partisan, shirt-sleeved crowd, the loudest cheers were reserved for Toronto's Bruce Simpson, who finished second in a star-studded pole vaulting event, and Grant McLaren, bearded London, Ont., university student, who gave Australia's Kerry O'Brien a tough fight in the three-mile run before losing in the last lap.

Simpson, 21, a university of Toronto student, was beaten although his vault of 17 feet, 1-3 inches was matched by Soviet Kisti Isaksson and Dave Roberts of Rice University, Houston.

Isaksson was declared the winner because he had fewer misses than Roberts, who came up with his best personal performance.

"I knew it was there," Simpson said. "I just had to realise it."

All three broke the meet record of 17 feet set by Sam Caruthers f San Jose, Calif., in 1970. Simpson also bettered the Canadian native record of 16-9¼, which he set at Saskatoon last, December.

McLaren said he tightened up on the last three laps, allowing O'Brien, who won the even las year, to overtake him. O'Brien won in 13:23.8, one second ahead of McLaren, who ran the best race of his life at the urgings of the crowd.

Both runners chuckled about a run-in they had with a mile left to go in the race. O'Brien, running slightly behind McLaren, nudged his rival and said: "I'm not feeling too well, let's share the lead."

When McLaren moved closer to accommodate him, his knee nudged the Australian's leg, and O'Brien almost stumbled.

"I almost tripped him," McLaren laughed later. "It was an accident, but it was about the only thing I could do to get him out of the race."

Ralph Doubell, Australian Olympic champion and world record holder in the 1,000 yards, pulled a tendon in his left leg on the last lap of his race with Byron Dyce, a Jamaican running for Brooklyn United A.A. Doubell didn't finish, although he was closing in on Dyce, who won the 880 yard event in 2:09.4.

Francesco Arese of Italy, competing in only his second indoor meet, was given several ovations for his flashy win in the mile with a time of 4:08.5, beating his cuntryman Gianni Simone.

Third-place finisher was Marty Liquori of New York, a long-time rival of Arese. Liquori beat the Italian in Milan last summer in the 1,500-metre race.

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League announced Friday they have signed two players to contracts, including quarterback Eric Guthrie, 24, of Vancouver, who led Boise State to a victory in the Camellia Bowl last year. Howard Rogers, a running back from University of Washington, also was signed by the Lions.

VNANCOUVER (CP) — Jim Tomlin, 26, a defensive halfback with British Columbia Lions, said Friday he has quit the Canadian Football League team because the team wouldn't trade him. Tomlin, an American, traded to the Lions last year from Toronto Argonauts, said he can't find work in Vancouver as a teacher.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The chairman of Ohio State University Board of Trustees says the beating of two Ohio State basketball players at the University of Minnesota last week looked to him like attempted murder. He was referring to rights just before a game in Minneapolis Jan. 25, in which Luke Witte and Mark Wagar suffered concussions that sent them to hospital for a night.

Stars Fade In NHL West

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Any notions Minnesota North Stars had of finishing in first place in the western division of the National Hockey League are rapidly being dispelled by Chicago Black Hawks.

The explosive Hawks flashed some of their vaunted power Friday in whipping Vancouver Canucks 4-2 in Vancouver.

Meanwhile, Montreal Canadiens, with the injury jinx still hovering about them, had to settle for a 2-2 tie with California Golden Seals on the West Coast.

In Saturday's program Detroit Red Wings visit Boston Bruins for an afternoon game and tonight Philadelphia Flyers play in Toronto against the Maple Leafs; New York Rangers visit St. Louis Blues; Buffalo Sabres go to Minnesota and Pittsburgh Penguins are on the coast against Los Angeles Kings.

Tomorrow, Montreal at Vancouver, Toronto at New York, Boston at Buffalo, California at Detroit, Minnesota at Chicago and St. Louis at Philadelphia.

The Toronto at New York game, originally scheduled for Sunday night, will begin at 2:00 p.m. EST.

Erupting for four goals in fewer than six minutes of the second period, the Black Hawks went on to a handy victory the widened their lead over the fo North Stars to 12 points.

Cliff Koroll and Doug Jarvis paced the winners with tw goals apiece while Dennis Hu Bobby Hull each added one.

Dave Balon and Bobb Schmautz were the snipers f the Canucks.

Dennis Hull started the sco ing binge at 6:40 of the midd period and by the 13:32 ma the visitors had put the gam out of reach. Bobby Hull ba ed home his 37th goal of t season during the outburst.

Yvan Cournoyer's two goa less than four minutes apart s stroyed Seals' hopes of victo after they held a 2-0 lead in t third period.

Guy Lapointe, Montreal defenseman had to be taken hospital for treatment after was struck in the face by Gilbertson's stick. Gilbert was attempting to clear puck during a Montreal pow play when he caught Lapoi on the upswing and opened g under his eye.

Goalies Come Through

BOSTON (AP) — Eddie Johnston has teamed with Gerry Cheevers this season to provide Boston Bruins with some of their best goaltending in years, putting them in contention for the coveted Vezina Trophy.

Four years ago, however, it did not appear that Johnston had much of a future. He was almost knocked out of the nets for one of my eye I saw Bobby Orr ready to let another one go. I don't know how quick Bobby is with that shot. Well, I just didn't move fast enough."

The puck cracked against his temple. Johnston fell in a heap.

The shot had cracked Johnston's head along the right temple, collapsing his skull on that side and causing brain damage.

The memory is something Johnston was to forget these days. He and Cheevers currently are in contention for the trophy that goes to the goaltenders of the team that allows the least goals in a season.

"I'm a better goaltender now," Johnston said. "I don't have the reflexes I used to have, but I'm smarter."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

D S M N M C D D S V I E I A D S M F R U M
R C D I D S V I E D S M E I Z L P. — C U I D D R C S
K V I O M V N

TWEED — The third meeting of "The Mountain Grove Snowmobile Club was held earlier this month with 45 persons present. Police Constable Bathurst of the Sharbot Lake OPP was the guest speaker and showed slides. He spoke on snowmobile safety and The Snowmobile Act.

Rev. Frank E. Vaughan, pastor of Madoc United Church for the past four years, terminated his ministry in Madoc on Sunday, Jan. 30. Mr. Vaughn has spent a total of 40 years in Baptist ministry and during that time, has served churches at Norland, Lansia, and Cannington. Ont. Rev. Orville Thamer of Verona, Ont. on Thursday of last week (Jan. 27) a retired missionary of the Indian Interior Mission will carry on the services at present as interim pastor.

The annual congregational meeting of Mountain Grove United Church was held Feb. 1. A potluck supper sponsored by the UCW of the church preceded the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kelsey and family, who have been residing in Belleville for the past few months, returned to their Henderson home recently.

Mrs. John Cassidy of Tweed was in Kingston Saturday, visiting her husband who was in a logging accident in the fall and who is still very ill in the Kingston General Hospital.

Mrs. Cecil Lessard, (nee Fae Parks) now of Toronto, spent a week recently, along with her little son, Brett, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Larry Chariton, Bridge Street, Tweed.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Rogers of Kingston, Ontario visited recently with Mr. Roger's parents, and brother, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Rogers and Roy of RR 1, Cloyne.

Stanfield Disturbed

Foreign Investment Restrictions Could Harm National Unity

HALIFAX (CP) — Restriction of foreign investment could have a disastrous effect on national unity, Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Saturday.

Commenting on disclosures that the government is considering a screening agency to control foreign investment, Mr. Stanfield told a party meeting:

"Any policy that pins its faith exclusively on the restriction of investment in Canada in order to protect our identity as Canadians is bad for this country and would be disastrous in terms of national unity.

"I want to warn this government that any such policy, far from protecting our identity, would turn region against region, province against province and Canadian against Canadian.

"I want to warn this government that we in the Progressive Conservative party shall fight hard against any policy that would have the effect of cutting off sources of investment to the provinces that are still in need of new capital."

He said the Conservative party "remains committed to sound nationalism" but any policy of nationalism must reconcile the interests of different regions.

"That is why I react so strongly to the concept of the all-powerful screening agency suggested in the cabinet documents on foreign investment leaked last fall. Such an agency is too simplistic an approach, and one that could easily turn one region against another."

The Conservative party believed there must be positive measures to encourage Canadian investment as well as negative ones restricting foreign investment.

Mr. Stanfield also delivered a scathing condemnation of the government's economic performance and the recent cabinet shuffle.

"This creation of what is universally described as an elective cabinet is all part of the prime minister's plan to encourage Canadians to forget the past.

The prime minister must bear responsibility for economic policies that produced high unemployment, inflation and uncertainty among businessmen, Mr. Stanfield said.

"As long as there are more than half a million jobless Canadians, we cannot and we shall not forget the past.

"As long as older people have to bear without help the burden of inflation, the cost of living calculated 'policies of the Trudeau government, we cannot and we shall not forget the past.

"This must be the first time a government has tried to seek re-election by saying 'we can't do much about it.'"

A text of the speech was released before delivery.

Man Stifled by Management

Suspicion of Professions Evident at Parley on Law

OTTAWA (CP) — When the national law conference that ended here Friday was being organized, the justice department invited citizens to mail in their views on the system.

One of the letters came from Wilson Harford, whose only brush with the law came when he bought a house in Toronto. The legal fees were $450.

Mr. Harford's letter expressed an "ingrained suspicion of all the professions" that wasn't reduced on his expert ence with his lawyer.

Why was a lawyer needed in buying a house? And what did he do, beyond shuffling paper, to earn his fee?

Mr. Harford's questions were not mentioned, let alone replied to, during the conference's about 350 high-powered academics, activists, lawyers, officials and judges.

But criticism of the professions was a fundamental theme of the four-day colloquy, with lawyers defending their relevance against battering attacks from within and without.

Educational theorist Ivan Illich of Mexico led an assault on what he called "radical monopolies"—the law, medicine, education and other professions and trades that hoard knowledge from the citizen.

Even municipal building codes militated against the citizen by driving up the cost of housing and forcing it beyond the means of most. Dr. Illich proposed a "convivial society" in which knowledge would be returned to the populace.

He mentioned in passing Canada's do-it-yourself divorce kits, which cut out lawyers altogether and decrease costs from the hundreds of dollars to about $50. Cracks also are appearing in other professional monopolies, he said.

California sociologist Jack Douglas, contributing the theme that knowledge must be liberated, said society is "suffering and dying from specialization."

"Division of labor has gone mad, size insane."

Man was being stifled by management.

As the conference was ending Friday, a group of younger delegates formed their own forum on "education and the law." Inviting delegates to attend, they said it was time a country caught up to the rule of law and began to confine legal education to lawyers."

"We want to rid law of its mystique," said Randall Marlin, who teaches philosophy at Carleton University in Ottawa.

"People find themselves paying lawyers $100 in find out whether they should quit their left foot in front of their right."

The conference split—delegates were invited on the basis of their conflicting viewpoints—along confusing lines, as it is can handle the problems that are facing men and the environment.

Professor Seeley's impulse to scream at celebration of poverty and other problems and Dr. Illich's stance of disaster on less growth mania is overcome were offset by less desperate perceptions.

Professor Julius Stone of the University of Sydney, Australia, the keynote speaker, said society may be trying to do too much, to the point of being decayed or disaster.

Dean J. A. Corry of Queen's University feared a breakdown in the political process.

The political tendency to react to demands had placed emphasis on "the things that divide us rather than the things that unite us."

Professor Douglas LePan of Massey College, Toronto, said static obsolescence of power in the last 50 years had left people wary of force. The law might suffer from the fact that it rested in part "on the flint of a policeman's backside."

Hester Daggeby of Edmonton, who described herself as "only a social scientist and a mother," said this is wrong. The RCMP had told her that the law rested upon a consensus of 93 per cent of the people. When seven per cent or more disregarded a law, it wasn't enforced, she said.

Professor Stone said the law's trouble might be that it rest on a fundamental delusion on fundamental principles that guaranteed justice.

One-day Hernia Operation OK But Only for Some Patients

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like information about the one-day hernia operation. I have read that it is highly successful. I would like to know if a doctor who uses this technique is "up."

Yes, I know there has been some publicity on this, and in the right cases it is perfectly feasible. But that's the catch—it has to be used in suitable cases.

It boils down to this: the one-day operation means that the patient goes home from hospital the day after surgery.

Age and general physical condition of the patient is one consideration. A young healthy patient might do very well with this method. An old patient or one with various ailments might not.

Size of the hernia also is important. With a large one, the surgeon wants a little more room to sew the incision is coming along. The patient will feel stronger and more confident after some good nursing and a chance to rest.

The way the patient reacts to surgery is, of course, an important matter. In most hernia I cases, the patient is allowed to get up a few hours after surgery and this is a good thing. The dangers of lying flat in bed for too long after surgery were recognized quite a few years ago, and "early ambulation," meaning walking (or maybe just standing up), is now an accepted part of recovery.

But just getting on your feet in the hospital and going home from the hospital are two different things. The amount of pain and discomfort also can vary quite considerably. The average hospital stay for hernia surgery is usually four to seven days.

Surgeons I consulted tell me some of them do not approve of the one-day technique for their patients; others do—if it's the right patient. I was told of one patient, a woman, who insisted on the one-day deal, but was uncomfortable enough that she regretted it as soon as she got home.

In a word, I see no reason to be afraid of the one-day method, but you shouldn't demand it as the operation that it's some special method which is automatically going to make you feel good as new the next day. Any operation takes some of the starch out of you for a little while. And most decidedly, pay attention to whether the surgeon says you are or aren't a good candidate.

I can't recommend a specific surgeon for you, because I can't begin to keep track of who's who in every locality, but your regular physician can do so for you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have just returned from a large clinic. The doctor said: "When your gall bladder was x-rayed, it showed you have a hernia. It isn't very often that we see one, and don't worry about it, but it isn't very usual to see one."

How mixed up can one get from an answer like that?—E. M. C.

Quite. Me too.

Best guess is that he meant a hiatal hernia which may cause you no trouble and need no special attention. That is common enough, but wouldn't show up (or wouldn't be likely to, anyway) on an x-ray taken of the gall bladder. A special technique is used if the hernia is suspected.

I could guess better if I knew just what kind of x-ray you had—if upper and lower (gastrointestinal), then he might have meant some other kind of a hernia.

Note to Mrs. D. M.: No, carbonated drinks (if of the low-calorie type) do not prevent you from losing weight.

Retailers Will Get Day of Rest

TORONTO (CP) — New legislation is being planned to ensure a "day of rest" for retail store workers, Justice Minister Allan Lawrence said Friday.

He revealed the Ontario government's intentions after a meeting between Premier William Davis, members of his cabinet and representatives of the Ad Hoc Committee on Sunday Retail Selling, led by Canon Maurice Wilkinson.

"As the law reform commission pointed out, we have to stop the unfair exploitation of people in the retail area and we need to have a pause or a day of rest for them," Mr. Lawrence said. "New legislation will be drawn up from that point of view."

Let's say you open with a spade, to which partner responds Four Notrump. This is obviously Blackwood, as you dutifully bid Five Hearts, showing two aces. Partner bids Five Notrump, asking how many kings you have.

It is true, generally speaking, that the player who initiates Blackwood is regarded as captain of his partner and merely responds in accordance with the number of aces (or kings) he has.

There are good reasons for this. A player should not use Blackwood unless, when partner responds, he knows what to do next. If he doesn't know what to do after partner discloses how many aces he has, he shouldn't have used Blackwood in the first place.

When the number of aces (or kings) is not the key to how many tricks can be made, it is better to use a different method of trying to get to a slam.

In the present case it is clearly right to disregard partner's question about kings. Instead you should jump to seven spades or seven notrump.

There is a perfectly logical basis for this, because Five Hearts, while primarily directed at learning how many kings you have, at the same time guarantees possession of all four aces. A Blackwood bid of Notrump bid is always a grand slam try and cannot sensibly be used as simply a stepping-stone to the six level.

Obviously, with eight solid tricks to contribute to the partnership — about five more than partner knows about — you can safely bid seven opposite a grand slam try.

If you were to unodenly respond six diamonds, which would be king, partner might—and in this case probably would—bid seven, resulting in missing a grand slam. This would be too much like the story of Ballare's doctors, who held that it was better for the patient to die after receiving the correct treatment than to live after receiving the incorrect treatment.

What the Stars Say

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 6
By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Expect others to be a little jovvish, and thus you can react in complete security, above any personal conflicts.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Prefer a leisury retreat for the day. Reflection, prayer may bring extraordinary inspiration. Pay no attention to others' abrasive moods.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): There are all sorts of details to be done, but you prefer to continue to devote yourself in anything beyond your regular 8-to-day habits.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Remember you've been pampered and spoiled and settled on attitudes toward them beyond the reach of outsiders who protect confusing suggestions.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You'll be proud of pulling yourself and your own together and away from a potential problem situation by extraneous influences.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Plans are readily dislocated. Have alternative courses prepared.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Friends, neighbors, visitors, relatives all tend to gather about you. Be glad you have as many resources in reserves available as you do.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It's better to skip some of the latest travels, people who cramp your style.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your own affairs should be plenty to manage this Sunday without reaching out for extra territory. There's a minor hindrance to overcome in family movements.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Talkative people, including some who usually say little, complicate all social activities.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): In the midst of this weekend, take a rest and ask yourself what you're really doing for yourself, today's activities.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Serenity is essential now in order to overcome the care for shows moodiness, or something dwindles in an evil.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 7
By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-Apr. 19): A friend has good ratings in all sorts for today's career effort. The long shot tends to come in first, but it's necessary about as much that you miss details.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Beneficial encouragement is the main thing to offer. Bring a pending issue to closing decision, settle all open claims.

Gemini (May 21-July 22): Something you can't find and work more effective ways of getting the job done.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): The unexpected quirk in career effort is the normal course, along with many added details to follow up. Go out of your way to express your feelings for people you've missed.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): No leisure time is permissible. Get on the ball early and keep moving.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Traditional methods, conventional associates bring success in today's career effort as your week gets off to a good start. Practical tasks are strictly out.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): In this steady, progressive day you begin to reap benefits from long and patient sowing, and much more is on the sky.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Interviews, petitions, official formalities of all sorts are favored if you're asking. Rely on expert advice.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The day and week open sluggishly—it's your uphill chore to generate sparkle in it. And there still glows.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take a good look at what you're working on, think, what you're doing, what it is and seek more

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Whatever travel you plan should come to final stages quickly. Join groups, committees, clubs.

Prison Guards Are Acquitted

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — Five Millhaven penitentiary guards were acquitted Friday of charges of assaulting a penitentiary prisoner last April 19.

A jury, minus one of its members who could not be in court because of poor weather conditions, deliberated less than two hours before bringing in its verdict.

Found not guilty of assaulting prisoner John Hance during his transfer to the prison April 19 were Lester Earl Landstra, 31, Odessa; Robert Earl Goodwin, 24, Kingston; Edgar Albert Sweet, 32, Napanee; Grant Sidney Ivey, 41, Harrowsmith; and Peter Hinch, Napanee.

Hance told the jury on the opening day of the trial he was beaten about the neck and body as he was leaving a bus that was being used to transfer prisoners to Millhaven from Kingston penitentiary.

Some Millhaven prisoners who were also on the bus told the jury they had seen Hance beaten by guards, while some of them said they had been beaten too.

The five guards are among eight accused of a total of 17 assaults involving seven prisoners who were being transferred to Millhaven following last April's riot at Kinston penitentiary.

The trial was the second in a series of seven stemming from prisoner allegations.

Two guards were acquitted of an assault charge in December. No date has been set for the remaining five trials.

Evidence Fabricated On Morals

MONTREAL (CP) — An RCMP corporal, formerly on the Montreal police morality squad, said Friday he informed Jacques Saulnier that some squad members were in the habit of "adding" evidence in cases where there was not enough proof to convict a suspect.

Cpl. Denis Couture, testifying at a Quebec Police Commission inquiry into the conduct of Mr. Saulnier, now Montreal police chief and head of the morality squad in 1966, said he was never asked by Mr. Saulnier to fabricate evidence, but "it was done every day by the others."

Canadian Unionists In Control

OSHAWA (CP) — The Canadian Auto Workers Group, a party of the Canadian Auto Workers Union, has gained control of the UAW Local 222 election committee, defeating every nominee of the Democratic Right Wing which controls the local executive and the General Motors unit shop bargaining committee. One of the platforms of the victorious auto workers group is increased autonomy for the Canadian union.

Profit-taking Pares Prices

By PETER LEICHNITZ
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Strong advances during the first three sessions were erased by a round of profit-taking later in the week as prices in most sectors of major Canadian stock markets closed lower in moderate trading this week.

Much of the activity was in gold issues with prices in that sector soaring sharply higher early in the week, only to lose much of the advance during the final two sessions.

The Toronto market's industrial index, a major indicator of market activity, lost 28 to 196.99. Tuesday, the index closed at 197. 6, its best level since May 26, 1969, and only 31 points below its all-time high of 198.67.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index rose 1.03 points to 199.39.

Combined volume on the two exchanges was 7.36 million shares, compared with 8.51 million last week.

At Toronto, trading was active during most of the week with 16.45 million shares changing hands, compared with 15.12 million last week.

Analysts said the sharp rise in shares of gold issues was in response to active trading and higher prices for gold on international bullion markets.

Wednesday, the price of gold on the London bullion market was $49.25 (U.S.) an ounce, the highest price since the market reopened in 1954 after the Second World War.

At Toronto Wednesday, the gold index climbed 3.19 points to 196.64, its best level since Aug. 13, 1971. However, as the price of gold dropped later in the week gold issues on Canadian to 178.29.

On the week, the Toronto market's gold index was up 1.04 points.

At New York, the Dow Jones industrial average of 30 key blue-chip issues made a fractional advance of .30 points to 906.62.

Civil Rightists Plan New Protest

Jury Hears Author

NEW YORK (AP) — Clifford Irving entered the federal courthouse today to testify before a grand jury investigating possible fraud in his claim that he helped Howard Hughes write his autobiography.

The writer declined to answer questions from dozens of reporters who met him on the courthouse steps. He did pose briefly for pictures before his lawyer hurried him up to the 14th floor grand jury room.

Irving, his Swiss-born wife Edith and Richard Suskind, a researcher who said in a sworn affidavit that he witnessed a meeting between Hughes and Irving, are among those who have been subpoenaed to testify in the investigation of possible mail fraud.

The cast of characters in the drama grew Sunday as Life magazine said a blonde scuba diver, identified as Ann Ratter, flew with Irving to the Virgin Islands last December and gave him some letters which he waited in what he said was an attempt to make contact with Hughes. She declined to comment on the case.

POW Swap Refused Says Hanoi

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hanoi's chief negotiator at the Paris peace talks says the United States was offered a straight prisoners-for-pullout swap last year but President Nixon refused.

Minister Xuan Thuy added, however, that such an exchange can no longer be discussed without linking it to the future of President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

Thuy was asked in an interview in Paris with CBS's Face the Nation:

"Will you agree to a simple swap of American troops out for American prisoners back?"

He replied: "It is not a swap here. . . . You should remember that this approach was advanced in 1971. . . . It was our earnest desire to see Mr. Nixon rapidly settle the Vietnam problem peacefully.

"That is to say . . . to withdraw U.S. forces and to change the . . . Thieu administration. Through the election of Oct. 3, 1971, it was a very opportune occasion to do so, and it would have allowed Mr. Nixon to get out of the war very honorably. But Mr. Nixon refused to do that."

Total Paralysis Is Group's Aim

NEWRY, Northern Ireland (CP) — Officials of the Civil Rights Association, terming the latest demonstration of protests against the Ulster government a complete success for their cause, are planning what they term a total paralysis of Northern Ireland for Wednesday.

"We are staying tight lipped about the actual organization," said a civil rights official in describing the projected 24-hour disruption which is to hit communities across Ulster.

"But we can say now that it will be non-violent and . . . massive."

About 20,000 Roman Catholics —most of them from Ulster but some from the Irish Republic also—paraded peacefully Sunday in this border town, which has been badly scarred by the Ulster troubles of the last three years.

Spokesman for security forces apparently shared the relief of the civil rights officials that violence had not occurred in the much-touted parade at Newry.

Many Protestants in Northern Ireland consider the Civil Rights Association a form of republicanism, seeking union with southern Ireland against the wishes of the majority Protestants in the north.

Predominantly Catholic and handicapped by what opposition leaders call the economic discrimination of the Ulster Unionist government, Newry provided the least contingent of the quiet procession which filed down a circular route to the edge of town almost a mile from the nearest barricade thrown up by security forces.

Parade organizers looked delighted as they proudly spoke of having disproved warnings by authorities that a peaceful parade in troubled Ulster was impossible.

Having staged the illegal march was the important thing, they said—a demonstration of the contempt in which the Catholic minority holds the Stormont system and its "repressive" laws.

Most speakers at the rally which climaxed the parade hailed the effectiveness of non-violent methods in pressing the civil rights cause.

But MP Bernadette Devlin, now a heroine for the Ulster minority following her Jan. 31 assault against Home Secretary Reginald Maudling, told the rally, held in a muddy Newry Square, that violence can be justified as a weapon for equal rights in Ulster.

Participants in the Sunday procession—a thoroughly organized affair featuring men and women but no children—formed up in well-planned brigades near a municipal housing development on the western end of Newry.

Hundreds of stewards kept the procession tightly in formation while its chief organizer insisted at both the beginning and end of the demonstration that order must be kept so that no excuse could be given to the

No Picnic for Teddy

It was no picnic this weekend for this Teddy, sculptured by students at B.C.I. On a chilly Saturday morning, he posed in his best position for judges of the annual Winter Carnival Snow Sculpturing Contest . . . and lost. Moira Secondary School came in for top honors, leaving Teddy and his friends at third place. For other winter carnival pictures and stories, see Page 3.

Quebec Jail Guards Walk Out

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. (CP) — Quebec's 35 provincial prisons were manned by supervisory personnel today after guards walked out Sunday to protest lack of progress, in contract talks with the provincial government.

The walkout, called for 6 p.m. Sunday at a day-long meeting of 800 members of the Provincial Peace Officer Association, spread quickly across the province.

Guards, joined by autocops, policemen, game wardens and highway inspectors, all association members, were streaming to this city, 75 miles east of Montreal.

By Sunday evening more than 1,500 men of the 2,500-member association were at a meeting hall here but a government spokesman said order was being maintained in the jails.

Leopold Legros, president of the brotherhood of police prison personnel, urged supervisory personnel to leave their posts and come to the Drummondville meeting. The guards earlier rejected his proposal that supervisors remain to insure minimum surveillance.

But Pierre Gariepy, deputy director of Quebec prisons, said Sunday night that more than 90 per cent of supervisory personnel had remained on the job.

"While the activities of prisoners have been greatly reduced, with supervisory personnel, which make up 20 per cent of the staff, we can handle the situation."

He said supervisors have been supplied with living-in arrangements in preparation for an extended walkout.

"We are pretty well equipped if the strike should last.

The walkout caused postponement of court appearance for detainees under provincial jurisdiction.

Brother Of Witness Found Dead

MONTREAL (CP) — The brother of a woman scheduled to testify at a Montreal police Inquiry today was found dead this weekend, police said Sunday.

They said fingerprints from the body, found Saturday, established his identity as Oscar Adams, 48, brother of Martha Adams who has been subpoenaed to testify before a Quebec Police Commission inquiry into the conduct of Montreal Police Chief Jacques Saulnier when he headed the morality squad in the mid-1950s.

Quebec Provincial Police investigators, said the partially-clothed, half-frozen body was covered with bruises when it was found on a cot in his truck.

Several wine bottles surrounded him.

Eire Asks Aid From Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Irish External Affairs Minister Patrick Hillery said Sunday night he would like Canada to help persuade Britain to stop its "military policies" in Northern Ireland.

The Irish republic foreign minister arrived here for a one day visit to confer with External Affairs Minister Sharp and to hold a news conference.

Vietnam War Flares Again

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces battled the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong today and Sunday at a dozen points from the northern end of the country to the southern tip. It was one of the heaviest periods of action this year, military spokesmen said.

The South Vietnamese command claimed 77 Communist command troops killed in the scattered fighting, while 29 South Vietnamese troops were reported killed and 55 wounded.

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Allan Baker, speech assistant to the federal minister of transport, told residents here Saturday to complain more often when incoming flights at Toronto International airport make life unbearable. Mr. Baker said he wanted increased communication between the complaining public and the transport ministry so the character of noise offences could be determined.

CHRISTCHURCH (Reuter) — Margaret Elizabeth McCleland, 78, who left Belfast two years ago to escape the violence in Northern Ireland, died Sunday in this New Zealand city after being hit over the head by an Irish civil rights placard during an anti-British demonstration.

MONTREAL (CP) — Members of 11 unions voted Sunday to accept contract settlements with the daily newspaper La Presse, which suspended publication last Oct. 27 because of labor troubles. Antoine Desroches, managing editor, said the paper probably would be on the streets by Thursday.

Fourteen delegates voted for Rod Moores, a 22-year-old university student, and three votes went to Vincent Spencer, 44, a Windsor, Nfld., businessman.

An expected attempt to expel Mr. Burgess, 38 and Hugh Shea, who also joined the Liberals last week after being elected as a Conservative for St. John's South, failed to materialize.

The vote by the two gave the Liberals 21 of the 42 legislature seats. The PCs hold 20 and one was left vacant by the resignation of a Liberal earlier this month.

In a brief acceptance speech Mr. Roberts said:

"We'll rise and fight again and we'll win.

"Let's get to work. We can win this election when it comes."

In a speech before voting began, Mr. Roberts promised to work for greater unity between Newfoundland and Labrador and to encourage local processing of fish and minerals, both exported now as semi-finished products.

"I say—openly and honestly —that we have not done enough to make Labrador and New foundland one,"

He said residents of the province's mainland territory felt they were being ignored.

"They are right."

"A similar view has often been expressed by Mr. Burgess, who abandoned a promise made in November to support the PCs because he said Premier Moores was unwilling to pay special attention to Labrador's problems.

"We must ensure . . . that the harvest of our sea is processed in Newfoundland so that our people get the greatest possible benefit from these resources," Mr. Roberts said.

"We must ensure that our minerals give the maximum benefit to Newfoundlanders—that these are no longer just taken from the ground and sent elsewhere to be refined.

He also promised to make a better use of the forests, many areas of which now are held by firms under timber rights originally granted 70 years ago.

"We can make more out of Newfoundland—and in the process make more out of Canada.

"But we will not do it until we rid ourselves of the idea that all our progress depends on Ottawa's help."

Cold Day Even for the Dogs

Saturday went to the dogs literally as the Arctic Sled Dog Association monopolized the entire afternoon activities of the Belleville Winter Carnival.

Near-zero temperatures with a cutting wind stopped many enthusiasts from travelling to Zwick's Island during the day. For story, see Page 3.

No Immediate Push to Oust PCs Planned

E. M. Roberts Is Chosen As Leader by Newfoundland Liberals

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Edward M. Roberts won the leadership of the Newfoundland Liberal party Saturday and became head of the strongest opposition in the provincial legislature since Confederation in 1949.

But the 31-year-old former health minister said there would be no immediate push for an election as long as Premier Frank Moores's Progressive Conservative government acts in the province's best interests.

"We said that we believed Newfoundland needed a period of political stability—that we would use our strength in the house to achieve this.

"Our responsibility is all the greater because we can defeat the government at any time."

Mr. Roberts, an unmarried lawyer who has never practised law, succeeded Joseph R. Smallwood, 71.

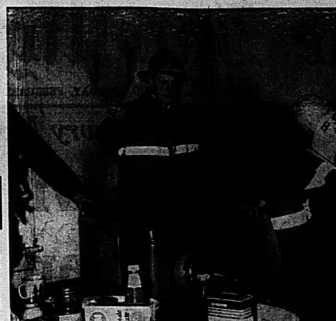
Mr. Smallwood retired after serving as party leader since he led Newfoundland into union with Canada.

His Liberal government resigned Jan. 18 after losing a court battle over a disputed seat won by the Conservatives in the Oct. 28 provincial election. Mr. Smallwood left soon after casting his vote and was not present when the result was made known.

Mr. Roberts received 561 of the 663 votes cast by delegates to the party's two-day leadership convention here.

Tom Burgess, former New Labrador Party leader returned to Labrador West in the Oct. 28 election who switched to the Liberals and entered the leadership race last week, got 82 votes.

Cannifton Road Property Selected for Trailer Park



A multi-group committee has decided that a strip of land on Cannifton Road would best suit trailer park needs for the summer and will be approaching council in the next month with the proposal.

The committee, formed from representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, Parks Board, Moira River Conservation Authority and a trailer club, previously investigated several sites and concluded, "there was no land closer to the city than the Cannifton Road site that could serve the purpose."

"The first step in approaching council," said Ald. Paul Russell, "will be to approach the Parks Board. If they agree in principal, the plan will then be forwarded."

The site, for now, will be proposed as a temporary affair, "but hopefully council will be pleased with the plan to make it a permanent site," said Ald. Russell.

At the moment the land (across the road from Riverside Park) is sitting untouched and will require a large amount of fill before it could be made suitable for a park.

Where There's Smoke There Was Fire

Blythe Wannamaker, resident at 32 West Moira Street, discovered wisps of smoke coming from his floor space heater Saturday afternoon and walked the half-block to Number Two firehall. As the old saying goes, where there's smoke, there's fire, and that's what firemen under the direction of Captain Lyle Wannamaker, left, directs removal of the faulty space heater. The fire, which ate into the floorboards, has been blamed on a faulty carburetor.

MOM CALLS IT PNEUMONIA WEATHER

When the weather is either hot or cold we can easily prepare and wear the proper clothing. The dangerous time comes when there can be a drastic change from day to day or even during the course of a day.

Sometimes it is impossible to avoid a cold or cough, no matter how well we are prepared. The most important advice then is not to neglect a cold. If it does not clear up within a week or seem to be getting progressively worse, see your physician. This advice particularly is important for the elderly. To them a cough or cold can be more serious.

Local Motorists Critical of 401

The relatively poor condition of the Macdonald Cartier Freeway east of Marysville as compared with road conditions on the same route in the immediate Belleville area came in for criticism by local motorists over the weekend.

One Belleville motorist said the four-lane highway between Marysville and Kingston was covered with a few packed snow while in the Belleville area, Highway 401 was practically bare.

"One minute you were travelling on bare road and then you were on a hardpacked snow," complained the motorist, who drove to Kingston Friday and returned Saturday afternoon.

He reported no plows in sight Friday night while graders fitted with special serrated blades were in operation Saturday.

Another motorist reported the same four-lane section of roadway was still in poor condition on Sunday.

A local transport company despatcher said today that none of their trucks from the east was able to make it to Belleville on Friday following the heavy snowfall of Thursday night and Friday.

Snow conditions on the highway were given as "the reason for the non-arrival of trucks from the east, this along with fog, making for slippery conditions.

Gerald Hill Remanded To Feb. 14

Herman Gerald Hill, 32, of RR 1, Foxboro, this morning was remanded in custody to Feb. 14 on a charge of non-capital murder.

He was remanded by provincial court judge T. Y. Wills. The charge was laid Jan. 31, in connection with the shooting death of his wife, Betty Marie Hill, 30, Jan. 30 at their home.

Three Schools Broken Into

City police report three schools were entered over the weekend.

At 1 a.m. Saturday, police were alerted to the presence of three youths at Belleville Collegiate Institute on John Street.

A pane of glass was broken, but no other damage was reported.

Charged with mischief to public property was John E. Roblin, 18 of RR 1, Belleville, Randy Haggarty, 18, and John Arnt Strand, 18, both of RR 1, Carring Place.

The principal's office at Prince of Wales School, on Prince of Wales Drive, was searched. Entry was gained after a window hasp was broken.

On Friday night, George Vanier School on Tracey Crest, was entered. A small projector has been reported stolen.

Ulster 'Paralysis' Sought

1,700 British troops and 650 police for violence against the protesters.

The parade, mostly silent and led by men and women of the civil rights movement, was coming near the barricades of the security forces despite plans for a march into the mainly Catholic centre of Newry.

Prime Minister Heath in London, Ulster Prime Minister Faulkner in Belfast, and many other officials had warned that the demonstration might produce more violence such as the eruption which killed 13 civilians in Londonderry Jan. 30.

But the civil rights leaders, most of them men and women in their 20s and early 30s, said the Sunday parade disproved this theory while also demonstrating the contempt of the minority population in Ulster for the Stormont government.

The Wednesday demonstrations will mark the first six months of internment without trial in Northern Ireland, introduced Aug. 9, 1971.

Observers in Ulster say it might include sit-ins and some degree of general strike demonstrations by the minority.

Next Sunday another civil rights demonstration is planned for the Ulster community of Enniskillen. This may go peacefully but marches in Ulster affairs suggest that eventually—and possibly when it is not expected—some future parade of this sort will explode into the same kind of tragic killing as took place in Londonderry Jan. 30.

Police said today that more than 30 persons, including some members of both the British and Northern Ireland Parliaments, and leading members of the Civil Rights Association will be prosecuted for taking part in the march Sunday.

The prosecutions will not come as a surprise. Seven members of Parliament supporting Sunday's march said in conversations to reporters that they expected to be prosecuted for taking part.

In a statement Sunday night, Faulkner, the Northern Ireland prime minister, said it was no thanks to the organizers that there was no injury or loss of life. Much was owed to the efficiency and deportment of the army and local police.

The plain fact is that with feelings running high no one can guarantee in advance the good behaviour of large assemblies of people," he said.

"Further breaches of the law, further dangerous assemblies, can do nothing to bring about what we must all want — the earliest possible end to the whole cycle of violence and all of the unpleasant measures, including internment, which it has involved."

Snowmobilers Beat Cold, Clock

Despite cold Saturday morning temperatures, snowmobilers dug themselves out and competed in the Belleville Winter Carnival Race.

In the mixed (man and woman) competitions, Kathy Lloyd and Robert Adams came out as winners with a combined, average two-day time of 43 and one half minutes.

The elapsed time of each is taken for both days, added together and averaged.

In second place was the team of Jim and Freda Lynn with a time of 47 and one half minutes.

The 18-mile course started at the Belleville Yardmen's Benefit Fund Centre, across the bay to Pete's Point then to Sog Wind over to the south side of Huff's Island and back.

In the women's events Kathy Lloyd picked up a set and win followed by Freda Lynn.

In the men's, under 440 cc class, Jim Lynn won driving an Ariens followed by Tom Perry driving a Ski Doo and in third place Doug Bannon on a Moto Ski.

In the 440 cc and up George Empson won with an elapsed time of 33 minutes driving a Rupp.

In second place was Robert Adams driving a Ski Doo followed by Ken McGhee on a Polaris.

Al Nobes, organizer of the event, said "the weather was terrible and the girls are really to be complimented. We had volunteers sitting around the course marking check points and all did a great job."

Trophies were presented to all winners and placers in the carnival queen Linda Branger.

Political Intentions Announced

TRENTON (Staff) — Northumberland - Durham MP Russell Honey has indicated he will seek re-election in the pending federal election if he retains the support of the Liberal Association in his riding.

"As long as I can serve a useful role I will stay," he said. Mr. Honey, who served as deputy speaker in the House of Commons, has now moved his family to take up permanent residence in Ottawa.

The Port Hope lawyer speculates Canadians will probably go to the polls sometime near the end of June, although he says no formal decision has been made.

In the riding's Conservative ranks, David Gray, a chemist with General Foods at Cobourg, has announced his intention to seek the PC federal nomination at a convention to be held in March or April.

In the other area riding of Prince Edward - Hastings, the contest again appears to be one between Progressive Conservative front bencher, former Trade and Commerce Minister Hon. George Hees, and Trenton high school teacher George Cunningham. Cunningham won the federal Liberal nomination two years ago and no nominating convention is needed in the riding before the next election.

Crowd Gathers for Start of 12-Mile Dog Race

Sled Dogs Were Carnival Stars

With the rush or organization of the Belleville Winter Carnival out of the way, Pat Houston, manager of the Chamber of Commerce said this morning, "I'm looking forward to a bigger and better carnival next year, with more events and fun."

The weekend featured most of the carnival competitions but because of cold weather, and a wind chill factor bringing the temperature to the frosty, sub zero range, the size of crowds was disappointing.

Saturday morning at least started warm with the pancake breakfast held in the Legion Building. Figures were not available on numbers served but a spokesman for the Club Allouette, sponsors of the event, said "there must have been a lot because we never had a spare minute from the time we started."

The highlight of the day was the sled dog competition which ran for the greater part of the afternoon.

In spite of the small crowd and extreme cold, 13 teams raced the four, eight and 12-mile track around the bay.

"Most of the entrants had to dig themselves out of their kennels this morning to make it to the start," said a spokesman for the Arctic Sled Dog Association.

The association contracted to provide at least eight teams but by 13:30, only six had made it to the city. One competitor from the Ottawa area left at 10 a.m. after digging out.

Cindy Saunderson and his family, from Clarence Creek, Ont., mushed their way to monopolizing the top positions over the two-day event.

Mr. Saunderson, a non-commissioned officer in the RCMP, driving in the senior, 10 Pegs or better class, covered the 12-mile course in a combined time of 76.29 minutes.

Don Oakes, a baker from Perth placed second, third place was taken by Wally Campbell of Arnprior, while Jim was Dawson McVeety of Ottawa, in fourth place was Bob Jones of Canton, New York, and in fifth place was Wayne Baker of Smiths Falls.

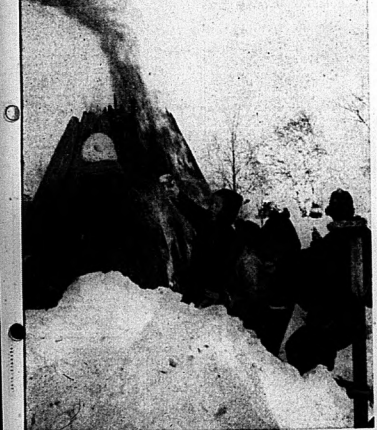
Susan Saunderson marked up the second family win in the junior competitions with a time of 48.28 minutes.

The juniors competed over a four-mile course.

Second place was taken by Ricky Oakes of Perth and third was taken by Jean Scarth of Osgoode. Gord DeFino of Ottawa and Angelo Campbell of Arnprior took first and second in the intermediate class.

Trophies for the winners were donated by the Belleville Realtors Association.

Competitions to be held at the Quinte Mall and the Belleville Plaza were cancelled due to weather and lack of attendance.



With Sunday turning warmer, attendance at the carnival was given a shot in the arm and the spirit of competition increased.

"For some reason or other, the dogs are running faster today," said one musher. "Maybe because there are so many kids petting them."

The children were treated to snowmobile rides by the Kinsmen Club as well as sleigh rides pulled by tractor and suckers given out by the carnival mascot Oskpik.

Queen Unwinds

Linda Belanger, while attending the many functions of the Belleville Winter Carnival in her role as Carnival Queen got a chance to brush up on her square dancing. She and her partner, Harold Lyon, twirled Saturday afternoon away at the Quinte Mall with the Quinte Twirlers.

BCI Tops Over-all

High school competitions, held in conjunction with the Belleville Winter Carnival, came to a close Saturday with Belleville Collegiate Institute emerging as champions.

The snow sculpturing contest was won with Moira's presentation of a three-footer by local builders.

Ontario School for the Deaf came second, followed by BCI.

Judges for the event were the Mayor and several Aldermen.

Both the tug-of-war and toboggan competitions were won by BCI.

Awards were presented at the teen dance held in the Bleecker Auditorium Saturday night.

Mayor J. Russell Scott and Carnival Queen Linda Belanger and princesses presented the trophies.

Two local bands, The Creed and Lufumeche entertained for the evening and spokesmen for the carnival committee say, "the crowd was fantastic. There were no problems of any kind and it was a great dance."

Job Discrimination

For a country so concerned about racism, discrimination — call it what you will — abroad, as Canada, such a charge laid at our national door may shatter somewhat the prevailing attitude of "we-can-do-no-wrong."

Certainly Frontenac-Lennox and Addington MP Douglas Altenbrock has a big enough dossier on the subject — specifically complaints of discrimination from unilingual (English) civil servants. The member has more than 100 complaints from people who say they have been passed over in favor of others who also speak French.

Most of those affected, as revealed in a recent article by reporter Harry Bruyn, are people of long experience in the civil service who have come to a "dead end" in their career because they cannot speak French. According to Mr. Altenbrack, French-speaking novices are being brought in who leap-frog over them and advance ahead of personnel who have been there as long as 20 years.

That this will be an election issue is already apparent from the dissolution from federal government policy of members of the Leeds Liberal Association, citing as reason cases of job loss among customs officers at the Thousand Islands International bridge.

Mr. Altenbrack denies any suggestion he is an opponent of bilingualism in general; and we believe him. Knowledge of both languages is necessary in many spheres but as the MP points out, insisting on it in every instance, including "menial jobs," and at the expense of early retirement for long-term personnel, is another matter. Yes, it will be an issue all right when the government goes to the country.

Job for Valliéres

Granted Paul Valliéres appears to have washed his hands of the FLQ, but is Ottawa not eroding the necessary bounds of leniency to an even greater extent (if that were possible) by condoning his retrial by a Montreal magistrate office to a job on a federal winter works project.

Alright, so the new minister of manpower and immigration, Bryce Mackasey, reminds us of the legal principle of a man being innocent until proved otherwise, but by what logic should a man of Valliéres' background be so spoon-fed by the government of the day, and when thrown with no such dubious record are unable to get work?

Valliéres was found guilty of manslaughter in an FLQ bombing in 1966 and sentenced to 30 months in prison. The former leader of the left-wing terrorist cadre faced sedition and assault charges and is appealing three contempt of court citations as well as the manslaughter conviction. Recently he came out of hiding and gave himself up to the authorities who promptly let him go, free on his own recognizance and on condition he does not leave the judicial district of Montreal. His job, however, requires him to do so as he will have to be evaluating the conditions of low-income earners in an area 130 miles north of Montreal). Mr. Mackasey counters this by saying he "can be back in an hour."

The principle of the whole thing is wrong from any standpoint, and especially that of government involvement. At least the man has a job which may be better than having him prowling the hills and falling prey to further activist mischief.

Lynch's Tightrope

Premier Jack Lynch, walking his own political tightrope in the Irish republic, on the one hand blames outlaws (in effect the IRA) for the bombings of the British embassy in Dublin, and for seeking to overthrow established authority, while on the other indulging in sabre rattling at Britain.

But even more bizarre is Lynch's statement that parts if his government does not find support in the present confrontation from "traditional allies" it may then approach Communist countries.

This, from the leader of an almost totally Catholic state with no love for Marxism is quite incredible. Furthermore, such a posture plays directly into the hands of the IRA, whose official wing seeks a united socialist Ireland. The prospect then of formal diplomatic links being established between Dublin and say the Soviet Union is a chilling one for Britain and the West at large. In effect another Cuba, only this one on Britain's doorstep.

Things indeed have come to a pretty pass in Ireland. It is a far cry from the relatively friendly relations between north and south a few years ago when the then Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, Terence O'Neill, initiated reciprocal meetings with his republican counterpart, Sean Lemass. Those days unhappily, are gone forever.

Davis Government's Evolving Style

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Of The Intelligencer

Over the next few months we will begin to get a grasp of the style of the Davis administration.

All administrations have a style of their own. In fact they have two styles: a political style and a governing style. Even when they are of the same political party.

Thus in Ontario under the PC's we have had the administration of George Drew.

Politically it was aggressive, on the offensive and liberal. Conservative. It broke many barriers.

In its governing style it was bold and decisive.

The regime of Leslie Frost, in contrast, was quite different.

Politically it was colorless and defensive. Its governing style was timid and hesitant. It was fatherly and cautious.

John Robarts gave us Maple Leaf Avenue politics. Administratively his style was that of the corporation, a "management" approach.

With Premier Davis we now have a clue to his political style. It might be termed grassroots, Madison Avenue. The big sell carried to back - concession political methods.

But Davis hasn't been in office long enough yet to really form, let alone present, his style of governing.

There is a clue one can take however.

Most leaders of government have one or two men close to them who tend to reflect, perhaps even more than the leader, the style of their administration.

These men are usually not members of the cabinet but from the professional end, the civil service.

This didn't particularly follow with George Drew. Drew chose to be a loner, running a one-man government. The man close to him in his administration was Attorney - General Leslie Blackwell. Blackwell was a political man and a bold and original thinker, thereby being more or less an image of the government. But still he wasn't all that close.

Leslie Frost, however, had George Gathercole, now chairman of Ontario Hydro, Gathercole was Chief Economist of the province during the Frost days. And he was so close to Frost he eventually began to talk like him. Then at Queen's Park he was a fatherly, cautious, balanced man, very conscious of the dollar. In other words, the Frost style.

Robarts had Dr. J. Keith Reynolds. Reynolds most of the time officially was secretary of the cabinet. But he really was the deputy prime minister, a title which eventually was bestowed on him.

Reynolds was a biologist who had been long in the public service and he was, and is, a cool, patient man, a great one for committees and sifting of facts, and slow to make up his mind. The Robarts style.

These men, of course, were chosen in the first place because they had qualities which that particular leader wanted and which fitted in with his style.

They thus were mirrors of that style.

And it is this that gives us our clue on Davis.

For he now has chosen his right hand, in his case, men.

He has named Dr. James D. Fleck as chief executive officer of the Prime Minister's Department and Clare H. Westcott as his special assistant.

The choice of Dr. Fleck is the significant appointment.

And from it we can say that the administrative style of the Davis government could be perhaps "Brooks Bros. academic" or "mod managerial" or perhaps, and probably most likely, somewhere in between.

UIC Official Answers

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In answer to the letter which was published in The Intelligencer, on Saturday, January 29, signed by "Zombie", I would like to reply as follows:

The premises in question, presently being used by the Unemployment Insurance Commission at 610 Dundas Street East, are considered by the Commission to be quite adequate for the purposes for which they were intended.

We have had no complaints from the staff of the Commission relative to working conditions in this area and, in fact, the landlord of the premises, Dr. J. N. Hartt, should be commended for the prompt manner in which renovations were made so that the Commission could be moved as rapidly as possible, last October.

However, it is usual in such cases where a member of the staff of any employer considers the conditions of work to be unsatisfactory, to proceed by the most expeditious routing to the union, at which time, the union executive will take up the matter with management. In this case, no grievances have been received as the working conditions in the premises at 610 Dundas Street East, An employee who has been in the employment of the Unemployment Insurance Commission for a matter of six months becomes eligible for membership and is supported to grieve in situations of this kind.

The premises at 610 Dundas Street East are providing employment for more than 200 people from the Belleville area, and the operation there is contributing considerably to the economy of the city. In this connection, the chairman of the Industrial Committee made a recent statement to the effect that unemployment in the city of Belleville was considerably less than that of comparative locations.

The Honorable Bryce Mackasey, formerly minister of Labour, now Minister of Manpower and Immigration is still responsible for the operation of the Unemployment Commission, and he has stated that 87 per cent of all claims are paid on time, and that the remainder are delayed because of the failure of employers to provide premium records to the Commission, required to establish a claim on behalf of a claimant, and because of delays occasioned by the incorrect reporting by claimant's on the bi-weekly report cards, and the initial application for benefit.

The regional director, Mr. Vern Perry, has no complaint with the premises concerned on the Dundas Street East, and has received no complaints from any of the staff employed there.

Communists Could Get Their Way

Peterborough Examiner

The latest American proposal for "peace" in Southeast Asia, which president Richard Nixon announced on television recently, means that the United States government has finally been pressured into forgetting every single democratic ideal it has ever fought for.

What the president suggested is not a series of moves between two warring participants to stop the fighting and establish an atmosphere in which the nation in question, South Vietnam, can decide its own future.

It's the acceptance, somewhat reworded though, of the Communist demands which have not changed for years. Nixon's announcement merely outlined an American surrender.

It carried out, the provisions of the so-called peace plan can only lead to a complete totalitarian takeover of not only South Vietnam, but of every other country in the area.

Hastings Board Above Average

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In Lenny Williamson's article of last Wednesday, she gives the impression that the Hastings County School Board was at the average in the COSTF survey of employment conditions in Ontario Secondary Schools. If she had examined her source of material more closely, she would have discovered that the Hastings Board was above the average on all four questions, and in the "top ten" boards on the first two questions.

The best estimate of an average for these marks would be the median, or the 32th out of the 69 marks arranged in order. On Question 1, the median was 58; Hastings scored 67 (or 4th out of 69 boards surveyed — the only ones above Hastings were Aylmer, Kenora and West Parry Sound). On Question 2, the median was 51; Hastings scored 59 (15th out of 69). On Question 4, the median was 67; Hastings rated 57 (15th out of 69).

I felt that I should write this letter to point out that the Hastings board was rated above average by its high marks to teachers, and is certainly not in the "middle of the road" as far as educational employment conditions are concerned.

The submarine was the Hunley, a small Confederate States vessel which carried a single torpedo in its bows and a crew of eight. The Housatonic, The Hunley sank as well, while withdrawing. Earlier submarines in this type were powered by six or eight men hauling a crank which drove a propeller.

Bilingualism Issue in New Brunswick

Moncton L'Evangeline: The film L'Acadie, l'Acadie has that stolen Acadians from their lethargy and awakened their English-speaking persons to the problems of bilingualism in Moncton.

The demonstrations and public declarations are irrefutable proof of the malaise which exists not only in Moncton but throughout New Brunswick.

I am using this editorial to enunciate L'Evangeline's position on bilingualism at Moncton city hall.

L'Evangeline asks the municipal council and administration to recognize forever the existence of two ethnic groups in Moncton and to take them into account in the exercise of their duties and in the organization of public services.

—L'Evangeline supports without reservation demands that citizens and municipal councillors in Moncton be allowed to speak and express in their mother tongue at city council.

—L'Evangeline considers that the municipal council should ask the public service of government to help it financially under the official languages law of New Brunswick.

—L'Evangeline supports without reservation all demands for bilingual services at city hall.

—L'Evangeline supports without reservation demands that discriminatory hiring policies cease and that henceforth bilingualism be important criteria in the hiring and promotion of personnel.

—L'Evangeline asks that Mayor (Leonard) Jones name a citizens' committee on bilingualism; that it have a mandate to examine all aspects of bilingualism in the administration of Moncton; that city council entire all necessary funds for it to execute its task (will be available; and that reasonable deadlines be fixed for research, publication and presentation of the report.

—L'Evangeline equally demands that city council not use the pretext of a study committee in order to avoid immediate changes.

It now is up to Mayor Jones and city council. ed

It is they who will decide how events evolve in Moncton. No one else.

They should take account of the fact that we Acadians are fed up with begging for our just rights. Their intransigence will only engender frustration and who knows where that will lead.

Why spend money on equipment for anti-riot squads and not a cent on bilingualism?

German Women Watch Those Vital Statistics

Frankfurter Rundschau

For women's clothes has been developed which would save annually 80 to 100 million Marks. Helmut Gliewe, chairman of the association, a man of international experience as regards fashion, maintains that the 'ideal line' has helped considerably in this breakthrough. He said: "Women in this country have set much higher figures than they used to do. They take more part in sporting activities. But the most important factor is that they apply more self-discipline at present than they have done for many years. Women have now learned to watch their weight with huge hip measurements. More than 70 per cent of women questioned in a recent survey take an active interest in fashion developments. This survey also revealed that young girls who are now concerned in keeping a slim figure are determined to continue doing so when they grow older.

The last survey on women's measurements was carried out 20 years ago. 8,000 women were involved.

Local Dentists Urge Preventive Dental Care

Children should pay their first visit to the dentist at the age of two-and-a-half or three before they have developed preconceived notions about the dentist's office.

Prior to this time, parents should teach their youngsters the techniques of tooth brushing in order to develop proper habits and make clear the importance of dental care.

This advice comes from Dr. Jim Stansfield, a Belleville dentist who is playing an active role locally in Dental Health Week, Feb. 6-12. The stress here and across Canada is on prevention, the method most dentists feel will best 60-odd dental authorities attempt to answer questions concerning the care of teeth and explain new discoveries taking place in the field.

The information will not be new to those who go regularly to the dentist," said Dr. Harvey Elliott of Belleville, president of the Bay of Quinte Dental Society. "We want to reach the others."

The educational attitude is geared to persons of all ages. A popular misconception maintains that despite preventive techniques, teeth will all fall out as a person ages.

"This is simply not true," says Dr. Stansfield. "If a program of regular dental checkups (to correct minor problems) and proper home care is followed then the loss of teeth is not a natural sequel to advancing years."

Even when someone has lost a few teeth, and many, because of disease or accident, do, further collapse of the dental mechanism can be avoided. Fixed bridges, removable partial dentures, or, in the case of children, space maintainers, can all be inserted to fill the gap.

"Once one tooth is lost and not replaced by some appliance, the chance of further loss of teeth is greatly enhanced," explains Dr. Stansfield.

Fluorides are a controversial — and widely misunderstood — combatant of dental deterioration. Dr. Stansfield calls them "the most significant single aid in the prevention of tooth decay.

"It is a well proved fact that fluorides in the water supply can reduce tooth decay up to 60 per cent," he said. "Toothbrushing with a fluoride toothpaste will further lower decay rate."

Belleville has been adding fluorides to its water supply since November, 1965.

The chemical toughens enamel and helps it to resist decay, Dr. Stansfield advises that persons living in rural areas, or in areas where there is no fluoridation of the water supply, can take tablets prescribed by their dentist which are easily obtained at any pharmacist.

Another much confused question deals with soft teeth and the problem of holding fillings. In fact, says Dr. Stansfield, "Less than one per cent of the population is born with what could be classified as soft teeth, that is, teeth whose actual chemical makeup is not correct."

"The vast majority of so-called soft teeth are a product of incorrect diets or incorrect eating habits and lack of proper home dental care. Most fillings, if properly placed, will not fall out."

Research has revealed that baby teeth play an important role in the future of an individual's dental life.

"These teeth are essential for proper eating, speaking, and facial development and are the guides for the eruption of permanent teeth," advises Dr. Stansfield. "Premature loss of these teeth can result in crowding of the permanent teeth, speech difficulties and emotional and psychological problems."

A problem many young boys experience at this time of the year is the loss of a tooth while playing hockey. What many people do not know is that generally speaking, a tooth which has been cleanly knocked out can be put back into place and saved. Quick action is all that is needed to avoid needless permanent disfigurement.

Dentures are another point of discussion frequently heard by Dr. Stansfield. He was asked if the denture wearer has really solved his miseries.

"Definitely not. It is true that denture wearers don't suffer from toothaches or decay but they are faced with an entirely new set of problems. The mouth tissues which support dentures are constantly changing in shape and so dentures become loose and ill-fitting and must be remade.

"Speech and eating difficulties are not uncommon among denture wearers, to mention only a couple of problems."

Overhanging Signs On Council Agenda

TRENTON (Staff) — Although the controversy is over, council here tonight will deal with the controversial problem of overhanging signs or commercial premises.

Trenton instituted legislation five years ago requiring that by the end of 1972 no business could have signs projecting more than 18 inches over the street.

Clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry said today that despite the fact the issue has already been dealt with, "It is time to refresh some memories as this is the last year for merchants to take action to comply with the law."

The regulation was established to give the town's shopping streets a more orderly appearance. Mr. Larry said the big objection on the part of the 1967 council that ratified the regulation had been the unsightly poles and wires needed to support large overhanging signs.

He said Trenton merchants had made substantial progress to complying with the sign bylaw but "a few need reminding."

In other business, council is expected to authorize a new wage and benefit package with the Canadian union of public employees local representing the public works department.

Seven Perish In Nearby Fires

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Four persons who died in a morning house fire here were among at least 10 weekend fire victims in Ontario.

Three died in a two-storey frame house in Napanee: two elderly women, one an invalid, died in a fire in the countryside near Bala, and an 87-year-old man died in Hamilton after he spilled lighter fluid on his clothes and lit a cigar.

The owner of the Peterborough rooming house was critically injured in the fire that killed Annie Sargeant, 86, Vera Windover, 61, Katherine Lamb, 59, and Roy Smith, 62.

Pvt. Gallagher received burns to over 50 per cent of his body. His son, Joey, 13, suffered a broken leg when they jumped from a third storey window.

At Napanee, an 80-year-old man and his two sons were killed when a fire destroyed their two-storey frame house. Dead are Leo Sagriff, Alfred, 44, and Gordon, 47.

Firemen in the community 20 miles west of Kingston were at the scene for eight hours.

At Bala, about 20 miles north of Orillia, Jessie Bertram, 63, died in her home. Mrs. Edith Lamb, an invalid, were sleeping in the same room when the fire broke out.

Mrs. Barnes' husband, Ed, 66, was treated for burns at hospital and released. A boarder escaped uninjured.

ANAF News

R. Sine and A. Burns; runners up, R. Thomson and D. Watts. During the matches Cdr. George Woodhouse distinguished himself by joining the magic circle of those who have made the perfect score of 180 in competition.

In the evening, 16 couples competed in the Mr. and Mrs. Darts and the winning pair were Joan and Doug Sone. The runners up were Bonnie Sone and Steve Storms. Ruth Balzy had the ladies' high three darts with 138 while the men's high three darts were captured by Doug Sone with a 134 score. A tasty lunch was served to revitalize the eager participants around 12 to help along a very pleasant evening enjoyed by all.

The Friday social evening and the Klondike Dance on Sat. were very well attended with the Klondike Dance highlight being the personal appearance of the beautiful Carnival Queen and her charming retinue of two lovely princesses. During intermission, the hall driving competition was held and, luckily, no nails except the metal ones were struck. Ted Newman, striking for the Shrine Club, emerged the winner with C. Thompson of the Rhemen Club the runner up. Eight clubs in all competed.

President H. G. Ford, on behalf of the unit extends his appreciation to Peter Morgan for his presentation of a fine picture in color of the famous battle at Ypres when the Canadian Army held fast to their positions in April, 1915 during which Lt. Col. John Macrae penned the immortal words of In Flanders Fields the Poppies Grow. It has been hung in the lower lounge as a companion piece to the Vimy Memorial picture.

On the sick list: J. Boyle, 628; W. Fairborn, 622; W. Salter, 715 and Mrs. Whitley, 607 with A. Adams in intensive care at the BGH; G. Hay, Toronto General Hospital and D. Stork Hotel Dieu, Kingston. At home are J. Downing, K. Hollands and Doc Vance.

A bulletin covering future events will soon be mailed to all members. Keep it handy for reference purposes of coming events.

Coffee House Opening Delayed

A youth-oriented centre for evangelism will open in Belleville this coming Friday.

The Coffee House, an outlet of Youth for Christ, was originally scheduled to begin business over the weekend but last week's heavy snowfall postponed the event.

Conceived as "an outreach to the displaced youth of the Quinte area," the Coffee House will be more than just a centre for Christian fellowship. Literature will be made available and a supervisor will be on hand at all times to encourage and direct visitors in their spiritual thinking.

Friday's open house takes place from 2-10 p.m. with dedication slated for 7:30 p.m. The doors will also be open from 2-7 p.m. Saturday. Location is 11 Bridge Avenue, in the basement donated by Maurice Rollins Construction.

Shopping in Capital Of India Devastating

NEW DELHI (CP) — Shopping in the capital of India is devastating to the budget. Not that things are expensive; just that you want to buy everything you see.

Take the beautiful saris, for example. You know you'll never wear one unless at an at-home party, as a conversation topic. But when a pretty Indian clerk in a colorful sari charmingly points out that you can make a dress, perhaps two, and certainly a dress and a blouse out of one s a r i — w e l l, you're hooked. Saris vary in price from cheap cottons to pure silks and even jewel-embroidered ones costing hundreds of dollars.

Of course you can also buy pure silk prints by the yard but there's something romantic and status-important in explaining to friends that your dress was made from a genuine Indian sari.

In New Delhi, one Indian costume selling to the tourists is the gharara, with wide gored pants—some are 82 inches around each leg—and a tunic top. Once an old Mogul costume worn by the men, it's now been taken over by the women. You can have one made to order by one tailor in one day. For a reasonable cost and classic dress, two tailors can complete the ensemble in one or two days.

In Bombay we dropped in at Rukhmani, a fashion boutique owned by Mrs. Mani Gurdeo, who was for five years the fashion editor of Bombay's Eve's Weekly. Mostly her clothes are in western styles, in Indian fabrics, especially raw silk. One was a tunic and pants costume with gold and orange stones set in the embroidery, about $45.

You'll also find it impossible to resist Indian jewelry. All major cities have excellent jewelery shops where you can get good buys in precious and semi-precious gems. We particularly liked the smoky topaz. The Gem Palace in Jaipur is a good example. Even the Queen and Jackie Onassis bought bracelets here.

Another is Kohinoor Jewellers in Agra, home of the Taj Mahal. The firm has been in the same family for more than 100 years. They have more than 5,000 ring designs. Pins, too, are lovely. One peacock pin was in emeralds and pearls.

India's costume jewelery is popular with tourists. Enamel rings and bangles inlaid with slivers of mirrors are most attractive and inexpensive.

If you're looking for antiques, there's the Fine Art Palace in Jaipur. Owner Asim Bux has items such as a 300-year-old emperor's sword, priced at $3,000. But there are also less expensive items such as the charming, locally-made, wood-and-gold-leaf ladies, 15 inches high, playing instruments. These are $21 each.

Most stores and even small shops have wide selections, including ivory, ebony, rosewood and sandalwood elephants at all prices handsome evening bags of velvet, brocade and raw silk heavily embroidered with semi-precious stones; lightweight Kashmir stoles, ranging from $9 to $35 and shawls up to about $300.

You probably won't be able to resist buying a few items in each centre visited but major purchases should be made in New Delhi, where things are strictly less expensive.

However, I did find that the Kashmir Government Emporium in New Delhi was slightly higher for its own shawls and stoles than other stores. But they do have a good selection of rugs. Finally, I found a shop at Government of India-approved stores, such as the Cottage Industries Emporium in New Delhi, especially for expensive items.

YOUNG FASHION DESIGNER — Young John Scher displays sketches showing fashion designs he has planned for a company to design his own line of clothes, but he'll probably say no).

Ten-year-old Designs Women's Fashions

NEW YORK (AP) — John Scher has been designing women's clothes for more than half his life. He now is 10.

The fashion world is now ready for him. He has been offered a trip to Paris. He has had chats over lunch with some of America's top designers—Oscar de la Renta, Karper and Anne Klein. He has recently raised the prices of his sketches from $35 to $350.

He has even had an offer from a company to design his own line of clothes, but he'll probably say no).

"It's idiotic," says John, a straight-A fourth grader from suburban Baltimore. "That's really stupid. A kid 10 years old doing a line."

However, he has worked almost as hard as any Seventh Avenue designer, turning out some 5,000 fashion sketches since he was four. The clothes are carefully labeled and detailed.

His drawings began as "love letters" to his mother, signed "To mom, with love." But he was soon spending his 75-cent allowance on fashion magazines and "spewing out" some 15 to 20 designs on a good day.

His fashion career possibilities bloomed bigger than his kiddie home doodling after John sent a letter last month to Women's Wear Daily, a fashion newspaper.

"I know I'm young but I want to be a women's fashion designer," John said in a note, enclosing some sketches. He sought the criticism and advice of fashion experts.

After a story appeared in the paper, the offers poured in. He came to New York recently to meet his favorite designers.

"We talked about my future," John said in a telephone interview.

"Karper said I should live my own life, ride my bike and not get too involved in fashion until I am older," said John, the son of Dr. Ernest Scher, an obstetrician-gynecologist.

John prefers the classic clothes that his mother wears. Although his mother is his inspiration, she hasn't had his drawings made into clothes yet.

"I love his things, but I don't have any time or a decent dressmaker," Evelyn Scher said.

John sketches in pencil and colors in crayon, using scraps of paper and the backs of campaign posters used by his mother when she ran for country office.

"He's always had sensitivity about color and texture," said John's father. "I'm all for his doing it, if he enjoys it."

Club Activities

Alpha Delta Kappa Lambda Chapter

A meeting of the Lambda Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa was held recently at the home of Mrs. Pearl McKinley, Wallbridge and Loyalist Rd. The many members who also brought their husbands as guests enjoyed a hayride, with those wishing to remain indoors took part in a number of card games.

A fitting lunch on return was chili-con-carne which really hit the spot and was enjoyed by everyone.

Mrs. Laura Fisher expressed appreciation to the hostess: also to the food committee which included Mrs. Pat Soutter, Mrs. Hilda Walkom, Mrs. Helen Calnan and Mrs. Orona Tipper.

A letter containing the members wishes was written during the evening to be sent to Mrs. Jean Voaden of Beta Chapter, Toronto, who is on a trip to East Africa.

Council of Women Passes Resolution

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba Provincial Council of Women has passed a resolution to ask the National Council of Women to request amendments to the Criminal Code extending jury service to men and women on an equal basis in criminal cases.

At a recent meeting, the provincial delegates agreed they would like to see more women on the final jury lists and waive their rights to refuse jury duty without giving a reason.

S. June Menzies, resolutions chairman, said she would be surprised if 10 per cent of the final list were women and stressed the need for equality of men and women on the jury.

Social and Personal

Lindsay Bird, 245 Bridge Street West is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Sinclair, Sr., of Tweed recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with an "Open House" at their home in Tweed. They were married 50 years ago in the United Church, Tweed, by Rev. L. S. Wight. They have seven children, all of whom were present except one daughter, who was hospitalized at the time.

UCW MEETINGS

TRINITY UCW

MADOC — The general meeting of Trinity UCW was held in the Sunday School rooms of the church here recently.

The president, Mrs. Charles Derry, opened the meeting with a message for the new year, Mrs. Don Parks was in charge of the worship service. She developed the theme, "Pettiness", by using a hymn, Scripture reading and meditation. Mrs. Parks closed the program.

Miss Ada Adams expressed thanks to Mrs. Doug Heard and Mrs. Hilda McGowan for purchasing Christmas parcels. Miss O. Asher gave the treasurer's report. The March meeting was scheduled for Monday, March 27. The proposed budget for 1972 was presented by Miss Ashe and was accepted.

Mrs. Don Parks conducted the program, which consisted of a reading, followed by a humorous contest. A skit was presented by Mrs. L. Bennett, Mrs. P. Brownson and Mrs. D. Parks, who closed the program with a prayer.

Refreshments and a social half-hour concluded the meeting.

IODE Will Celebrate 72nd Birthday

On February 13, IODE will celebrate its 72nd birthday.

A Canadian organization born on native soil, the IODE has maintained a record of outstanding service since it was founded in 1900. Order, with members in every province and territory is dedicated to give service on behalf of Canada and Canadians. IODE members through its Citizenship Committee, have accepted the challenge and responsibility of promoting good citizenship. They actively participate in plans for combating pollution and take a keen interest in assisting in safety programs in many communities. Members work in co-operation with Indians, especially in Friendship Centres, providing clothing, household goods and, for the children, after-school coaching in their studies.

Working closely with education authorities in their communities, chapters have given scholarships, bursaries, grants and loans to students at the secondary post-secondary and university level. Within the year scholarships under the Commonwealth Relations were awarded to six students studying in their homeland of Nigeria, India and the West Indies.

In 1971 over $50,000 was expended under the IODE First and Second War Memorials. War Memorial post - graduate scholarships are tenable in any Commonwealth university and are valued at $5,000 each for study overseas and $2,000 each for study within Canada. These IODE War Memorial scholarships are open to Canadian scholars, both men and women, who hold a degree from a Canadian university and over 800 such scholars have returned to Canada to make a considerable contribution to the Canadian way of life in positions they hold in Canada's universities and colleges, in industry and in government.

In the past year a total of $331,109 was expended by the IODE on education.

The "Services" program is extensive and varied in scope and is based on the principle of "helping people to help themselves". Building materials and equipment were supplied by the members of a Provincial Chapter for a community centre in the Arctic settlement of Attawapiskat in the James Bay area. Sixteen nursing intuitions were supplied to six nursing stations in the Yukon Territory and 10 in the Northwest Territories at a cost of $400 each. A transport incubator costing $1,200 has been sent to Fort Rae in the NWT. Special layettes, radio-stereos also were sent to some of these isolated nursing stations in the Canadian north.

"Help - a - Baby", a junior chapter's project, resulted in the collection and distribution of thousands of new articles for babies, wherever needed. Four tons of milk powder, X-ray equipment and 500 cases of clothing and bedding were shipped overseas during the year. A total of $548,872 was spent on the IODE "Services" work, over two-thirds of this amount was expended in Canada.

The IODE members across Canada, aware that group youth travel is a means of promoting Canadian identity and unity, maintained an IODE youth travel and exchange program. Funds were contributed to provide for 24 teenage boys, two from each province and territory, to tour this past summer, the Atlantic Provinces and Quebec City.

A submission was made on behalf of the IODE to the Joint Commission of the Senate and House of Commons on the Constitution of Canada stating in clear terms the Order's support for the Monarchial system of government and its present relationship to Canadian life.

The IODE, not content to dream of past glories, remains a vital Canadian force prepared to meet the challenge of today and the future.

Life is a Mutual affair.

Let's get together

You can pay less income tax this year and every year as you build your retirement income

And, the Government doesn't mind you taking a tax-break...if you do it through a Registered Retirement Savings Plan.
As a matter of fact, the Government will allow you to deduct 20% of your 1972 earned income up to a new maximum of $4,000, or up to $2,500 if you are a member of a registered pension plan. So, go ahead. Save today for tomorrow. There are several ways to give yourself a tax-break. Your Mutual Life of Canada agent can show you the plan that best suits your needs. There's still time to reduce your 1971 income tax but we must register your plan before March 1, 1972.

If you can corner some dollars for yourself ...why not?

Successful Living

There Is Much to Retire To

"If one cultivates a habit of good reading early in life, together with interests and avocations unlike his business or profession, he has much to retire to and much to live for. With Emerson he learns to 'live today,' to live in the eternities, and whatever is postponed is not worthwhile things.

"Let him sit in my hammock on a glorious spring day and almost hear my honeysuckle grow. Let him smile oblivious to the fact that we are hurtling through space at the rate of 700 miles an hour as the earth revolves on its axis, 70,000 miles per hour around the sun, and a million miles per hour around our galaxy! I feel not a breath of this dizzy world; I am in the grace of God which passeth all understanding" as I dwell upon the marvels of his handiwork." — Sherwood Eddy in "Eighty Adventurous Years".

Family Cooking

A Festive Dinner Should Be A Delight

By ALICE DENROFF

There's always a reason to celebrate something—be it birthday, an anniversary, an engagement, a promotion, a new home, to name just a few of the happy events that help brighten the years.

One thing common in family celebrations is a dinner to mark the event when friends or relatives come together.

Then it's a festive occasion when the main course to the dessert, a delicious dinner should be a delight.

TUNA TAPENADE

1 can (6 ounces) pitted ripe olives

½ cup drained capers

1 can (2 ounces) anchovy fillets, drained

2 cloves garlic

1 bay leaf

½ teaspoon thyme

1 tablespoon Dijon mustard

½ teaspoon pepper

½ cup finely chopped parsley

¾a teaspoon pepper

¼ teaspoon brandy

2 cans (7½ ounces) tuna in vegetable oil, drained

Dark rye, pumpernickel, or Melba toast

Puree olives in electric blender. Add remaining ingredients except tuna and toast; blend until smooth.

Flake tuna in large bowl; add olive mixture and mix well. Chill.

Serve on thin slices of bread or Melba toast. Yields three cups.

FILET OF BEEF BOHEME

2 pounds fillet of beef, cut in ½x¾-inch pieces

2 tablespoons cognac, warmed

Salt

2 tablespoons butter

½ cup finely chopped onion

½ cup finely chopped green pepper

½ cup finely chopped thawed frozen corn

½ cup finely chopped pimiento

½ cup dry red wine

¼ cup canned condensed beef bouillon

1 teaspoon salt

¼ teaspoon garlic powder

½ teaspoon paprika

¼ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce

½ cup heavy cream, whipped

Hot cooked rice

Sprinkle salt over large blazer pan of chafing dish. Heat salt over high flame; add beef and brown quickly on all sides. Add cognac; flame. Remove beef to heated platter.

In same blazer pan, heat butter; cook vegetables until tender. Add wine and undiluted bouillon; cook over high heat until liquid is reduced somewhat. Add seasonings. Turn heat low; add whipped cream and heat slowly. Combine beef and sauce mixture; heat and serve over hot cooked rice. Yields 6 servings.

LIME-STRAWBERRY CREPES

1 quart strawberries, hulled and halved

12 crepes (recipe follows)

¼ cup butter or margarine

½ cup packed brown sugar

1-3 cup lime juice

½ cup orange liqueur

1 cup heavy cream, whipped

1 teaspoon lime rind

Place about six strawberry halves in a row in center of each crepe; roll crepes and set aside.

In crepe pan over direct canned heat flame, heat butter. Stir in sugar. Add lime juice, stirring constantly; bring to a boil and simmer two minutes. Add crepes and heat, butting with sauce. Sprinkle crepes with liqueur; apply lighted match and flame. Shake pan until flames burn out. Serve with whipped cream and sprinkle with lime rind.

CREPES

2-3 cup sifted all-purpose flour

1 tablespoon sugar

½ teaspoon salt

3 whole eggs

3 egg yolks

1½ cups milk

2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted

1 tablespoon brandy

Sift together flour, sugar and salt. In medium bowl, beat whole eggs and egg yolks well; add milk, flour mixture, butter and brandy; beat until smooth. Cover and refrigerate two hours. To cook crepes, use about one-quarter-cup batter in an oiled eight-inch skillet; tip and tilt pan so batter flows in thin film over bottom. When lightly browned, turn and brown other side. Stack crepes between waxed paper until ready to fill. Makes 12 crepes, three to a serving.

Congregational Meet

FOXBORO — A large number attended the annual congregational meeting for Emmanuel United Church, Foxboro held January 31 in the church hall.

Films were shown to the younger people while reports, in booklet form of various organizations throughout the year were presented to the adults. Rev. A. Parsons presided and welcomed any questions or comments which were made.

Church services were held every Sunday morning after Sunday School and attended by both children and adults. One of the four "Communion Services" took the form of a "Talk Mass" which was new to many of the older people but appreciated by everyone. Rev. C. W. Coleman was guest minister for the anniversary service and the "Switzer Brothers Singing Group" provided a program of sacred music in the evening.

Enrolment in the Emmanuel United Church consists of 80 members on the church roll, 19 members on session, and 10 honorary members.

The treasurer's report showed receipts of $13,781 before expenses which included repair costs for the manse.

The church school which meets each Sunday before the church service has classes for all age groups from primary to adults. It is under the care of Earl Eaton, the superintendent. Two Sunday school students attended Quin-no-lac Camp during the past summer and $168 was sent to the Christian Children's Fund.

The senior choir was organized under the guidance of Mrs. Robert Hough.

Those elected to office for 1972 were as follow: honorary elders, M. C. Reynolds, C. H. Wilson, J. B. Patterson, Mrs. G. Priest, Mrs. F. V. Finkle, Mrs. M. Sine, W. Lindenfield, H. Beatty, B. Mains, R. Herman, A. Finkle; five - year term elders, H. Waller, C. Townsend, J. Ewing, E. Tully; four-year term elders, G. Bone, C. Sine, R. Jeffry, W. Slavin; three-year term elders, M. Dafoe, P. Wellman, W. McMechan, R. Langabeer; two-year elders, I. Clare, R. Denyes, T. Badgley, E. Redson; one - year elders, E. M. Dafoe, E. Sine, D. Hollinger, I. May.

Stewards elected to office included: honorary, J. S. Hatton; three-year term stewards, R. Coulter, H. Coulter, F. Beaman, F. Brough, E. McMullen; two-year stewards C. Arthurs, M. Jamieson, C. Haggeman, J. Reynolds, E. Hansey and one-year stewards D. McKeown, J. Wilson, K. Jones, C. Murray, R. Fisher and F. Bronson.

AVOID GREEN

Avoid buying green potatoes; they have been exposed to light and may be bitter.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONNELL

Should a husband profess his love?

YES. Admittedly, a husband would rather let his attitude, behavior, habits, etc., speak for him rather than put his love for his wife in precise words. A man, too, may feel that he doesn't have the language skill to tell his wife that he loves her. Yet a wife likes to hear him say that he loves her, though he is no Spinburne or Cyrano de Bergerac. As "I love you, Hon" can loosen the tension for any married couple.

Are some children born liars?

NO, and when children do begin to tell lies at an early in life that it looks like they inherited a "forked tongue," no one has to go very far afield to see how the youngsters learned to lie. An unloved child often starts out lying by telling himself that he couldn't care less about the way his mother and father neglects him. By the time he has told himself that often enough to believe it, the child is dubbed a "born liar."

Do only pessimists get 'the blues'?

NO; perhaps the people who look on the dark side of life to begin with don't get the blues as much as optimists do. If someone expects the worst all the time, he certainly isn't going to be too depressed when it happens and he might even feel elated when the sees things aren't so bad after all. Severe disappointment, though, can nail an individual who always sees the silver lining in every cloud with a severe case of the blues.

Handwriting Reveals Inner Person: Analyst

DUNCAN, B.C. (CP) — Claire Webster, a certified master grapho - analyst, says handwriting reveals the inner person and for this reason should be used in schools and in other fields.

Mrs. Webster, who has been practising her profession for 21 years, said in an interview that graph - analysis is a science which studies character and personality traits through handwriting.

She said it helps people to find out their true potential.

Grapho - analysis would be a tremendous asset to the school system, said Mrs. Webster, because there could be better understanding of each student's life of just what his aptitudes are. Also it would enable a teacher to get to know students on the first day of school rather than on the last.

Through periodic assessment of a student by grapho-analysis from about Grade 8, Mrs. Webster said she feels students' abilities could be better directed and their frustrations and conflicts could be detected early.

She also said grapho-analysis could contribute a great deal to probation work.

"Through handwriting analysis I could tell the difference between a bad kid and mischievous kid. I could study the potentials in the writing and then help them."

Husband Insists She Wear Uniform

Dear Ann Landers: Fred and I have been married three years. When we met I was a student nurse.

He has a hangup about the uniform I used to wear, and has asked me to put it on at the craziest times. To please him I've worn it on occasions which I felt were most inappropriate, and I came off looking like a fanned fool.

For example, we had his boss and his wife to dinner a few weeks ago. Fred insisted that I wear my student nurse uniform. I greeted the guests—starched, bibbed, collared and cuffed—they were stunned. At first they didn't recognize me. They thought someone in the house was sick. My husband didn't bat an eye.

I don't enjoy this sort of thing and I'm uncomfortable about it. Fred says I'm childish. If I refuse to oblige him he pouts. What should I do?—Canadian Wife

Dear Wife: Your husband has no right to inflict his fetish on you in public. Tell him you'll put on the uniform for him once in a while in private, but not for guests. And let him pout.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 16 but very mature for my age. My problem is one I can't talk to anybody about because my parents think it is already settled. I'm still a child to them. I'm older than I am but doesn't look it. He has a drinking problem and I'm sure after we are married it will be over because he won't have any reason to drink. He'll be happy with me. Now he is hurt because he is separated from his two little children and he has to drink to keep from going crazy.

My folks are very much against Hank and I promised I would stop seeing him. I haven't been able to keep my promise. Please tell me how to present my case to my parents so they will understand that I am savy for a human being. I've always wanted to be a social worker and without me Hank wouldn't be able to make it.—Cerasa, N.Y.

Dear Cerasa: Find another project. A 15-year-old girl should not be doing social work on a married man with two children and a drinking problem. You are not going to save this guy. So get off your high horse and bring him you'll be lucky if you save yourself. He has already made a fool of you and a sneak out of you. Call it quits. The sooner the better.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 42, attractive and successful business executive, and we have two children, 16 and 17. I earned a Bachelor of Arts degree before I was married and decided last fall to go back to school for a Master's in English literature.

The children will be away at school within two years and I think I'd like to teach.

What bugs me is this: Several friends, when they heard I was back in school, asked: "Is everything all right with you and Charlie?" I can't tell you how this bugs me. Does a woman's marriage have to break up before she goes back to school?

It so happens that two of my friends who were divorced recently are now engaged to be married and another gal is already married. But by answers that every married woman who wants to teach is having marital problems in the church. How do I respond to these needlers? I hate to be defensive or apologetic.—A.O.K. At Our Home.

Dear A.O.K.: Make light of it —simply say: "As far as I can determine things are all right at home. If you hear anything definite tell me. I'd like to be among the first to know."

The annual meeting of the St. Julien Chapter was held in the Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday evening with the Regent, Mrs. C. Whittemore, presiding.

The charter, showing, formation of the chapter in 1915, was on display. Recognition was accorded life members, Mrs. C. Bishop, Mrs. W. Gilfedd, I can't stop a chance on them finding out that I'm still seeing Hank.

After the ceremony of installation of officers, in which the outgoing Regent turned over the appurtenances and regalia of office to Mrs. Ellis, the new Regent, a brief business session followed. Mrs. C. R. Lenk and Mrs. Ross Pulley, Regent and Vice-Regent respectively, were elected official delegates to the provincial meeting of the Provincial Chapter IODE.

On behalf of the members, Mrs. R. C. Ellis presented Mrs. C. Whittemore with a dainty, floral china centrepiece in appreciation of her devoted work as Regent.

When the business concluded the tea hostesses, Mrs. R. C. Ellis, Mrs. C. Mott, Mrs. W. Slade and Mrs. G. Vince served a delicious lunch and everyone enjoyed a social hour.

Twenty - four rinks began competing this morning for the trophy awarded to the winner of the Intelligencer Bonspiel, now under way at the Quinte Curling Club.

The 14th annual tournament continues all day today and tomorrow, concluding with prize presentations Tuesday at 10 p.m. in the club. Final match is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Back to try for their third consecutive win is the Belleville rink skipped by Jane Sheppard and Kathy Brown, Marlene Henderson and Bev. Pearce. They will have competition from eight other local rinks and 15 from out of town, including one from CFB Petawawa.

From out of town, including one from CFB Petawawa.

A foursome is out of the running for top place if it loses three games.

Bonspiel chairman Ann Acton says competition this year will be stronger than ever. Half of the 96 ladies curling will receive some sort of award.

Lancers Can't Skin Either Cat

Loyalist wasn't able to skin the Cats this weekend in a pair of Intercollegiate matches with the Algonquin Cats from Ottawa.

The basketball Lancers went down to defeat 74-49 to Algonquin which got 12-point scoring efforts from Rick Kilfoyle and Ed Ayoub. Rick Webster with 15, points, Hubert Hicks (12) and Jim Moulton (eight) were top Loyalist scorers.

In the hockey game it was 6-2 for Algonquin despite a good showing by Loyalist against the powerful Cats. Denny Tomkins and Bruce Desveaux had the Lancer goals. The losers drew seven of the game's 12 penalties.

Rosebush Blooms

The Dukes got a royal scoring effort from Rick Rosebush to edge the Good Guys 4-3 in Northern Electric Hockey action Sunday.

Rosebush counted three of his team's four goals to spark the win with the other going to John Brunette. Terry Casselman had two assists for the winners. Dwight Radbre ll with two goals and Brian Allen with one scored for the losers.

In the other game the No-Stars battled to a 2-2 deadlock with the Hornets. Hugh Van Allen and Bob Brownice scored for the No-Stars with Bill Goodfellow and Ed Christopher getting the Hornets' goals.

They Swept to Top Place

Peewees Laid First Foundation

Rollins Construction laid the foundation for a win over Trenton in their best-of-three OMHA playdown series Sunday.

The Belleville peewees took an 8-4 win in the opening game of the series with the second slated for the Memorial Arena next Sunday. Bobby Crawford showed the way for Rollins with two goals and two assists, while Paul Hipkin and Mike Bennett scored two each. Rick Sprague and Peter Hall had the other scores, while John Janopoulos had two assists.

The Blake Kerr midgets did not fare so well in their playdown bout Sunday losing 7-4 to Trenton. Belleville had won the opening game of the best-of-five series 15-1.

Three unanswered goals in the final frame gave Trenton the victory despite two goals by Andy Ricketts and one each by Mark Coates and, Wally Dainard.

Towers Food City opened their OMHA group finals with a 5-3 decision over the Kingston Church Athletic League. Steve Mofina had two goals for the Belleville novices with the other scores going to Mark Crawford, Dale Cartwright and Billy Rowe.

In an exhibition bout Sunday Towers were swamped 14-1 by the Esso Car Wash peewee minors. Gary Frederick counted four times for Esso with Randy Jones, Mike MacDonald, Tim Coates and Alan Kunetsky. The Towers goal was scored by Darrell Coltman.

The Belleville Kinsmen suffered a setback without even taking to the ice, when they learned that Trenton had successfully protested last Sunday's 2-0 win by Belleville.

The protest, lodged over a timekeeper's decision, means that the third game of the series must be replayed Wednesday night, 8.15 in Belleville with the Kinsmen holding a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five series.

Harris' Swedes Hold Own With Soviets

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Before the hockey championship round started, Billy Harris, coach of Sweden's national hockey team, said he was convinced his club could hold its own with the Russians, the defending Olympic champions.

After his team lost 5-1 to the Swedes, Murray Williamson, coach of the United States team said:

"We are a young team and we'll be back and ready for the Czechs on Monday."

So it was left up to the players on both teams to prove their coaches correct in Monday's hockey action at the Winter Olympic Games. And they did.

The Swedes spotted the Russians a two-goal lead and rallied for three goals in the third period to tie the Russians 3-3. Meanwhile, the Americans scored the biggest upset in the tournament by knocking off the highly-rated Czechs 5-1. The Russians and Swedes now are tied for first place, each with a win and a tie for three points in the six-country round-robin.

Harris, who played under Punch Imlach while Imlach was coaching Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, used some Imlach-style strategy against the Russians and it paid off.

With the Russians leading 2-0 on power-play goals by Valery Charlamov in the first period and Anatoly Firsov in the second, Harris decided to move a pair of defencemen up front in the third period.

Rearguards Thommie Bergman and Thommy Abrahamsson were put on the wings with centre Bjorn Palmqvist.

"I experimented with this combination two weeks ago against the Russians," said Harris. "We were down 6-1 at Goteborg, Sweden, and wound up losing only 7-4.

"It enabled us to use four lines. You notice we made several fast changes. The defencemen were told to go out and score goals.

"It gave the team a big lift and gave the forwards a rest. "It's pretty hard keeping up with these Russians for three periods."

While the defencemen did not score, Bergman did set up Palmqvist for the Swedes' first goal at 2:28 of the third period to cut the Russian lead to 2-1. Charlamov, a three-goal man for the Russians in the 8-3 win over Finland Saturday, made it 3-1 only 90 seconds later and it appeared the Swedish comeback would be short-lived.

But at 5:56, Inge Hammarstrom scored Sweden's second goal from 25 feet out and then 133 seconds later, Hakan Wickberg slapped home his own rebound to tie the score.

Olympic Hat Trick

Tulip Title Can't Beat Gold Medals

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — When Dutch, governess named a tulip after him, they bestowed one of Holland's greatest honors on Ard Schenk. But that was before he became the 27-year-old flaxen haired speed skater won three Olympic gold medals.

Now he goes home a greater national hero than ever before, the first Dutchman and the third man in Olympic history to win three speed-skating golds. And the tulip beds probably will blossom this spring with another special variety.

The world's fastest man on skates crowned four days of glory by winning the gruelling 10,000-metre race, setting an Olympic record. His other gold medals were in the 5,000 and 1,500 metres.

Schenk was last among a dozen pairings when, with his silky-smooth long strides, he raced against the clock over a distance of 6¼ miles in 15 minutes 14.0 seconds.

The six-foot-three Dutch cowboy with long hair—his father owns a cattle ranch in the Frisian islands off the Dutch coast —gently warmed up on the training track as Valery Lavrushkin of Russia, Sten Stensen of Norway and Kees Verkerk of the Netherlands lowered the record in turn.

When Schenk finally took his turn, it became clear he was going to win. As he finished each lap, he could hear the announcer say he was running only a few seconds behind the best previous mark of 14:55.90.

Verkerk won the silver medal and Stensen the bronze. Their times were 15:04.70 and 15:07.08. Another Dutchman, Jan Bols, got Lavrushkin for fourth place. Bols also was inside the Games mark, clocking 15:07.28 compared with the Russian's 15:20.08.

Defending champion Jonny Hoglin of Sweden became ill and withdrew at the 11th-hour. It was Hoglin who set the record of 15:23.6 in the 1968 Games at Grenoble, and today Schenk reduced it by almost 22½ seconds.

"It was not until five laps from the end that I felt confident of winning," Schenk said.

Kevin Sinnott of Edmonton, paired with Lavrouchin, finished 16th in 15:58.61.

Schenk has a 38-second world record pending in the 500 metres and holds listed world marks of 1:18.8 in the 1,000 metres, 2:38.7 in the 1,500, 4:12.6 in the 3,000, 7:12.0 in the 5,000 as well as his 10,000 mark.

His performance highlighted a heavy weekend of activity during which Switzerland surprised experts by emerging as the No. 1 power in Alpine downhill skiing.

Bernard Russi, 23-year-old civil engineer and part-time movie stunt man, won the men's downhill gold medal over the tricky 1¼-mile Mount Eniwa course in 1:51.43. His Swiss countryman, Roland Collombin, won the silver and Heinrich Messner of Austria the bronze.

Jim Hunter of Calgary—Jungle Jim to his friends—finished 20th in 1:55.16. Although he was the top-placed Canadian, Hunter found he could hardly talk about his performance. "It blew it," he said. No Canadian has ever done better than 18th, and only three have done as well.

"Inexperience," said head coach Al Raine. "Jim was trying too hard."

Reto Barrington of Calgary was 30th and Derek Robbins of Toronto 38th in the 55-man field.

Russi became world downhill champion in 1970, and a few months later hurt his back while performing as a stunt man in a James Bond movie.

"I have worked for years to achieve this," Russi said.

Marie Therese Nadig, a 17-year-old Swiss student, won the women's downhill Saturday.

Sven-Ake Lundback, 24-year-old electrical engineer, gave Sweden its first gold medal of the Games in the men's 15-kilometre cross-country race. Ranked eighth in his country, Lundback barely made the team in Olympic trials.

Today, he was the only skier of 64 to finish the 9.3-mile distance in under 46 minutes. He clocked 45:28.24. Fedor Simachov of Russia won the silver and Ivar Formo of Norway the bronze.

Russia took the women's 10 kilometre cross-country gold and silver, barely missing a sweep of the medals. Galina Koulakova, 29-year-old skiing instructor, won the race in 34:17.82. Alevtina Olynina, 27-year-old housewife, was second. Miss Koulakova is the five-kilometre world champion and Miss Olynina is queen of the 10 kilometres. Marjatta Kajosmaa of Finland captured the bronze.

Karen Wins Silver

KAREN MAGNUSSEN

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Blonde Karen Magnussen of Vancouver kept Canada's tradition of winning a medal in every Winter Olympics intact Monday, skating to a second place silver in the women's figure skating championship in these Games.

The 19-year-old Canadian had little chance of catching world champion Beatrix Schuba of Austria, who nailed down the gold medal on the strength of her perfect performance in the compulsory school figures.

But Karen did move from third in the compulsories to second in the freestyle skating, giving the Canadian team its first medal of the Games. Until she came through, the Canadians had not scored a single point in the unofficial team standing.

Miss Magnussen became the first North American champion, turned in a nearly flawless performance in the free skating. She slipped slightly on one jump, Janet Lynn of the United States won the bronze and another American, Julie Holmes, ended fourth as she landed badly on one jump.

The nine judges all rated Miss Schuba first, giving her a perfect mark of 9.0 in ordinals. Miss Magnussen scored 25 ordinals.

Schenk has a 38-second world nals and Miss Lynn 27.

Flying Dutchman Olympic Favorite

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — He looks like Prince Valiant, come to life right out of the pages of romantic fiction. Not only is he disarmingly handsome, he is articulate, clever, witty—and he skates like the wind.

Ard Schenk, "the flying Dutchman," is the indisputable individual hero of the 11th Winter Olympic Games.

He has won three gold medals—in the 1,500, 5,000- and 10,000-metre speed skating tests—and he is only the second man to score a speed skating triple in Olympic history.

He drew near-capacity crowds at 40,000 and 50,000 in the main Makomanai Stadium, scene of the opening ceremonies, for one of the finest events in sports.

Competitors go out in pairs and skate against the clock. It's about as exciting as watching grass grow.

But Schenk, a 27-year-old bachelor, brought them out in droves, largely female admirers who gushed and swooned as the onetime farmboy glided over the ice with long, graceful and powerful strides.

To Europeans, he is the new Jean-Claude Killy, triple winner in skiing four years ago. To the host Japanese, his hair was spun personally by the Sun God.

The Japanese interpreters in the multi-lingual little hunnies in their white fur hats and coats—played hookey from their chores to watch him skate.

The women's quarters at Olympic Village emptied when word got out that Ard was on the ice.

Schenk is an impressive individual. He measures 6-foot-3 and weighs 188 pounds. He has the wide tapering shoulders of a boxer, virtually no waist, powerful thighs and long legs with muscles that almost ripple through his skin-hugging tights.

Yellow hair frames his lean, classic face, covering his ears and falling almost to his shoulders. His eyes are the color of a summer sky.

Schenk set six world records last year, racing in everything from 500 to 10,000 metres. When he skates in the Netherlands, streets are deserted. Everybody watches on television. He is a national idol. Recently he received one of the highest awards his country can bestow—he had a tulip named for him.

He is a Dutch cowboy, son of a farmer from the West Frisian cow country. His father also raises mink. Schenk never married although he is constantly linked with some continental beauty.

Last year he was engaged to marry. But when his fiancee demanded that he make a choice between married life and speed skating, Ard chose his skates.

He is studying to be a physical therapist.

At 27, he is regarded by some as being past his prime and has been urged to quit while he is on top.

"I have enjoyed the experience of climbing to the top," he said. "Now I want to enjoy the experience of the decline. I think my public deserves that."

Schenk has captivated news conferences with his forthright replies and ready wit.

Schenk hopes to defend all three of his Olympic titles at the next Winter Games in Denver, Colo., in 1976.

"That is, provided I keep winning," Schenk says. "If I start slowing down and losing I might think again."

Bruins' Johnston Really Put His Foot in Mouth

By CHUCK SYBORDA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Last week, after Boston Bruins had chalked up 2-0 and 5-1 victories, the National Hockey League East Division leaders were talking about the virtues of defensive play.

Somebody asked goalie Eddie Johnston about the possibility of him and Gerry Cheevers winning the Vezina Trophy this season, the league's top goalie award.

"Sure, we're aware we're in contention for the Vezina," said Johnston, "but every time somebody mentions it we let in four or five the next day."

It was worse than that Sunday night.

Johnston was in the Boston nets and he watched the pucks go by at the rate of three each period for the first 40 minutes as Buffalo Sabres bombed the Bruins 8-2.

Some small consolation for Johnston was the fact that a few other goalies were victims of similar scores in other weekend games.

Detroit Red Wings bombed California goalies Gilles Meloche and replacement Gary Kurt for an 8-2 victory over the Seals Sunday. Pittsburgh's Jim Rutherford and Les Binkley were the victims of an eight-goal barrage by Los Angeles Saturday as the Kings whipped the Penguins 8-1.

Even veteran goalie Ed Giacomin seemed helpless in St. Louis Saturday as the Blues pelted him with 39 shots on the way to a 6-5 victory.

In other games Sunday, Montreal Canadiens downed Vancouver Canucks 4-2, Chicago Black Hawks whipped Minnesota North Stars 5-0, Toronto Maple Leafs gained a 2-2 tie with the Rangers in New York and St. Louis earned a 2-2 tie with Philadelphia Flyers.

In other matches Saturday, Philadelphia beat Toronto 3-1, Boston edged Detroit 3-2 and Minnesota tied Buffalo 3-3.

Rookie Rick Martin scored two goals, as did Jim Lorentz, as the Sabres ended Boston's unbeaten string at 13 games. Martin's two goals gave him a season total of 31, one short of the season record for a rookie set last year by team-mate Gil Perreault.

Perreault didn't score Sunday but he did a good job of containing Bruin centre Phil Esposito, who went scoreless for his third game in a row.

"I purposely put Perreault on Esposito," said Buffalo coach Joe Crozier, "and Gil proved he can do a good job of checking.

"People say he can't check; they are wrong."

Boston coach Tom Johnson said:

"It was the worst game the Bruins played since I've been coach. But don't say anything away from Buffalo. They were skating, they were hitting."

Mickey Redmond, traded along with Guy Charron and Bill Collins from Montreal last year, scored three goals to lead the Red Wings over Golden Seals at Detroit. Redmond now has 32 goals and 25 assists, tying in points with Frank Mahovlich, who went to Montreal in the trade.

Mahovlich has 27 goals and 30 assists.

Collins and Charron also scored a goal each Sunday as the Red Wings broke out of the fourth-place tie with Toronto in the East Division standings, moving one point ahead.

Tony Esposito recorded his seventh shutout of the season in the Chicago nets and Dennis Hull and Jim Pappin each scored twice as the Hawks took a 14-point lead over the second-place North Stars in the West Division.

At Vancouver, the Canadiens were killing off a third-period penalty when Jim Roberts scored on a breakaway to snap a 2-2 tie with the Canucks.

Pete Mahovlich scored the insurance goal five minutes later as the Canadiens moved to within five points of the plunging second-place Rangers in the East Division.

The tie with Leafs left the Rangers still nine points behind the leading Bruins and without a win for the fifth time in their last six games.

Jean Ratelle scored his 32rd season goal and Vic Hadfield his 34th to make their line, including right winger Rod Gilbert, the first Ranger line ever to score 100 goals in one season.

The Leafs gained the tie with third-period goals by rookie Rick Kehoe and utility forward Denis Dupere.

Ranger manager and coach Emile Francis was unhappy about playing conditions in Madison Square Gardens.

"I've seen better ice on roads complaining about the surface I had after a Saturday basketball game.

Extra police and a full staff iam security force were on hand for the St. Louis visit to Philadelphia to guard against a repeat of the fight among fans, Blues players and police at a game Jan. 6.

The Blues visit Sunday was preceded by a published letter of complaint from Blues coach Al Arbour who was involved in the Jan. 6 scrap. The letter apparently helped placate the fans who then watched the Blues take a 2-0 lead in the second period.

The Flyers snatched the two goals in the third period and the tie kept them within three points of the fourth-place Blues in the West Division.

Centre Butch Goring had a big hand in the Los Angeles onslaught Saturday night as he scored twice and helped set up four other Kings goals.

Goring's two goals helped the Kings to a 3-6 first-period lead, prompting Pittsburgh coach Red Kelly to substitute Binkley for Rutherford in the nets.

Former Ranger Jack Egers broke out of a nine-game scoring slump with three goals against his former team-mates at St. Louis. The Blues took a 5-3 lead late in the second period but New York came back with goals by Ratelle and Hadfield, each with their second of the night.

That set the stage for rookie defenceman Larry Hornung's winning goal for St. Louis late in the game. Hornung also assisted on three other Blues goals.

Buffalo jumped to a 3-1 lead midway through the game in Minnesota but Sabres goalie Roger Crozier finally succumbed to the North Stars' 30-shot barrage in the third period and yielded the tie.

Crozier, who stopped the Bruins Sunday, faced 41 shots throughout Saturday's game while Minnesota veteran Gump Worsley made only 23 saves.

At Boston, the Red Wings kept pace with the Bruins until the third period when Ed Westfall scored the winning goal. Westfall also collected the Bruins' first goal in the first period.

Philadelphia scored once in each period at Toronto to hand the Maple Leafs their ninth loss in 10 games.

Goalie Bruce Gamble was outstanding in recording the Flyers nets against his former team-mates.

The Flyers are at Vancouver and the Leafs at St. Louis when league action resumes Tuesday.

Ottawa Rink Sets Consols' Precedent

OTTAWA (CP) — Brooms flew and fans swarmed on to the ice early today when Seldon Coombe earned the first berth ever for an Ottawa rink in the Canadian curling championships.

Coombe, a slender, spectacled surveyor with the regional roads department, won the berth by defeating Bob Woods of Toronto Royal Canadian 9-8 in the second playoff round of the Ontario championships at the Armstrong arena in nearby Gloucester Township.

"I just can't believe it," he said later.

"You, too," screamed lead Barry Provost as fans swarmed on to the ice to envelop the champions prior to their receiving the British Consols trophy.

With the 30-year-old Coombe and 27-year-old Provost as the rink are second Jim Patrick, 31, and third Keith Forgrel.

After the competition, Provost presented Coombe with the hacks from sheet five on which Coombe availed four of his 11 matches.

"If you want everything else," proclaimed the confident Provost, "I'll get it for you—the scoreboards, a couple of rinks just name it. You can put it in your rec room."

"I've been a bridesmaid so many times, it's really sayid to believe," said Coombe, who has played in four Ontario championships, twice in the finals and played lead once in the provincial event.

Woods, who went into Sunday's final scheduled match first place, said in accepting second-place silver platters how successful the changed format of the event had been.

"I just can't believe this many fans watching curling at three in the morning," he said. "It's fabulous."

This was the first time an Ontario championship was last been played on arena ice with the same-draw system and the round-robin procedure of the Canadian championships.

On Woods' rink were third Neil Harrison, second Peter Krivel and lead Jim Hedrick.

Coombe made the final by beating Earle Hushagen of Toronto Humber Highland in the semi-final 10-9, while Woods defeated Ross Pearce of Toronto Simpsons-Sears 10-5 in 11 ends.

In the earlier ninth round, Pearce defeated Woods 10-8 in 11 ends to create the playoff while Coombe was beating John Scott of Gravenhurst 12-4 in 10 ends, Jim Waite of St. Thomas was defeating Jim Creignton of Port Hawkesbury 14-4, Brian Adams of Hanover was hammering Ted Brown of Kingston 13-5 in 10 ends and Hushagen was winning 11-4 over Ken Rowan of Toronto Avonlea in 10 ends.

The final playoff, before about 1,200 fans, went to the last rock as Woods tied the match 8-8 on the 11th end.

He earlier had missed several chances at big counters by being light on open draws when he had last rock.

Lorne O'Donnell's one-legged pirouette wasn't enough to distract Oakville goalie Ian Young, who comes up with the save in Saturday night's senior A game in Belleville. Despite Young's efforts, however, the Quintes managed a 4 - 2 win which moved them to within three points of a playoff berth in the eight team league.

LaMorre Got Good View of Western Win

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

Perhaps the person who could best appreciate Western Tire's win in the first annual Belleville Yardmen Juvenile Hockey Tournament was Roger LaMorre. After all, the back-up goalie for Western had a chance to see his teammates from the other side's point of view.

LaMorre was called into action in the opening game of the tournament when Point Anne showed up for their game minus a netminder. His teammates made his welcome more than warm by slamming Point Anne 11-1. From there the Belleville all-stars went on to trip Burlington 5-2 and add an identical win over Richmond Hill in the "A" championship final.

Did Belleville's wandering goalie find things better with the Tiremen, rather than against them? "Yeah. A lot better," agreed Roger.

"It was a real team effort by these guys," complimented coach Lou Smrke on his team's performance in the first annual Yardmen's Tourney. He did admit that, "we relaxed a little against Richmond Hill, but it's pretty tough to play three games in one day."

Western jumped into an early 4-0 lead in their final match with Richmond Hill only to see the visitors come on strong in the latter stages of the game. They managed two unanswered tallies before Richmond Hill didn't go away empty - handed in the trophy department, as netminder Bob Slatey earned the Most Valuable Goalie award for his performance with a team reduced to 11 players through injury and illness.

"It was a well run tournament, particularly considering that this is the first year," offered Richmond Hill manager Paul Ducharme, "we really enjoyed ourselves."

Campbellford's "B" champions produced the third individual winner with Louis Doucette taking trophy honors as the best defenceman. Actually the term defenceman didn't really cover Doucette's accomplishments which included several shifts at centre as his team dumped Trenton 7-4 in their championship battle.

He earned a goal and assist in a rough game with the team which had previously eliminated the powerful Peterborough entry from further play.

Meagher, along with centre Rob Foster and defenceman Dave Taylor proved to be standouts for Western throughout the tournament. The speedy forward collected two goals and an assist in the championship game with Taylor picking up one of each. Belleville's other scores went to Mike Geegan and Kevin Joudwa.

In the opening 11-1 win over Point Anne Meagher notched three goals and as many assists while linemates Russ Harrington had a pair of goals. Other scores for the winners went to John Brown, Wayne Andrews, Taylor, Jim Richardson, Joudwa and Austin Wilson. Hunter Fournier had the lone Point Anne goal.

In second - round action, the Tiremen took a -2 win in a stormy contest with Burlington that saw the visitors skate off the ice with 10 seconds remaining in the game. A near-riot developed when a Burlington supporter began scuffling with some Belleville players at the end of the contest but order was restored before the affair got out of hand.

Meagher and Foster each scored twice for Belleville with Richardson getting the fifth marker.

A total of eight teams competed in the one-day tournament which was held Sunday at the Memorial Arena and Dick Ellis Rink. Individual trophies were awarded to the champions and runners-up in both the "A" and "B" sections.

Taylor-made Check

Dave Taylor of the Western Tire Juveniles hands out a telling check to Burlington's Brad Almond in hockey action during the Belleville Yardmen Juvenile Tournament Sunday. Taylor was one of the defensive standouts for the Belleville all-stars as they swept all three games to win the "A" championship in the first year of operation for the tournament. A total of eight teams from across eastern Ontario participated in the event.

Marchen's Two Goals Prove Poison for Oaks

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

"I thought that I must be some kind of jinx. I've coached six or seven games and we lost them all," smiled Lionel Beaty.

The Belleville Quintes defenceman could afford to smile after Saturday night as his team came up with a 4-2 win over Oakville. He had been forced to serve in a playing-coach capacity when regular coach Wayne Brown was sidetracked by shift-work.

Fittingly enough it was a fellow defenceman who provided Beaty with his initial Senior A coaching victory.

Greg Marchen shocked the Oaks with a whistling drive from the blue-line at 18.42 of the final period to give the home team a 3-2 lead. It was the first time all game the Quintes had held the upper hand.

The unassisted score was the second of the game for the big Belleville veteran. He admitted after that he had no premonitions that it was going to be "his night" but was given a big boost when he scored early in the second period. "It really helps when you can get one early like that," he noted. "It builds up your confidence for the rest of the night."

Lorne O'Donnell's goal into the empty net with just 28 seconds left to play sewed things up for the Quintes. The scoring gift went to the right person as O'Donnell had lost a golden opportunity earlier in the period. The left winger had been sent into the clear by Beaty but play was whistled dead on an off-side call.

Dave Nicholsteen and former Detroit Red Wing Hank Mostekth were the only Oaks to beat Steve Rexe as the Belleville netminder turned in a strong performance. Rexe was tested 41 times by the visitors, while Oakville goalie Ian Young faced only 30 shots.

Marchen had a hand in every Belleville score, drawing an assist on Wayne McConnell's 21st goal of the season early in the third period. The goal, which made it 2 - 2 seemed to spark the Oaks who held most of the play until Marchen's drive turned the game around. Oakville had outshot the home team by the 16-5 count in the final frame.

The winners drew seven of the game's 11 minor penalties with Quintes' defenceman Dan Creighton and Dunc MacDonald of Oakville drawing roughing penalties for a third-period scuffle.

Despite the win the Quintes remain in the basement of the eight-team senior loop, one point behind Owen Sound, but with two games in hand. They are three back of Oakville, who hold the sixth and final playoff berth position at the moment, and four behind fifth-place Woodstock.

Belleville's next game will be Tuesday night when they travel to Kingston for an 8 p.m. encounter with the fourth-place Aces.

First Pickerel Good Enough

Ed Glover's fishing output hasn't been too good as far as quantity is concerned, but he certainly can't complain about the quality.

The Trenton angler hooked an eight-pound five - ounce pickerel at the mouth of the Trent River Saturday, which was good for first prize in the Belleville Winter Carnival's fishing derby. It was the first pickerel of the season that he has managed to land.

Second place in the competition went to Ken Keene of Wellington for an eight-pound, two-ounce pickerel taken from West Lake.

The winner will receive a trophy at the next meeting of the Belleville and District Fish and Game Club to be held on Tuesday night, 8 p.m. at the IOOF Hall on Bay Drive.

Seven Lucky For Saints

The Quinte Saints rolled lucky sevens in Saturday night's high school hockey final. The Saints took a 7-1 decision from Centennial to give them the championship of the three day event.

Paul Ackerman and Rick Meagher each scored two goals to pace the winners, who had been beaten previously in the tournament by Centennial 3-0.

Teams from Quinte, Centennial, Moira, BCI, Nicholson and OSD took part in the event.

MORTGAGES

Special deals for homeowners at Associates

If you're buying your house you're eligible for a low-cost mortgage at Associates and save on your down payment.

The money we may be able to give you is yours for the asking. Even if you have some terms — or a lot.

The amount you can borrow is limited only by your equity. We'll have to see your house. $5,000, $10,000, $15,000 — maybe more. So if you have high-interest debts you're paying off, or if you need money for personal reasons, talk to Associates about it. Associates Mortgage Loans. See how much better off you'll be.

Legal Aid In Divorce Cases Cut

TORONTO (CP) — The Society of Upper Canada, in an effort to halt rising costs, has tightened eligibility requirements for free legal aid in divorce actions.

John Robbins, treasurer of the law society, which administers Ontario's legal aid program, said that 33 cents out of every legal aid dollar now is spent for divorce cases, compared with 26 cents for defending criminal cases.

He said in his report to the law society's annual meeting Saturday that legal aid officials have been instructed to deny free legal assistance to some unemployed and others who have spent their money on luxury items.

Legal aid area directors were given the discretion last summer by the law society to refuse to issue legal aid certificates to those who might be able to pay $50 a month as little as $25 a month, or who are not going to get married immediately after a divorce, he said.

The action was taken by the law society following a report last April by its advisory committee suggesting that something be done about divorce costs within the legal aid plan. In the last fiscal year, about $2.7 million of the government-paid plan's $10.3 million budget was spent on divorce cases.

Major Airports Are Affected By New Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Major Canadian airports have been hit by another strike—this one by 2,300 electronic technicians—a week after air traffic controllers ended a walkout that grounded commercial air traffic for 11 days.

But the technicians' strike, which began at 6 p.m. EST Sunday and was followed soon after by a breakdown in mediation talks, is not expected to have the same crippling effects as the previous dispute.

There was no immediate effect on air traffic at Halifax, Quebec City, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton or Vancouver despite pickets lines in many centres.

The technicians are mainly members of Local 2228, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. About 1,200 service, radar, navigational and other communications equipment for the federal transport department. Others work for the government department and still others service equipment at Canadian embassies in 26 countries abroad.

Of the technicians, 45% are classified by the government as essential workers and must remain on the job to keep equipment working safely. Vice-President Patrick Carstens of the Toronto unit said the men would be working at "the top safety and security of the public."

In Ottawa, mediator Gordon Cushing — a professor at Queen's University in Kingston — said Sunday talks broke off after 35 hours of "almost continuous" bargaining.

The union and federal bargaining agents from the treasury board had been unable to reach agreement, primarily on salary levels, but will meet again early in the week.

Mediation began when the union rank-and-file voted in reject a conciliation board recommendation raising their wages 13.5 per cent over 20 months. In the category used by the union for bargaining — El. 5 technicians earn $10,000 annually. Top salaries reach $16,332 a year.

The technicians want their salaries more closely aligned to those of air traffic controllers, who currently earn up to $12,500 a year. Controllers are guaranteed at least a 7.1 per cent over 27 months.

Despite the initial minimal effect on air traffic, Mr. Carstens said the strike could eventually mean "air safety personnel will refuse to work on equipment that is not being serviced."

The government will eventually be forced to tell the public to "fly at your own risk."

At Toronto International Airport only 16 of a regular staff of 40 technicians will be on the job.

In Montreal, where only 16 of 40 men will continue to work, a union supervisor compared the effects of the strike to running a car.

"It will go fine until something breaks. But then if you can't find somebody to fix it, it won't get you very far."

His reaction was echoed by another supervisor in Ottawa who said the effect on air traffic would depend on weather conditions and failing equipment.

"I can't predict what equipment will do. It could fail in five minutes or it could go for two or three days."

The union said a "mass picket" is being organized at Ottawa airports and other government buildings where union members work.

In Vancouver, where about five of 20 technicians continue to picket along a roadside near two bridges approaching Vancouver International Airport, there has been no disruption of traffic.

Union spokesman Peter Stastiuk said: "If airport workers want to cross our picket lines, it's up to them."

No pickets have been set up and no flights have been affected at Edmonton's two major airports.

In Winnipeg, picket lines were down for the night but were expected to be formed today at the city's International and St. Andrews' airports and at the federal building downtown. There will be those retained during working hours. There has been little effect on the airports.

Union spokesman Dave Lablanc said in Winnipeg the technicians are picketing mainly for publicity.

"One of the chief problems we face is the general public not being aware of our existence, and if they are aware, they think we are employees of Air Canada. When we say to the treasury board we are going on strike, they say, well, you'll get no sympathy from the public."

In Quebec City, where 31 technicians walked off the job, operations remain normal. Those leaving either work at Ancienne Lorette airport in Quebec City are ship-to-shore radio technicians serving the shipping community, or work for national defence telecommunications.

Abroad, technicians at embassies will be "morally" on strike but physically on the job.

Changing Face in Africa

As more and more African nations gain their independence, their names are often changed. The renaming spree has been inspired by leaders who seek to instill patriotism among their peoples by erasing any traces of colonialism. Map shows continent with new and old names of nations in boxes corresponding numbers on map. One territory that is known by two names is South West Africa. When the United Nations declared South Africa's mandate over the territory to be ended, the UN renamed it Namibia. However the area is still governed by South Africa which does not recognize the UN declaration, or the new name. (CP Newsmap)

Abortion Barrier Opposed

OTTAWA (CP) — A woman whose wish for an abortion was thwarted by a provision in Canada's new legal action to have that order withdrawn.

Lawyers Arthur Cogan and Richard Addelman are applying in Ontario Supreme Court on Tuesday to have the original order rescinded.

The case, first of its kind in Canada, was decided in the supreme court Jan. 27 by Justice A. H. Lieff, who issued an injunction forbidding the woman to have an abortion anywhere in Canada to terminate the pregnancy. He also ordered that the woman's name not be published.

A mother of four children, the woman was 16 weeks pregnant and had arranged for the operation at an Ottawa hospital when her husband sought the injunction.

NDP Federal Council Prepares for Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party's federal council has mapped NDP campaign strategy and touched up party policy in preparation for the coming election.

The council—senior governing body in the party—ended a weekend meeting Sunday, passing policy statements on the economy, regional disparity, poverty and agriculture.

Details of the campaign strategy and the party's budget were thrashed out in private meetings Friday and Saturday.

The 130-member council of which about half attended, includes the national executive, provincial and union representatives and delegates elected at the party's national convention.

It also passed a resolution on Northern Ireland, which included a call for replacement of British troops with United Nations peace forces.

Disagreement at the public policy sessions revolved more around the wording of statements than policy itself. The statements amounted to updated declarations of existing party policy.

The resolution on economic policy attacked the Trudeau government for abdicating responsibility, deliberately creating mass unemployment, aiding the waste of natural resources and backing away from tax reform.

It called for a national economic plan, based on active intervention in the economy by a strong publicly-financed development corporation and using public, private and co-operative ownership.

The statement stressed the need for development of job-rich secondary industry and renewable resources, and committed the party to full employment.

Bureaucrats Said Squandering Indian Budget

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — While many Indians live in tents and freezing houses, federal Indian affairs department bureaucrats squander most of the budget on lining their own pockets, an Ontario Native League for Youth meeting was told Sunday.

"They sit up there in . . . Ottawa churning out paper and they don't give a damn," A. E. (Tony) Belcourt, president of the Native Council of Canada, told the annual conference of the league.

The Indian affairs department has an annual budget of $300 million, but spends $220 million of this on its own administration, he said.

"Those guys are making $30,000 a year. Any one of them would be a bloody fool to give power to the Indians because then they would have to start tearing down their bureaucracy.

"They live in $50,000 homes while many of our people are living in tents. "This land has been stolen from the Indians, everyone knows it and we have to do something about it," he said.

Canada May Screen All Air Passengers

OTTAWA (Special) —Canada will probably adopt some measures similar to those being put into effect in the United States in an effort to stop the hijacking of aircraft, transport minister Don Jamieson told the Ottawa bureau of Thomson Newspapers.

Mr. Jamieson was commenting on the recently announced Washington regulations which require the scheduled airlines to start screening all passengers and baggage going aboard all flights in the U.S.

Mr. Jamieson said his department will study the screening regulations carefully with a view to strengthening the present Canadian laws and regulations and that rules along these lines will probably eventually be adopted in Canada.

"There is no question that the air carriers are the ones which have to carry out any surveillance of passengers and baggage and Air Canada has already taken some steps to this end at some airports. The federal government had indicated that we will help with the cost of the metal detecting devices," Mr. Jamieson explained.

He said Canada was also taking into consideration the recommendations about hijacking prevention procedures that have been made by the Air Pilots' Association.

But he pointed out that to impose a total screening process in Canada might not be necessary. Such a process greatly slows down the handling of passengers and baggage at airports. With Canada having had only three hijackings or attempted hijackings since air piracy started, a decision has to be made on whether to impose regulations for all airports, even those in the north and remoter areas of Canada, or to confine the security measures to the large international airports.

"The department's right to search passengers and baggage does not now exist in law and we may have to bring in regulations to this effect, although the tickets issued by the carriers do provide for the right to search," Mr. Jamieson said.

Tuesday, February 8

Aries (March 21-April 19): Repairs are likely to be more costly than starting fresh with brand-new equipment. Skip the heavy chores, a lick and a promise, wherever you can.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): For an advance in career, seek the highest, most conservative friends, a dignified presentation. Relax tonight with a complete switch to thoroughly unconventional subjects.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You can't get away with flimsy excuses now—your associate's ideas may be more effective; make a deal and proceed as a team.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Serious listening should be your main idea even though you may be saying nothing or perhaps too much, yourself. Fill every idle moment with another touch of attention.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Relish make a major effort to improve your public image. Sell off any white elephant possessions.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can advance your interests and learn much by provoking debate between well-informed associates.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct 22): A good day for further trading; associates have had something in the works for quite a time, about ready. Family and kin co-operate, may volunteer unusual encouragement.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Seek a bargain, stringent business contacts alone with you. When you've done a full enough day, quit altogether in favor of cultural interests.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You and your mate vie in intuition. Inspiration and impulse are the only likely course to follow for a while to come.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Plan your time, both for career effort and for play. You've not only got too much to do, too much demand upon you, something you really want to pursue shows up this evening.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The system you follows last week doesn't quite fit, neither do yesterday's experiments. Keep trying.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Continue yesterday's upbeat effort, arrange interviews, experiment with new combinations. Romantic ventures bring puzzles, intrigue.

Refuse Collection Company Is Sold

The collection of ordinary household garbage in today's pre-packaged, throw - away society is a rapidly growing business.

And as far as one firm with local principals is concerned, the collection of commercial refuse is a business with an equal opportunity.

At least this is the belief of Len Vigodda, of Lohner Canada Ltd., which has recently acquired the business of Commercial Refuse Services in Belleville and has amalgamated the operation with its Kingston Disposal Systems division.

The name of the amalgamated firm is Seaway Disposal Systems of Kingston.

The parent firm now has four Ontario bases from which it does commercial refuse pickups. These are at Kingston, Belleville, Ottawa and St. Catharines.

In addition to the four main bases, the firm has pickup contracts in a number of other Ontario centres.

Commercial Refuse Services of Belleville had been in operation about four years when it was sold. The company's pickup contracts, trucks and containers were included in the sale.

Mr. Vigodda said one new truck would be added to the Belleville fleet.

The commercial refuse pickup operation is also expanding into the household municipal garbage collection field.

In St. Catharines Mr. Vigodda said their trucks have contracts with the owners of large apartment structures.

The Bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1Nt
Redble	1♠	Dble	2♥
Dble

Opening lead — Jack of diamonds.

This deal occurred in the Great Britain - North America match in 1962. The Americans gained 1,670 points on the hand — primarily due to faulty play at both tables.

At the first table, the American North-South pair (Coon and Murray) got to two hearts doubled. West led the jack of diamonds, taken by Murray with the ace.

Declarer led a spade, won by West — who shifted to the ace of clubs. Murray ruffed, cashed the ace of hearts, flooring the king, and played another spade. East took the A-K and returned a spade, declarer discarding a diamond. West ruffed and led the eight of diamonds. South won with the king and played the queen and a low trump, forcing West to take the jack and return a club to the king. This enabled Murray to discard another diamond and make two hearts doubled for 670 points. The less said about the play, the better.

At the second table, with the British now North-South, the bidding went:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♠	Pass	2♥
3♠	4♥	All Pass

The American West led the queen of spades and shifted to the ace of clubs. Declarer ruffed, cashed the A-K of diamonds, and played the queen of hearts. East won with the king, cashed the diamond queen and continued with the nine. West ruffing with the seven and returning a spade.

East cashed the A-K, bringing the defense to six tricks, and led back a spade. West overruffed South's ten of hearts with the jack, and the unfortunate was that declarer went down 800. The less said about the play, the better.

Tomorrow: Extravagance.

Bad Tonsils Should Come Out

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can a 15 year old suddenly develop tonsil trouble? My daughter has always been healthy, but a few months ago her tonsils began swelling.

I took her to the doctor and she got a shot and a prescription. They continued swelling, so I took her back for another prescription a month later. There is some tenderness and swelling but she hasn't felt sick. The doctor has advised having her tonsils out, but I question this because she has always been so healthy in the past. Could it be something else? — Mrs. H. M.

Tonsillitis can develop suddenly at her age, and the matter of her past good health may have no bearing on the infection, or on her future health. The point is that infection has developed in the tonsils.

It is quite true that appropriate treatment can subdue an acute attack — but she's had such treatment, and the swelling and tenderness (and the infection) persist.

This isn't what you'd call exactly startling. Tonsil tissue and tonsil structure are such that chronic, recurrent infection can occur. It sounds as though it has in this case.

Of course I've never been what used to be called an avid tonsil yanker, but neither have I wanted to keep tonsils when there were signs that they ought to come out.

The actual size of the tonsils, incidentally, is not as significant as some other signs — swollen glands in the neck, ear infection, recurring sore throat or a catarrhal condition.

A chronic infection can be a factor ultimately in other problems, kidney disease or joint troubles, to name just a couple.

Your doctor has seen your daughter's tonsils, and he has seen how she reacts (or rather doesn't) to medication. I'd follow his advice rather than argue that it might be something else. What else, pray tell? The swelling is in the tonsils. It's reasonable to assume that that's where the trouble is, not somewhere else.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the best way to get a child to make boys grow taller than they normally would? I have a boy, 13, who is short for his age, and relatives keep urging me to get these shots for him. However, I am worried about the side effects. — Mrs. A.S.

Instead of worrying about side effects, why not spend the mental effort wondering whether there are any such shots? It is only in rare cases that medical care can bring about any such added growth.

In blunt language, you might say that you've been best by having your relatives sweetly: "What shots do you mean?"

Unless they can refer you to some reputable medical centre, just dismiss the whole idea.

Anyway at 13 the boy is still due for some growth spurts, and his ultimate height will depend mainly on his hereditary tendencies.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a deviated septum — and also a head cold / drip. What can be done about a deviated septum? Do you recommend surgery? Can a deviated septum be the cause of what the doctors call a frontal and a constant conjunctivitis? — T.S.

Deviated septum (the partition) between the nostrils can cause post-nasal drip. Surgery is the only answer — best guided by your doctor's judgment as to whether the deviation is severe enough to need correction.

It doesn't cause allergy but may contribute to the discomfort. Generally speaking, better to solve the allergy problem first.

Two Toronto Girls, 11, Buried on Toboggans

TORONTO (CP) — The bodies of two 11-year-old Toronto girls, buried alive by a snowslide, were discovered Sunday evening, more than a day after the two were reported missing.

The bodies of Jayne MacGregor and Marlene Tribe were found five feet apart about 6 p.m. Sunday while rescuers were making their third search through the ravine in the borough of Scarborough.

They noticed a heavy fall of snow down a 75-foot cliff and began digging. They found Marlene's hand and continued digging while others went for help. Jayne was found, half an hour later.

After Marlene's father, Robert reported the children missing Saturday, offers of help flowed in. A church was opened as a headquarters. By mid-afternoon detectives were sending 250 volunteers out in buses. They tracked on foot.

The two girls had gone tobogganing.

Senior police officials had feared the girls had been abducted.

Quinte's January Jobless Well Below Last Year

Canadian Idle Jump 25 Pct.

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment soared to an estimated 665,000 last month as most industries cut back their work forces for the cold winter months.

The increase of 155,000 jobless from the December total of 530,000 meant that one additional man or woman was out of work last month for every four who were unemployed in December.

Unemployment last month rose to 7.7 per cent of the labor force, from 6.1 per cent in December. It was eight percent in January last year.

The situation worsened particularly in the Atlantic provinces, where 12.9 per cent of the labor force—more than one in every eight workers—was unemployed. While higher than in December across the rest of the country, the rate was down slightly from a year earlier.

Statistics Canada, releasing the January figures today, said the increase in unemployment was about average for this time of year.

The mid-January total of unemployed this year, however, was 3,000 short of the 668,000 unemployed in January last year. Winter caused staff reductions in most industries. The total number of workers with jobs fell in January to 7.92 million from 8.12 million in December.

The statistics bureau said it was "about the usual increase" in unemployment "for this time of year." There was a greater-than-usual decrease in employment in the service industries, but employment increased last month in public administration and government.

The 665,000 unemployed last month represented 7.7 per cent of the 8.58 million people in the labor force. This was up sharply from an unemployment rate of 6.1 per cent in December, but short of the near peak rate of eight per cent in January last year.

January, February and March are the worst months for unemployment in Canada. Last year, unemployment reached a peak of 8.1 per cent of the labor force in February.

Statistics Canada said there was little change between December and January in the underlying trend of unemployment. This underlying trend is based on adjustments the bureau makes to the actual unemployment figures to take into account such seasonal fact'rs as the harsh Canadian winter.

As it does every year in January, the bureau revised last year's seasonally-adjusted figures, taking into account the most recent trends uncovered by the bureau's computers. The result was that most of the originally-issued seasonally-adjusted rates for the end of 1971 were raised to higher levels.

The seasonally-adjusted rate of unemployment for January this year was set at 6.9 per cent, down from 6.2 per cent in December and 6.4 per cent in January last year.

The 665,000 unemployed, however, was an increase of 135,000 for the month. Between December and January this year, the number of employed persons declined by 208,000, to 7.91 million from 8.12 million.

In actual terms, using figures not adjusted for seasonal factors, unemployment rose dramatically to 12.9 per cent of the labor force in the Atlantic provinces, compared with 10.3 per cent in December and 10.2 per cent in January last year.

Unemployment rose in all other regions, but less dramatically — 8.3 per cent of the labor force from 7.8 in December in Quebec, 5.8 per cent from 4.5 in Ontario, to 5.8 per cent from 4.8 in the Prairies and to 8.7 from 6.9 in British Columbia.

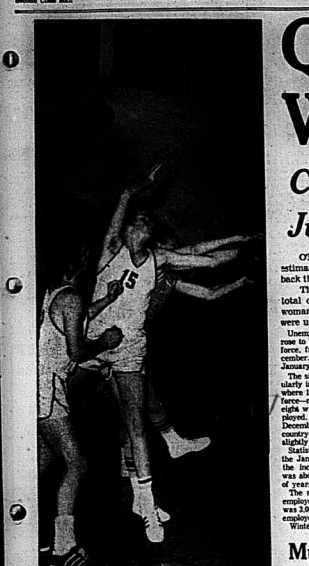
Municipal Vote at 18 Is Studied

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Dalton Bales said Monday that Ontario is considering legislation extending the municipal franchise to 18-year-olds and making the basis to vote in local elections uniform across the province.

Mr. Bales, the former municipal affairs minister who switched portfolios in the cabinet shuffle last week, said the legislation, if introduced, would bring the municipal franchise in line with the federal and provincial elections.

Last summer, the provincial government reduced the voting age for provincial elections to 18.

Mr. Bales said some municipalities have exempted the property-ownership requirement for local voters while others have not. He said the legislation would make age and British citizenship the only requirement for the right to vote.



Pravda Reports Purge in China

MOSCOW (Reuter) — A number of Chinese military leaders have been shot for trying to flee the country to avoid being purged, says Pravda, the Soviet Communist party daily.

Pravda quotes "informed sources close to the Peking leadership" as saying many who were afraid of being victims of a "wave of mass purges" have tried to leave the country illegally.

Rose Dragged Into Courtroom

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Rose was pushed and dragged into court Monday for his kidnapping trial after he tried to stay in his jail cell as an expression of solidarity with guards who have walked off the job.

After an exchange of remarks with the accused, Mr. Justice Eugene Marquis of Court of Queen's Bench adjourned proceedings until Wednesday when defence lawyer Robert Lemieux is to present a detailed request for the court to declare it has no jurisdiction in the case.

Rose is charged with kidnapping Pierre Laporte, former Quebec labor minister in October, 1970.

Mr. Lemieux said his client was being discriminated against because he was the only one of 30 prisoners in the Quebec Provincial Police detention centre brought to court Monday.

A province-wide walkout by prison guards interfered with the transfer of prisoners from cells and Rose refused to go to the courtroom in the same east-end building.

Wearing slippers, blue pyjamas and a dressing gown, he was half-pushed, half-dragged by a provincial policeman into court 90 minutes late shouting "Power to the workers."

He criticized the judge "for forcing me to come here while my guards are on strike," and, pushing one of the policemen aside, said: "I'm getting out of here."

"Keep the accused here," ordered the judge.

Smiling at Rose, he said: "I had you brought here because I have to meet you if I'm going to preside at your trial. Are you Jacques Rose?"

The prisoner smiled back and nodded his head.

Mr. Justice Marquis told the 23-year-old accused he was 39 years old and "I have worked in my life; I have worked in the woods."

Rose retorted:

"It appears that you have not left the woods."

Ulster Catholics Split Over Call for Disruption Day Plans

BELFAST (AP) — Northern Ireland's Roman Catholic leaders have split over plans for another demonstration Wednesday.

Bernadette Devlin and the Civil Rights Association promised a day of disruption across Ulster with "sit - ins, sit-downs and all sorts of things". But Catholic members of the Northern Ireland parliament came out against the plan and called for a 24-hour fast instead.

Guerrilla gunmen kept up their terrorist campaign against British troops during the night, shooting and wounding two off-duty soldiers in Omagh and attacking a sentry post in Londonderry.

The Catholic lawmakers said they oppose the "D-Day of Disruption" because they "do not want to risk the livelihood of anyone in the province."

The legislators proposed a fast starting at midnight in Londonderry's "Free Derry Corner" where 13 civilians were killed Jan. 30 during clashes with British paratroops.

Police said Monday they have issued court summonses for 28 leaders of last Sunday's march in Newry.

Police did not say to whom they issued summonses, but Miss Devlin, the 24-year-old Catholic militant who sits in the British Parliament, said she received one.

Also among the 20,000 who marched in Newry to protest the internment without trial of suspected guerrilla leaders were Gerry Fitt and Frank McManus, members of the British Parliament who support the reunification of Ireland, and all Catholic members of the Ulster parliament.

In New York, United Nations Secretary - General Kurt Waldheim said he had offered Britain and the Irish republic his good offices to help alleviate the situation in Northern Ireland and is awaiting a reply from Britain.

Local Trend Unlike Nation

By Harry Mulhall
Staff Reporter

The Belleville area is one of the brighter spots on Canada's bleak chart of winter unemployment.

If the claim sounds excessively rosy, its truth is reinforced by its source — a leading local spokesman for organized labor.

Paul Andrus, president of the Quinte and District Labor Council, is optimistic about the winter labor scene in the Belleville area.

The employment situation is "definitely better here than it is in nearly any other place in Ontario — or Canada I'd say," Mr. Andrus said today as Canada's latest unemployment statistics were revealed.

The figures show that there is only 3,000 fewer unemployed in Canada in January this year than in January of 1971. But Quinte's unemployed total was 45 per cent less than last year, 1443 compared with 2660.

Nationally the statistics evoked charges of governmental "wishful thinking" from George Hees, MP Prince Edward-Hastings.

The Trudeau government, he said, has failed to provide incentive to increase industrial expansion.

Today, local statistics confirmed that the number of jobless in the Belleville area jumped in January.

But the number of job applicants registered with Canada Manpower in the city were down dramatically from January, 1971.

How the local Manpower statistics compare with the national average of 7.7 per cent unemployed — 665,000 jobless — announced by Statistics Canada today, cannot be exactly determined. Comparative breakdowns of Canada Manpower statistics must be released from Ottawa.

However, figures released by the Belleville Manpower offices in Belleville today show 1,443 people seeking jobs in January, a peak unemployment month in Canada. This total jumped from 974 in December.

But in January of last year there were 2,660 registered for work with the Belleville office — which administers a territory including the city, 22 of Hastings County's 24 townships and Ameliasburg township in Prince Edward County.

"The employment picture in our locale is pretty fair compared to the rest of Canada," assessed H. W. Kare, manager of Manpower's Belleville office, today.

Sharp Rejects Role For Canada in Ulster

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has turned down a request by Irish External Affairs Minister Patrick Hillery that Canada try to bring about a change of British policy in Northern Ireland.

Mr. Sharp told Mr. Hillery that while it would be happy to pass on the Dublin government's view to the United Kingdom, Canada would not urge on London any particular right of view.

Discussing this at a news conference Monday, Mr. Sharp said Canada has not been asked to mediate the dispute in Northern Ireland. Therefore, he told a questioner, the subject of a mediation role for Canada doesn't arise.

Mr. Hillery came here Sunday night to ask that Canada intervene. He is visiting a number of Western countries with the same object, and from Ottawa was scheduled to go on today to France and Italy. He has already been to the U.S.

Mr. Sharp, at the news conference following a lengthy conversation with Mr. Hillery, said Canada is a friend of the Irish and British peoples and deplores the present violence.

But Canada cannot solve other people's problems for them and we cannot intervene in the internal affairs of either the British or the Irish governments.

The only hope of bringing "this tragedy" to an end seemed to lie in a political solution.

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)— Security authorities announced Monday night that terrorists machine-gunned to death a British sailor from a visiting warship. David Cuthbert, 19, was shot by terrorists while waiting in a taxi in front of a downtown hotel last Saturday night.

Security forces in Northern Ireland intensified a manhunt for a leader of the Irish Republican Army who escaped Monday from the Long Kesh internment camp, possibly disguised as a priest.

Francis McGuigan, 24, was the first man to escape from the heavily-guarded camp south-west of Belfast. About 400 IRA suspects are held there.

Official sources said McGuigan was believed to have walked out of Long Kesh Sunday night with a group of six men who were wearing clerical collars and had been visiting inmates.

Rev. Thomas Toner, Catholic chaplain at Long Kesh, said no priests had helped McGuigan to escape.

Residents Concerned About Dundas Tunnel

A school guard has been hired to temporarily man the pedestrian tunnel beneath Dundas Street at Bayview Heights, but residents of the area are still concerned about long range plans for the crossing convenience.

This was demonstrated yesterday when two Bayview Heights mothers, Mrs. Rita Burley and Mrs. Helen McGarvey, attended yesterday's city traffic and light committee meeting to ask what might be the permanent solution to the problem.

Over the years the pedestrian tunnel beneath four-lane Dundas Street has been a continuing problem for the city with the crossing periodically closed because of vandalism and other factors.

The crossing guard was hired on direction of city council to man the tunnel while children are going to and from school.

Mrs. Burley said if the tunnel was the permanent solution, a sidewalk on the north side of Dundas Street would be required.

She was not certain that the pedestrian tunnel was in the right place to be the greatest convenience for children but said construction of another tunnel at a different location would be "a waste of taxpayers' money".

If the present tunnel was the permanent solution, Mrs. Burley said every effort to have all children use the crossing would be desirable.

Alderman E. A. Orr said although hiring of the guard had been referred to by council as a "temporary" solution, the understanding there was that this policy would remain in effect until some better solution was arrived at.

He moved that temporary provision be made for construction of an asphalt or concrete sidewalk from the tunnel to Hershiner Ave., as had been asked by Mrs. Burley.

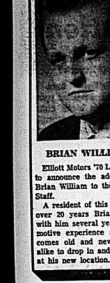
The plan would be to provide funds in this year's city budget for the cost of the walk based on estimates to be provided by the city engineer. If approved by council, construction could be carried out in the spring.

In the meantime, City Police Chief Douglas T. Wade will carry out a complete investigation of the Dundas Street pedestrian crossing problem including possible provision of a signalized pedestrian crossing east of the present tunnel.

The chief said there was possible greater need for a crossing at the end of Sixth Street.

Ald. Jack Ireland agreed that the city should "go with what it has got" until spring when the whole problem should be re-evaluated.

Works Employees' Raise Approved



TRENTON (Staff) — Town council Monday approved a two-year settlement with its public works employees that provides for a 10 percent pay increase in both 1972 and 1973.

The 20 percent package was approved at last night's meeting with no discussion, although it came after weeks of negotiation with representatives of the 31-member public works section of Canadian Union of Public Employees local 799.

Effective from January 1, 1972 the regular labor rate in the department will be $3.16 an hour. Among the various skilled labor rates, was for a machine operator (class Maine) this year will be $3.74, an hour.

In benefits, the town has agreed to initiate life insurance coverage for all public works' employees to the value of $5,000.

Only major change to holiday provisions is that an employee will now receive four weeks holiday after 15 years, rather than after 20.

Northern Moves Announced

Three senior executive appointments to Northern Electric Company's Belleville plant have been announced as part of a recent total corporate reorganization by the company.

All three executives are Northern employees of Northern Electric and have been transferred from Montreal.

Names and executive positions of the three appointees are Phil Gibbon, divisional manufacturing manager. A McGill University graduate he has 24 years of manufacturing experience with the company.

S. R. MacLennan, divisional marketing manager. With Northern Electric 28 years, he has extensive marketing and sales experience.

E. A. Haggerty, coolorjler. He has been 23 years in the company's accounting organization.

The Northern regrouping was announced last October, part of a company bid to capture a major slice of telecommunications markets. With the move, the Belleville plant continued its customary production role — making telephone products — although it was reorganized to function as an entity, adding marketing to its manufacturing function.

Under the re-organization, the Belleville plant — the city's biggest employer — became part of a new Systems Apparatus Division of Northern Electric.

12 More Senior Citizen Units for Stirling

A federal loan of $110,934 to assist in the construction of a 12-unit senior citizens' housing project in Stirling was announced Monday by Minister of State for Urban Affairs Ron Basford.

The 50-year loan will cover 90 percent of the cost of the Ontario Housing Corporation development planned for the north side of Church Street between Allan and Annis streets. Ontario will pay the remaining 10 percent.

The loan for the Stirling development is included in a total of $6.6 million in federal loans to aid construction of more than 500 dwelling units for low income families and elderly in five Ontario municipalities.

Included in the total was a loan of $335,362 for 35 senior citizen units in Campbellford.

The Stirling project, a two-storey apartment building containing 12 one-bedroom units, will be constructed by Macand Construction Ltd. of Ottawa and is the second 12 units approved for Stirling.

The first 12 units are well advanced in construction with completion and doing interior finishing. The second 12 units will be built as an addition to the first structure.

Village clerk W. L. Pollock said today that the first units were expected to be ready for occupancy by the end of January, but due to continuing construction on the site and the possible danger to elderly residents, they may not be opened until all 24 units are ready.

Jobless

Separately, both Mr. Karn and Mr. Andrus agreed that winter works initiative and retraining programs all had a major bearing on the area's unemployment contrast with national trends.

A significant single contribution was made by the Unemployment Insurance Commissions Ontario regional office in Belleville.

Mr. Karn estimated that about 600 persons have been hired as casual help by the UIC.

Mr. Andrus said another major factor was no large layoffs by local industries.

The fact the local economy is not tied to a few huge industrial operations where layoffs could involve large numbers of people adds to the healthier job situation, he dicated.

"You consider the industries in the area and there haven't been any layoffs to speak of. Our industries and, even the layoffs don't involve large numbers," said Mr. Andrus.

In Ottawa, Mr. Hees said the Statistics Canada figures revealed the national job situation "is serious — and action must be taken now to correct it."

"Employment opportunities will only keep pace with the rapidly growing work force when the government creates economic conditions which will persuade industrial leaders that it will be worth their while to expand production.

"The Government's socialistic approach to industry has provided no incentive to expand production, and the result has been the present sluggish expansion of business."

The government has refused to accept Opposition proposals to increase sales, exports and productivity, he said.

"It must now either accept them or put forward new and effective policies to stimulate the economy and create jobs," said Mr. Hees.

GORDON THOMAS IRWIN

A member of the Canadian Trotters' Association, Gordon Thomas Irwin died suddenly Monday in Belleville General Hospital. He was 59.

Born in Thurlow Township, he lived in the Belleville area all his life, spending the past 11 years at his 440 Bleecker ave. residence. A former mechanic, he was last employed by LaPalm Van Lines.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Irwin and is survived by his wife, the former Marjorie Steinburg; five sons, Jack, James, David and Clifford of Belleville and Gordon of Ottawa; a daughter, Miss Linda Irwin of Belleville.

Blaze Levels Sidney House

Sidney Township volunteer firemen braved sub-zero temperatures last night to battle a blaze which levelled an old, abandoned farm house a quarter of a mile east of Wallbridge-Loyalist Road on Highway 401.

The two-storey frame dwelling, which OPP report is owned by Wilbur Wills of Belleville, was left to burn after a brief attempt to control the blaze.

IN MEMORIAM

STAPLEY — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Stapley, who passed away three years ago.

Those we love don't go to sleep,
They live within our heart.
And tenderness kept nearly so,
Each day we miss you more.
We can but pass for this cold earth,
But never from our thoughts.
Our darling will be kept here,
Our memories never lost.
— Sadly missed by Mommy, Daddy, sisters and brother.

STAPLEY — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Stapley, who passed away three years ago.

Gone from the earth so swiftly,
Gone from the earth so suddenly,
Gone from the earth so young,
So young, so fair, so loving,
Left us to mourn.
Sweet is the memory of her sweet nursing,
Resting by waters fair,
Where the lilies are coming,
In the upper garden there.
— Sadly missed by daughter Mary Ann, son-in-law Ronald Bowen and Grandfather and Kenneth Lot.

Government-industry Teamwork Succeeds

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Within three or four years, the McFarlane Gendron plant on Sidney Street, is expected to more that double its production . . . representing a capital figure of $1 million.

This prediction by plant general manager A. E. (Bill) Starke, comes in the wake of two recent company changes.

On June 29, 1971, the McFarlane family sold the company to Toronto industrialist Alan Lubliss.

The second shot in the arm for McFarlane Gendron, came at the first of this month. Their bid to establish a Canada Manpower Training-on-the-Job program, with a $51,-000 budget, was approved.

In the past, the company could not afford the time or manpower to train employees beyond the one job they were hired to do.

Now, with 2/3 of the salary tab being picked up by the federal government, as part of its $28 million 1971-72 program for training unemployed workers across Canada, 23 men and women, some previous employees at the plant, are working on a 12 to 26-week schedule.

They are being trained as inspectors, woodwork machine operators, pattern maker helpers, production assemblers, furniture finishers, kiln operators and one maintenance mechanic.

The program calls for flexible education levels, with most of those in the McFarlane plant from no lower than the grade eight level.

James Fraser of the Belleville Canada Manpower office, said the people hired are those "who possibly don't have any skills."

Mr. Starke said the new owners are planning a physical factory expansion program with an estimated capital expenditure of between a quarter and half a million dollars.

However, plans for the expansion are scrapping of more outdated portions of the buildings hinge on whether or not financial aid can be obtained from the Ontario Development Corporation. The corporation will grant direct loans and forgivable loans to companies which can prove economic and employment benefits to their communities.

McFarlane Gendron manufactures such items as ping pong tables, billiard and snooker tables, baby carriages and strollers, juvenile furniture, high chairs, playpens, car beds and seats, and a complete line of doll prams and strollers. Because of the seasonal demand for some of these products, the employment picture fluctuated.

Now, with government aid, the company can afford to maintain production without laying off any employees.

In 1970 and 1971, the juvenile furniture market was very poor, and employees who worked exclusively on these lines, had to switch jobs in the plant. Those who weren't trained for other work, were laid off. Now that situations have reversed, with a high demand for this type of furniture, the company has had to hire new employees and retrain some present staff to a level of skill in this area.

The Canada Manpower representative said this situation is a good example of the changing face of today's employment. Many people must be able to transfer their skills he said.

Although Mr. Starke said all trainees have jobs at the plant for as long as they wish to continue with the firm on a permanent basis, their special skills under the retraining program can readily be adapted to other woodworking industries.

As far as wages are concerned, the company general manager said all trainees start at the regular rates of between $1.85 and $1.85 per hour and can work their way up to $2.25 per hour, under present union rates. After their training period is completed, they can advance even further.

Company's History Dates to 1875

The history of McFarlane Gendron, one of Canada's oldest companies, dates back to 1875, when the late George McFarlane began business in Toronto under the name of the McFarlane Ladder Works. His plant was located in the old Peterkin Building, at the corner of Bay and Temperance Streets now the site of the Atlas Building.

The company's line included ladders and wooden bathing tubs.

In 1880, the company moved to the corner of King and Berkeley Streets, at which time William McFarlane joined the firm. In 1912, this eldest son became president, at their new location on River Street.

The company expanded over the years, during which time additional family members joined the company.

By 1939, as the McFarlane Manufacturing Company, the firm began manufacture of household woodenware at yet another location, in the old L. A. de la Plant Lumber Yards.

Ten years later, the company purchased the Gendron Manufacturing Company, which dated back to 1870, when it was operating at the corner of Wellington and Yonge Streets under the name of the Gendron Iron and Wheel Company. In 1890, it was moved to Ontario and Duchess Streets, making baby carriages and other wheel goods.

The two companies were operated as separate entities for six years, until in 1936, the McFarlane plant was destroyed by fire.

In 1940, they were amalgamated under the one name, in the one plant.

In 1946, the company purchased the Belleville plant which had been used by the Universal Moulded Products Company for the manufacture of components for the Mosquito Bomber. This laminated plywood and wood airplane played a major role during World War II.

Following the war, the Belleville plant began establishing a record as Canada's leading manufacturer of a wide range of baby products, including prams, and strollers, high chairs and furniture. These are distributed across Canada and exported to many countries around the world.

The company is also a major supplier of pool and snooker tables, doll prams and strollers, ping pong and poker tables.

By July of 1971, the McFarlane family had completed plans for sale of their company, which included the 60,-000-square-feet Belleville factory and the 100,000-square-foot main plant and showroom on Richmond Street East, in Toronto.

The new owner, Alan Kotlier, is a 35-year-old industrialist and Canadian corporation head for the past 16 years.

He is an engineering graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), and holds a Masters Degree from the University of Pennsylvania.

Because of their long-term reputation, which spans a nearly century of operations, the McFarlane family wanted to ensure that the new owner would continue the policies and traditions of the company.

Many U.S. firms had expressed a desire to purchase their holdings, but the McFarlanes chose Canadian interests.

Trenton Works Budget Close to $1.5 Million

TRENTON (Staff) — Town council last night approved a mammoth capital works budget of $1,438,500 for the fiscal year.

In 1971, the budget for capital works totalled $811,150, of which $231,000 was never raised because the post office condominium development fell through.

However, this year $200,000 is earmarked for the revised scheme — a parking garage — municipal office complex, although consulting engineers have not yet given council final cost estimates for the job.

Largest item in the proposed list of expenditures for

Cold to Stay

Current cold weather may have reached its lowest at Bancroft last night, where temperatures dropped to 33 below.

Today, the duty forecaster at CFB Trenton said the cold snap, while expected to linger throughout the week-end ease slightly with temperatures warming a little.

The cold spell forced the mercury to 13 below early this morning in Belleville. At Tweed, it was 27 below, while CFB Trenton reported seven below.

Forecasts for the Belleville-Trenton area call for a low tonight of five below, with a high Wednesday of 15-20.

the year is $369,000 for road rebuilding. Included in the long list of construction projects planned for this year are the reconstruction of Dufferin Ave. (now in progress), widening of Dundas East (to begin by May 1) and the upgrading of North Murray, Reid St. and Douglas Road.

Concurrent with the road works is the program of $167,-000 in local improvements.

A new feature of capital works budgeting is the inclusion of $233,000 for new sanitary sewer projects. In 1971, five - year cost projections made no mention of this work for 1972.

Conversely, the outlay of $900,000 for expansion of the sewage treatment plant here was anticipated in 1971 but has now been deleted from the town's capital budget.

Now it is expected Ontario Water Resources Commission will handle expansion cost of the expansion. Value of this project has climbed from last year's "ball-park figure" of $900,000 to at least $2.6 million.

A program of land purchases as part of a conservation greenbelt plan takes up $25,000 this year, and for the next four years. This land assembly is veiled with secrecy by municipal officials until all required lands are acquired.

Council has also included the amount of $35,000 for renovations to Trenton Memorial Hospital in its capital works budget for 1972. This money will go toward improving both operating and recovery room facilities at the medical complex.

The capital budget must be submitted to the department of municipal affairs for review and approval.

Ketcheson To Chamber

TRENTON (Staff) — Councillor Stan Ketcheson was appointed Monday as the town's representative on the Trenton Chamber of Commerce board of directors.

The directorship is a new representation for the town that follows a request from the chamber dated January 24. In a letter the chamber said it was "desirous" of having a councillor join its ranks because it "would foster a closer relationship" between council and the Chamber of Commerce. Council acceded to the request without discussion.

Council also resolved at this week's meeting that Councillor George Greer should retain his position as Trenton's representative on the board of the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Association.

Policeman's Lot

They say the lot of a policeman is not a happy one. We suppose it depends where one is located. In Belleville the main problem is break-ins of which there have been plenty of late. There is no interesting work load too in the realm of drug investigations; all in all life is interesting enough for the policeman here without being inordinately dangerous.

In the United States things are much hotter. A Washington report says twelve law enforcement officers were killed across the nation in January, seven of them in southern states. A year ago during the same period 10 policemen were slain. We are hardly sanguine that being a policeman in Northern Ireland is no picnic these days either.

In Toronto another aspect of the police officer's work — his relation with the public and his conduct in the face of testing circumstances — has been the subject of an inquiry. It is alleged that some mounted policemen acted with excessive zeal in controlling a crowd outside the Ontario Science Centre during the visit of Soviet Premier Kosygin. A number of innocent skulls allegedly were cracked. But here too was the element of threat and provocation by the crowd generally and the fact that threats had been rumored against the life of Mr. Kosygin.

We must realize that in this world there is blatant provocation against the authorities in many countries, against the forces of law and order. Such provocation is often deliberate and calculated to cause not only confusion and disorder but to discredit the forces of the state.

Being a policeman then demands many qualities, including restraint where necessary, but it must be remembered that policemen are only human and the people they have to deal with frequently exasperating in their capacity for mischief.

Carnival Time

Extremes of one kind or another can bring out the best in people, a friendliness perhaps, even to strangers, that might not be present in the ordinary way. So there was a warm smile on the face of the fun-crated young woman we encountered at Zwick's Island and the winter carnival Saturday and she was saying "Oh it's bitter out there," as she walked to her car.

It was indeed cold but there was a goodly number of cars and people as well as snowmobile and skating activity on the ice. But something seemed missing. There were the dog teams but no airplane flights — Friday's storm kept the aircraft grounded — and a lot fewer spectators than there were last year. Then there was an excitement to the occasion that was not present this time. Remember too last year's since the kids.

The elements probably discouraged a larger attendance — it was cold last year but at least it was bearable — and of course events this time have been spread over a week and at different locations. It's hoped interest will be maintained in the future, for in the long haul that is winter, carnival time is a fun time.

Anti-climax

So the civil rights march in Newry went off peacefully; as even some Londonderry Catholics had predicted, it was a merciful anticlimax. But there is talk of a further call for tomorrow and consequently maintenance of the current state of unrest in Northern Ireland.

Meanwhile the situation as reflected by television news offers further confirmation of the radical bent of public affairs programming south here and in the United States. IRA and civil rights people vie for who gets to the microphone first, or should we say they do not even have to run; the television representatives are only too accommodating. And there is virtually nothing to counter it from government or military.

Military and police are at pains to round up terrorists and rioters; they could do worse than hire a few radio or television people as intelligence agents — if the latter would accept that is — for on CBC Sunday Magazine, on radio, the program ended with an IRA cell singing rebel songs.

Strange Fad

We thought it was just a passing — and rather sick — fad, but there was a picture the other day of a football personality at the Sports Celebrities Dinner in Toronto wearing a belt of .303 cartridges with his black velvet vest and white shirt. The fad took hold in gunhappy New York some months ago and evidently lingers among the party set in Toronto the good. A strange outfit it was for a function in aid of crippled children.

RCMP Could Lose "Royal" Status

Diefs Rearguard Action Against Creeping Republicanism

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There is the rumble of distant thunder on the political horizon, forerunning of a storm gathering in Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, the centre of many a tempest.

The Old Warrior, former Conservative Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, that thunderhead-of-a-man, suspects that after the next election — should the government be sustained — the Royal Canadian Mounted Police could become something else.

Like possibly the "national," the "federal," or simply the "Canadian" police.

Gone, as it has from so very many, many federal establishments, would be the traditional designation of "Royal".

The Old Chief will not reveal on what he has based his suspicions.

It could be a hunch, a shadow on the finely-tuned radar of his hypersensitive political instinct.

Or in these days of the calculated cabinet leak, it could be a tip from an old friend "in or near the top," of the government power structure.

Or a senior civil servant, concerned over the continuing erosion of the British tradition in Canada, and wise enough in the ways of Ottawa to know how it could be counteracted. By filling in Dief.

Know any better way?

The name-changes in government agencies, the erasing of the "Royal" from their escutcheons, is a form of super-naivedalism.

The government calls it "Canadianization," or the "de-mocratizing" through the process of "repatriating" our institutions.

Dief calls it something else. In fact, a variety of things, the least repulsive of which could be "republicanization."

The Old Chief has fought each change as it has come, initially and slowly in the following years of Prime Minister Lester Pearson, and more recently with increasing haste in the last four majority power years of Pierre Trudeau.

But this is different.

This is the RCMP.

And the Old Chief has always considered himself spokesman for the Mounties who, at the outset, were exclusively a Western Canadian elite law-and-order force, pioneering the opening of the Prairies, and since have become a tradition, a name identified with Canada the world over.

With luck, and some fast, tough talking, Dief just might be able to preserve the "Royal" for the Mounted Police, already downgraded by Prime Minister Trudeau and his cabinet in referring to the force as simply the "RCM Police."

He did not save the "Dominion" in the DRB which has become unadorned "Defence Canada," although he has been fighting the change since it was first suggested years ago by the late Trade Minister C. D. Howe.

But he was able to scare, last year, the Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce into being careful enough to check that it had government backing before it dropped the Commonwealth Division by melding it into 10 regional trade branches on a regional basis.

The department remembered the Diefenbunkhings when the Queen's portrait was taken down from the walls of Canadian Citizenship Courts, the Union Jack removed from the flag, and the continued systematic expunging of "Royal" from the federal nomenclature.

So the department's lanizaries, playing it safe, asked Industry Trade and Commerce Minister Jean-Luc Pepin if it was "acceptable" to strip out its Commonwealth Division.

It was. To Jean-Luc and the government.

But not to Dief.

The Commonwealth to the Old Chief is Britain and the British tradition, and together, in the words of Kipling, made Canada great.

Without the Commonwealth is Britain, or it is nothing.

"It would never have happened without Britain," he says. "There just would not have been members of the Commonwealth, nor could they exist, even now, except as republics without Britain and the Queen."

It may be a rearguard action the Old Warrior is fighting, but he will fight it to the end of his time.

And more honor to him.

"From now on, just mail the rent to me—someone might think I LIVE in this dump!"

Hospital Privileges Subject of Study

Queen's Park

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — A strengthening of the public, or laymen, control over hospital practices can be expected from the report of the Grange committee—the minister's committee of inquiry into hospital privileges in Ontario.

The main purpose of the study is not of so much importance to us.

It was appointed principally because of complaints by some doctors that they couldn't get "appointments" to hospitals in their communities. This meant they couldn't get their patients admitted, and the inference that cliques of doctors tended to control hospitals and run closed shops.

However, these allegations tended to be pretty well confined to the metropolitan areas of the province.

But along with its findings on this point the study did bring out some significance in the whole hospital structure and all communities in the province.

And the most pertinent one of these was that the boards of trustees, the groups, principally laymen, who have the top responsibility for the hospitals, should have a stronger say in the medical practices.

It reported, in effect, if not in precise words, that medical advisory committees of the hospitals took over on all matters, including admittance and appointments.

And it proposed that this should be tempered and the boards be given the muscle and encouragement—for the top control they supposedly should be enjoying.

Precisely, it said about the boards: "It is our belief that their role should be strengthened: that they should be encouraged to act more decisively in the administration of their hospitals, and given the power and authority to do so."

This is a recommendation which almost certainly will be accepted by the government in at least some form and to some degree.

The apparent inference from the report, in fact, is that the majority of doctors themselves aren't too happy about cliques, too.

The best illustration of this could be that the five-man committee which made these recommendations was made up of three medical men and two laymen (one a woman). Doctors have been deciding say.

Thus, though there may be a lot of criticism of the report, perhaps some of it even shrill, this as it seems now is so often the case with medical matters today, probably should not be taken as representative of the profession but of the more political factions in it.

The Brian Clow Case

The Globe and Mail

In its decision to punish further the teacher convicted on a charge of growing marijuana the North York Board of Education formalized the double standard. A teacher can boose it up, consolidate it tranquillizers, wind up in hospital with an overdose of LSD, be convicted of dangerous driving and the board will not intervene to deprive him of his livelihood.

But pot? That touches the tender nerves of parents who can become stupefied with pre-dinner cocktails but still shudder at the thought of their children smoking marijuana!

The board tested the wind and decided the easiest thing to do was to go with the distressed parents. But this is apt to apparently did not have the backbone to make a difficult decision. Perhaps it's not surprising in view of the attitude of the labor minister of Education Minister Robert Welch refused to decide; he would not suspend or cancel Mr. Clow's certificate, but made some back passing suggestions to the board. The teachers' federation adopted an ambivalent attitude.

So it came back to the board, and the board was unhappy. But it would not tell Mr. Clow to go. It decided to find something for Mr. Clow to do, but not what he had been trained to do — to teach, which even the board admits he does well. A surprising 400 parents turned out to an earlier meeting to support Mr. Clow's reinstatement, so a contrary position from the 258 names was found to present to the board on Monday.

Is the board right in thinking that Mr. Clow is now a menace to the school community? If so, there are a lot of narcotics around who may be even more dangerous to the right formation of a child than Mr. Clow who, since he has had his fingers burned badly once, is probably less likely to be unicircumspect in the future.

We have a feeling that many a pupil of Don Mills Collegiate will be comparing the actions of his parents with their professed principles rather more closely than before. But perhaps the pupils have been inoculated against further disillusionment by now. After hearing their parents boasting of sharp deals and petty triumphs gained through cheating, lying or just not being caught, they could be hurried by the do-as-I-say-not-do routine.

And it's too bad, for the sake of the children, the parents and the board that the LeDain report has been delayed so long now as to be in danger of being irrelevant. Opinions on marijuana are crystallizing into convictions.

CBC Faux Pas in Jalna Horse Scenes

Letter in The Globe and Mail

The first episode of The Whiteoaks of Jalna was well done, and it seems unkind to say so. But — if the CBC is going to do three medical men and two laymen (one a woman). Doctors have been deciding say.

Thus, though there may be a lot of criticism of the report, perhaps some of it even shrill, this as it seems now is so often the case with medical matters today, probably should not be taken as representative of the profession but of the more political factions in it.

the trouble and expense to produce a lavish and authentic series, why on earth did they not have an expert check the horse scenes?

The side-saddles were of a design introduced by Mayhews in England in 1928. All the saddle saddles were modern, forward seat models, and the riders were jumping in the "forward seat" style over fences. This method, developed by Captain Caprilli in 1900 at the Italian Cavalry School, was not introduced into North America until 1927 at least, and as the correct style of riding over fences it was accepted a lot later than that.

One of the competitor's horses was wearing a flash—of eight-noseband, an invention of modern-day racing carried into the show-jumping world, one elegant lady competitor's image was ruined by carrying a hunting-crop upside down, and would Rennie, when we were told to believe was in financial trouble because of his expensive habits in horseflesh, have been seen on anything less than a thoroughbred?

I hardly imagine that he would have spared a passing glance for the cold - blooded, poorly turned out animal on which he was mounted, and Rennie should certainly fire the groom for sending him off to a gymkhana with his horse's mane unbraided!

In turn the CBC should fire their horse advisers and find some expert more familiar with riding in the life and times of the Whiteoak family.

Planning Board and The "Official Plan"

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Your editorial last week regarding "the Official Plan" only makes people wonder why the suspense. A complete information on the details of such a document might be appropriate for you to undertake sometime.

I would venture to say at least 90 per cent of the properties within the city will be unaffected. But in order to have an acceptable plan, it is necessary to consider the future. It is useless to spend time or how dollars per person they found out the age, sex, origins, wealth, etc. of the population. What use has the board made of all this information?

Do you think the planning board really understands what their job is? I don't think they have done their homework and become knowledgeable as they are certainly not aware of the frustrations caused developers and business people, to say nothing about the municipal departments.

There is so little undeveloped land left in the city, it would appear that an official plan could be put together quite readily. The pattern is set. We already have two plans — the inner city core and the airport of 1959. You can be sure the outer A districts are going to resist change, but the fact of the matter is that change is inevitable.

Every zoning change seems to meet with considerable resistance but there are many situations that should be more logically designated. Many of the thousands of dollars it cost to change a remote, undeveloped area where the land is just from industrial to com nercial. Even central business area is too restrictive on what types of retail and service stores can locate.

Is there not some way we can have an entirely new approach to planning and development?

JOHN DEACON.

Of "Pepples" and Pebbles

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Perhaps you are receiving more mail from readers because people are coming in increasing numbers to Belleville from other cities.

Do you only expect flattery and no criticism? This is a tough old world and The Intelligencer must realize that intelligent, contrived or generous editorials will not be approved of. Since you are the only paper in town perhaps you indulge yourself in careless literacy. The Indo-Pakistan War compared with the golf game in Pebble Beach filled the ball on all counts. I am still sufficiently interested to restate it.

I must add that I know the difference between pepples and pebbles. Of course a pepple is red cousin to a pimple and a round pebble on a beach. Since the golf game occurred on a beach one could assume it must be called Pebble Beach because people play golf there.

California did you say? Good. I know where that is just as well as I know where India and Pakistan are. How does that help your comparison?

J. G.

Editor's Note: No comparison between the two topics (a war and a golf match) was either offered or intended. They serve merely to illustrate the editorial's theme of "decision making and the psychological moment."

Mr. Edington Boyd of Foxboro is being critical of the U. of B. article by 'Zombie', shows that he needs instruction.

The writing of Zombie was well thought out, well written, and certainly very correctly covers the ground.

Matters of this nature should be brought to public attention and the public would do well to digest such information.

Criticism is one thing, sarcasm another, and the two should not be joined.

The article was definitely not a 'vivid stroke'. Rather it was a very commendable straightforward report. Facts not frills.

Mr. Boyd should possibly have examined his information and thoughts a little more closely before having written.

Patients' Demands Boost Health Costs Says Queen's Director

By BARRY McCULLAGH
Staff Reporter

How can family doctors continue to look after their patients in a day when the latter may be seeking attention for trifles such as a "sore eyebrow"... one of the questions put to Dr. Reginald Anderson, medical coordinator of the Queen's self-care unit, when he addressed the Kiwanis Club yesterday.

Dr. Anderson replied by alluding to the shortage of physicians and resistance to change and noting there was no more deeply - entrenched individual in this category than "the average family doctor".

Doctors, he said, were practising first-class modern medicine, but they were practising it in the fashion of the era when their grandfathers were in practice.

Pointing out that changes were inevitable in medicine, Dr. Anderson said he did not think the process was going to be that drastic. Rather, what he thought was going on in the mind of the newly-appointed Ontario Minister of Health, Dr. Richard Potter of Belleville.

Asked what he thought the public could do in this situation, besides what was being done by government and the medical profession, Dr. Anderson said people could become more "oriented," more aware of services available.

Dr. Anderson expressed confidence in the long-term efficacy of the Queen's self-care unit — in fact it was already proving its worth — but he said when it was suggested to patients in hospital that they might transfer to the unit, at greatly reduced public cost, some declined. They say "we have paid for this and are going to stay."

"Every day a patient lies there he costs you an extra $30," said Dr. Anderson. The same mentality, he added, "drives these people to doctors' offices when they don't need to be there."

Earlier, in a broad survey of provincial and national health care, including developments leading up to the establishment of the self-care unit — the first in Canada — Dr. Anderson noted that Canadians currently spend more money per capita for health care than any other people in the world, and the amount was increasing.

Critical analysis, he said, doubted that the consumer was getting good value for the money spent, and one had gone so far as to state bluntly that "health care as purchased by Canadians is a poor bargain." The reasons for this were 'many, the most fundamental being the fact that there never had been a properly organized system of health care delivery.

Dr. Anderson cited the following as among the most important problems being faced: 1. There is a relative shortage of physicians in Canada, particularly in the field of family practice. Certain specialties such as psychiatry are in short supply. 2. Almost two-thirds of all newly-registered doctors in the provinces each year have been educated outside Ontario. 3. There is no way in the near, or distant, future that health science centres in Canada will produce enough physicians to meet the ever - increasing demands for these professionals. 4. In addition to a relative shortage of doctors there is a serious maldistribution of available doctors. 5. The forgoing facts apply even more to the dental profession. 6. There are enough nurses but in local areas shortages do exist from time to time. 7. The hospital - bed - population ratio in Ontario is higher than any place in the world and Ontarians occupy their hospital beds more often and stay in them longer than any other people in the world. 8. The costs of hospitalization are rounting at an appalling rate, as are all health care costs. 9. We are fast running out of health dollars.

Among the solutions offered to combat this situation in addition to the now - established self - help unit in Bellville, were re-allocation of professional responsibilities, such as using nurses to do much of the work now being performed by family doctors; the use of nurses aides or other personnel to relieve the nurses of tasks which do not require a trained professional; the organization and operation of community clinics to provide round-the-clock health services at a lessened cost to the public; program grants to educate the public as to the correct and economical use of health facilities and professionals, and various experiments to insure the proper and economical use of hospitals and related facilities.

A prime example of the cost-cutting procedure is the motel self-help unit. The cost of keeping a patient there is $56.65 a day, compared with $75 a day in the hospital. The unit has 20 beds. It proposes to build an 80-bed addition to the hospital would cost $7,000,000.

Dr. Anderson said much thought and effort were also being put into the home care program, while under study was the older section of the hospital, known as the extended care unit, to determine how the beds there can be used to best advantage. More over, the latest nursing home situation was being reviewed so that a plan may be formulated to incorporate this type of facility into the total health program.

Council Argues Road Closings, Street Names

TRENTON (Staff) — Closing roads, deciding not to close them, discussing the renaming of roadways and changing street names — all these matters occupied the attention of council here Monday.

Decision was taken during the evening to close Dundas Street East from Campbell to Flindall Streets for the period May 1 to June 30 while construction goes on to widen the artery from two to four lanes.

Traffic moving in and out of Trenton will be diverted along Bay Street, paralleling Dundas to the south.

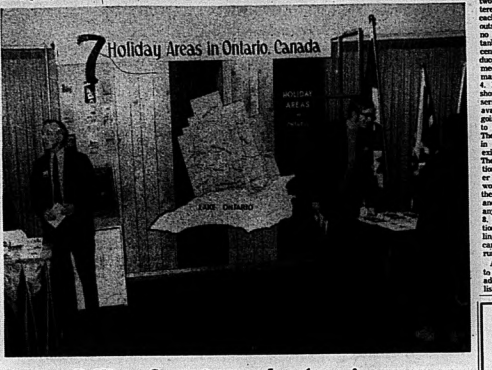
Council also determined last night that it will not close off south Herman St. from its access to Dundas East. It had been the intention of the town to block off Herman St. with the widening of Highway 2.

After a letter was read to council last night from Mr. and Mrs. Dale Mastin, who reside at the corner in question and object to the proposed sealing of the street, announcement came that the intention of council was reversed.

One street, however, was formally closed by last night's business. Access will no longer be permitted from Campbell St. directly onto Dixon Drive, although passage to Stella Crescent to Byron St. continues.

In the matter of name changes, council decided to initiate proceedings for having Tara Street stricken from the town's glossary of roadways. The short street, an extension of McCabe Street, will be known as McCabe once the change has been ratified by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Municipal action to have the name of Wragg St. altered took a new tack yesterday, with Councillor Paul Tripp suggesting that the currently favored name of Bayview Ave. be rejected.



He said this name is similar to the name of another street in Quinte Township and may lead to confusion in the minds of the people if Wragg St. becomes Bayview, too.

Council learned Monday that the Ontario department of transportation and communications is not prepared to contribute toward a study (estimated to cost between $6,000 and $8,000 that would determine whether Highway 2 should be redirected to follow Water St. rather than Front St. through an area of north Trenton.

Basis for the town's investigation of the possibility is stated. If Water St. were to be designated a "connecting link" Trenton would receive 75 percent of the cost for its rebuilding from the province.

If the highway is routed along Water St., two hazardous curves on Front St. would be bypassed.

The town was told by the department of transportation and communications "we consider a simple accurate study confined to the purpose of determining a cost comparison between routes should cost in the order of $1,000 to $1,500." No larger sum estimated by engineering consultants. Council will ask to see if consultants will prepare a cheaper study which the department may agree to undertake.

Survey Fails To Get Response

The community school concept for the west hill of the city may fall on its face if more interest is not generated and results from a recent survey start coming in.

Richard Austin, working with the city recreation department, told The Intelligencer yesterday, "we are trying to determine what the needs of the area are but we are running into a brick wall."

Mr. Austin, through a provincial make-work program, Project 500, was commissioned by the recreation department to write, distribute and compile results of the survey.

The survey deals specifically with the residents of the Queen Mary and Prince Charles school districts.

Mr. Austin personally approached each of the households with a copy of the survey, explained the reasons for it, and advised the occupant he would return in one week for the completed paper.

Out of the first 300 delivered across nine streets, 100 could be retrieved and only 17 of the questionnaires had been answered. Another 150 forms will be delivered.

"When I ask them if they are interested, they simply say 'no' and close the door," said Austin, a past student of Humber College in Toronto.

"We are trying to gather all the information that is available so that programing will not have to be a shot in the dark," he said. "If people will tell us what they want, we can arrange for the program if there are common areas of demand."

The idea of community schools is to open the doors of the building in out-of-school hours so that the neighborhood can make best possible use of the facility.

"Sitting down with the family, the survey should take no more than 15 minutes to complete," said Mr. Austin. "I can't understand the lack of interest.

"Of the 17 returns, almost all contained great interest was shown in the idea," he said. "There just aren't enough returns to show a trend of interest so that programs might be developed.

Another problem cropping up in the survey is the senior citizen faction of the west hill.

"Many say they are too old to participate in this kind of program, or just past that stage," said Mr. Austin. "The whole idea of the survey is to feel out the community's need and provide for it. This includes the needs of the senior citizens."

The survey results are scheduled to be back in the hands of Mr. Austin before Wednesday, Feb. 16. These will then be studied. Once conclusions have been reached, the information will be made available to organizers of programs.

"If the negative reaction of the area does not drastically improve, this date will have to be changed in the hope residents will sooner or later fill out the forms," said Mr. Austin.

If anyone has a problem completing the form, or if any further information is needed, Mr. Austin can be contacted by phoning 962-1403 at the recreation department.

Merchants Reminded

TRENTON (Staff) — Council took action last night to warn merchants aware of a four - year old bylaw that will require them to remove all overhanging signs from their shop - fronts by the end of 1972.

Deputy - clerk Arden Royce told the regular Monday meeting the town will advertise "to remind" those who still have signs projected more than 18 inches out over the streets of Trenton.

On a suggestion by Councillor Ted Parker, decision was also made to send the businessmen involved letters advising them of the regulation.

"We should make them aware directly - there are not that many of them involved," he said. The majority of shopkeepers have already acted to comply with the law.

Recreation Executive Elected

MADOC (Special) — The annual meeting of the Madoc Recreation Committee was held recently in the village council chambers, with the following committee members present: representatives from council, Clayton Smith and Robert Graham, members Earle Helps, Don Forestell, Beverley Keller, Sylvia Bailey, Barbara Keller, Robert MacKenzie, Rev. James Thompson, Allen Pigden, Rev. D. W. Heard, Terry Pigden, Ray Binch, Annette Taylor, Evelyn Browning, Tom Burnside, Doug Pigden, Jim Watson and Alan Armstrong.

Chairman Terry Pigden opened the meeting by calling for an election of officers and the following new executive was formed: president, Jim Watson, vice-chairman, Evelyn Browning; secretary, Allen Pigden, teenage representatives, Barbara Keller and Robert MacKenzie.

A motion was made that the recreation committee recommend to council that the provision of public recreational areas on Moira Lake be promoted.

It was decided to ask the village council for $1,000 for distribution to the summer playground program and other recreation committee activities.

Role of Miss Canada Is A Demanding One

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Miss Canada says her advice to her successors is to learn to say anywhere, anytime and develop a sense of humor.

"It isn't as glamorous as many people think."

Donna Sawicki, 18, the reigning Miss Canada, has done across country tour including five days at the Alert base on Ellesmere Island and also visited Panama. She will have a week each in Miami and Nassau on 22 European trips. Before she retires next November, she will have logged about 50,000 miles.

"It's a great opportunity, and I really love it, but it's the kind of thing you would only do once in your life. To do it again would be anti-climactic."

Miss Sawicki has taken a year off to be Miss Canada, but she says she intends to finish high school and eventually become a lawyer.

"I realized before I entered the Miss Canada contest that if I won, my life would not be my own, that everything would be planned for me."

Her two-week Christmas holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sawicki, was unexpectedly interrupted by trips to Toronto and Montreal.

Most of the trips involve radio or television interviews, sales meetings with companies promoting her trips, and photographic sessions. She entertains, attends parties, meets hundreds of people during long working days.

"I really shouldn't plan anything, because I never know if I can keep the engagement. I just have to take things day by day."

Donna put in a long apprenticeship before she got to the Miss Canada contest. She has been taking modelling lessons since she was 12, has worked as a modelling teacher and learned baton handling well enough to win awards.

JOINING THE FUN — Donna Sawicki, 18, the reigning Miss Canada, joins in a tug-o-war with students from the Ontario School for the Blind in Brantford, Ont., after opening the winter carnival. In her year as Miss Canada, which ends in November, she estimates she will have travelled about 50,000 miles and her advice to successors is to learn to nap anywhere, anytime, and develop a sense of humor. Communication Barrier Foremost in Zambia

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — The Canadian housewife in Zambia's western Africa republic, can find many things similar to life in Canada but must fight against difficulties as Moncton native Sandra Goodine has discovered.

The mother of three related in an interview while on holiday here how she has had to adapt has to cope with the lifestyle of a foreign land.

The Goodines went to Zambia when husband Ike accepted a request to establish a technical school in the young country. Mr. Goodine is a former principal of the New Brunswick Institute of Technology.

Mrs. Goodine's first difficulty stems overcoming a communication barrier with hired help. In Zambia, she explained, every person Goodine had to employ spoke several.

She recalled how one day she asked her servant: "Would you like to scrub the floor?" This typical American approach was met with the African response of reply of "No, madam. I wouldn't." Following which, the servant went home.

Mrs. Goodine said she soon learned that she had to change her requests to commands.

Another problem was getting good servicing for household products. At home, she noted, if a woman purchased a machine that did not work properly, it would be serviced within a week.

In Zambia, calls for service were met with reassurance that the problem would be resolved "in a week," which later became two months or longer.

Even when the service man came, she said, they would always "so sorry" for the delay.

Petty thievery was also a problem, particularly thievery. Most people who visited the Goodine village would take the opportunity to find work — and if denied work resorted to other ways of making a living.

Mrs. Goodine scoffed at stealing. Mrs. Goodine recalled, was to open window to hook watteveer lay in reach. Besides keeping an eye out for things walking home, Mrs. Goodine said, family has at least one large dog.

Mrs. Goodine found the Zambians eat much the same food as Canadians and wear modern clothes.

The younger native women preferred miniskirts and Afro wigs, while middle-aged women were more conservative Western dress. The older women still retained the "kitenge" two yards of material wrapped around them. The elderly were almost all bare-footed.

And shopping is almost the same as in Canada. In Kitwe, a city of 180,000 persons where the Goodines live, virtually anything can be bought at the two sprawling one-storey department stores, though, as Mrs. Goodine noted, there was a lack of favorite items.

The Goodines plan at least one more year in Zambia before returning to Canada. They have been there since 1969.

District Women's Institutes

SIDNEY SOUTH WI

The February meeting of Sidney South WI was held at the home of Mrs. G. Waite with a good attendance.

Mrs. G. Wilson presided and dealt with a number of business items.

Mrs. U. Perry showed a pistol which was over 200 years old, and the time it came to Canada with its owner, the voyage took about six weeks. This was a small gun in size and was carried in the waistcoat as a means of protection against highwaymen.

Mrs. G. Wilman and Mrs. W. Shortt will be attending WI anniversary celebrations in Toronto on Feb. 12. It was also decided to send the fee for the annual convention in Guelph.

Standing committee reports were given by Mrs. L. Cronkright on education, who noted that Thomas Wells had just been appointed Minister of Education and the possibility of year round attendance at universities to further utilize facilities and graduate more students per year.

Mrs. H. DeBoer gave a report on the Summary Day on "Sewing with Knits" and the presentation the WI put on.

Mrs. F. Meens gave the consumers' report on the wide variety of uses for salt and the new method of canning fruit for diabetics.

The program was under the leadership of Mrs. A. Smith, historical research and current events convener. She had prepared the highlights of each year of the Institute from 1960 to 1971. The scrapbook was passed around for each one to view.

The meeting was closed and lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants, Mrs. H. DeBoer and Mrs. E. Couperus.

During lunch, a fashion show was presented by those who had attended the sewing course. They were the outfits they had made, including dresses and slack outfits and gave a brief description of material and sewing methods.

Pictures were taken to start the 1972 scrapbook on WI highlights.

BONARLAW WI

BONARLAW — The Women's Institute held their meeting at the home of Mrs. W. J. Bates Thursday afternoon with 16 members and three visitors present. Mrs. Gerald Burkitt, vice-president, was in charge. Mrs. W. J. Barlow read the minutes and dealt with correspondence showing that the quilt brought $58.50 from the tickets sold.

From the card party a sum of $15.30 was earned and four members paid to the birthday initiating many new recreation programs.

The arrea commission and arena auxiliary donated the ice and canteen to the community event and a silver collection at the door was used for a farewell gift.

Farewell Party Held For Recreation Director

NAPANEE — Napanee and District Memorial Community Centre was the scene Friday night of a farewell skating party for former recreation director Deno Gettas.

Mr. Gettas has accepted a position with the Trenton parks and recreation department and began his duties this past week.

Director Gettas, a native of Tillsonburg, who has been the head of recreation in Napanee for three years, has been an asset to the community by initiating many new recreation programs.

Housewife Specializes In Making Sportswear

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Margaret Stepanic has seven children and a husband to cater for but so far the role of mother and housewife hasn't prevented her from starting her own business.

In November, 1970, Mrs. Stepanic organized the Loomar company, a set-up which sees her busy sewing as long as nine hours some days. She operates a sportswear manufacturing firm out of her home, specializing in snowmobile suits.

"It was something I always wanted to do," she said. "I'd always enjoyed sewing.

"I could see the need for this type of suit. A snowsuit is an essential part of winter for children . . . the demand is just enormous."

Since borrowing the funds necessary to start the self-made company—she did not want to tie up funds from her husband's sporting goods store—Mrs. Stepanic survived a year of learning.

"Lots of things went wrong," she said of her first year, during which she filled more than 200 orders.

"You almost have to plan your needs a year in advance. My first year was really one of guessing. Really, you just guess and hope."

Her busy schedule has been eased by the addition of a part-time assistant. Her daughters assist with pattern-cutting and bookkeeping.

Mrs. Stepanic said she could complete six adult or 10 children's snowmobile suits in a full nine-hour day.

Book Helps Banish 'Old Wives' Tales

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Old wives' tales finally made Ken Walker so mad, he wrote a book to help banish them.

The Niagara Falls gynecologist says he was constantly polled in his attempts to treat some of his patients because of misinformation they had from old friends' advice rather than his.

"So I thought putting things down in black and white might impress them more."

Under the pseudonym of Gil-ford-Jones, MD, Dr. Walker wrote, Being A Woman. In it he talks about women's bodily makeup and functions, their origins, means of propagation.

Dr. Walker says the book has made him a maverick among doctors because he has laid blame upon his own kind for much of women's ignorance.

He says there are two main areas of misinformation that cause women problems and Dr. Walker much frustration.

"The first is that many is one. Ninety-nine per cent of women feel they're going to have a beard or go insane or lose all their sexual desire.

"And this just isn't so."

Menopause is another area of misinformation, he says, and there are three mistakes women make at menopause.

"The first is in not taking an estrogen pill. The second is in taking it for only a short time. The third mistake is in thinking you can only take estrogen by injection."

He says natural estrogen can benefit the menopausal women in several ways.

"Menopause is perhaps the most important age for women and the doctor must tell his patient all about it."

He points out the average age of death for a woman in 1900 was 48. Now it is 72 or 74, which means she has almost a whole new life with which to deal and he feels she needs help to make the most of the extra years.

Dr. Walker has four children but is a crusader against overpopulation. He says he became acutely aware of its problems during the last few years, partly as a result of his work on the book. He says he will supply his daughter with birth control pills when she is old enough to be interested in boys.

"Juvenile delinquency, crime, drug addiction and pollution all relate to over-population. It's over-population in a t . . . the major disease of our time, not cancer.

"We must promote birth control and therapeutic abortion and put an end to this disastrous population growth."

He says hospital abortion committees are worse than useless.

"A committee decision is not worth a damn. No one believes in it and no one is responsible for it. The issue should be between a doctor and his patient, and the patient must decide."

No Acclaim for Father of Quints

Dear Doris: I read the letter from Sentimental asking for the poem about the Dionne Quintuplets. My mother's scrap book yields the following:

"Every time Dr. Dafoe makes his simplest observation or when one of the Dionne babies smiles or cries or when the proud mother of five - at once wishes to speak, listeners and radio carry the message from one corner of the globe to the other.

"We, and many others, have wondered why nobody thinks of the father. But perhaps it's all for the best, according to the way Wilson MacDonald expresses Papa Dionne's feelings in a poem entitled Canadian Canadian, 'Quintrains of Calendar'."

— Mrs. J. H. C.

Dear Mrs. J. H. C.: Wilson MacDonald is the poem, suggests that Papa Dionne was so overwhelmed by the time the fifth baby came that "what the ole man say beenask" 'cets bes' you shouldn't know."

So thanks to you and several other readers, the "Quintrains of Calendar" poem is now available for the usual 20 cents and eight-cent-stamped envelope.

Dear Doris: My mother is always after me to get my homework done, but no matter what I do my mind seems to wander. I have a little radio beside me and it seems to me that if I keep the music playing softly, this helps me to concentrate.

What do you think about this? Have you any suggestions for me? — Daydreamer.

Dear Daydreamer: Studies made in industry have indicated the usefulness of a certain type of background music in helping workers to maintain a good pace and at the same time to enjoy what they are doing. I am afraid however, that this applies more to physical exertion than to the use of the mind.

I cannot help but think that a little radio beside your study book, with the kind of music and message that would be bringing to you, would be distracting.

In any case, I am sending you my leaflet "How To Study". This has suggestions which not to ring the bell for any daydreamer. Remember, we are not born with a capacity to concentrate, and a great deal is asked of our students these days.

Yet if you learn, early in life, to become absorbed in what you are working on — in short, if you can learn to concentrate right now — you will have a control of your mind which will stand you in good stead all your life.

(Note to readers, the leaflet "How To Study" has been let How To Study" has been helpful to many students. It may be obtained by writing in and asking for it, enclosing 20 cents and a eight-cent-stamped, self-addressed, envelope.

Dear Doris: May I say that I visited "Madame Tussaud's Caves" when 12 years old, at which time I purchased the prophesies and a replica of the cat made in porcelain and still have it. I am 70 years this year, so have had it quite a time.

Your article about "Mother Shipton" is the first time I've every heard it mentioned in this country. Many have noticed my cat, as it has "Mother Shipton's Cat" printed right on it.

Do hope you can supply a copy of her prophecies as I lost mine many years ago, but found a lot of her prophecies did come true. (Twenty cents and stamped envelope enclosed). — Britisher.

Dear Britisher: A copy is on its way to you. I wonder how many replicas of that cat were turned out, commercial purposes?

Small-town Girl Now Cabinet Minister

EDMONTON (CP) — Helen Hunley will tell you she's just a small-town girl who doesn't know what goes on in the big city—especially in politics.

WOMAN CABINET MINISTER — Helen Hunley, Alberta's only woman cabinet minister, has been in politics for 11 years, including five as mayor of Rocky Mountain House, Alta. The 51-year-old brunette says women must adopt a positive approach, and "radiate a belief that we're equal, that there can't possibly be any discrimination." (CP Photo).

But she's got a lot more than small-town experience—she looks much younger although she's definitely not—and says women must be more positive about their status.

"If women must adopt a positive approach—radiate a belief that we're equal, that there can't possibly be any discrimination."

She said that women are "programmed to feel inferior," although she definitely doesn't and said she's never felt discriminated against.

"If it's there I've never noticed it. I made my way in a man's world . . . I never noticed any discrimination. I just did my thing."

Her ministry is classified as a part-time job, so she commutes twice a week to her home in Rocky Mountain House, 150 miles southwest of Edmonton, where she continues to oversee her insurance company.

"It's my pension plan."

She had planned "to semiretire" this year by getting up her mayoralty position. Instead, at the urging of Progressive Conservative leader Peter Lougheed, she entered politics.

"In a way it was a Liberal who got me involved."

She'd been critical of a federal Liberal representative at a meeting in 1967 and he'd asked her what she was doing to change things through party action.

"I wasn't in a party, so I couldn't answer."

So she started working with a party.

Her cabinet duties put her in charge of several divisions, including the women's bureau.

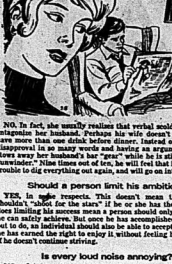
She's been outspoken in the past about separate organizations for men and women, so she was asked if she considered a women's bureau necessary.

"I kind of wonder if there should be a women's bureau when there's not a men's bureau or a boy's bureau or what have you."

However, she sees many of the problems that the bureau deals with as important. For example, it often helps those who don't know how to use existing departments.

And just because she's never felt discrimination doesn't mean that she isn't aware that there are women who do.

She especially wants to hear from women who aren't organized and who don't know how to make their grievances known.



"I get lots of information from the organized women's groups—and it's all valuable. But I think—I don't know but I think—there is a gaping hole in who we hear from."

She's particularly interested in hearing from women within the labor force, "especially the blue-collar working girl," the waitresses, cooks, cleaning women, garment workers and the like.

One of my main themes has always been for greater involvement of women—not because they're women, but because they're 50 per cent of the population."

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CORWELL

Must a wife voice her disapproval?

NO. In fact, she usually realizes that verbal scolding will only antagonize her husband. Perhaps his wife doesn't want him to have more than one drink before dinner. Instead of putting her disapproval in so many words and having an argument, she just slows away her husband's bar "gear" while he is still sipping his cumwinder." Nine times out of ten, he will feel that it is too much trouble to dig everything out again, and will go on into dinner.

Should a person limit his ambition?

YES, in some respects. This doesn't mean that someone shouldn't, "shoot for the stars" if he or she has the ability. Nor does limiting his success mean a person should only try for what he can safely achieve. But once he has accomplished what he set out to do, no individual should also be able to accept the fact that he has earned the right to enjoy it without feeling he is a failure if he doesn't continue striving.

Is every loud noise annoying?

NO, a lot depends upon what each noise means to the person hearing it. A mother lying awake will be angry and upset over the racket raised by youngsters racing their cars down the street. But wait until she hears a familiar roar signaling the return of her own son coming home for the night. As his car swoosh to a halt and the door is slammed shut, the mother closes her eyes in sleep, thankful for the noise that is music to her ears.

Church Groups

WESLEYAN METHODIST WMS

The January meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Belleville Wesleyan Methodist Church was held in the church parlor with president Mrs. Nellie Greenwood in charge.

Following the treasurer's report, some thank-you letters were acknowledged and motion was made to give the receipts from the WMS public service to the "Kathy Heber" fund. A letter was read from the Bray family in New Guinea. Those present were invited to attend a quilting that evening.

Mrs. Vivian Trotter spoke on "Time to Take Christ to our Community" and Mrs. Ruth Babcock followed with a demonstration of coffee party evangelism which many of the district women are involved in. She was assisted in the skit by Mrs. Aileen Blakely and Mrs. Mildred Shetler. These home Bible study groups are without denominational barriers and offer an opportunity to share the fact that the Bible is relevant to home and family problems.

Congregational singing was led by Mrs. Helen Spearman and Mrs. Blakely sang a solo.

Vice-president Mrs. Joyce LeRoy closed the meeting.

Ann Landers

Can Only Tolerate Mom's Cooking

Dear Ann Landers: I have been reading your column for a long time hoping someone would write with the same problem I have but no one has, and I am getting desperate. I'm a teenager who can't eat in a restaurant or at anyone's home without vomiting.

There is nothing wrong with the food. It's me. I've tried eating lightly—like a cottage cheese and fruit plate, or a tuna salad—but it's the same story. I get the dry heaves and then I must excuse myself. It's so embarrassing I could die.

I'm a little overweight and I love my mother's cooking, but this is ridiculous. Our family doctor says nothing is wrong with me, that I will outgrow it. But I'll be going away to college in two years and I need to get over this thing now. Please tell me what to do.—Up-Chucked In Flint.

Dear U: Go to another doctor. Get a complete physical. If a second doctor tells you there is nothing wrong with you, tell him people do not vomit for no reason. If there is any organic problem it must be emotional, in which case I urge you to get some counselling and learn why you cannot tolerate anyone's cooking except your mother's.

Dear Ann Landers: Your column is an education. If people read not only the letters and your answers but also the hidden meanings between the lines, they would learn a great deal. I refer to the letter from the mother who was concerned because her husband insisted that their young son learn to fight.

Your male who teaches his child to resort to physical violence to prove his masculinity must have serious doubts about his own maleness. Our culture does not need any more men who can prove themselves only through brutality. We are brutal enough. A history of three wars in the last 30 years bears mute testimony to the damning evidence—Ashamed Of Us.

Dear Ashamed: How true. "Man's inhumanity to man mourn."

Dear Ann Landers: Your high praise for good psychiatric counselling prompted this letter. During the 1950s I was hospitalized seven times. The stays were as short as four days, and as long as five months. Each time I went home my psychiatrist said: "You'll have to do it yourself." I didn't know what I was supposed to do. He tried to guide, bear, but I didn't understand.

Three years ago a friend suggested a new approach. I decided I had nothing to lose so I went to a meeting of Recovery, Inc. I suddenly understood what my doctor had been trying to tell me and listened to grave me hope I left the first meeting with renewed spirit, sure I could make it. I've become a regular and the group has done so much for me I find it difficult to express my gratitude without sounding like a fanatic.

Will you please tell other about Recovery, Inc. in your column. Any? They have no price to offer, and so many nervous and emotionally ill people can help these days.—Lassing Dee.

Dear Lassing: I have printed letters similar to yours, but it is time for another. Thank you for providing it.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

SENIOR CITIZENS CLUB

A good attendance was recorded at the recent meeting of the Senior Citizens Club in 94 held at the Recreation Centre.

To open the meeting a moment of silence was observed in memory of John Preston, a charter member, who when health permitted was a most active member.

A cordial welcome was extended especially to the eight new members. The birthday song was sung for, those having a birthday in February. The party for these Mrs. Luella Wood were in honor. Mrs. Vickers turned in a nice sum of money for the euchres and announced that the Monday euchres have been cancelled. A few other business items were discussed.

Mrs. Adams thanked Mr. and Mrs. Bulmer and their helpers for preparing the lunch. The draw was won by Stuart Glew, one of the new members.

Mrs. Bedell introduced Mr. and Mrs. Novroski and their children who provided entertainment for the program and their music was greatly enjoyed by the members.

Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

BETA SIGMA PHI

GAMMA MU CHAPTER

On February 1, Mrs. D. Pordham hosted a regular meeting of Beta Sigma Phi Gamma Mu Chapter, at her home.

It was announced by Mrs. A. Mott that the bake sale held on January 29 at Quinte Mall was successful. Mrs. J. Sherry read a report from the Quinte Arts Council which asked members to renew membership.

The president, Mrs. C. Row bottom, read a letter from the North Bay City Council telling of the recently completion to be held June 2-4.

Mrs. A. Fulton introduced Mrs. D. Ellis who was a pioneer for the evening. Home made preserves, baking and handicraft items were among the articles being sold. Prize for the project, a pedal of it was realized for the chapter treasury.

Mrs. Ellis was thanked by Mrs. Pordham.

Following the sale, coffee and dessert were served.

Lighting Is Important In Decorating

TORONTO (CP) — When you are decorating a room, with all the other things you have to think of, you should think of the direction from which the light comes.

Craig Carter says: "The selection of colors is probably one of the most difficult steps to take when redecorating or setting up a home.

"You people realize that lighting has tremendous effect on the end result. For example, in rooms with a northern exposure, warm or hot colors are much more suitable since there is less sunlight, creating a cool or blue light. Obversely, a southern exposure is better for cool or neutral tones in furnishings, since the sun's rays add their own glow to the decor."

Mr. Carter is marketing manager of Trointer and Co., a furniture manufacturing firm.

He says the mixing of colors is a personal thing, but basic rules begin with using two or more colors in a scheme and by blending strong colors with neutrals. Use patterned upholstery, for example, with solid colors in floor coverings and drapes.

His firm is one involved in a new merchandising approach introduced at the Canadian Furniture Mart. They have put together full-color brochures showing room settings in various styles and containing swatches of upholstery fabrics and carpets, organized so they can be mixed to give a prospective buyer an idea of how a room would look completed, without marching her from department to department.

The participating companies will put the brochures into department stores and large furniture stores that carry their products.

"The greatest emphasis will be on color," says Mr. Carter, "since many consumers today are furnishing piece by piece, rather than buying suites."

Help Afflicted

MONTREAL CP — A crafts workshop with room to train and employ 20 English and French young people will give mentally handicapped men and women a chance to use their creative abilities in weaving and embroidery and earn a living at the same time. "Because they are naive and so free, they are at times better than other craftsmen," says director Louise Annett.

Redmond's Eight-goal Week Makes Him NHL's Hottest Player

MONTREAL (CP) — The hottest point-getter in the National Hockey League today?

Statistics released by the league Monday show it is neither Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins nor Jean Ratelle of New York Rangers, but right winger Mickey Redmond of Detroit Red Wings.

Since each of the 14 teams passed its 30-game, half-way marks for the season, Redmond has picked up 21 points in 15 games, three more than any other player.

Detroit acquired Redmond last season along with forwards Bill Collins and Guy Charron from Montreal Canadiens in exchange for Frank Mahovlich.

In his last 15 games, Redmond has scored 12 goals and added nine assists. Only Reggie Martin, Buffalo Sabres rookie left winger, has scored as many goals in the same stretch.

Redmond's outburst has brought his season total to 37 points on 22 goals and 25 assists. Mahovlich also has 37 points.

Esposito, meanwhile, continues to lead all scorers with his equal distribution of 44 goals and 44 assists in 53 games for 88 points, two more than Ratelle.

Last week the big Boston centre was able to score only one goal in four games, while Redmond, leading point-getter for the week, had eight including a three-goal game Sunday.

But Esposito has 19 goals in the Bruins last 14 games. He and New York's Rod Gilbert are runners-up to Redmond in points for the second half with 18.

Defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston is third in the scoring race with 77 points and leads in assists with 54, one more than Ratelle.

Gilbert is fourth with 76 points, one more than linemate Vic Hadfield.

Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks has 69 points for sixth place, nine points more than Redmond, who is tied with Hull as runners-up to Esposito in goals, each with 37.

Chicago Black Hawks meanwhile, continue to maintain a strong lead in the goaltenders' race for the Vezina Trophy. Tony Esposito recorded his seventh shutout of the season and his average of 1.75—lowest personal mark in the league—combined with Gary Smith's 2.10 gives Chicago a 1.86 over-all average.

Switzerland Has New Ski Queen, Canada May Have Budding One

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Switzerland has a new ski queen today, double gold medal winner Marie Therese Nadig, and Canada perhaps a budding one in Laurie Kreiner of Timmins, Ont. Both are just 17.

Marie Therese, green-eyed and apple-cheeked, replaced Canada's Nancy Greene as the women's Olympic giant slalom champion, winning the race in a blinding snowstorm.

Laurie, a five-foot-five 130 pounder, finished fourth. She missed a bronze medal by 13-100ths of a second. Only one other Canadian had ever done better—Nancy, now the wife of Canadian coach Al Raine, who won her gold medal four years ago in the giant slalom and a silver in the slalom at Grenoble, France.

Wearing a four-leaf clover for luck, Miss Nadig burst down the serpentine 1,350-metre course on Mount Teine and flawlessly skirted its 31 gates in one minute 29.90 seconds to again beat out Annemarie Proell of Austria —just as she had done in the opening downhill race Saturday. Wilfrud Drexel of Austria won the bronze.

Marie Therese is only the second woman to win two Olympic gold medals in Alpine skiing. The first double winner was Andrea Mead Lawrence of the United States, who took the slalom and giant slalom in the 1952 Games.

The snowstorm broke during the runs of the top-seeded girls. But Miss Kreiner, in the second seed, had clearing weather for her test. Her performance was by far the best by a Canadian skiers.

Miss Nadig, starting 10th, said the visibility was especially poor in the steep part of the course. Nevertheless, she won by a margin of more than a full second.

Miss Proell was the second entry to go down in the snowstorm and she posted a time of 1:30.75. Beaten by the flick of an eyelash by Miss Nadig in the downhill, the Austrian World Cup leader turned her back to the course today when the Swiss champion came down.

After the announcement of Miss Nadig's time, Miss Proell said glumly: "It does not matter to me."

LAURIE KREINER

Miss Dreixel clocked 1:32.52 and Miss Kreiner 1:32.48.

As just about everyone expected, Russian couples won gold and silver medals in the pairs figure skating in which the sister-brother duo of Sandra and Val Bezic of Toronto placed ninth in a field of 17.

The impossible weather conditions forced postponement of the individual biathlon—a test of shooting and skiing skills—and cancellation of practice sessions in ski jumping, men's down's luge and four-man bobsled.

World champion Ondrej Nepela of Czechoslovakia took the lead in the men's figure skating after the first three of six compulsory figures. Nepela was placed first by eight judges and second by another for a total of 10 ordinals.

Patrick Pera of France, runner-up to Nepela in the 1971 world championships at Lyon, France, was second, receiving six second placings and three thirds for 21 ordinals. Sergei Tchetveroukhin of Russia placed third with 26. Ken Seeley of the United States was fourth among 17 skaters.

Pera, 22-year-old Paris an who took a bronze four years ago, said of Nepela: "He never makes mistakes. I do."

In the giant slalom race there was little doubt that the snowstorm hampered several seeded skiers. Five skiers from the second seed finished in the first 18 —all competed when the weather cleared.

Rosi Speiser of West Germany posted 1:32.56, a clocking that earned fifth place. She was in the second seed. Fourance Sterer of France, one of the storm skiers, finished sixth with 1:32.59. Second-seeded Olivia Galica of Britain was seventh in 1:32.72, Traudl Treichl of West Germany ninth in 1:33.08 and Maria Buehler of Lichtenstein 10th in 1:33.15.

Pair Repeats

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — World champions Irina Rodnina and Alexei Ulanov of Russia won the gold medal in the pairs figure skating at the Winter Olympics today with a nearly flawless performance.

The Soviet Union also captured the silver medal with a standout performance by Ludmila Smirnova and Andrei Sourkikin. The bronze went to an imaginative and fine skating East German team, Manuela Gross and Uwe Kagelmann.

Jo Jo Starbuck and Kenneth Shelley of the United State were fourth.

Miss Rodnina slipped and s most fell shortly after the star to use program.

She smiled occasionally b Ulanov remained expressionless. They had been reported speaking of a result of broken romance when Mis Rodnina fell in love with a other Russian at home.

Czechs Take Over Top Hockey Spot by Trimming Finland

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — Czechoslovakia, smarting from a 5-1 loss to the United States, took its anger out on Finland, winning 7-1 in the only hockey game scheduled today at the Winter Olympics.

The No. 2 ranked Czechs scored six goals in the second and third periods. They took over first place in the championship six-team round-robin.

Finland, now 1-2, is tied for fourth with the United States which split its two games thus far. Poland is pointless after two games.

The Czechs piled up a 6-0 lead before Finland managed to score at 8:29, when Heiki Jaern blasted home a 40-footer with Czech goalie Vladimir Dzurilla well screened.

Czechoslovakia peppered the Finnish goal with 40 shots.

"It's hard to compare the two teams," Czech coach Jaroslav Pitner said when asked how the Czechs could handle the Finns so easily after the loss to the U.S. "But yesterday our team was tired and today, because of the loss, I put more emphasis on defence."

Pair of Quinte Hoop Teams Boast Only Spotless Records

Quinte Secondary School continued to have the only unbeaten entries in the junior section of the Bay of Quinte OSSA league by sweeping a triplebeader from Nicholson Monday night.

The seniors broke open a tight battle at the half to record a 34-45 decision, while the juniors were piling up a 70-34 margin over Nicholson. The midget Saints recorded their sixth win in seven games by walloping Nicholson 42-30. Their only loss has been to the unbeaten BCI midgets.

Barry Culkin led a balanced senior attack for Quinte's win, after the Saints led only 27-24 at half time. Stan Brooks and Rick Meagher each contributed eight points for the winners with Tim Calhane netting 11 and John Garvin eight for the losers.

A pressing zone defence and the rebounding strength of Brian Hale, Terry Collins and Stu Boardman helped the Quinte juniors to their 70-34 win. Don McTaggart paced the winners with 21 points, while John Gorman managed seven in a losing effort.

In midget play the Saints led 23-19 after two quarters, pouring in 58 points in the final half. "It's the first game all year that we've really been running and playing defence," noted winning coach Rick Locke.

Rick Bradford and Ron Cook were standouts for the winners controlling the boards and playing tight defence.

One-Armed Driver

Quinte's Terry Collins gathers the ball in with one hand as he prepares to drive around Mark Coates of Nicholson Catholic College in last night's Bay of Quinte CO...A basketball game. Collins helped the junior Saints connect a 76-34 win to run their unbeaten streak to seven games and give his Quintebird a three-game sweep over Nicholson.

Smith Couldn't Win!

It was one of those nights for Paul Smith: The Mustangs' goaltender saw his own team edged 2-1 by Mead Johnson in the first Gas House Hockey League game Monday The night wasn't over, however, as Smith filled in for Stewart Warner, who were minus their regular goalie. It was the same old story as Smith and his new teammates were blanked 4-0 by Warnsmaker's Esso.

The win by Wannamaker's kept them within striking range of the eighth-place Mustangs in the battle for the final playoff position in the 11-team league. The Esso team trail by three points with three games left to play in the schedule.

Terry Trice scored the first goal of the game, prevailing all the support required for goalie Paul Nobles. Trice and Rick Shay each collected a goal and assist to pace the winners' scoring attack. Other Wannamaker goals went to Bill Yull and Dave Pye.

The winners were penalized twice with Stewart Warner committing the rule infractions.

Defenceman Ted Rowland scored his second winning goal in three games, collecting Bob Schmidt's pass for the deciding marker in Mead Johnson's 2-1 victory over the Mustangs.

Ralph Brant had scored the first goal for Mead Johnson, while Pug Kellar was the lone Mustang goal-getter. Each team drew one penalty.

Royals Threaten To Leave League

WOODSTOCK (CP) —Woodstock Royals of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series have exhausted their budget and are seriously considering ceasing operations immediately after Friday night's home game against Belleville Quinte, team president John Van Boekel said today.

"If we haven't got big crowds for these next two games we'll fold on Friday night," Van Boekel said. The Royals have another homestand tonight against Galt Hornets.

"We've averaged only $250 at the gate for our last five home games," said Van Boekel. The team payroll alone is $950 a week with each road trip averaging $1,000 in bus fares and each home game more than $100 in arena expenses.

Van Boekel cited a figure of $1,000 in gate receipts for each of the Galt - Belleville games as necessary to finish out the season "unless there is more money coming from somewhere."

The team could survive, it was reported, if the players agreed to play without pay but the executive considered this possibility unlikely.

The Royals are in fifth place in the eight - team league, with six games to go in the regular season. They are the first Woodstock club in four years to be in good position to make the playoffs, which includes the top six clubs.

Earlier in the season Belleville and Owen Sound Crescents were in financial difficulties and received several public donations to continue operations.

'Boots' Visiting Belleville

'BOOTS' DAY

The Montreal Expos have had some disappointments in their major league baseball seasons, but Charles "Boots" Day hasn't been one of them.

The 24 - year - old outfielder batted .281 in his first full season with Montreal, who acquired him from Chicago Cubs early in the 1970 season.

Day, travelling with the 10-stop Expos Ontario coaches' clinic that wound up Saturday, will be in Belleville Wednesday night in a sort of pinch-hitting role.

He will be the guest of the Quinte Chapter of the Industrial Management Clubs of Canada, whose planned visit by the Expos' Ron Brand last month failed to materialize.

The public is invited to attend Wednesday's dollar-a-plate buffet at the Bay Drive Oddfellows' Hall, beginning at 7 p.m.

Day, who batted .269 in 41 games with the Expos during his first season, was one of only three players on the club to exceed the .280 mark last summer.

Ski Report

Oak Hills Ski Club will be operating tonight from 6:30-10 p.m. and Wednesday 1-4:30 p.m.

Quintes Hit Road

No matter what happens in their senior hockey season, the fate of Belleville entries always seems to boil down to what they do in their games with Kingston.

That currently applies to Belleville Quintes, who travel to the Limestone City tonight for what could be a vital win — or a critical loss.

With six games remaining, only four points separate the last - place Quintes and fifth-place Woodstock in the eight-team OHA Senior A league, but Belleville is facing a four - game schedule in the next five nights in their run for the gate and final playoff spot.

Three of those games are on the road.

Wednesday night the Quintes are due in Barrie for the replay of last Friday's stormy, restrained game. Friday night they're off on the exhausting 210 - mile bus trek to Woodstock, with the Royals, with the Royals repaying the visit here Saturday.

The schedule closes the following weekend with a road trip to Oshawa — when the Quintes dumped 6-4 and 4-2 in help-lasts two outings — and a home stand against Kingston's Aces.

CFL Hears Bid

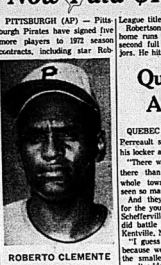
MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Football League's annual meeting, beginning today, deals with expansion, future Grey Cup sites and the annual draft of Canadian college players among the items on the lengthy agenda.

Apart from the college draft slated for tonight, much of the first two days will be taken up by discussion and recommendations at the general manager level, with the final decisions on most subjects coming when the entire executive gets together in Thursday session.

Whether or not the CFL decides to expand to New York or other Canadian cities, it is expected the meetings will bring forth a full-fledged expansion committee—a group that would be called on to study any future expansion bids, plus the cost and terms of reference of any future franchises, including draft procedures.

The prime candidate for a franchise, Robert J. Schnertz of Lakewood, N.J., will not attend the meeting. Schnertz has filed the first formal application to come before the CFL since British Columbia Lions joined the league in 1954.

If successful, Schnertz intends to operate his club in New York's Yankee Stadium for the 1973 season.



The general managers are expected to study a proposal that the import quotas for Canadian clubs be raised to 16 from the current 14 now Canadian players now allowed each team.

The committee will also study demands from the CFL Players' Association and set the date for the annual all-star game when the all-stars meet defending Grey Cup champion Calgary Stampeders in the western city next June.

Clemente Earns Raise, Now Paid $150,000 to Bucs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates have signed five more players to 1972 season contracts, including star Rob

ROBERTO CLEMENTE

erto Clemente who signed for a reported $150,000.

Pitchers Dock Ellis and Jim Nelson, first baseman Bob Robertson, and centre fielder Al Oliver were the others to sign the club announced Monday.

Pirate general manager Joe L. Brown did not reveal the amount of Clemente's contract, but sources close to the Pirates said the 37-year-old outfielder was receiving a $25,000 raise.

Brown dismissed reports that Clemente was demanding $200,000 for this year. He said the rumor had come from a friend of Clemente's.

Ellis, 19-9 last year, was the starting pitcher in last season's all-star game. His 19 victories were the most for a Pirate pitcher since Vernon Law won 20 in 1960. The right-handed Ellis won 13 straight during one stretch in 1971.

Oliver led the club in doubles last season, hit .282 with 14 home runs and 64 RBIs. His three-run homer in the fourth game of the playoff game against San Francisco Giants gave the Bucs the National League title.

Robertson batted .281, had 26 home runs and 72 RBIs in his second full season in the majors. He hit six homers in post season play.

Nelson appeared in 17 games in relief and compiled a 2-3 record before he was sent to Charleston at mid-season.

Sport Briefs

NEW YORK (AP) — Josh Gibson, the legendary slugging catcher of baseball's black leagues who played most of his career with the Homestead Grays of Pittsburgh, was expected to be named to baseball's Hall of Fame today.

Gibson, who died at the age of 35 in 1947, was considered the leading candidate for election by the Cooperstown, N.Y., shrine by a special committee of nine men, who last year elected pitcher Leroy Satchel Paige.

Paige was the first player to be selected from the Negro leagues in the pre-1947 category.

NEW YORK (AP) — Grier Jones' $40,000 victory in last week's Hawaiian Open boosted him among the top 10 money winners for the first time in his career. Figures released Monday by the Professional Golfers Association Tournament Players Division show that Jones raised his earnings for the year to $47,962, jumping from 19th place to second behind leader George Archer.

The top 10 money-winners after the Hawaiian Open:

1. Archer $50,877. 2. Jones, $47,962. 3. Bob Murphy, $39,647. 4. Miller Barber, $36,681. 5. Paul Harney, $33,476. 6. Jack Nicklaus, $30,225. 7. Hale Irwin, $26,611. 8. Johnny Miller, $21,347. 9. Tom Weiskopf, $20,111. 10. Dave Hill, $19,292.

TORONTO (CP) — Keith Waples of Durham, Ont., moved closer to a new money-winning record at a Greenwood Raceway meeting as he drove four winners Monday night to push his season's purse earnings over the $50,000 mark.

Waples, who set a money-winning record of $56,266 during Greenwood's 1969 winter meet, also had three seconds Monday. He now has 28 victories during the first 22 days of the meet.

His closest competitor in the purse race is Ron Fegan with $30,000, while Ross Curran has the next highest number of wins —16.

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs today had 33 players in the fold for 1972 with the signing of outfielder-first baseman Jim Hickman and pitcher Larry Gura and infielder Carmin Fanzone.

Only five clubs remain unsigned, including veteran outfielder Billy Williams, a $100,000 signee last season; third baseman Ron Santo; outfielder Jose Cardenal, acquired from the Milwaukee Brewers; pitcher Joe Decker, and catcher Frank Fernandez.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues have signed former Canadian national goalie Wayne Stephenson to a National Hockey League contract. The Blues said Monday they haven't decided whether to keep the rookie in St. Louis or send him to a minor league club. Stephenson was signed Friday.

Quebec Tournament Awes Little Gilles

QUEBEC (CP) — Little Gilles Perreault sank wearily against his locker and shook his head:

"There were more people out there than there are in my whole town. God, I've never seen so many people."

And they were all cheering for the young defenceman from Schefferville, Que., as his team did battle with a much bigger Kentville, N.S. squad.

"I guess they cheered for us because we're smaller and I'm the smallest of the lot," Perreault added.

"The little guys are popular here."

The tiny defenceman, who stretches to four feet, six inches, proved that size is not everything.

He slid to the ice to block shots, bodied players twice his size away from the net Perreault broke up countless rushes as his team played the Nova Scotia entry to a 3-3 tie. Schefferville was awarded the win after the teams were stalemated after five periods, three regulation and two more of sudden-death overtime. The northern Quebec team picked up the victory by virtue of a 9-5 margin in shots on goal during the overtime play.

Toronto Blues started it with a 5-2 win over Beauport, P.Q., in Class AA play. In other AA games, Toronto Don Valley, last year's champions, humiliated Quebec City D.S.N. 10-0, Toronto Willowdale downed Montreal Hochelaga 6-2, and Montreal Ahuntsic upended Toronto Dixie Royals 5-3.

The Dixie Royals loss marked the first time in the tournament that a Toronto team had lost to a team from outside that city.

In Class A competition, La-Salle, Que., scored twice with less than two minutes remaining in the game to edge Peterborough, Ont. 2-1. Richmond Hill, Ont., scored by Montreal North 3-2. Oshawa, Ont., took Ste. Foy, Que. 5-1 and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., defeated Gloucester, 7-1.

Asbestos, Que. defeated Bathurst, N.B. 4-0 in the lone Class B game while Hay River, N.W.T. downed Caughnawaga, Que., by the same score in Class C action.

The Schefferville-Kentville game had the crowd of 11,211 rising to its feet time and time again.

Schefferville jumped into a 2-0 second-period lead on two goals by Terry Edmunds but Kentville came alive and scored twice within two minutes to tie the game.

Pierre Loignon pushed the Peewee team into a 3-2 lead at 1:06 of the third period but Joseph McGinn tied the score with his second of the game. Archie Johnson scored the other goal for the losers.

The first overtime period saw action seesaw from one end of the rink to the other.

And the little guy, Perreault, had the crowd on its feet after the game ended.

"Everytime I looked up, there was one of these monsters looking down at me," he said after the game.

"That number 17 (Seamone) is going to isn't he?"

Dave Zannatta of Sault Ste Marie scored three in his team's win over Gloucester.

After Michel Hurtubise's goal at 12:07 of the third period tied the game, Real Daigneault scored at 14:55 to give Verdun a come-from-behind win over Peterborough.

Paul McDougall scored the Peterborough goal.

SIGNS WITH ARGOS

TORONTO (CP) — Ron Mikolajczyk, fullback from Loyola in Montreal, has signed with Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League club announced Monday. The 5-foot-four, 210-pound lineman is a product of the same school as Leon McQuay, a non-Argonaut running back with Toronto last season.

SUSPEND FOLEY
PHILADELPHIA (A P) — Philadelphia Flyers announced Tuesday that coach Fred Shero has suspended defenceman Rick Foley indefinitely from the National Hockey League team. Shero gave Foley a letter at Tuesday morning's practice citing the 26-year-old rookie "for failure to arrive in good physical condition this season," a team spokesman said.

ARE WE TOO "CHOOSY" ABOUT THE PEOPLE WE HIRE? - -

Maybe so. For example, we're looking for someone who can speak and write English, is at least 18 years old, has a high school education, and is willing to work hard. Maybe we're too "choosy" about the people we hire, but we're also willing to train the right person for a career in life insurance sales. Call us at 962-2231 and ask for Mr. Bell.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y L D L B A A X R
L E O N G F E L L O W
One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

MORTGAGES

Special deals for homeowners at Associates

If you're buying your house you're eligible for a special home owner Loan at Associates any time you need cash.

That means we may be able to give you $1,000 or more for a new boat, or longer terms . . . or both.

The amount you can borrow is based on the value of your home, less what you owe on it. For example, $25,000 or more, less $15,000 or more mortgage outstanding, or if you need cash for home improvements, we'll consider your application for a Home Improvement Loan. See how low-interest Homeowner Loans can help you, and how long you'll be in long term.

Nova Scotia May Refit Bluenose

HALIFAX (CP) — The Nova Scotia government is seeking financial support from the public to help get Bluenose II, a sleek exterior replica of the famed fishing schooner of the 1920s, back to a seaworthy condition.

Tourism Minister Garnet Brown said Monday the 143-foot schooner, built nearly a decade ago for a Nova Scotia brewery, suffers from both wet and dry rot, a deterioration of her wooden hull.

About $300,000 is needed to get her seaworthy by next May, Brown said, and the government wants to find out if the people of Nova Scotia want to fund them in a bid to have her sail again.

It was because of the need for extensive repairs that the original owners, Halifax and Nova Ltd., turned her over to the province last July, saving her from the scrap yards.

Because of the tight money situation, the tourism minister said, he was turning to Nova Scotia and people with a radio ads to help preserve the heritage of the province.

Mr. Brown said he has already been swamped with calls and suggestions offering help to donate the government its efforts to generate public interest.

A maritime province, Nova Scotia has always been proud of its heritage and looking for phone calls, letters — anything to let us know the people are behind us.

The tourism department is not only seeking cash contributions, but wants classes of school children and clubs to become involved.

With enough interest from the public, Mr. Brown said he will be prepared to approach Ottawa for a federal grant "because Bluenose is a national shrine" as well as an attraction to Nova Scotia."

A champion racing schooner, the original Bluenose was launched in Shelburne, N.S., and was a reminder of her success in international schooner racing competitions. In 1942 she was sold to the West Indies Trading Co. for freight hauling between the West Indies and the United States. She was lost in 1946 when she hit a reef and sank off Haiti.

In 1963, the Nova Scotia brewery had Smith and Rhuland Shipyard Ltd. of Lunenburg, N.S., builders of the original schooner, build Bluenose II to help in promotion of their products.

Mr. Brown said "there are so many wonderful things that could be done with this vessel. It would be a tremendous opportunity for youth to learn of the history of Bluenose II."

He would like to see the replica operate in the summer months in local waters for six or seven months and then in warmer climates for the remainder of the year.

Conventions and sightseeing tours have been suggested and a fund for the repair work has already been started.

Mr. Brown said he has been informed by experts that Bluenose II could either undergo a refit or have her complete hull replaced.

Pearce Irked As Four Jailed

SALISBURY (Reuter) — A confrontation between Britain's Pearce commission and Rhodesia's Smith regime loomed today over the amount of political activity allowed during the commission's stay in Rhodesia.

Lord Pearce accused the country's white authorities Monday night of infringing the agreement allowing normal political activity while the commission tests the acceptability of the Rhodesian settlement proposals.

The commission chief said in a statement that, in addition to four prominent opponents of the settlement being held, "a number of other persons have been detained in custody by the police, which seems to have had the result, in some cases, whether intended or not, of preventing them appearing before the commissioners."

The African National Council, spearhead of African opposition to the settlement, has charged that 250 of its number have been detained by the Smith regime.

The four detainees Pearce referred to are Garfield Todd, former Southern Rhodesian prime minister, his daughter Judy, Mrs. Jason Moyo, Josiah Chinamano and his wife.

All were detained without trial and also Todd—like his father an outspoken ally of the African nationalist cause—is on hunger strike in Marandellas jail, 50 miles southeast of Salisbury.

Meanwhile Todd appeared to be failing health in his prison cell at Gatooma, 100 miles from the capital.

He was granted an emergency visit to her husband Monday. Mrs. Judy Todd told reporters her husband has a stomach ailment and "might not survive a winter in detention."

Mrs. Todd also said she has been refused permission to visit her daughter.

Meanwhile in England, Bishop Ian Gray, chairman of the African National Council, said there is a definite possibility of a general strike by Africans in Rhodesia.

This would be a means of opposing the Anglo-Rhodesian proposals for settlement, terms he told a meeting of Oxford University African Society.

Critics Answered By Edson

EDMONTON (CP) — Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson today answered criticism by critics of government agriculture policy, saying the government is helping farmers on the land and develop "expansionary agriculture" programs.

Speaking to the annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, Mr. Olson said the recently-announced $150 million Agricultural Stabilization program will provide the "funds and flexibility" to help less-viable farmers develop their businesses.

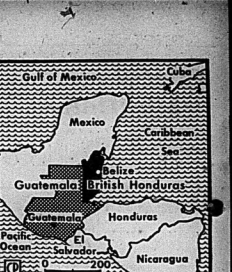
"The people say that we're following the recommendations of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, Mr. Olson said the recently-announced $150 million Agricultural Stabilization program will provide the "funds and flexibility" to help less-viable farmers develop their businesses.

"The people say that we're following the recommendations of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, Mr. Olson said the recently-announced $150 million Agricultural Stabilization program will provide the "funds and flexibility" to help less-viable farmers develop their businesses.

"This is not the bible of agricultural policy for Canada.

"Those people who claim that we're going to be knocking on the doors of people to leave farming have made up their own version" of the program.

Under the program, older farmers with land worth less than $20,000 will be able to sell their farms and retire on a pension based on up of the pension and a government annuity. Their farmhouses and a parcel of land will be left for them to live on.



As well, younger farmers with assets worth less than $50,000 or $60,000 will be given credit facilities to expand.

The government's thrust in agriculture is not "selling farmers to solve their problems by cutting down production and then leaving the job at that."

It is, Mr. Olson said, in support of the "expansionary" farmer—their production and energies to help produce the maximum benefit.

"Expansionary agriculture is oriented to the markets and then ensuring that we can produce a steady supply of what our customers want, where they want it and when they want it."

National marketing agencies, as provided under the Farm Products Marketing Act, can provide co-operation and co-ordination needed to make such a policy work, Mr. Olson said.

Possible Trouble Spot

Guatemala, which has long-standing territorial claims on neighbor British Honduras, is reported to be concentrating troops on its border with the British colony. Belize was flown a battalion of the Grenadier Guards to the Caribbean colony and a naval force, including the aircraft carrier Ark Royal, is heading for the area. Small units of British troops have been stationed in British Honduras, which has a population of about 120,000, since the 1950's, when Guatemalan forces made a series of border incursions. The situation has been relatively quiet in the last few years.

Chinese Enjoy a Record Year

HONG KONG (Reuter) — China's economy broke new records in 1971 and seems certain to do as well, if not better, this year.

The Peking government announced that industrial and agricultural production jumped by about 10 per cent in 1971—a dramatic increase for a country which comprises a quarter of mankind.

Steel production soared spectacularly by 18 per cent to 21 million tons, power also increased by 18 per cent, while crude oil rose by 27.2 per cent and iron ore by 25.1 per cent, according to official figures.

The main production, which for the Chinese also includes rice and potatoes, reached 246 million tons compared to the 230 million tons reported by Premier Chou En-lai for 1970.

Some Western observers in Hong Kong greeted these figures with a degree of skepticism, but one veteran analyst of the Chinese economy estimated the growth rate of the gross national product at between six and seven per cent, with industry expanding at around 10 per cent.

He added that 1971 was unquestionably a record year and 1972 would probably be better if weather conditions improved.

The six-million-ton increase in grain only represented a 2.5 per-cent rise and barely kept ahead of the population increase, estimated here at around two per cent.

But the government said China now was self-sufficient in grain, and exports were at a record high level.

Peking's Kwang Ming daily said the nation enjoyed its 19th consecutive bumper harvest.

The New China news agency reported only that cotton, oil crops, sugar, tea, tobacco and jute would be up on "harvests" and did not give any percentage details.

The analyst in Hong Kong noted that China had the poorest harvest in 1970 for four years. He added: "They widened the use of irrigation, increased fertilizer production and had a succession of favorable weather holds up."

The main problem last year was the unusually low rainfall for a long period over central China, succeeded as a result by a month drought in some provinces.

Another big advance came in the vital oil industry, where China is now almost self-sufficient and possibly enjoying a surplus.

In addition to the jump of 28 per cent in crude oil, natural gas rose by an impressive 25 per cent and, significantly, oil drilling capacity rose by 17 per cent.

The New China news agency said new oil refineries and oil wells started working in 1971, indicating massive investments in the industry.

The power industry also scored a record, with an increase of 18 per cent, according to the official agency. Much of this new output came from small power stations scattered across the nation.

One station in Kwangtung province taps an underground hot spring, converting the hot water into steam to run turbines.

Travellers returning to Hong Kong from China report no food or clothing shortages and say the people look remarkably fit and healthy.

Irish Boycott Imports

DUBLIN (AP) — English biscuits have disappeared from supermarket shelves here and scotch whisky is almost unobtainable in bars. The Irish republic began an unofficial "boycott British" campaign to earn enough foreign exchange for the country's five major supermarket chains said they had withdrawn all stocks of British goods and cancelled orders worth thousands of dollars for British-made biscuits, canned foods and cosmetics.

Tavern keepers said they were letting stocks of scotch and British beer run out and would not replace them.

Businesses acted after Northern Ireland Actor Group threatened sabotage there if they did not support the struggle of Roman Catholics in the north seeking union with the republic.

The action group's warning was read as a threat that supermarkets and taverns would be bombed. The supermarkets said they had been forced to ban the boycott.

'Self-determination' Issue

Stanfield Said Willing to Ignore Two Fuzzy PC Resolutions

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield is reported willing to ignore two fuzzy self-determination resolutions approved by the last party convention.

But there are some fears within the party that he may also be forced to compromised campaign explanations about Ottawa-Quebec relations in the election widely expected this year.

That was the case for the deux nations resolutions that preceded the 1968 campaign. This policy of two nations was sold to the Conservatives by Marcel Faribault as the way to woo Quebec support, on the premise that the phrase meant two founding peoples, not two states.

At the Conservative December policy convention here—results of the voting were issued last week—the delegates gave approval to two resolutions that come, vaguely, under the heading of self-determination. They were introduced to a committee workshop by Martial Asselin, Quebec MP, and the discussions indicated that most participants viewed them in relation to self-determination for provinces.

But it was never clear how they were viewed by the full convention which approved them.

In any event there were 60 per cent in favor, and only seven per cent opposed, to a resolution stating: "The principle of the choice for his future must belong to persons living in their collective and respective environment."

And 44 per cent supported, and 22 per cent opposed, this resolution: "In the case where a collectivity wants to choose a political orientation different from the one now existing, the federal government should never use force to fight these political changes which are democratically accepted."

Most of the party delegates did not hear any explanation for environment or collectivity. But there was no doubt that the Quebec delegates regarded the resolutions as approval for self-determination by provinces without the fear of federal force.

One highly-placed Conservative says it could also be argued that a collectivity includes a native Indian, an Indian reservation or the tenants of a national park.

Mr. Stanfield is not obliged to accept any of the decisions of the delegates on the 370 resolutions. They were designed only to gather party opinion for the guidance of the parliamentary caucus.

But this won't prevent any candidate from pointing out that there was overwhelming party support for a self-determinatory resolution.

With the fuzzy wording of these resolutions at the disposal of candidates, party officials acknowledge there are almost unlimited opportunities for squabbles over semantics.

Party officials say every effort will be made to avoid another deux nations campaign that agree that, at the moment, some dangers do exist.

Ontario to Be Main Battlefield in Federal Election

OTTAWA (CP) — The main battlefield in the next federal election, which may come as early as April, will be Ontario.

Spokesmen for both the Liberals and Conservatives say the main, and perhaps only, chance of Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield forming the next government will be through big gains in Ontario.

One experienced Liberal strategist said: "You can talk about the Conservatives holding the Maritimes and disaffection with the Liberals in the West and our hold on Quebec, but Ontario is where the action will be."

A Conservative organizer said: "We can hold all that we have now but if we did not pick up, and pick up considerably, in Ontario, we are dead for another four years."

He added that another four years on the outside could result in a Conservative leadership convention. Mr. Stanfield replaced John Diefenbaker as party leader in September, 1967.

There is considerable speculation on Parliament Hill about the timing of the next election.

Prime Minister Trudeau has said he has not even decided whether it will be in 1973 or 1974, when his mandate expires. Governments seldom wait the full five years before seeking re-election.

The general belief, however, is that the election may come in June and that it may be as early as April.

Some Conservatives now are speculating that Mr. Trudeau will have the throne speech, an outline of government legislation, delivered as scheduled Feb. 12 and then dissolve Parliament for an April or May contest.

A cabinet source said all signs point to an election sooner rather than later. U.S. economic troubles were gathering and could quickly slop over into Canada.

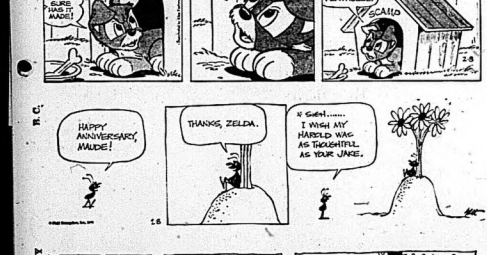
All parties appear of the same opinion: The political situation is unsettled and no party is in particular public favor at the moment.

However, a Liberal spokesman said he believes his party hit rock bottom in public favor in 1971 and now is on the upgrade, even if that upward slope is slight.

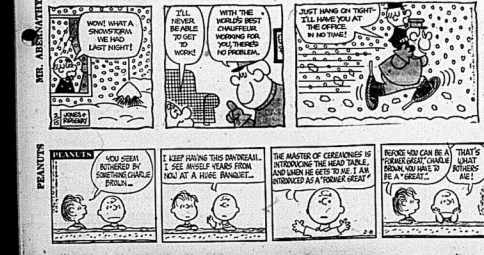
A Conservative spokesman said he is not surprised the Liberals fell substantially in public opinion polls late last year but he is surprised that the Conservatives did not gain by the full amount of the Liberal loss. The number of undecided voters has grown, he said.

The Conservatives hope to pick up some Quebec seats—they now hold only three—if they can find a known leader there and some excellent candidates.

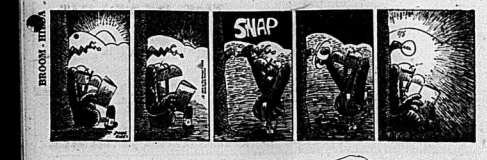
But their main effort will be in Ontario, which has exactly one-third of all federal seats.



Of 88 Ontario seats in the Commons, the Liberals now hold 60, the Conservatives 18 and the New Democratic Party seven. There is one independent Liberal, one independent and one seat is vacant.



Present standing in the 264-seat Commons is Liberals 158, Conservatives 71, NDP 23, Social Credit 13, Independents 2, Independent Liberal 1, vacant 2.



Even if the Conservatives gain 50 seats in Ontario and all other provinces remain the same, Mr. Stanfield would be short of a majority government.

Loss of Taste and Smell Blamed on Salt-water Gargle

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My wife, 73, has no sense of smell or taste, and, attributes it to the use of salt water in irrigating her nose and gargling over a period of many years. She got this on the advice of a friend for a nose-sinus throat condition.

She discovered it some time ago but wonders if that has to do with loss of these senses. Is there anything she can do or take?—R. D.

Dear Doctor: I read an article about the trace metal zinc being used to treat loss of taste and smell.—G. S.

Sniffing salt water isn't a good idea, and I have frequently warned against it. The principal objection is washing germs into the sinuses.

However, it is quite probable that prolonged use of salt water, especially if too strong, could have damaged the tissues enough to cause loss of smell. And since taste is so intimately tied up with odor, the loss of this taste is largely lost, too.

However, there are other causes of loss of smell. Certain neurological disorders can do it. This sense also can be distorted by some infections, particularly those of the flu type, and there have been a good many complaints of this following the last outbreak of so-called Asian flu.

There is no sure-fire way of restoring the sense of smell, although it may improve as time passes.

Yes, I've seen reports of the use of zinc salts taken by mouth to bring about improvement, but I cannot say as yet, how effective this is. If they are tried, it should be only under guidance of a physician, as such salts can irritate the stomach.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has neuritis. Does that go with diabetes? Is there any help for the neuritis?—Mrs. B. C.

Neuritis doesn't necessarily go with diabetes, nor does it result only from that, naturally. There are other causes. But diabetic neuritis is one of the hazards of diabetes, unless the diabetes is kept under control.

As a generality, neuritis has to be controlled by subduing whatever the underlying cause is, so if your husband has diabetes, the first thing to check is whether he has been keeping his sugar level under control. If not, see that he accomplishes that as quickly as possible. Such neuritis is one more reason why diabetes deserves to be called "the sneaky disease."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it true that eating yogurt will cause blindness? I was told it would, if I ate a day.—Mrs. F. H.

The story got passed around, but it is counterpeculation of some animal experiments—rats given practically nothing to eat except yogurt; it was the lack of other things they needed in their diet. Yogurt does not cause blindness.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Some time ago you mentioned a book called Sex Guilt. Sixty or something like that. Who was the author? Could you recommend any other responsible book covering normal sex functioning as one grows older?—Mrs. A. A.

It's Sexual Life after Sixty, by Isadore Rubin (published by Basic Books). He's not the one who wrote Everything You Wanted to Know, etc. It's a very sane, readable book.

Farmers Discuss Economic Plight

EDMONTON (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Agriculture will discuss today ways to improve the income of farmers after hearing provincial organizations report Monday on the gloomy financial plight of Canada's agricultural industry.

Frank Wall of Port Burwell, Ont., a vice-president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said farmers in Ontario continue to sell more products—an estimated $1.341 billion this year compared with $1.339 billion in 1971—but net incomes decrease.

"They sank to $296 million last year and are forecast to drop again this year to $274 million.

Opening lead — jack of spades.

Very few declarers would deliberately jeopardize a game for the sake of trying to make a 30-point overtrick. To do so — even when the overtrick seems highly probable — would be equivalent to laying odds of about 20 to 1.

Consider this deal where West leads a spade. Let's say declarer wins with the queen, crosses to the ace of clubs and leads the ace of hearts on which West shows out. South must now go down one, regardless of what he does next.

It is certainly easy enough to attribute the situation to the unlucky division in hearts — the suit could have been divided 3-3, so either defender might have had the singleton or doubleton jack.

But the fact is that, from the word go, South can guarantee nine tricks 100 per cent by making use of a perfectly simple play. All he has to do is cash the king of hearts at trick two and overtake the queen with the ace at trick three.

He then plays the ten of hearts to force out the jack and in that way assures himself of nine tricks comprised of three spades, four hearts, and the two minor aces.

Let's grant that there is a perfectly natural reluctance to spend the queen and ace of hearts on one trick. It does seem exceptionally extravagant — but that is scarcely a good excuse for failing to make the slam. The overtrick that might be lost by this lavish expenditure is well worth the price.

To fail to overtake the queen of hearts amounts to being penny wise and pound foolish.

Tomorrow: Accentuating the positive.

What the Stars Say

Wednesday, February 9
By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Concentrate on one project today despite the fun and stimulation of today. An unrealistic person promise can be very profitable.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): The bright idea is the theme now. News and people from distant places stir excitement. You may perceive subtle qualities in your mate for the first time.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Your plans turn out too tight and narrow for the benefits available—raise your sights to reach out for more.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Reality is better than the imagined picture and, for a change, about as accessible. Live the best and most of what is about you.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 27): Accept the challenge of competition today. Speak right up for what you know and what you want. You'll not get it all, but the odds look likely to come to perfection in a day.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Focus attention on the novel or unfamiliar whenever there is any choice. Clear your premises for a possible extra acquisition.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Gadgets appear as part of your scene. Your friends are full of surprises. Share the many little interruptions in high good humor.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Financial considerations take priority today. You have a better-than-usual facility for dealing with them.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Speak your mind about family affairs. Unorthodox remedies promise to work where not much else does. Look forward rather than back.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Divide your time as evenly as you can between work and play. Prefer the technical phases of your work.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A chemistry of peace and reflection is needed. You tend to press single lines of activity beyond optimum efficiency.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Building good will comes naturally today as you explore the blessings you have in the qualities of the people you love.

Tipped Before Police Raids

Montreal 'Madam' Warned to 'Clear My House'

MONTREAL (CP) — Martha Adams, a 39-year-old Irish blonde, said Monday that during 1964 and 1965 she had been tipped off by someone on the movements of Montreal's morality squad.

On at least four occasions, she said, telephone warnings enabled her to "clear my house" before police officers arrived on raids.

Miss Adams, 42, currently before the courts on charges of living off the avails of prostitution and operating a bawdy house, testified at a Quebec Police Commission inquiry into the conduct in the 1960s of the morality squad's commander, now Montreal Police Chief Jacques Saulnier.

She said she had no idea who her informer was in 1964-65.

She also denied she had ever met Mr. Saulnier, then a captain in the morality squad.

A document allegedly incriminating Mr. Saulnier was dismissed as evidence when Miss Adams refused to acknowledge the contents.

She testified that her signature was on the pages, but when she signed them at the time of her arrest in April, 1967, there was nothing on them except her name, address, charges against her and time of arrest.

The document became an issue last week when Lieut. Emile Dacharme, who served in the morality squad under Mr. Saulnier, testified that a Martha Adams had made a sworn statement concerning Mr. Saulnier to quiry resumes today.

April, 1967. She was under arrest then on a charge of living off the avails of prostitution.

Technicians' Strike

Air Traffic Moves Normally

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite some minor, sporadic delays, commercial air traffic moved normally Monday despite a national strike by 2,300 electronic technicians.

Mediation talks between the union and treasury board, which broke off shortly after the strike started Sunday evening, were to resume today at 1 p.m. EST.

A union spokesman said in Ottawa Monday that en-route radar for tracking aircraft movements between points had been placed on standby and that some short inter-city flights were delayed slightly as airport workers took extra precautions with equipment serviced by the technicians.

But Air Canada spokesmen in both Ottawa and Montreal said operations were almost normal and that only minor delays could be expected during the next few days.

Police Feared Assault

TORONTO (CP) — Police were attacked and it seemed likely the Ontario Science Centre would be stormed by a surging crowd of anti-Soviet demonstrators when Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin was speaking there last Oct. 25, police testified Monday.

A policeman's hand was pierced and an auxiliary police man's motorcycle helmet was split when the men attempted to aid a Metropolitan Toronto mounted officer who was being pulled off his horse, said Metro Police Inspector Lawrence Gaskin.

He told a provincial inquiry into charges of police brutality against the demonstrators that he himself was also hit on the right leg with what he described as "half a house brick."

As police began giving their side of incidents at the start of the inquiry's third week, Supt. Victor Telford said the crowd posed a severe threat with his men being pushed back.

Longer delays have been predicted by union and airline spokesmen if the strike continues.

Brother of Witness Died Of Natural Causes - - - Police

MONTREAL (CP) — Oscar Adams, brother of a witness at the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into the conduct of Montreal Police Chief Jacques Saulnier, died of natural causes, a Quebec Provincial Police homicide squad spokesman said Monday.

Detective - Corporal Jean-Claude Bellard said "according to the autopsy he drowned in his own mucous secretions."

"His lungs and especially his bronchial tubes were severely congested and it wouldn't have been possible for him to breathe naturally."

Adams was found by two police officers on a routine patrol Saturday. He was half-nude, curled up in the back of his camper van.

LeDain Report Called Incompetent, Dangerous

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. Andrew Malcolm, a psychiatrist and author on drugs, says the LeDain commission's report is incompetent, misleading and potentially dangerous.

"It is frequently out of date. It contains a staggering amount of misinformation; its proposals are often misguided and unrealistic," he says in a personal analysis of the Jan. 26 report.

Dr. Malcolm is staff psychiatrist at the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation of Ontario and author of Pursuit of Intoxication and other scientific studies of drug use.

He says that much of the information in the first volume of the royal commission's final report is perfectly acceptable.

But he says the commission applies a double standard to the drug scene. It promotes the idea that society is to blame for users of amphetamines and illegal stronger drugs, but that individual is at fault if he is alcohol- or heroin-addicted.

"The most destructive aspect of their report" is the "failure to adequately consider the illusion-ogens," he writes.

These drugs include cannabis such as marijuana and hashish; LSD and drugs with similar effects, MDA, mescaline and STP type drugs.

Dr. Malcolm says the commission apparently was unaware of accumulating evidence that all these drugs "do is to produce both psychic inhibition and physiological dependence."

Our Orange and Yellow scheme uses adjacent colours on the wheel. This side-by-side scheme revolves around the crisp lemon yellow and marigold tones of the marvelous Du Pont plaid on the sofa. To create this interesting effect in your home, choose one major colour. Then use variations of the adjacent colour in smaller areas and highlight with a few clever touches of black and white.

What comparative prices mean in Simpsons-Sears Home Fashions Festival Catalogue

Regular, Was or Were—means that in your geographic zone Simpsons-Sears has offered for sale, within the preceding twelve months, this item in most or all of its Retail Stores at the comparative price shown.

Value—means Simpsons-Sears has offered for sale in your geographic zone an item of identical quality within the preceding twelve months differing only in colour, pattern, style or aesthetic design at the higher price quoted.

Simpsons-Sears Comparative Pricing Policy is designed to protect our customers. All price comparisons are as accurate as possible at the time of printing and refer to prices within the preceding twelve months. We publish seperate advertising for four geographic zones in Canada to equalize the costs of merchandise distribution and thereby provide our customers with the fairest prices.

To achieve our electrifying Red and Blue scheme, we drew a line straight across the colour wheel to connect two opposite colours. You'll note that these colours are not 'pure' colours. The red is a combination of red/orange. The blue is softened with a bit of green. For total drama we used an off-white background and a painting's neutral hues to create a focal point of interest.

This cool, restful room is designed around a dual, Purple/Green scheme that skips the in-between, pure blue, on the colour wheel. To avoid a too-dark, oppressive feeling, we've mixed the purple with lots of white for the walls. And used liberal touches of deep lavender carpeting, and the greenery of plants to pick up and accent the dramatic print of the luxurious bedspread and draperies.

Have a favourite colour? Then spotlight it in a single-colour scheme. This room pivots around a brilliant Green. There's nothing monotonous about using this single colour provided you create variation by ranging it into yellow/green or blue/green. The secret is to shade some of the colour with black. Tint it with white. Or mix it with the colours that lie next to it on the colour wheel.

Nixon States Base For Trade Is Laid

Canada Recognized As Leading Partner

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon, in his annual report to Congress on foreign policy, gave assurance that the United States is "eager to reinforce our close friendship with Canada."

Nixon referred to his various summit meetings with allied leaders in December and January, saying they "laid the political basis for a broad co-operative solution" to trade and monetary problems.

Then, in one of the few specific mentions of Canada in the 236-page document, he added:

"I was able to assure Prime Minister Trudeau of Canada—our most important trading partner—that we understood the strong impact of our new economic policy on Canada and were eager to reinforce our close friendship with Canada."

Nixon said the Group of Ten, the most wealthy nations outside the Communist world, recognize that trade arrangements were important to assuring a new and lasting equilibrium in the international economy.

"To facilitate the realignment, we agreed that as much as the related [illegible] measures were available [illegible] national security was [illegible] legislation to devalue the U.S.) dollar in terms of gold."

The legislation is scheduled to be presented to Congress this week but details of any trade concessions negotiated with Canada, Japan and the European Common Market in secret negotiations have been kept secret.

Noting the growth of protectionist sentiment in the U.S. in recent years, Nixon said economic trade policies which adversely affect the U.S. "have been major irritants in our relations with other nations."

"Progress in dealing with these points of friction would reinforce political support in this country for an expanded European community and for our strong ties with Japan, Canada, Europe and other allies."

Bilateral negotiations alone could not resolve these issues, he said, and "the time has come to begin moving toward a major series of international negotiations for reduction of trade barriers."

Price Index Rises

OTTAWA (CP) — Food and housing costs continued to go up last month, but the rise in overall living costs was cushioned by January sale prices for clothing, Statistics Canada reported today.

The bureau said its consumer price index rose by less than half an index point, to 136.7 in January from 136.3 in December. Based on 1961 prices equaling 100, the index was 130.3 in January last year.

The January increase this year was about average for this time of year, and put the index up 4.9 per cent from a year earlier. Most economists believe prices should not rise more than two per cent a year for reasonable price stability.

January marked some easing of the pressures that had built up since last September, when the over-all index last showed a drop. The raid of increase accelerated through the fall months, and in December made one of its biggest monthly strides in 2½ years.

In percentage terms, the January increase of four-tenths of an index point was three-tenths of one per cent. This compared with a jump of seven-tenths of one per cent in December. Prices rose four-tenths of one per cent in January last year.

The rise in prices over 12 months also slowed a bit last month. January prices were 4.9 per cent higher than in January last year, but December prices had been a full five per cent higher than a year earlier.

Brewery Given Two-vote Okay

In one of the smallest recorded votes in Canadian history, Harold Frankland, 48, and his wife, Ann Margaret, 27, voted unanimously today to make a 107-acre "dry" enclave in the city "wet."

The two-ballot vote, necessary because of municipal and provincial law, allows the Formosa Spring Brewery Ltd. the right to retail its beer from a new $1-million plant the company has built just south of Barrie.

"Now we're going in have a little bacon and eggs," said Mr. Franklin shortly after the vote at 8:30 a.m.

"And after that we'll have a little beer," added the mixed farmer who does little during the winter.

The brewery treated the couple at a reception at a local motel after the "landslide" vote.

Mr. Frankland said he and his wife had no disagreements about the vote.

"We simply performed our democratic right," he said.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Bright winter weather will continue over much of the province today. Afternoon readings will range from near 20 over southern sections to around 10 above across the north. There will be little change in the current weather pattern through the remainder of this week with no significant precipitation and temperatures remaining below seasonal normals.

Pakistan May Lose More Land

PESHAWAR (AP) — Pakistan is showing signs of losing still more territory, this time in the border provinces of the Northwest Frontier and Baluchistan.

The threat arises from the conflict between President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto and his Pakistan People's party and the largest party in the two provinces in West Pakistan's western border, the National Awami party of the Pathan politician, Khan Abdul wali Khan.

The challenge from the fiercely individualistic Pathans is similar to resentful talk heard for two years among Bengalis before the fall of East Pakistan and the creation of Bangladesh.

Wali Khan is demanding that Bhutto lift martial law, from which he derives his authority as civilian president. Wali Khan wants the immediate formation of provincial governments so Pathans and Baluchis can run their own affairs in the smaller two of Pakistan's four provinces.

Although Bhutto claims no is the majority party of all West Pakistan, he has virtually no representation in Baluchistan and little in the Northwest Frontier.

The struggle has forced Bhutto-appointed governors in the Northwest Frontier and Baluchistan to back down on plans to form interim cabinets because the Awami party refuses to co-operate. It also is threatening a boycott of Bhutto's plans to hold local elections March 15 throughout Pakistan.

Hughes Book Probe Continues

'Absolute Disaster'

Ulster Disruption Day Causes No Disturbance

BELFAST (AP) — Northern Ireland's D for Disruption Day, a 24-hour campaign planned by civil rights leaders to cause civic chaos, appeared to have little effect this morning.

In Belfast and Londonderry, promised protests on a mass scale did not materialize. Most shops, schools and factories in Northern Ireland's two major cities opened normally.

"It is an absolute disaster at the moment," Londonderry civil rights leader Michael Havard said.

The Day of Disruption was called by the mainly Roman Catholic Civil Rights Association to protest Northern Ireland's policy of interning suspected gunmen without trial.

Both the government and security forces had braced for huge Catholic support of the Civil Rights Association's campaign which was aimed at closing factories and schools, jamming telephone communications and blocking roads.

By noon, however, the telephone network was working almost normally and a few roads near Londonderry and border with the Irish Republic, which had been blocked by felled trees and telegraph poles overnight, had been cleared by the army.

In Belfast, the only outward sign of protest was a march through the city centre by 500 school children chanting, "Free the internees".

Many Catholic businesses and schools opened as usual in Londonderry where the campaign was expected to be strongest.

No one turned up at a meeting called by the Civil Rights Association in the town's fiercely republican Creggan Estate.

Havord blamed the confused situation in Londonderry on an order from opposition legislator John Hume Tuesday night that people should work normally.

Hume and five other pro-Catholic Social Democratic and Labor party legislators began a 24-hour anti-internment fast in the neighboring Bogside enclave at midnight.

By midday, they had collected 5,000 signatures on a petition protesting internment.

U.S. Pushes Bills To End Dock Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Congress is moving ahead with its own solution for the 124-day-old West Coast dock strike despite tentative agreement on a new contract by negotiators for longshoremen and shippers.

Concern in Washington that the agreement might not be ratified by the dock workers caused the Senate to push through a strike-ending bill Tuesday and the House of Representatives to schedule action on one today.

The Senate bill, adopted 79 to 3, provides for an immediate end to the strike and the submission of many unresolved issues to a three-member committee empowered to settle them by binding arbitration within 40 days. There could be no strikes or lockouts for 18 months.

The vote came after the announcement in San Francisco of the tentative bargaining agreement. A union committee is to meet Saturday to set a date for the ratification vote and determine whether the 13,000 men on strike will return to work in the meantime.

The fact that the strike will continue at least until Saturday, and could go on after that if ratification fails, prompted Congress to continue with its own legislative solution.

President Nixon has been prodding Congress to act since Jan. 26 and sent word after the settlement was announced that he still wants the bill passed.

Irving and Wife Stay Silent

NEW YORK (AP) — Clifford Irving and his wife, Edith, are reported to have refused to testify during appearances before a federal grand jury investigating possible fraud in the author's Howard Hughes "autobiography."

But they presumably compiled Tuesday with a federal judge's order to give the jury handwriting samples, since there was no evidence of contempt proceedings being prepared against them.

The New York Times quotes sources as saying that Irving invoked the Fifth Amendment guarantee against self incrimination and his wife used either the same guarantee or the privilege of a wife not to testify against her husband in refusing to answer questions.

It was the first jury appearance for Mrs. Irving, the acknowledged "Helga R. Hughes" who deposited in a Swiss bank three cheques totalling $650,000 intended for Hughes, then later withdrew the money.

A third key witness, Irving's literary researcher, Richard Suskind, also appeared briefly before the grand jury and won a delay until Thursday to allow his lawyer a chance to familiarize himself with the complex case.

Suskind, who arrived in New York Monday from his home on Majorca, has sworn in a court affidavit that he witnessed a meeting between Irving and a man he believed to be Hughes.

Irving claims he met the billionaire recluse for a series of secret interviews that provided the material for the book which McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. had intended to print.

But in a telephone interview a voice identified as that of Hughes denied knowing Irving and denounced the book as a fake.

Irving has said that one meeting with Hughes took place when he took a trip to Mexico in the company of Nina van Pallandt, a Danish cabaret singer and neighbor of the Irvings on the island of Ibiza.

Mrs. van Pallandt, who is scheduled to appear before the grand jury Friday, has said she was with Irving constantly during the trip except for a two-hour period when he went to get her an airline ticket.

But she said in London in a story written for the London Sunday Mirror that she believes the book is authentic and that Irving, "a man I have loved . . . has pulled off the literary coup of the century."

Plans for Library Presented

City council yesterday had a first look at mock-up plans for the proposed new $250,000 addition to the Corby Public Library, but a final decision whether to go ahead with construction will have to await council budget discussions.

The look-see at the library study model came during a joint meeting at city hall of council and library board members during presentation of plans by the library board architect.

Last week council voted to make application for a federal loan to build the library addition and the board was directed to proceed immediately with sketch plans.

Yesterday council was assured by architect Irving Borgas of Bolgan and Heinonen, Don Mills, the $250,000 estimate for the library addition was realistic and the matter was referred to the advisory budget committee.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said the library addition will come up for final decision at a special capital works budget meeting to be called within the next two weeks.

But if the library addition does go head, there is little likelihood that the city will realize much of the $45,000 forgivable loan offered by the government for labor content if construction is completed by June 1.

Mr. Bolgan said it would take up to eight weeks before plans could be completed and a construction tender awarded.

And City Manager J. R. Reynolds said if construction start could be even further delayed by the time required to obtain the necessary Ontario Municipal Board approval and arrangements for financing.

Mock-up plans for the new library addition call for a two-story structure to be built on vacant property immediately to the east of the present library building.

The new structure would see the present reference library, formerly used as a children's library, located partially torn down and incorporated into the new building.

The addition "would have a "dressed up front" on Campbell Street as a focal point. The recessed entrance would be at street level.

The first floor would contain mostly open reading space with accommodation for book display and a work or administration section at the back.

Upstairs would be what was termed a multi-purpose display area or gallery which Mr. Bolgan said would be very flexible and capable of simultaneous use by different groups through provision of folding doors.

The addition would almost double the existing space and, according to library officials, would serve the city's needs for a central library until it reached a population of 50,000.

Mr. Bolgan was confident the $250,000 estimate would be sufficient for construction but said if the budget was tight, certain construction items such as brick quality could be substituted.

"I feel the budget (estimate) is adequate, but not excessive," he said.

It was brought out at the meeting that the Norwich Lions had been retained on an hourly basis since last October.

Mr. Bolgan said the $250,000 estimate for the library addition cost included architect's fees.

Alderman E. A. Orr and Donald Soutter showed concern over the necessity of having to partially tear down a library facility built less than 10 years ago to allow for construction of the new addition.

Alderman Ben Corke noted the lack of parking at the library and asked if this was any concern of the board.

He asked if there was a possibility, because of the parking lack, that the board might soon feel the library was no longer functional and be looking for a new site.

In reply, board member Linton Read pointed to the municipal parking lot almost across the street, which was open in the evenings.

With eight weeks or later given as the earliest possible construction start, Ald. Soutter noted to be realistic the city might just as well "write off" the $45,000 forgivable loan.

Alderman Gerald Joyce took the same line, suggesting that the government loan at seven might be the only benefit but which the city could look forward.

Alderman Jean Smith wanted to know if the library board felt the addition was needed now.

Assured by board chairman Merritt Hackett that this was the case, the alderman suggested that this was the basis on which the city should proceed.

"When we build new roads and sewers, they are built when they are needed," she said.

But Ald. Corke pointed to the $15-million backlog of road requirements and the need for new bridges and other services — all considered necessary.

"If we answered all the necessities we would bankrupt the city," he said.

The alderman contended that the need for a library addition must fit in with the over-all city need.

"We never get caught up (in providing needed services)," said Ald. Enos David. "Let's build the library now."

Ald. Joyce suggested the possibility of erecting the library shell now and the interior were tight, to complete only the first floor, delaying finishing funds were available.

Board member Read agreed this was a good point but noted labor costs were continually rising. He urged that the building be commenced as soon as possible and the city take advantage of what labor forgiveness grant it could get.

Alderman Arthur Keegan wanted to know if board members were unanimous in their support for the library addition.

"The answer is an emphatic yes," replied board chairman Hackett. "There is no dissension."

Slush Plugs Moira

Colder weather has caused the Moira River to rise in Belleville — although authorities say there is no flood threat to the downtown commercial area.

As temperatures dropped this week, slush was created in the river channel of the Moira at Victoria Park.

The blockage caused a backup and then the river flowed the low-lying park banks yesterday.

Today, city engineer Wilbur Purcell said a work crew and equipment had been ordered to unplug the channel and have normal flow resumed.

Emergency Measures Coordinator Angus Duffy said the backup had caused the river to rise about six inches in the city's centre. However, it was still three to four feet from the top of the Moira's banks in downtown Belleville.

Some seepage may have been noted in a few low-lying basements, but otherwise no problems had been reported, said Mr. Duffy.

IN MEMORIAM

MACK — In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Violet Mack who died one year ago, Feb. 9, also my father, Mr. Percy Mack, who died Nov. 22, 1970.
Peace, God gave them.
A fervent wish our Dad and Mom rest.
There are others, yes, we know, Who miss them more than words can show.
They're with us in our memory.
To our Dad, Mom, in Heaven above,
We'll keep your memory dear to them,
And give them both my love.
— Loving remembrance from Dearie, Peter and grandchildren.

WOODCOCK — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, Henry Woodcock, who passed away February 9, 1971.
Sweet is the memory of the dead,
A fervent wish our father was here,
Memories are treasures we have,
But he was sure, we loved him so,
We'll meet him in heaven.
— Lovingly remembered above.
Tell him how much we miss him,
And how we all our love.
— Sadly missed and always loved by daughter Ruth, son-in-law Lorne and grandchildren Ricky, Tammy, Kim, Dale Woodcock.

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like at this time to express my sincere thanks to my friends and neighbors for cards and special telephone calls and kindness shown to me during my recent passing of my dear mother.
— Olive Scrimshaw.

It is with deepest sympathy that I thank all those who sent flowers, through the Belleville Florist, society of Belleville have learned the sad loss of her dear husband Robert.

Prisoner of the Cold

This week's freeze is creating problems for almost everyone. Getting a jagged view from his bedroom window is Bill Turner of 36 Everett Street. Icicles will likely remain with us for some time yet as the weatherman predicts more near zero temperatures over the next few days.
